THE ROYAL COMMISSION'S REPORT

Dairy farmers of Eastern Ontario have been kept well in touch with the work of the Royal Commission appointed to investigate complaints relating to the weighing of butter and cheese in Montreal. Their report just to hand, therefore, contains little that is not already known, but as the conditions with which the report deals are still prevalent, a summary of the deductions of the Commission is still timely.

The Commission report that where short weights occur that they are attributed to one of four causes: Poorly balanced, old, rusty, and out-of-order scales; carelessness in weighing; dishonest weighing; weighing the cheese too green. Mr. Lemieux, who investigated scales for the Commission, found that in 90 per cent. of the factories where scales were personally examined, they were out of order. In some of the factories where the scales were tested they were found to be absolutely unreliable. Green cheese, too, was largely accountable for short weights. In one factory visited by Mr. Lemieux where heavy shortages had been noticed, no cheese whatever were found, the cheese maker stating that he was just as well pleased to have heavy shortages and ship cheese green as to have O.K. weights and ship the cheese well cured. In a few cases shortages in weights could be only attributed to dishonesty. Several lots of cheese were three, five, and even 10 lbs. less than the weights marked on the boxes.

SHRINKAGE OF GREEN CHEESE

To illustrate the error in weighing that may occur where green cheese is shipped, the Commission estimated that the cheese will lose on the average one pound the first week, one pound in the next three weeks, and very nearly a pound in the next month. Where green cheese are shipped short weights are more in evidence than where cheese have been held for a period of 10 or 14 days.

The Commission recommend that a competent official be appointed with headquarters at the city of Montreal, whose duty it shall be to weigh cheese when shortages arise. Such an official should be competent also to judge the quality of cheese and then, cooperating with the Ontario and Quebec Department of Agriculture, call attention to the source of faulty cheese. The Commission also recommends that the Weights and Measures Act be amended so that all scales at cheese factories will be inspected at least once a year. They further recommend that in the interests of the cheese industry of Canada legislation should be passed to prevent the shipping of cheese from place of production under 10 days old.

The question of bonding cheese dealers as the grain dealers of Western Canada are bonded was also investigated by the Commission, but the proposal did not meet with their approval.

Consumption Takes Hundreds of People

every day in the year and the deadly germs claim more victims in cities than in rural districts, due no doubt to the increased number of indoor workers in confining quarters and their lack of sunshine.

Tubercular germs always attack when the system is weakened from colds or sickness, overwork, overstrain, confining duties or any drain which has reduced the resistive forces of the body. But nature always provides a corrector and the best physicians emphasize that during changing climate our blood should be kept rich and pure and active by taking Scott's Emulsion after meals; the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion warms the body by enriching the blood—it peculiarly strengthens the lungs and upbuilds the resistive forces of the body to avoid colds and prevent consumption.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or nervous, Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known; it builds energy and strength and is totally free from alcohol or any stupefying drug—every druggist has it.

POINTERS ON PLOWING

Shall we plow deep or shallow? As a general rule we may say, that if plowing in the fall, plow deep. If plowing in the spring, plow shallow, though there are exceptions to this condition.

Deep plowing in the fall has the advantage of opening up the soil to a greater extent and so exposing it to the action of the frost. This has the effect of breaking down the large soil particles into smaller particles and thereby making the soil more mellow for the reception of the next crop. It also aerates the soil, which is a fundamental necessity for the best growth of plants.

We should not forget that the the deeper we plow and the more we break down the large particles, the more retentive will the soil be of rain water, thereby having a greater moisture capacity.

In some soils it may be desirable to plow shallow in the spring as well as deep in the fall. This is the case with heavy clay soils when the winter rains have the effect of puddling the surface and thereby making it too compact. Another reason why we should plow shallow in the spring is that it has the effect of making a greater surface exposure to the heat rays of the sun. This warms the surface soil, which is very important, particularly where we are sowing corn. The shallow plowing is frequently done on soils whose lower layers remain wet late into the spring.

The nature of a soil will also to a large measure decide what treatment we shall give it. A hard pan subsoil generally requires deep plowing, as it affords a more efficient drainage. The plowing of the surface soil, should that surface soil happen to be deep, is very important in the case of deep-rooted crops, such as potatoes, since it permits of a greater extent of root growth of the crop.

All poor soils should be plowed deep, but a soil whose upper layers are rich and whose lower layers are poor should receive a shallower plowing. Particularly should we follow this practice in a case where we are going to plant a shallow rooted crop.

While the deep plowing of clay soils allows a deeper percolation of the water, it is not wise in the case of sand where the drainage is generally too free. That is why in the case of loose soils we recommend a shallower plowing and also an annual plowing at the same depth, encouraging a firmer subsoil whereby the water will better supply the plant.

POULTRY POINTERS

Early pullets should be in winter quarters and starting out to make egg records.

Dampness is the greatest curse of the poultry house. The best way to avoid it is to make a tight roof and leave the front open.

Don't let cold weather catch you with the hen house out of repair. If there any alterations, get busy now.

Cull the flock closely; kill and sell early all chickens with twisted toes, weak legs, crooked backs, awry tails and all other deformities.

Breeders of white fowls, such as White Wyandottes, Leghorns, and Plymouth Rocks, should beware of too heavy feeding of corn. It tends to make the plumage yellow.

Points for Mothers

Child's Knowledge of Art.

A teacher was surprised one morning to see a pupil who had come to school for the first time showing a remarkable interest in the reprints of great paintings which she had arranged along the blackboard. Unobserved, she drew near the child and was further astonished to hear her exclaim delightedly, "There's 'Baby Stuart,' the 'Sistine Madonna' and 'The Horse Fair.'"

This teacher mentioned the occurrence to another teacher, who told her that the child's brother and sister had likewise surprised her by the knowledge they had not only of master pieces in painting, but of sculpture and architecture as well. Later the teachers met the children's mother and were shown the playroom.

Instead of the highly colored pictures that one so often sees in play rooms, there were several good paintings illustrative of the time honored childlore and the ever new fairy tale. One could readily see that considerable time and money must have been spent on these pictures. The visitors particularly admired the imaginative suggestion and harmonious coloring of a painting of Cinderella. "That picture," said the mother, "is the best we have in the house. My little daughters and I sacrificed our new spring bonnets at Cinderella's shrine the first time we caught a glimpse of her."

Numerous prints of great paintings were arranged in groups according to subjects around the room. These pictures were mounted on mats of uniform size and color, and each one was plainly labeled with the name of its author and its subject.

"The pictures in the various groups are constantly changing," the mother explained. "If any one finds a picture which appeals to him it is brought in for consideration. No picture, however, gets the coveted place in the group if any of the children raise a valid objection to it. This censorship not only develops the children's observation and judgment, but keeps the groups of pictures from becoming too large and usually insures survival of the fittest.

"At different seasons the interest is transferred from one group to another. At Christmas the Madonnas claim most of our interest; later, when the children are enthusiastically building snow houses and fashioning snow men, we naturally turn to the groups headed by the Coliseum and Michelangelo's David. In the spring we are all enthusiastic about the flowers, birds and trees.

"We are always careful to encourage even the youngest member of the family to contribute to the changing collection. Occasionally we allow our judgment of a picture to be influenced by our hearts rather than our heads. This was the case when little Ned brought in a highly colored picture of Santa Claus which he evidently admired and astonished all by requesting us to hang it beside the 'Sistine Madonna.'"

The "No Toy" Theory.

There was a woman, rather prominent socially, who had a pet theory on which she always fell back. Her slogan was "Sticks and stones for children." She believed, in effect, that children could get along quite well without any toys save sticks and stones, that the fewer playthings they had the better off they were. She argued very convincingly. Of course when you found out that she had no chick or child of her own, but was, moreover, a spinster, your faith in her theory perhaps was somewhat shocked. The theory was right nevertheless, as you doubtless are forced to admit when you ponder on the happiness of the children you know. Without a question toys do not mean happiness.

If you are a believer in the no toy theory the summer is the best time to put it into practice, for in summer there are many things which an out of door loving child can find to take the place of toys. Doubtless the child who has only a limited number of toys and is therefore forced to amuse itself without them most of the time has a better chance to develop its resourcefulness and imagination and its power of getting happiness and amusement wherever it may be than the child who is surfeited with toys.

Summer Clothing For Baby.

In summer the baby's clothing needs especially to be light in weight and loose fitting, says Good Health. It goes without saying that it should be clean and sweet. The young child is exceedingly sensitive to change of temperature, and his clothing should be subject to the surrounding atmosphere. In the chill of the morning he needs warm garments, but swathed in flannel in the heat of the day he becomes overheated and perspires to excess. It takes time and thought to watch his comfort in this matter, but it does much toward insuring freedom from disease.

A Useful Box.

A box for children's toys can be made much more useful if two strips of wood an inch and a half wide are nailed across the bottom of the box, one at each end, and a small castor is put in each of the four corners. When picking up the toys the box can be moved across the room, besides serving as a little wagon for the children.

Popular Songs.

Modern Beacon Fires

THE old beacon fires were the great advertising mediums of their age.

Though they could not advertise merchandise, they advertised the things of most vital interest to the people.

Placed on the summits of high hills, bearing a message to thousands of "readers," they were prototypes of those modern fires of Twentieth Century commerce—the "beacon" fires of Newspaper Advertising.

The advertisements appearing in the newspapers to-day are shining lights in the world of commerce, flashing out news and information to a waiting world.

When the modern manufacturer lights

the Beacon Fires of Newspaper Advertising

he places his message before the people in a way that will impart knowledge, beget appreciation and win preference for his goods.

Who can fail to see any day the gleaming messages of "Magic Baking Powder," "Standard Ideal Ware," "Sunlight Soap," "Gillette Safety Razors," "Penman's Underwear," "Infants' Delight Soap," and many others?

To the Manufacturers of Canada

Each day sees more articles given publicity in the newspapers. Are your products and your brand still in the valley of obscurity, or are they blazoned forth by the beacon fires of advertising on the high hill of public favor?

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

IRL HICKS ON THE WEATHER FOR NOV.

A regular storm period, covering the first seven days of November, bids fair to be a decidedly stormy and inclement period. It is central on the 4th coincident with the centre of the Venus equinoctial period. The Mercury will also add its perturbing powers to these disturbances. The Barometer will show the oncoming of these storms, in western extremes, as early as the 2nd, rain, wind and thunder will attend falling barometer, and as these storms travel eastward across the country, from about the 3rd to the 7th they will grow in intensity and extent, until most parts of the country will feel their influence and direct force. Surprising dashes of early winter, with boreal gales, sleet and now, may very reasonably be anticipated over much of the country northward, as the western side of storm areas push the tropical features of the storms out of the way to the eastward. A November cold wave will wind up this period, sending much cooler weather and frosty nights very far into the south.

A reactionary storm period will bring a return of storm conditions—falling barometer, change to warmer southerly winds, with probable thunder and rain—on and touching the 9th, 10th and 11th. The moon being on the celestial equator on the 9th, storms of rain, wind and thunder will be natural consequences on and touching that date. The Mercury influence will prolong and intensify threatening and falling weather, bringing thick cloudiness, autumnal storms, with drizzle and sleet, for days beyond the normal limits of this period, possibly past the full moon on the 13th and into the storm period next following.

A regular storm period involves the 14th to the 19th, having its centre on the 16th.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 22nd and 23rd. On and touching these days, all who are observant may note perceptible weather changes. Cold will relax, wind fall to the south, barometer will fall, and cloudiness with more autumnal rain, possibly ending in snow squalls, will pass eastwarly across the country. Electrical storms, with rapid rise of the barometer following, will naturally bring a sudden change from warm to cold, lasting for two or three days behind the storms. The moon on the celestial equator, and at the same time in perigree, or closest to the earth, we always reasonably expect a maximum spasm of electrical excitement, with quick revulsion to colder in winter.

A regular storm period covers the last week in November, having its astronomical centre on the 27th. The moon is also at new or in conjunction with earth and sun, on the 27th. The barometer will fall, and other indications of brewing storms will appear westward by the 25th and 26th, but decided autumnal storms of rain and wind, turning to snow northward, will traverse the country from west to east on and touching the 27th, 28th and 29th.

THE VOLTURNO

ROTTERDAM, OCT. 31.—The derelict Volturno was sighted on October 17th by the Dutch oil steamer "Charlois," whose captain had not heard of the burning of the vessel, and thought it possible that there might be survivors in the hull. Flocks of seabirds were hovering, shrieking, over the blackened hull. The decks were bent and twisted in all directions with the heat, while down in the hold the cargo was still smouldering. Flames still came from the forecastle and stern. Apparently the only part of the ship not damaged by the flames was the engine room.

In the crews mess room and quarters the "Charlois" men found four charred corpses, completely unrecognizable. One of the dead was a man of stout build, one of the others apparently a boy.

Will Slowly Sink.

Before departing the first officer of the "Charlois" decided to sink the wreck, as it was in a position dangerous to navigation. He had the outer circulation tubes and seacocks opened so as to let in the water and cause her to slowly sink.

Every Day New Hats Are Added to the Display of Winter Headgear

With the constant influx of the newest ideas in Millinery, the display in our showrooms on second floor always presents a collection of modish designs, tastefully trimmed.

And the hats that are now being released from the workroom, show the fashionable tendency towards a flatter style, Velvets, Plush and Velour retaining the preference as coverings. One can notice at once, the handsome effects of the black and white hats, and also the careful use of lace in many instances.

There is one model which is of a drooping shape, that has a brim of Black Velvet while the crown is covered with a pretty brown. The bandeau is formed of a pleated lace frill, which is encircled by a narrow band of fur. At the front there is a spray of small flowers. This is $8.00.

Another hat that is marked at $14.00 has a very handsome appearance, for it is a study in white and black. The drooping shape is somewhat larger, and is faced with white Plush, while Black Velvet covers the entire top and a beautiful Ostrich Bandeau completes the trim, with small posy of flowers at the front.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

TAPE AND TICKER TALKS

There were many interesting events in the swift career of the late Chas. G. Gates, but perhaps none which was of deper interest to Wall Street than the effort of that aspiring capitalist to secure an investment position in the St. Paul some years ago. The Raid-Moore party had acquired a very large interest in Chicago and North-Western, so large that they might have succeeded in overturning the Vanderbilt control had it not been that the Vanderbilt family owned a block of 7 p.c. bonds having noting power, an advantage of which the Western people had been in ignorance. Whether Chas. G. Gates planned to overturn the control of the St. Paul by the Rockefeller group has never been known, but at all events he accumulated a large amount of the stock, causing a big advance in the price. He openly admitted making large purchases, asserting that he had put the certificates "down at the bottom of his box." About a year later, in 1903, St. Paul developed extreme weakness and one of the old holders of stock, when asked for an explanation, smilingly replied. "I guess Charley Gates has turned his box upside down, and is selling from the bottom."

Overproduction of Skyscrapers.

"Do they pay?" is a question frequently asked, in connection with the construction of the very large office buildings in lower Manhattan, says the Wall Street Journal. The president of one of the large loaning companies answers emphatically in the negative. His belief is that, making proper allowances for depreciation, these large office buildings do not return more than 2 per cent. to 3 per cent. on the money invested; that except for the possible advantage of the advertising feature he can see no justification for the investment of capital upon such a basis; and says that in his opinion there is a frightful overproduction of downtown skyscrapers.

Selling of Nipissing.

Selling of Nipissing has been persistent lately and the stock has slowly but steadily declined. It was for sale again to-day on the various mining exchanges and dropped to a new low for the year as a result. Brokers said the selling of Nipissing was of substantial character and predicted that the stock would go lower in all probability, as very considerable blocks are still for sale. No reason was given for the selling other than the need of the sellers for cash. There is no immdiate talk of a reduction in Nipissing dividends, as the company is in a strong position, both as to cash and ore reserves, but like other Cobalt properties, its ore is getting lower in grade with depth. Nipissing pays 30 per cent. a year, giving a net return on the investment of about 18 per cent., which compares with 25 per cent. on Contagas, 27 on Kerr Lake, 30 on La Rose, and 23 on McKinley.

CANADA WON FIRST PRIZE

Paul Gerlach, a German American farmer, near Allan, Saskatchewan, on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, won a separator valued at $1,250.00 at the International Dry Farming Exhibition, Tulsa, Oklahoma, for the best bushel of wheat. This was the first prize in open competition with farmers of the world. Mr. Gerlach's exhibit was of the Marquis variety and weighed seventy-one pounds to the bushel. The event is a good advertisement for Western Canada and demonstrates the wonderful richness of the valuable soil continguous to the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

STRAIN OF OFFICE FALLS HHARD UPON PREMIER BORDEN

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden Goes South to Recuperate—The Second Six Weeks' Rest During the Intersession Interval.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—The sudden departure of Premier Borden on Friday for a six weeks' rest in the Southern States is on doctors' oredrs. The Premier's health has suffered severely during his two years of office, consequent upon the constant stress and worry of party leadership under peculiarly embarassing and unsatisfactory conditions. Insomnia and nervous breakdown have made it imperative for him to seek refuge from the troubles and importunities of office, with a view to recuperating so as to be in condition for what promises to be for the Government a most trying session of Parliament. His destination is not officially announced, in order that he may be assured of as much rest as possible. It is understood, however that he will spend some time at Hot Springs, Virginia, where the golfing is good. During his absence from the Capital Hon. Geo. E. Foster will be acting Premier.

Belief He Would Gladly Resign.

The Prime Minister had a six-weeks' holiday early in the summer at St. Andrew's, N.B. This second prolonged absence from the Capital when belated sessional preparations should occupy the time of the Cabinet, emphasizes a belief that finds frequent expression in political circles here. That belief is that were a satisfactory successor in sight Mr. Borden would gladly resign the cares of the Premiership and of party leadership. It is certain that he has little zest for the political game as it is being played by his present colleagues.

Many Causes of Worry.

Lack of harmony within the party, Cabinet bickerings and jealouies, the necessity for political side-stepping and trimming to satisfy conflicting elements of the Government support throughout the country, the lack of strong men and of loyal support within the Cabinet, and the growing signs of popular and of party disfavour with the present administration, all harass and worry the Premier. The result in South Bruce has caused him further worry in the form of complaints and protests and conflicting advice from the Conservative ranks in all parts of the country.

Speculation on Possible Successor.

He has temporarily escaped from it all, but the real cause of his physical ills will again meet him on his return. Conservative leaders here are already speculating as to how long he can stand the strain, and who could be brought in to succeed him. To the latter query there is no satisfactory answer. There is no other acceptable leader in sight, even as a compromise. Hon. Robert Rogers, Sir Richard McBride and Hon. Geo. E. Foster are the three men most prominently suggested.

Rogers and McBride.

To Mr. Rogers there is the obvious objection. Sir Richard McBride's stock is not nearly so high as it was. Moreover, his ambitions are now directed towards British politics. He will probably leave the British Columbia Premiership to Hon. W. J. Bowser, the present Attorney-General, during the coming year, and espouse the cause of a rejuvenated Chamberlain-Unionist school of politics in Great Britain. That is the secret of his recent flag-waving speeches on the naval question in Ottawa and Toronto on his return from England.

Mr. Foster Most Probable.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster who is now plowing a sort of lonely furrow within the Cabinet lines, is at present the most likely man in sight as t temporary leader it Mr. Borden is forced to drop out. In that case history is likely to repeat itself. Mr. Foster knows what happened to Sir Mackenzie Bowell in 1896.

Mr. White Too New.

Hon. W. T. White also has ambitions, but the general opinion opinion among Conservatives here is that he is too new a recruit to the party fold, and has yet much to learn in politics before he can be accepted as a leader.

State of Unpreparedness.

Menawhile, Parliament is due to meet two months hence, with no preparations as to sessional legislative programme yet made, with the estimates still untouched, with the Premier off until nearly Christmas, and with various other Ministers planning more absences from the Capital.

Dr. Murdock MacKenzie Addressed Local Congregations Yesterday

Spoke in Three Presbyterian Churches of This City and Left an Inspiring Message With All Who Heard Him.

PLEA FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS

The three Presbyterian churches of this city enjoyed the unusual privilege yesterday of hearing Dr. Murdoch MacKenzie, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada. For twenty-five years Dr. MacKenzie worked among the Chinese people, and three large congregations were given knowledge based on his experience, that made the "Foreign Mission" problem appeal to the min a new light. Dr. MacKenzie made a powerful exhortation for young men and women to enter the service of God in foreign lands. He also outlined in a graphic manner thep roblem that confronted Canada in its present state of unprecedented increase in population and wealth. Speaking from knowledge acquired by travelling this Dominion from Ocean to Ocean, and from the northern limits of civilization to the southern boundary, he presented the difficulties which Canadians have to face in the interests of the future of the Dominion, in a way that left a feeling of responsibility with all his hearers.

Dr. MacKenzie spoke at St. Paul's Church in the morning, and in the evening at St. Andrew's and Knox churches.

In the morning, at St Paul's Church, Dr MacKenzie led up to his subject by the statement that if, in all his travel throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, there was one impression more than another that had remained with him it was this. "The Work Is Great"—that there was a great work to be done for God in Canada. There were great resources to be developed; there was room for scores of millions of human beings within the bonndaries of the Dominion, if we were to produce what God would have us produce.

Canadians had received another goodly heritage—the traditions handed down from their forefathers. Nations were not made great by the extension of their dominion, with their gold and silver, nor with bountiful crops, but by purity and uprightness, manly strength and womanly womanliness of the children of the nation.

Greece was a very small nation geographically, but from it emanated many of the strongest influences the world has ever known. Palestine, was even smaller, yet in it one Man was raised who changed the whole course of the world's history.

Referring to the Scottish piety the speaker remarked that although it would not be wise for Canadians to copy her custom, woe betide the Canadian Dominion if there was none of the Scottish piety in the home life of her people. Because we were living in a rushing age of materialism, the family altar was needed more than ever before.

The work would be great if our Canadian Dominion was to be preserved for Jesus Christ—but before the word "preserved" could be used Canada must be "won" for Him. We should be prepared to wage war with all the foes of the national well being of the nation.

Some of the men, who were opening trap doors to hell for the young men and women, had formerly been church members in Eastern Canada. They had yielded to temptation through their lust for gold.

One foreigner in the West had been asked what nationality he was. He replied that he could smoke, drink, swear, and had received money for his vote, so he was a Canadian. The speaker deplored the condition of affairs that allowed foreigners to get that conception of a Canadian.

In speaking of the evangelization, and Christianizing of India, China and other foreign people, Dr. MacKenzie likened the Canadian Church to the heart. If the heart failed to send blood to the very tips of the fingers there was something wrong. So if the church at home had not love, life, and sympathy enough to send the Gospel to the remotest corners of the earth there was something wrong with it.

The Chinese had said to missionaries, "We have no religion we would go seven miles to preach. How can we believe you have one you will go seven thousand miles to preach."

Some men say they do not believe in Foreign Missions. They should remember that they owe all that is brightest and best in their civilization to foreign misions. If missionaries had remained at home centuries ago, we would not now be Christians. Or if the missionaries had gone east instead of west China and India would now be Christian nations, and the Chinese and Indians would now be considering the advisability of sending the Gospel to the heathen Canadian.

"Even if I had not believed in Foreign Missions when I went to China, I must still have felt their need for them before I returned," aid Dr. MacKenzie. In every part of North China not 15 per cent. of the Chinamen could read or write, not 5 per cent. of the ladies could read or write.

The speaker described the hard experiences the missionaries had been forced to pass through. They had been driven out of cities, stoned, and had the dogs of the community set at them. But in spite of all that China was dearer to the speaker than ever—because he knew the power of Christ among the Chinese people.

He spoke of how the Christian religion redeemed the gambler from his gambling, the opium eater from his degradation, and the heathen from their idol worship.

Telling of the scarcity of workers he said that he had charge of over 600 villages. But in spite of this handicap he hal seen 200,000 villages of China Christianized.

"O brothers and sisters," concluded the speaker. "Consider the greatness of the work God has given us to do in this day and generation."

A very pleasant evening was spent on Hallow-e'en at the home of Miss Myrtle Knapp, George Street. The time was spent in playing games, after which the guests retired to the dining room, where a dainty supper was spread. There were a number of out-of-town guests present, including Miss Wainwright of London, as guest of honour. Every one departed voting the hostess a hearty thanks for the enjoyable evening.

Shot At Steer Killed Man

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 3. — George Beattie, a waggon driver, was shot dead and another bystander was seriously wounded when the police fired a fusilade of revolver shots this morning at wild steers which had broken out from the stock yards. The cattle did a lot of damage to neighbouring stores. The policeman who fired the shot which hit Beattie has been suspended. There will be a rigid investigation.

WORKS ALL DAY

And Studies at Night on Grape-Nuts Food.

Some of the world's great men have worked during the day and studied evenings to fit themselves for greater things. But it requires a good constitution generally to do this.

A man was able to keep it up with ease after he had learnd the sustaining power of Grape-Nuts, although he had failed in health before he changed his food supply. He says:

"Three years ago I had a severe attack of stomach trouble which left me unable to eat anything but bread and water.

"The nervous strain at my office from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. and improper foods caused my health to fail rapidly. Cereal and so-called "Foods" were tried without benefit until I saw Grape-Nuts mentioned in the paper.

"In hopeless desperation I tried this food and at once gained strength, flesh and appetite. I am now able to work all day at the office and study at night, without the nervous exhaustion that was usual before I tried Grape-Nuts

"It leaves me strengthened, refreshed, satisfied; nerves quieted and toned up, body and brain waste restored. I would have been a living skeleton, or more likely a dead one by this time, if it had not been for Grape-Nuts."

Preparing For The Month Of Xmas Delivery

Already the Handling of Christmas Goods Has Commenced by Customs House, Express and Railway Companies

Christmas is less than two months distant, and already the trade between the wholesale house, the manufacurers and the retailers is taking on a brisker appearance, Early in the spring, during the summer, and on into the fall the retail houses of the City, large and small, have been placing orders with manufacturers for their supply of Christmas offerings, and during the next month they will put the finishing touches to the ordering. Others, who are willing to take a greater chance in regard to delivery, in return for greater assurance that their Christmas stock will be of an up-to-the-minute style, are just ordering their goods now.

From now on the Customs House will be called upon to handle an increasing amount of dutiable goods. As yet only a small fraction of the Christmas goods have been delivered, but from this date until the first of December, the amount wil be steadily increasing.

The customs officials are taking the usual measures to prevent a congestion of the articles subject to duty.

The trade of the Express Company has swelled slightly, but it is the railway companies who have made most preparation for the handling of the Christmas trade. Owing to the tremendous outpouring of grain from the west, there is a serious danger of more or less congestion, but the railway companies have called into requisition a double track freight service to Montreal.

The delivery of goods so far is only an indication of what is to follow during the next month. Trade conditions are much the same as last year, there having been no important reduction of tariff except in the matter of kodak supplies.

Charlie Has A Little Fun

First Chinese Baby Born in Peterborough

That scantily clad gentleman, commonly known as the stork, paid a visit to a Chinese laundry on Saturday, the result of which will be apparent in the vital statistics for the month. The sign which is a distinguishing feature of all Chinese laundries, bears the inscription—Charlie Fun. The domicile in question is situated on Water Street, almost opposite the post office.

This is said to be the first Chinese baby born in Peterborough.

Medal Will Be Presented

Rev. F. J. Sawers has received from the Royal Humane Society a bronze medal for life saving, which is to be presented to David Cumberland, the local young man who showed great presence of mind and bravery in rescuing from drowning Miss Traill at Chemong Park, last summer. The time and place of the presentation has not yet been decided upon.

CALEDONIAN CLUB NOTES

Peterborough Caledonian Club's annual meeting has been fixed for Wednesday, 26th inst., when a report of the past year's work of the Society will be placed before the members.

The past year has been very successful, both socially and financially. What with socials and picnics held, a spirit of fellowship has been aroused among the members, which augurs well for its future.

Did you make out most of the goloshans on Friday night last? There certainly was a great array.

George Hatton was the most impregnable rock in the hall. Fancy remaining unknown for about seven hours!

The President was in his usual happy vein. Recounting past Hallow-e'en superstitions and experiences, and telling of the origin of the event centuries ago, he gave some intresting anecdotes of the season in Auld Scotia.

The lunch provided by the ladies, at ten o'clock, was most welcome. Glad were the hearts and sharpened were the appetites of all as thy gazed on such "hamely fare" as tattie scones, pancakes, soda and cream scones, yitcakes and cheese, bun and shortbread.

What did you get in your piece of Hallow-e'en cake? I got a —!

St. Andrew's night is to be celebrated on the night of 28th of November, in usual style. No definite arrangements have, as yet, been divulged, but a "gran' nicht" is promised on the anniversary of Scotland's Patron Saint.

The fact that all of your pure bred chickens are not true to type in shape or color does not mean that you were cheated on the setting of eggs. This happens in the best flocks.

Twilight Musicale

The first of the series of twilight musicales under the auspices of the Women's Art Association was held on Saturday afternoon in the Conservatory of Music Hall and was well attended. WAREHOUSE COLLAPSES

Examiner Special:

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 3.—With a roar that awakened half the City the brick wall of the six-storey Greenberg Rag Warehouse collapsed at 3 a.m. to-day, demolishing the two storey frame dwelling that stood beside it, killing John Hughes and his niece, Eva Dooty, and injuring four others who were sleeping in the building. The police deny the rumours that the Greenberg building was dynamited.

CANADIAN LEAGUE MAY BE CLASS B ORGANIZATION IF NEW CITIES ARE ADDED

Hamilton Spectator: Contrary to expectations, the annual meeting of the Canadian league magnates at the Prince George hotel in Toronto yesterday was decidedly tame, and instead of fireworks, clashes and heated arguments, almost perfect harmony prevailed. The transfer of the Berlin and Guelph clubs which it was thought would be the basis of storms and squalls, did not come up for discussion. Mention was made of the proposed transfer, but nothing definite was arrived at for the simple reason that the two cities across the line, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Erie, Pa., are not at the moment ready to step in. Both cities boast of good baseball populations and are eager to land berths in the sturdy little Canuck league, but the switching of franchises requires a great deal of thought. Erie is a city of 70,000 population and is one of the best baseball towns of its size in the United States, while Niagara Falls, especially in the summer time, contains upwards of 60,000 people.

Yesterday M. M. Robinson, of the Hamilton club, was communicated with by 'phone by enthusiastic business men of Niagara Falls, N.Y., respecting the proposed transfer of a Canadian League franchise. The greatest point from a tourist's point of view on the continent, has a fine ball park, supplemented with a covered stand, which holds 4,000 people. Not only the fact that it would be a natural locality for baseball, but it affords the league an opportunity to play Sunday baseball in three cities out of the eight. Erie always played Sunday ball in the days of the Central league, and with baseball seven days a week, Ottawa will fall in line, since the Ottawa Jockey club has offered the use of Connaught Park to the Senators for Sunday baseball, across the river from the capital, in the province of Quebec, where Sunday baseball is not a novelty.

Berlin and Guelph are reluctant at the idea of losing Canadian League ball, but in the end will accept the propositions which wil be brought to a head at the next annual meeting to be held on December 5. The league has outgrown that stage when a step forward would be retarded. Baseball has not paid in Berlin and Guelph and the reason that those interested in these franchises are willing to continue on a losing basis is no reason by any means, that the six other clubs should stand by and lose along with the poor towns, especially when there is a remedy within easy access and a broadening out effect.

President Fitzgerald, who presided at the meeting, told the representatives that the Canadian league has at the present time a check in the hands of Secretary Forrell of the National commissioner of Minor Baseball leagues, covering the Erie territory for next season. Farrell, however, holds these credentials to present at the next annual meeting of the National Association, to be held at Columbus, Ohio, on November 11. Several Erie baseball men also have a claim in for the same territory, but since the league in which Erie played last season is defunct, President Fitzgerald considers their claim valueless, as a league can only take such steps.

HOCKEY

Arrangements are already being made to have Bowmanville represented on the Ontario Hockey Association map this winter with a strong aggregation of players. The best of last year's players are available and several other "stickers" of O.H.A. calibre have been secured. It is likely the team will enter the Intermediate series. Mr. Wm. Hancock, Toronto, who coached the team last year so satisfactorily will, in all probability be in charge again. In conversation with "Bill" Saturday he warned us to be ready for some big surprises on the local team when the season opened.—Bowmanville Statesman.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

The clearing out of the various water channels, both alongside and underneath our sidewalks, are an unpleasant reminder. They herald the approach, among other signs, of the coming winter and its consequent series of discomforts.

INEFFICIENCY OF DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Mr. N. W. Rowell, Opposition leader, in an interview with the Globe as to the inefficiency of the Minister of Agriculture, and of the administration of his department, among other things, said:

"The Minister appears to think that he and the Government have been doing all that can possibly be done to meet the situation, and resents any suggestion to the contrary. Surely the Minister does not forget that one of the most influential members of the Conservative party in this Province, Mr. J. W. Flavelle, felt compelled, owing to the apathy and indifference of the Minister to the problem, to address him an open letter, in which he states:

"'You have permitted, you are now permitting, thousands of young Ontario farmers, the cream of our agricultural people, to leave their own Province for the west, while by your inertia you indicate you are not cognizant of the advantages of continued residence in this Province, if full advantage is taken of the opportunities which open in response to intelligent effort.

"'. . . It is not too much to ask that the responsible Minister should be the leader, and should show grasp, vision, enterprise and that mastery of all that is involved in being the chief of agriculture, which will command the respect of the entire Province and secure a hearty response from the community of farmers.'

"Mr. Flavelle in this letter has well expressed what the Opposition asks and is seeking to secure for the people of this Province—namely, a Minister of Agriculture who will show grasp, vision and enterprise, and that mastery of all that is involved in being the chief of agriculture, which will command the respect of the entire Province and secure a hearty response from the community of farmers.

"Mr. Duff says that we have offered no serious criticism of specific items in the work of the department. Permit me to mention but three out of the many that have been discussed on the floor of the House:

"(1) The incapacity of the Minister of Agriculture himself.

"(2) The failure to appoint an agricultural expert as Deputy Minister to succeed Mr. C. C. James.

"(3) The appointment of an unqualified and unsuitable man from the Prime Minister's constituency to take charge of the experimental station at Jordan.

"In all these we have been supported by leading agricultural journals in the Province, and these three grave blunders on the part of the Government are seriously impairing the efficiency of the Department of Agriculture."

REGARDING EVELYN NESBITT THAW

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Sir,—Will you please allow me space in your valuable columns to make a few remarks regarding the Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw theatrical tour of Canada and the United States. I am informed that a deputation of our "Christian" citizens waited on Mr. Turner, and the result was the canceling of Mrs. Thaw's engagement in this city. Let us look into the matter.

Mrs. Thaw was the centre of the great society scandal caused by the murdering of Stanford White and the subsequent exposures at the trial of his alleged murderer. When the affair had somewhat "blown over," and Harry K. Thaw was lodged in Mattewan, his wife left the country, and tried to start life anew and bring her boy up in a way that the stain of his father's and mother's career should not be a handicap to him. She refused to have anything to do with Thaw's people—refused to accept his money, but preferred to earn an honest living for herself and boy. Thanks to the "bringing up" she received, the only thing she could do to support herself and boy was—go on the stage. She did. Men raised a kick at once. "Such a character should not be allowed to appear before public gaze," was the cry, and all over the same obstacles were laid in her path. Now, Mr. Editor, for the benefit of the "Christian" deputation who waited on Mr. Turner, I wish to quote Mrs. Thaw's own answer to these people, which was as follows: "If these men and women who feel I am not fit to appear before my fellow human beings will pay me the same salary I should receive for an honest day's work, I will not go near the stage. It is all I can do—is sing and dance—and my little boy and I must live and I do not wish to accept a cent of the Thaw money. I do not love the stage—I would sooner be at home."

Think it over, dear readers. "When a woman's down should we kick her." Is that God's wish? Let me close with the old truth—"Judge not that ye be not judged."

Thanking you, I remain,
Yours truly,
A Christian.

SPECTACULAR PLAY MADE BY PETE CAMPBELL

Toronto Globe: Seldom has a more spectacular play been pulled off in the Toronto grounds than when Campbell scored a try at the beginning of the third quarter when he gathered in the kickoff and returned a short punt to midfield. He followed up the punt and nailed it just as it touched a Cadet. He shook off several tackles and after a run of fifty yards carried the ball across the Cadet line. He was tackled just as he reached the line, but was able to throw himself across.

TRAIN WRECKED BY BOULDER

Examiner Special:

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 3.—Wrecked by a fifty ton boulder from an overhanging cliff, a local train between this city and Lacrosse, Wiss., on the Burlington route was smashed up. Seven were seriously hurt.

Parents Complain

Say the Police Had No Right to Lock Their Boys Up All Night

The Examiner was informed this morning that the parents of some of the boys who were arrested on Hallowe'en night are endeavouring to have an investigation into the matter, and have the circumstances of the affair brought before the Police Commissioners. They claim that the boys were arrested on suspicion, locked up in the cells all night, refused bail, and not allowed to communicate their plight to their parents.

To the Examiner, the father of one of the boys explained that although he had a 'phone in his home he did not know of his son's whereabouts till 10 o'clock on Saturday morning. When his son failed to come in Friday night, he instituted a search for him, which though conducted at considerable inconvenience to himself and others, was of no avail. His anxiety was great as he could not find out where his son was spending the night.

In connection with bringing the matter before the Police Commissioners, he intends to find out if the Police have been vested with the authority to lock boys up and keep them in the cells all night, and if they have, what can be done to remedy such a condition of affairs. According to him the boys were arrested on suspicion.

Parents claim that the chief complaint was that the boys were making a noise on Hallowe'en night, an offence that did not warrant being jailed for the night, in their opinion.

Police Justified.

Several citizens whose sons spent Friday night in the cells at the police station for their alleged share in the Hallowe'en festivities, have questioned whether the law was as strict as it seemed to them. They consider that the boys should have been allowed to go home for the night if security was offered for their appearance in court the next morning. One man claims that the law should not be too strict in a case where there may be suspicion of the prisoner's guilt.

Chief Thompson stated to The Examiner that the law regarding disorderly conduct is not suspended on Hallowe'en. He instructed his staff to arrest those who were destroying property or going beyond the bounds of ordinary fun. While admitting that of a number who are arrested there may be one who is innocent, still the fact that he was taken with the gang can scarcely be overlooked and the police have not the authority of the magistrate. It was reported to the chief that while the boys were in the cells their conduct was disorderly, considering merely the ordinary meaning of that term, apart from its legal significance.

Besides, it is hardly to be expected that the Police Magistrate is to be awakened after midnight to sign the necessary papers giving freedom to those who are arrested. The police, Chief Thompson said, were entirely within the law in this matter.

STREET FILLING UP.

Two Fast Horses In The City May Stir Up Old Game

Among the horsemen of the City there is a revival of interest in the racing game, and with several new horses recently purchased by Peterborough enthusiasts, there are a number looking forward to a winter meet. It is understood that Messrs. Arthur Rountree and J. M. Brooks are making tentative arrangements for a winter meet, but there have been no material developments. One of the first obstacles is a two hundred dollar demand for the use of the track at the Exhibition Grounds. It is stated that this is garded as too high a figure in view of the fact that the expense of the proposed meet would have to be born for the most part by those interested in the sport, and a certain guarantee would have to be first secured in order to make up the purses. The meet would be held just before the Ottawa races, and it is believed that a good string of horses could be brought here and a fine card of races made up.

It is further understood that some of the Fair directors are inclined to offer the track gratis, and in that case it will probably be gratefully accepted by the horsemen.

Mr. Jas. F. Daly received a new mare yesterday that should be a valuable acquisition to the local ranks of good horse flesh. Amble Dawson is her name on the register, and she was sired by Captain Dawson, and Amble Maid was her dam. Her pedigree goes back six generations and brings out the fact that she comes of one of the best blooded lines in the country. She was raised in Auburn, Neb., and it is understood that she stepped the circuit in 2.09. Just now she is stabled in Akey's barns, and has every appearance of a fine mare. Mr. Daly would not state the price he paid for her, but it is rumoured that the figures are something like $3,500. He bought her for a driver, but it will be strange if she is not heard from in some of the meets this winter. Amble Dawson is well built and rangy looking.

There is another mare that Mr. Alex. Johnston, an old Harwood boy, recently brought from Montana. She is stabled just now at the King George Hotel barns, and is said to have a mark of 2.21. She is a black with four white feet.

With these, Doctor Johnston's Susie Hal and several other good horses around the Peterboro district, it is felt that there is almost enough local talent to make up a few fast heats. At any rate there is a general feeling that something will be doing in the racing game before long.

HALLOWE'EN AT ST. VINCENTS' ORPHANAGE

Hallowe'en passed pleasantly for the children at St. Joseph's Orphanage. Early in the evening the children were permitted to dress for the occasion, and with "lantern faces" enjoyed an hour's frolic in the grounds of the institution. Afterwards there were indoor games, and a taffy pull, to which the children did full justice. The material for the taffy, together with a bag of flour, was presented to the orphanage by the T.A.S., as the result of having lost Thursday evening's "forty-fives" to the Knights of Columbus by two points.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS HAVE SLUMPED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 3.—The decided slump in customs collections during the month of September and October is causing some apprehension in government circles. September receipts showed a decrease as compared with September, 1912, and during October, there was another drop of nearly $1,000,000 in the amount collected by customs collections. If the decreases which set in continue during the next five months the total customs figures of the fiscal year will show a decrease of two or three millions. Last year the customs collections exceeded the amount of previous years by nearly twenty million dollars.

MORRISON WILL THROW UP SPONGE

Special to The Examiner.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 3. — The indications are that the Conservative party will throw up the sponge in the Macdonald contested election case. The Liberals have collected such an overwhelming mass of evidence that unless they fought the election on technicalities before the courts the Conservatives would have no hopes of retaining their present member, and it is likely when it comes to trial on November 7, Alex Morrison will resign his seat.

HOW A BROOKLYN GIRL

Get Strong and Well Again

Grace D. Lamb of Brooklyn, N.Y., says: "I was all run-down and on the verge of nervous prostration. I could not sleep for pain in my back. In all I was a wreck. A friend told me what Vinol had done for her little girl so I tried it. I noticed an improvement after the first bottle. I could sleep well, my appetite improved, and after taking three bottles I am strong and well again."

Vinol is the most efficient strength creator for such women. It is the medicinal elements of the cod's livers contained in Vinol aided by the blood making and strengthening properties of tonic iron which makes it so far superior to all other tonics to build up health and strength for weak, tired, ailing women. It contains no oil and has a delicate taste.

We give back your money if Vinol does not do all that we claim. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.

BLACKBURN ROVERS SUFFERED THEIR FIRST DEFEAT SATURDAY

Were Made to Relinquish Their Position at the Head of the Table to Manchester United---Celtic Leads Scottish Divisions--Saturday's Results.

Blackburn Rovers suffered their first defeat of the season Saturday, at the hands of Sunderland, and were made to relinquish their position at the head of the table to Manchester United. The boys from Old Trafford downed the Liverpudlians by 3 to 0. Manchester City got away with one point from West Brunswick after a scoreless game. Derby County's victory over Sheffield Wednesday on the Hillsborough ground was the most unexpected win of the day. The "Wedneday" are having hard luck since they changed the name of their ground. "Pensioners" just managed to get a verdict over Middlesboro., the scare being 3 to 2.

Notts County Lead.

Notts County, by their victory of 4 to 0 over Fulham, lead the second division table. Bury, the old leaders, had to retire beaten at the hands of the "Peacocks." Barnsley lost another two points to Clapton Orient after a game in which only one goal was scored. Hull City had to step back a bit when they met Glossop, the latter beating them by 2 to 1.

Swindon Town All Victorious.

Swindon Town had a narrow escape Saturday. Their run of consecutive victories was very nearly shattered, but they managed to pull through at the finish by an odd goal. This makes the tenth consecutive victory for the team. Reading and Crystal Palace now tie for second place as the former gained a victory over Southampton, and the latter were only able to tie with Plymouth. Brighton and Hove are slowly creeping along, and their run over Millwall Saturday shows that they will be a force to contend with before the season is over.

Hearts Suffer Defeat.

Hearts have at last had to go to the wall. They were defeated Saturday by St. Mirren. This now makes Swindon Town the only undefeated team in the four British leagues. Celtic go to the top of the Scottish League by their magnificent defeat over Kilmarnock. Rangers take third place as Dundee were beaten by Partick Thistle. The following are Saturday's scores:

Fight Among Cattle Men

A disgraceful fight is reported to have taken place on the Haliburton Grand Trunk train Thursday afternoon, while the journey was being made back to the northern hamlet, and rival dealers in cattle and others are alleged to be the cause of the trouble.

In a short time the quarrelsome row developed into a full-fledged fisticuff encounter, and for a time a regular Donnybrook ensued, considerable damage being done to the car. The conductor and his crew were unable to keep peace, and were handled somewhat roughly by the unruly crowd.

In all probability an action for damages will be entered by the company.—Lindsay Warder.

COLLEGIATE TEAM WIN EASILY FROM LAKEFIELD

Local Collegians Defeat Visitors by 27 Points to 5 in an Interesting Game at Nicholls Oval on Saturday.

LEAD ALL THE WAY

The Collegiate Institute Rugby team added another scalp to their collection on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval, when they defeated the Lakefield team in easy fashion by 27 points to 5. The visitors had the advantage in weight, but they lacked the team work and tackling ability of the students, and above all things showed very poor judgment in their tactics. There was a very strong wind blowing, and the visitors made the mistake when the breeze was in their favour of not adopting a kicking game. They wasted time on running plays when punting would have undoubtedly made points for them. The Collegiate on the other hand kicked almost continuously when they had the wind, and long punts by Rogers and Long, coupled with fast following up, were responsible for the big margin they secured.

The students gave a good exhibition of Ruuby. The backs kicked caught and ran nicely, while the tackling of the forward line was uniformly good. Lakefield had some good performers individually, and some very promising material, their worst fault being high tackling.

Rogers and Long on the Collegiate back division, were in the limelight continuously. They took every advantage of the wind, kicking splendidly, while both ran and bucked well. Richardson, who had been out of the game with an injured knee, got back on Saturday, and was the star of the advance guard. He was always on the ball, and his tackling throughout was superb. All the forwards showed fine tackling ability, in fact there were few high tackles charged up against the Students' line.

Bullock and Leahy, who have both figured prominently in the Examiner's Thanksgiving Day road races, were the stars of the Lakefield team. Both showed fine form in running and line bucking, and were hard to bring down, sometimes plunging along with a couple of Collegiate wings hanging to them. Graham and Stewart were the best of the advance guard, doing some nice tackling.

The teams were as follows:

Lakefield:
Flying Wing—Garvey.
Halves—Leahy, Bullock (capt.), McDonald.
Quarter—Madill.
Scrimmage—Lemay, Hill, Murduff.
Inside Wings— Murphy, Stewart.
Middle Wings—Sherin, Austin.
Outside Wings—W. Lemay, Graham.

Collegiate—
Flying Wing—Richardson.
Halves — Rogers, (capt.), Long, Smith.
Quarter—Stratton.
Scrimmage—Cann; Huycke, Horsfield.
Inside Wings—Canniff, Stevenson.
Middle Wings—Jobbitt, Knox.
Outside Wings — Macdonald, Eastwood.

Referee—Dr. McPherson. Umpire—W. Gibson.

Lakefield won the toss, but elected to play against the wind in the first quarter. There was a half gale blowing at the time and with it in their favour the Collegiate pressed from the kick-off. The student wing line held well and the visitors were unable to run or plunge the ball back. Within a few minutes Long kicked into a touch-in-goal for the first point of the game. Almost immediately after he again kicked over the line and Richardson forced a rouge. The play was all in Lakefield territory. The Collegians secured possesion on Lakefield's twenty yard line and Long tried to drop a goal from the field, kicking into his own scrimmage. Shortly after, however, Eastwood broke through the line and blocked a punt from Bullock on Lakefield's ten yard line, and McDonald picking up the loose ball, went over for a try. Two students touched the ball and prevented an attempt to convert. Collegiate 7, Lakefield 0.

The Collegiate backs kept up a continuous kicking game, with the help of the strong wind and as the local wing line were tackling splendidly, the visitors could not force the play away form their lines. Rogers added another point to the score when he returned a kick to the dead line.

Shortly after, Long went over for a touchdown after a twenty yard run around Lakefield's right end. Rogers failed to convert. Quarter time score, Collegiate 13, Lakefield 0.

With Lakefield in possession at their quarter line at the beginning of the second period, a fumble gave the Petes the ball, and Long kicked over for another rouge. Lakefield chased the play into Peterborough's territory on a long kick by Bullock, but the visitors failed to take advantage of the wind and wasted a lot of time on running and bucking plays. Finally Bullock kicked to the dead line for their first point, and repeated a moment later. Richardson got away for a twenty yards gain on a neat onside kick from Rogers, but passed forward to Smith and Lakefield secured possession. They, however, lost several chances to score through running instead of kicking, and it was not until nearly the end of the quarter they added two more singles on kicks by Bullock, leaving the score at half time, 14 to 4.

The Collegiate had the wind in their favour again in the third quarter and made the most of it. Rogers made a beautiful return of the kick off and Richardson nailed the Lakefield back just outside his line and threw him back for a safety touch.

A few moments later Richardson who was folowing up in great style recovered the pigskin just outside the Lakefield line on a muffed punt, and Huycke was pushed over for a try on a scrimmage buck. Long's attempt to convert missed by a narow margin. The Petes continued to press, and although Leahy and Bullock relieved a number of times by plunging runs and fine bucking, the kicking of the local halves, and the fast following up of the wings, kept the visitors on the defensive. Long tore off a nice run around Lakefield's left end and although he was forced into touch before he could get over the line, the Students bucked over for another try, Huycke carrying the ball. Long converted from a difficult angle and the score was 27—4.

In the last quarter the visitors once more failed to take advantage of the wind. They kept up the running and bucking game, and although they ripped through in good style the Collegiate managed to hold their scoring down to a single point, a kick into touch-in-goal by Bullock. The locals forced the play at the end of the game and chased Lakefield back on the defensive. Macdonald secured a touchdown on a fumble behind the Lakefield line, but the Collegiate wings did not give yards on the play and the try was disallowed. Final score, Collegiate 27, Lakefield 5.

Mat Conter—Half-back of the Argonaut Rugby team, who is proving a very valuable acquisition to his team this season.

BASEBALL

"You can talk about language," says Ed. Reulbach, the tall and mighty pitcher, "but when it comes down to purple oratory, garnished with all the frills and sparkles, Frank Chance has few competitors. He can say things in a manner to make them sink in, and when he has fully expressed his opinion of you, you can't get over an impression that you have been drinking from the tabasco bottle by mistake for the cold tea.

"One pleasant day when we encountered St. Louis, King Cole was told to go in and stop the Cardinals who, at that time, were playing a good, aggressive game. I don't know what could have been the matter with the good old King, but as soon as his arm began swinging you could hear nothing but wood crashing and see nothing but dust around the bases. Chance stopped the proceedings and walked out to the King.

"'See here, you long, lean, yellow, spavined grandson of a striped hyena,' roared Chance, 'what sort of a performance do you think this is? A runaround, a revolving carousal or a one-ring circus? Get outa this, you unprintable child of a seasick, get outa this before I kill you, and take it from me, you are the yellowest cur in the broad creation?' And the King departed, blubbering bitterly. Chance waved a hand and I took up the burden.

"I couldn't get 'em over. They didn't hit me, but I issued pass after pass, hit a man and threw a wild-one that caromed off the front of the stand. Again Chance stopped the game and walked across the infield.

Choice Collection.

"'You wild idiot of the Bornean jungles, you solid composition of ivory and imbecility,' he screeched. 'I made a serious error in what I said to Cole You are ten times yellower, twenty times foolisher and fifty times as utterly useless, incapable, pitable and reptilian as he even dared to be! Beat it, you human snake, beat it fast or I'll stamp your poisonous frame so deep in the sod that they'll find nothing but a grease spot and a fragment of concrete!' And, somehow or other, I concluded I wasn't wanted round there and went away.

"Lurid Lou Richie went to the slab and had a pass, a wild pitch and an error immediately. Eight runs had been scored, the bases were still packed and not am an was out. Chance threw the ball back to Richie after an ineffectual trp for a base runner and Richie tossed it up, juggling it with a wild grin and generally clowning the act. For the third time Chance stopped the game and walked to the slab.

"'You —— you firecracker brained cross between a mongrel pup and a debauched buzzard,' he shrieked. 'I apologize to Cole and Reulbach! You are so much their moral and mental inferior that those two ochre tinted dogs look like angels of sunshine when compared to such a thing as you! Now, you ——,' but Richie was 200 feet away and going rapidly.

"When the game ended Chance came into the clubhouse, stopped in front of a mirror and addressed himself.

"'You half-baked, pig-headed, bowlegged, drooling, addle brained, imbecile jackass,' he whooped, 'you are worse than Cole, Reulbach and Richie added together! The Lord gave them no sense at all so what kind of a thing must you be to hire such things as they?'

EAST AURORA, Nov. 1. — The fact that "life is short and time is fleeting" is pressed home more strongly than ever when local baseball fans reflect that it was only a matter of four or five years ago this summer, that Walter Schang, now the idol of fandom throughout the length and breadth of the land, first appeared on the horizon in the shape of the rawest kind of an amateur. He was first seen in action on the Hamlin Park grounds in the summer of 1908, and then his advent into the game with the local team was the merest accident.

Jask Tarnish was the team's pitcher during the season, and Willie Shumaker was the catcher. They received $2 each for every game played, and were the only regular "salaried" men on the team. As is the case with nearly all other country nines, matters of finance were complicated, to say the least. At some games there was fully $4 in the hat of the treasurer after he had made the rounds of the grounds, but frequently the sum was not so large. One day Tarnish and Shumaker, the home team battery, had an offer of $3 each for every game from a rival team. The result was that they decided to go on a strike—demand more pay or quit. The latter option was the one acted upon, and it was this very condition that produced "Wally" Schang upon the diamond. Before the instance related "Wally's" ball playing had been confined to the Wales Centre team.

Upon the hot Augut day when Tarnish and Shumaker went on a strike there wa a game scheduled to be played by the East Auroras at 2 p.m. at Hamlin Park. In the tumult that followed the retirement of the regular battery, some person had a happy thought. Out in Wales, they said, there were two brothers named Schang, Bobby and Wally. They were pitcher and catcher respectively, and what was more they were the real good. "Mayor" Clarence Lamb of Willink had seen the Schang boys in action with the Wales team only a few days before. He stamped them with his official seal of approval as soon as their names were mentioned. An authorized delegate was sent hurrying to the nearest telephone to communicate with the "battery" at Frank Schang's farm. Would Bobby and Wally come in and play that very afternoon?

Say, it was the greatest compliment that had ever been paid the boys from the Wales farm and come they did, both of them, hellitylarup! Bobby, the older of the pair had a respectable bicycle, and Wally "borrowed" one less respectable from a boy in the neighbourhood.

The pair of farmer lads hit the baseball diamond at Hamlin Park just before 2 o'clock. Two more provincial lads never essayed to play the national game than Bobby and Wally Schang. Their appearance was that of a pair of "rubes" if ever two came to East Aurora from the surrounding hills and valleys. They were clad in blue over-alls ("jumpers"), wore knee-high cow-hide boots and were spattered with mud from head to heel. With them hey brough an ash axe-helve, that did duty as the "family" bat. Bobby adorned the pitcher's box, while his younger brother "took 'em off the bat" without mask, protector or shin guards, and did his stunt for the most part without a catcher's mit.

The opposing team failed to connect with Bobby's curves and shoots, while Wally was a veritable stone wall back of the home plate.

It was when Wally came to bat that he made his biggest hit with the boys on the side-lines. He batted .800 that afternoon, missing but once in five times up. He made a home-run that stands to-day as the longest hit ever made at the Hamlin Park grounds. The ball soared over the gigantic elm tree that stands in a line with third base, and sped on over Roy Wheeler's house and hit the ground in Sycamore Street. The mighty swat was recalled to local fan by the long hit of Thursday in the world's series. East Aurora won the game that day, thanks to the prowess of the Schang brothers. They were popular heroes and after the game some of the most ardent fans took Bobby and Wally to Cummings' drug store and stood treat for sodas.

The Ottawa Free Press says:

In drafts and sales, five thousand dolars came into the coffers of several clubs on the circuit. Dunlop, of London, was sold to Cleveland for $1,500. McAvoy of Berlin, was drafted by Philadelphia Athletics for $750, Berlin also lost Bradshaw to Toronto for $500, and Bramble to Fort Wayne for $300. Neale, of London, was drafted by Toledo for $500, while the same clug secured Hilliard, of Peterborough for a like amount. Wright, of St. Thomas, was taken by Providence for $500, while Brant of Peterborough, went to Chattanooga for $400.

A regiment of Toronto newspaper men were present, which W. F. Mahoney of Guelph, took exception to, and asked they be excluded. He was the only one to support his own motion.

W. H. Denham, of Peterborough, raised a howl over the drafting of Brant by a class A club, when it was really the New York Giants who had secured the player, using their farm club at Chattanooga as a subterfuge to their man cheaper. This matter will be taken up with the National Association by President Fitzgerald, who was appointed to represent the Canadian league at the National Association annual at Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 11th.

That 1914 will see many new managers around the circuit is positive. Peterborough has let Davy Rowan go, St. Thomas is after Harry Bemis, the ex-Cleveland catcher. George Ort who managed the Saints last year is in a Detroit hospital suffering from an injury to his groin and is hardly likely to play again. London and Rube Deneau have fallen out and it is probable Rube will handle Brantford next year. He demanded 15 per cent. of the purchase money on Dunlop and the draft money on Neale. It may be Matty Matteson will ead the Cockneys in 1914. Guelph and Berlin are both looking for managers. Eddie Holly is pretty sure to be at the head of Hamilton and should give Tigertown a crackerjack club with all of Toronto's surplus material to draw upon.

TO-DAY'S POLICE COURT NEWS

Last Saturday afternoon Robert Levoy, a local man, walked into the Woolworth & Co. store, on George Street, under the influence of a pronounced jag. Several small articles on the counters caught his fancy and he pocketed them without a word to any one. The result was that the manager of the store notified the police, who gathered him in. Levoy appeared in Police Court this morning, charged with being drunk. He pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs, or $5.75 in all. The Magistrate at first announced his intention of imposing a $40 fine, but in consideration of Levoy's domestic troubles he lightened it considerably.

Joseph Findlay of East City, was charged with being drunk while on the black list. Findlay is a blacklister and certainly had his colours flying this morning, for both his eyes were blackened and most of his face was black and blue. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10. In the witness box he told how Jack Mohr had supplied the fire-water. A circumstance of Findlay's case that will keep the Police occupied to-day was that when he got drunk he had $15 and when arrested he had only thirty cents.

A "Sunday drunk" was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $8.75.

A dear little motherless and homeless girl has come to our city. Funds are needed for her support and education. Anyone wishing to help in this good work, may leave a donation here for Box 2362. 2d-103

ALL SOULS DAY.

To-day is celebrated as the feast of All Souls. In the Catholic churches it falls on November 2nd, but owing to Sunday being that date it was not solemnized until to-day. Special requiem masses were sung at both St. Peter's Cathedral and the Church of the Sacred Heart. November has for its intentions in the Roman Catholic Church the souls of the departed.

CHRISTMAS GREETING CARDS.

The Daily Examiner has received a Sample Book of what it believes to be the best and cheapest assortment of Christmas Greeting Cards that have been shown in this City. While it is early yet to think of ordering your supply of Christmas Greeting Cards, still, in order to save a disappointment, it might be well for those who desire a Christmas Greeting Card of English manufacture, to call in and see the sample book and get prices at once tf

REMINISCENCES OF HALLOW-E'EN.

The many torn down, and in some cases ruined, fences surrounding some of the residential and other properties in the city, show that the spirit of unrest, or, to put it more plainly, wanton damage, was much in evidence on the recent Hallow-e'en. It seems to be a pity that the energy of some of our local youths, who in due course we expect to see the lights of our city, culd noot be turned into some more useful and less destructive channels.

THE EARTH IS FOR MAN'S USE AND BENEFIT.

Why not own a small portion of it We will sell you a lot, or house and lot on easy terms or for cash. If you want a larger portion of land, we will sell you acreage or a nice farm.

See Us And See Better

The eye is like a Camera.

The lens to focus, the lid as a shutter, the iris or colour as the diaphram, the thick coating of the eye ball as the dark room, the Retina or nerve as the sensitive plate, and strange as it may appear the image in the eye is up side down, just as in a camera. When any of this apparatus gets out of order the eye does not focus properly and requires the aid of glasses. Duty to your eyes demand that they have good care

THREATENS THE OFFICIALS

Special Wire to The Examiner

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 3.—Letters threatening death have been received by Superintendent of Immigration Scott, and by Immigration Officials at Sarnia, from a Scotch immigrant named MacPherson, who arrived in Canada from the United States six months ago. It is believed here that MacPherson is of unsound mind, but not so dangerous as his letters would imply. The department will take no chances and MacPherson will be deported as soon as he can be arrested.

WATCHING THE TRAFFIC

The Ontario Government is evidently taking statistics of the traffic in this district in connection with their Good Roads campaign. A man is stationed about four miles from Peterborough, on the gravel road, just north of the water trough, where he is reporting on the traffic over that particular road. It is to be hoped that the Good Roads campaign will extend to Peterborough County, and that we will be benefitted thereby.

WHAT CULTIVATION WILL DO

The importance of proper cultivation for the young, growing orchard cannot, we believe, be overestimated. This year we had a striking example of what cultivation will do or, perhaps it might be better to say, what lack of cultivation will not do.

Last year we set out a new orchard of over four acres. We put the entire plot into mangels, potatoes and turnips. Adjoining the orchard on one side was grain, seeded down.

This season we rotated the roots and potatoes, but the land received practically the same treatment. The adjoining grain field is now in sod. Owing to pressure of work we allowed the hay to grow right up to the trees of the outside row, although the row received cultivation on the other side, which is in roots.

The difference between this outside row and the others is decidedly noticeable. The trees in the former have not made as much growth, and the foliage has a light, sickly appearance. With the exception of the lack of cultivation, the trees have all received the same attention. The trees were all given a dressing of manure when set out, and this spring we gave them another application.

After seeing such an object-lesson as this one can readily understand why such poor results have followed the planting of orchards that have been allowed to grow in sod. An orchard that is stunted and sickly because of the heavy demands of a sod upon the soil, is not liable to ever become a very paying proposition.

PLEASING THE CONVALESCENT

By RUTH CAMERON

It is most unpleasant to be very sick. It is sometimes even more unpleasant to get well. Of course, you understand that I refer not to the fact of getting well, but to the process. A convalescent ought to be very grateful and happy, but he is more likely to be unhappy, impatient and very hard to please.

The way to succeed in pleasing the convalescent is to put yourself in his place, try to imagine his limitations, his weakness, and the scarcity of his interests, and then devise something which would please you under similar conditions.

An intelligent visitor suggested that her sick friend's bed be moved close up to her window so that she could look out on the street without lifting her head from the pillow. The bed had previously been so placed that the convalescent could only look out when sitting up, and then on a patch of uneventful garden instead of into the street with its movement and activity.

This convalescent received many gifts of flowers, fruit, magasines, etc., during her illness, but she afterwards declared that none meant so much to her as the gift of the intelligent suggestion. She was too weak to sit up or read much; she could not be constantly attended; and time hung cruelly heavy. To be able by merely turning her head on the pillow to see the simple but interesting drama of the neighbourhood life as it was enacted in the street below, was an invaluable diversion.

Anything which occupies the convalescent's mind in a pleasant and not too exciting manner is invaluable. Instead of giving an invalid cut flowers, give him a growing plant with plenty of buds and half-open blossoms upon it. In addition to his pleasure in the beauty of the flowers he will also enjoy watching the development of the plant.

When giving books or magazines be sure to pick out those in which the print is coarse and there are plenty of pictures. When the body is weak, the eyes are likely to be weak also, and much steady reading is usually bad for invalids. A fashion magazine full of beautiful illustrations delighted a sick friend of mine more than any of the other reading matter he received, because it did not tax her eyes to look through it.

A bit of interesting news, an amusing story or a scrap of harmless gossip, often pleases an invalid as much as a material gift, because it gives him something to think about after his visitor has gone. A friend of mine who has had a good deal of experience in sick rooms, and is always a most welcome visitor therein, says that whenever she is going to visit an invalid she makes a point of gathering together all such interesting scraps from the four corners of her mind.

Youth, old age, and convalescence are the days of little things. Little things disappoint and little things please. Remember this when you have to deal with a convalescent.

REFUSED TO PERFORM

LOS ANGELES, Oct 30. — Miss Kitty Gordon, the wife of Hon. Harry Beresford, who is touring with "The Enchantress" Comptny, was so upset last night owing to domestic troubles, that she refused for a time to take part in the performance, despite the fact that the house was crowded. Some woman whom Captain Beresford has never seen, wrote him several letters, very affectionate in tone, during the day. This person wanted to meet Miss Gordon, and, her wish not being granted, she severely attacked the English Captain in the lobby of the Hotel Alexandria, the while shrieking love for him. The scene so upset the temperament of Miss Gordon, that it was only through persistency on the part of her management, she consented to take her place at the evening performance after a delay of half an hour.

YUAN IS DICTATOR

He Takes Drastic Action Against Rebellious Legislators

WHOLE PARTY IS EXPELLED

PEKIN, Nov. 5.—The struggle between the Chinese Parliament and President Yuan Shi Kai has brought about drastic action by the President, which in the opinion of many will have a serious effect on Parliamentary Government. Lengthy Presidential proclamations were issued at midnight, expelling the Kwo Ming Tang party, number more than 300 members, from Parliament. The proclamations recount the difficulties with which the Government has been struggling since the Manchu regime, and describe the disasters which are certain to follow if parties, such as the Kwo Ming Tang party, are permitted to exist.

The Kwo Ming Tang party was formerly headed by Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first Provisional President of China, who is now in exile, but during the recent rebellion was required by Yuan Shi Kai to dismiss its southern leaders. Nevertheless, members of the party continued to fight in Parliament for the curtailment of Yuan Shi Kai's authority.

A crisis was reached last week when the draft of the proposed constitution made the President absolutly dependent upon Parliament. Martial law is in operation in Pekin; the authorities are engaged in making arrests and summary executions, which have been numerous since the rebellion began, it is understood, will continue. Preparations are under way for the Elder Statesmen, who served under the Manchus, to resume their positions in the Cabinet.

At various legations the opinion is held that only by strong action can the President prevent the disruption of China by her own people. Very little has been accomplished by Parliament, which has devoted its time to opposing the President since it convened, while disorders are spreading.

Hunter Killed by Officer.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—A hunter, who refused to obey a command that he cease shooting in Swops Park, was shot and killed yesterday by Frank Robinson, a special officer. There were no adequate means of identification on the hunter's body.

Robinson was attracted to a wooded region of the park by the sound of shots. He found the hunter in the act of shooting a squirrel and ordered him to desist. The hunter replied by firing a charge at Robinson. Robinson then shot him through the head.

Dust Without Dust, With 3-in-One oil

Don't scatter dust and germs all over your home or office with an unsanitary feather duster or common dusting rag. Always dust with 3-in-One oil this way: Moisten cheese cloth with a little of the oil. Then just wipe off your piano, chair, parlor table, mantelpiece—any veneered surface. Every atom of dust will stick to the cloth. Not one speck can fly around to settle somewhere else.

Make Your Own Dustless Dusting Cloth for 5c.

This is the way: Take about two-thirds of a yard of cheese cloth. Sprinkle it with 3-in-One oil. Then let it stand until the oil has permeated every part. Then you have a real Dusting Cloth for 5c. Buy a bottle and make your own Dusting Cloth today!

ULZER JUBILANT.

His Election Is Direct Reply to Murphy's Charges He Says.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—After the result of his contest for position of States Assemblyman in the sixth district was known and his election assured, William Sulzer, who was recently impeached and thrust from the governorship of New York State by the agency of Tammany Hall, made the following declaration to his supporters:

"The people of the Sixth Assembly District think better of me than of Mr. Murphy. They know why Mr. Murphy removed me from the governorship; they know when Mr. Murphy asked me to do wrong I refused to do wrong; they know when Mr. Murphy threatened me I defied his threats. The voters now have condemned Mr. Murphy, reversed the judgment of his high court of infamy, and vindicated me by the verdict of the polls, which, in the last analysis, is the opinion of mankind.

"From Mr. Murphy's high court of infamy I appealed to the higher court of public opinion. Mr. Murphy says that there was no appeal from his court, but Mr. Murphy was mistaken; and he knows now that the judgment of the people can reverse the judgment of any court."

Sulzer made his fight for election to the Assembly on the lines of the statement he issued last night. His canvass was a whirlwind affair, demonstrative crowds greeting him wherever he spoke. He rarely went outside of his district, but his speeches within that territory were directed as much at the Tammany organization in its city-wide and state bearings as to an appeal to his immediate constituency.

PRISONERS GOT GUN.

Drunken Freak Kept Jail Inmates In Terror All Night.

MORRISTOWN, N.J., Nov. 5—Two drunken prisoners with a riot gun and 1,000 rounds of ammunition held high carnival at the Morris County jail here from midnight till dawn yesterday, terrorizing other inmates, riddling the keeper's office with bullets, and failing in their plot for a wholesale jail delivery only because they drank too much liquor after escaping from their cells.

The two prisoners, Eugene Sampson and John Burns, picked the lock to the ward which leads into the keeper's office. Entering the office they broke open a desk and procured a bottle of liquor, from which they drank freely.

Then they broke into a store room and obtained a riot gun and ammunition. Returning to the hospital ward, they closed the iron door and began firing through it. As each shell contained a number of bullets, the keeper's office was riddled.

At daylight deputies and detectives entered the jail. They found the inmates in a state of terror. Burns and Sampson were asleep in a corner.

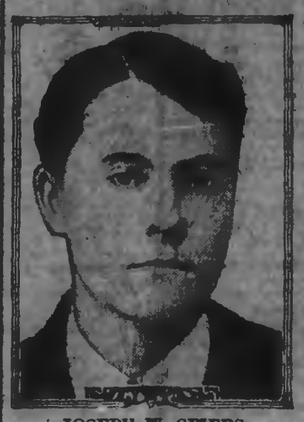
Says It's the Best Remedy



JOSEPH W. SPIERS

Has kept Joseph W. Spiers in health for so long a time that he recommends Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to anyone who wants a good medicine.

"I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for a long time and find it to be a very good remedy—the best I have ever used, and can recommend it to my friends, also anyone who wants a good medicine."—Joseph W. Spiers, Postmaster, McNeill, Miss.

The words of commendation this wonderful tonic stimulant receives from people holding responsible positions in life has done more to spread the truths of its benefits to mankind than anything we can say in print. Word-of-mouth advertising is something which cannot be bought for money, and is the most valuable. For years Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has received more of this voluntary, free-will testimony from person to person in sheer gratitude for the good it has done them than any other remedy in the world, and the reason is not hard to fathom.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

has been before the public for half a century and its medicinal value is undoubted. It is an absolutely pure distillation of carefully malted grain. Overworked men and delicate women will find in Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey the health and strength-giving properties that are so necessary to them. It is prescribed by doctors and recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

Sold in sealed bottles only by most dealers and hotels, $1.25 a large bottle. If in need of advice, write our Medical Department.

ONLY ARMS NEEDED

Carranza Says He Can Attend to Huerta and Co.

AN INVASION VERY UNWISE

NOGALES, Sonora, Nov. 5.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza, head of the Mexican constitutionalists' revolutionary movement, asked Dr. Henry Allen Tupper of the International Peace Forum last night to telegraph Secretary of State Bryan and learn if the reported American communication to Huerta indicated an indication to intervene with arms in Mexico.

The first chief of the constitutionalists also desired Dr. Tupper to express to Mr. Bryan his belief that armed intervention would be a grave mistake and uncalled for, since the constitutionalists were convinced that with the privilege of freely importing arms and war munitions they would be able to overthrow the Huerta regime in a short time. On the other hand, Gen. Carranza said it would require years for the United States to pacify Mexico.

To his original request, presented Sunday to the officials at Washington, Gen. Carranza added another last night. He not only desires the embargo on the export of arms to Mexico lifted but wants the privileges of transporting his soldiers over American territory.

Bryan Denies Ultimatum.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Beyond a formal statement that no "ultimatum" had been delivered to President Huerta by this Government, Secretary Bryan declined to comment yesterday in any way on the Mexico City despatch printed yesterday morning that the United States had called on Gen. Huerta to resign from the Presidency and not to install as his successor any man who was intimately associated with him. Mr. Bryan said, in answer to questions, that his denial was intended to be comprehensive in its application to the report that there had been an "ultimatum," but he refused to go into particulars or to indicate whether any communication embracing a new American policy had been made to the Mexican Government.

In view of the attitude of Mr. Bryan, and in the absence of President Wilson, it is difficult to obtain any satisfactory idea of what moves have been made by this Government that would have justified the Mexico City press despatches. Senators who have shared to some degree the confidence of the Administration in connection with Mexican affairs, have no knowledge of any drastic action by this Government, and beyond the fact that the American battleship division in eastern Mexican waters is to be augmented, no preparations are or have been made by the Navy Department or for that matter by the War Department to meet an emergency calling for a display or the use of force.

Chicago Troops Leave Friday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Acting under orders issued in the War Department at Washington several days ago, four troops of the Fifteenth United States Cavalry are preparing to leave for Sheridan, Ill., for El Paso, Texas, next Friday.

The troops and equipment will travel in special trains over the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad from Fort Sheridan to Chicago and Pacific line from Chicago to El Paso, Texas.

Must Fight Says Tageblatt.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The policy of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan in Mexico has resulted, as was to be expected, says The Tageblatt yesterday, in commenting on the Mexican situation, and has left the United States with no alternative except to employ force or to back down ingloriously.

The newspaper says it expects there will be a speedy landing of troops at Vera Cruz, but it fears that President Wilson underestimates the military difficulties in Mexico.

U. S. Battleships In Force.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels reiterated yesterday that the three battleships of the second division of the Atlantic fleet will remain in Mexican Gulf waters until further orders, notwithstanding that four battleships of the third division arrived at Vera Cruz last evening.

Rear Admiral Fletcher, commanding the second division, will take command of the entire squadron. The New Hampshire and Nebraska will keep station at Tampico, while the Louisiana, Michigan, Rhode Island, Virginia and New Jersey will await developments off Vera Cruz. In addition to these seven dreadnoughts, the gunboat Wheeling and the cruiser Takoma are off Vera Cruz, while the gunboats Petrel and Nashville are in Dominican waters, not far away.

On the west coast the armored cruisers California and Maryland are at Guaymas and Mazatlan, respectively. The gunboat2 Annapolis also is at Guaymas and the armored cruiser Pittsburg is en route to that port.

Shouldn't Expect Any More.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 5.—Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, has notified the Town of Thorold that, after conferring with the Minister of Justice, he is of the opinion that the council should not expect the Government to grant special police protection to the town on account of the influx of foreign laborers on the ship canal work, particularly when nearly $10,000,000 is being spent in that locality.

Fear Drowning Accident.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 5.—The finding of parcels believed to have been purchased by Mrs. William Buck of Weschester avenue yesterday afternoon leads to the belief that she was drowned in the hydraulic raceway. She failed to return home to prepare supper for her husband and family. The raceway is being dragged.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

ORME

TAMMANY IS ROUTED

New York Political Machine is Almost Shattered

MITCHELL HAS A BIG LEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Fusion carried New York City yesterday, electing John Purroy Mitchel mayor by approximately 35,000 plurality, and retaining control of the important Board of Estimates by an overwhelming majority.

Tammany Hall saw its nominee for the mayoralty, Edward E. McCall, go down to defeat by one of the biggest pluralities ever given against a candidate of the organization, and it looked near midnight as if it might even save the New York County offices out of the wreckage. The big vote for Mitchel pulled through even the Fusion candidates for president of the board of aldermen and comptroller, George McAneny and Wm. A. Prendergast, against whom Independence League as well as Democratic organization candidates were running.

The election of Mitchel by a sweeping majority was early apparent, but not until nearly two-thirds of the returns were in was the success of McAneny and Prendergast assured. With figures at hand from something less than seven-eighths of the election districts in the greater city, however, Prendergast had a lead of more than 10,000 over Herman A. Metz, Tammany, for comptroller, and the Tammany leaders conceded the former's re-election, together with the election of Mr. McAneny, who had piled up a lead of approximately 35,000 over Joseph A. Goulden, his Tammany opponent in almost the same number of districts.

"It looks as if we had lost everything," Secretary Thomas Smith of Tammany Hall finally admitted. At the same time Samuel E. Koenig, chairman of the Republican county committee, claimed the election of the entire Fusion ticket in the greater city and of the New York County ticket as well.

William Sulzer, ousted from the governorship of New York recently, was elected to the State Assembly yesterday from the sixth district. The vote was unexpectedly close, but both Democrats and Republicans concede his election. He ran on the Progressive ticket.

There was jubilation unbounded in the former governor's headquarters as the count began to record his victory. Sulzer himself was all smiles. He regarded his triumph as a personal vindication, he said, and issued a statement thanking his supporters and scoring Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, who, he declared, was condemned by the vote that gave the district William Sulzer as its representative at Albany.

Election returns at a late hour last night showed a complete triumph for the Democrats in Massachusetts, where a governor and state ticket were chosen in a four-cornered fight, the selection of Democratic governor and state ticket in Virginia without contest, the ascendency of Fusion over Tammany in New York City with indications of Republican victory for the New York Assembly and judicial ticket, and a close fight for the state ticket in New Jersey, where President Wilson and administration forces fought to elect Jas. F. Fielder to the governorship.

In Massachusetts David L. Walsh, Democrat, present lieutenant-governor, was elected by a plurality of about 50,000 over Augustus P. Gardner, Republican; Charles S. Baird, Progressive, and Governor E. N. Foss, Independent. Henry C. Stuart was chosen governor of Virginia, together with an entire state ticket, Republicans and Progressives having declined to name candidates because of inability to agree on a united ticket.

Woman Found Murdered.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 5.—With her head and chest crushed in as though beaten with heavy stones, a woman, believed to be Mrs. Mary Louissa of St. Clair, near here, was found dead yesterday in an lump of bushes on the outskirts of Pottsville. Mrs. Louissa disappeared from her home about two weeks ago and her 12-year-old daughter created a stir when she reported to the police that her father had thrown her mother down a mine breach and killed her. The mine breach was searched in vain.

A week ago the husband, Michael Louissa, disappeared, leaving four small children alone. They are now being cared for by the county.

Woman Is Murdered.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Samuel Cito, 25 years old, was murdered yesterday in the kitchen of her flat in the Italian quarter. The alarm was given by the six-year-old child of the slain woman, and the police found her lying dead on the floor with the stiletto which had been used still sticking in her body. A year-old baby was splashing and crying nearby in a tub of water.

Mrs. Cito had been bathing the child when she was attacked. The murderer was said to be a young man wearing a brown sweater and grey trousers.

Workman's Perilous Fall.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 5.—The first serious accident in the construction of the new arena took place yesterday, when George Anderson, one of the workmen, slid off the roof to the ground, 30 feet below. He was severely hurt, sustaining internal injuries, and his physician thinks his hip joint is broken.

Informer's Looks Belie Plea That He Is In Poor Health.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 5.—The poor health of Ortie E. McManigal, the confessed dynamiter, was the reason given yesterday by District Attorney John D. Fredericks for ordering what is believed to be the permanent release from the county jail of the untried co-worker of the McNamara brothers and chief witness against 33 labor union leaders who were sentenced to the Federal penitentiary in Leavenworth for complicity in the nation-wide dynamite conspiracy.

According to jail attendants, McManigal's appetite and constantly increasing girth and weight indicated that his ill-health might have been due to overeating. They said, however, that he had actually gone to an hospital, but it was to have a surgical operation performed to remove from his forehead a great scar by which he feared former associates might recognize him.

SCARED THE MOORS.

Spanish Force Was Losing When Birdman Showed Up.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. — A cable from Madrid to The Tribune says:—For the first time in actual warfare, according to reports received from Morocco, an aeroplane has decided the success of a fight.

A detachment of cavalry was attacked by a larger force of natives near Ceuta, Morocco, and it was near the point of being annihilated when the Infante Alfonso, in his aeroplane, appeared, followed by some other members of the aerial flotilla, who recently arrived here. The natives were so frightened by the airship that they fled, and the survivors of the detachment escaped.

The Passing of a Type.

The hard contemporary fact is that the gloriously maned authors are becoming sadly rare, even rarer than long haired actors. The long haired musician is still with us, though one of the most eminent masters of the pianoforte has yielded something to the modern spirit by submitting briefly to the shears. Individual age has here a potent influence—age, or the getting through with things. What a wonderfully picturesque person Dickens was at twenty-five! And how matter of fact at forty! Browning suffered a similarly sobering and avenging effect. The same thing is true of many other figures in that period, and it is not easy to guess whether the changing fashion set in during their middle years or whether advancing age would have effected the same change in any case.—Atlantic Monthly.

Plain Talk From Home.

"I ought to be supremely happy," the youth wrote to the home people. "I don't see much business ahead, but I have my diploma and my books."

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG.

CANADIAN PACIFIC

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 26th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.25 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Observation Compartment Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg, but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

DEALER'S NAME

A MOTHER'S RUSE

By HELOISE BRAYTON

"Amy," said Mrs. Stringfellow to her daughter, "Walter Barnard has been paying attention to you now for six months. If you were engaged I presume that you would tell me. But I wish to know surely whether you are or are not."

"I am not," replied Amy dolefully.

"That evidently means that Walter hasn't spoken."

"I think he will, mamma."

"Not without being brought to the point."

"Mamma, you wouldn't wish me to tell him that I am expecting him to propose to me, would you?"

"Certainly not. That would not be the part of a girl. But a girl has her privileges, and one of them is to indicate to a young man paying her attention that she wishes him to discontinue doing so."

"But I don't."

The mother bit her lip, but said nothing more. Nevertheless she determined that since her daughter had not the spunk to bring her lover to a proposal she would make the attempt herself. To interfere in such a matter is always a great risk, and the lady realized that by doing so she might make a breach between herself and her daughter that might never be healed. But Mrs. Stringfellow was naturally diplomatic and determined that she would pursue a little game of her own which might mean a great deal or might mean nothing.

Not long after this little dialogue Mrs. Stringfellow arranged that Amy should go away on a visit. Amy objected, not being willing to leave Walter even for a day, though she did not see him oftener than once a week. But the mother prevailed, and Amy departed with fear and trembling that the man she wanted would during her absence fall into the toils of some other girl.

One day during Amy's absence Walter Barnard called upon her mother to pay his respects and ask how her daughter was enjoying herself. He was ushered into the library, where he usually visited with Amy. On the table lay a bill from a prominent dry goods store. It was so plainly exposed that the caller could not help seeing it, but he did not make himself acquainted with its contents till an unrolled package on a chair attracted his attention. It was white and of a delicate fabric. Near it was a box, in which some white gauzy substance so loosely rested that a part hung over the side. There was still another box with the cover on.

Barnard while waiting for Mrs. Stringfellow had nothing to occupy him, so his mind became fixed on these articles. He examined the fabric, and it seemed to him that there was about enough of it to make a dress. Then it occurred to him that the gauzy stuff might be intended for a bride's veil. Having gone thus far in his surmises, he was naturally curious to know what was in the covered box. He lifted the cover and saw that it was filled with orange blossoms.

Evidently some one was about to be married.

But who? There was only one single woman in the house, and that was Amy.

A terrible thought entered the young man's brain. Could it be possible that while he had been putting off his proposal some other man had come in and occupied the vacant place ahead of him? His heart seemed to stop beating. Perspiration stood out on his forehead.

He paced the floor till Mrs. Stringfellow came down. When she saw the dry goods she looked displeased, called a maid and directed her in a sharp tone to take them upstairs. Then she turned her attention to her visitor.

Barnard was too disconcerted to talk connectedly. He jumped from the warm weather to the news from abroad and from the news from abroad to the last bit of social gossip. Then he asked if Miss Stringfellow was enjoying her visit and was informed that she was having a delightful time. He asked when the young lady would return, and his hostess informed him that certain events that had happened since her departure would necessarily alter the time of her homecoming, but did not say whether it would be hastened or delayed.

Two or three times Barnard was on the verge of asking whether Amy was about to be married, but every time he balked. Once he got his question partly out, but Mrs. Stringfellow looked at him so coldly that he turned the question into something else. Finally he arose to go, stumbled against a chair's back or against an open door, dropped his hat and stepped on it, finally getting out in great confusion.

That night he slept only a few hours and in the morning took an early train for the place where Amy Stringfellow was visiting. She was much surprised at seeing him and waited for him to declare the object of his coming.

"Are you going to be married?" he asked in a tone to warrant that if she were he was ready to kill the groom.

"No. Why do you ask?"

There was an embarrassed silence for a few moments, when he spoke again.

"Well, then, I wish to put in my claim for you. I don't want any more scares like this."

When Amy returned to her home her mother confessed her ruse. Had it failed she could not have been convicted of it.

Shark on Beach.

To Freshen a Feather Boa.

If you have a feather boa that has become rather limp looking because it has been out in damp weather, try this means of freshening it. It is best to try it, too, as soon as you come in:

Take a bowlful of boiling water, sprinkle into a handful of ordinary white salt and then when it is dissolved shake the feather boa in it.

A Boomerang

By ANDREW C. EWING

"It's all up with me, Sadie!"

"What in the world is the matter?"

"I'm fired."

"From your position?"

"Yes."

"What for?"

"Well, you know that when I was graduated from the electrical school I was offered a situation in the office of the Metcalf company, of which Mr. Metcalf is president and principal stockholder. I supposed the position would be permanent. It turns out that the Metcalf company had put in a bid on the erection of an electrical plant and had been awarded the contract. Mr. Metcalf wanted some one to assist in making figures on the specifications and hired me for that purpose. The formula being now completed, he has no further use for me."

"How dishonorable in him not to have told you in the beginning that you were simply employed for the job."

"If he had I would have declined his offer, for I had a permanent one offered me at a lower salary. I've been working nights for six months besides my day work and have a whole closet full of estimates figured out that I wouldn't do over again for a thousand dollars. I received only $600 for the whole period of my service. I'm sorry, Sadie, that we can't fix the date we expected to fix for our wedding. I shall have to hunt for another place, and when I get one I can't tell whether I shall be treated in the same shabby fashion."

"Yes, and when I get knocked down I propose to get up and push on."

"Good! If you feel that way you're sure to win in the end."

But Bob found getting another place difficult. Engineers were being graduated every June, and those just entering the field were ready to work cheap. Besides, dull times came on, and it was difficult for those having positions to hold them. His fiancee was always hopeful and cheered him so far as she could.

One day the young engineer was called up on a telephone. On answering the call he learned that the person on the other end of the wire was the president of the Metcalf company.

"Would it be possible," he asked, "for you to recall from memory the formula you made for the electrical plant we bid on while you were with us?"

"No, sir."

There was no further word for a moment, but Bob knew that the receiver had not been hung up.

"Why do you ask? Has anything happened to the formula I made for you?"

"Yes. Last night our safe was broken into, and it was taken with other moneys and securities, and there is no certainty of our ever recovering it. We must begin work immediately in order to get the job finished according to contract."

Bob opened his eyes, but not his mouth. He knew that the company would forfeit $100,000 if the work was not finished on time. Indeed, it could not begin without making a new formula. At length he said:

"I could help you out, Mr. Metcalf, but I don't think you treated me right in not telling me when you employed me that it was for this job only. I did a great deal of work home at nights and simply took results to the office. All that home work I have and could easily reconstruct the formula from it."

Bob could hear a suppressed exclamation of joy.

"You can come back to work if you like," said the president, "and I'll raise your salary."

"Thank you. I don't care to enter your employ again."

"I'll make it permanent."

"That doesn't tempt me either."

"What do you ask for the figures you have?"

"They are not for sale. Had I been retained permanently in your employ I would give them to you, or if I had been told that I was hired simply for the job I would do the same. As it is I am under no obligations to you."

There was silence for a few moments when the question came, "Will you be at home this evening?" to which Bob replied that he would.

When Mr. Metcalf called in the evening he looked very much broken. He offered Bob $10,000 if he would reconstruct the formula. Bob declined the offer, but made a counter proposition. He proposed that they should submit the case to the heads of other concerns to decide between them what the cost should be, both to be bound by their decision. The offer was accepted, and an average amount of what the arbitrators figured as a proper payment was $12,500.

But a different arrangement was made. Mr. Metcalf sold a controlling interest in the company to the vice president and resigned the presidency. Bob was given a position at $3,000 a year for five years and restored the formula as an employee without charge. His ability to do so saved the company from ruin.

Bob never said a word to his fiancee about the loss of the formula till the matter was settled between him and the Metcalf company. When he did so he held her in a bear hug.

Bob and Sadie were married long ago, and Bob is now one of the principal managers of the Metcalf company.

CRICKET IN ENGLAND

Some Sarcastic Comment by a Lover of Amateur Sport

When I come across a man who decries the glorious game of cricket, writes George Robey in "Answers," the warlike spirit of my gladiatorial forefathers inspires me, and I want to slay him.

I don't say that first class cricket is an ideal game from the spectator's point of view; but, after all, it was fashioned for the players, not for idle onlookers, and I don't think I have met a practical player who has anything to say against the present condition of the game.

But, of course, if it is necessary that cricket be brought up or down to the business level of Association football; that the gentlemen and sportsmen who govern the game are to throw aside the old traditions and become keen seekers of dividends; and that "gates" are to be secured at any price, then the game must be forced upon the public.

First of all, the game must be discouraged at our schools and on our open spaces, because, once cricket is learned by the younger generation and "the seed is sown," I know of nothing which will turn a player into a spectator, and so secure gates.

But, before doing this, we must, at least, provide sport worthy of good patronage. Three-day matches are long-drawn-out affairs, and only made necessary by the fact that skill is opposed to skill. But if big "gates" are necessary, science is not wanted; the enjoyment of those who actually play is a something unworthy of consideration.

Excitement must dominate cricket completely; and so it will be necessary to curtail the time spent on a match, and crowd into, say, two hours, an international game, or a County Championship fixture.

We must economise the game by giving each man on the side an innings of five minutes, both sides fielding.

The eleven scoring the greater number of runs in the allotted period, would, of course, be declared the winners. At all matches played in fine weather a military band should be in attendance. I fancy I can see C. B. Fry and Jack Hobbs endeavoring to take a ball off the middle stump and place it to leg when a selection of "rag-time" is given.

I have always understood that "money talks;" so if we desire absolute success in cricket from the spectacular point of view we must talk and think in thousands, as they do in the more refined world of football.

But—and a very big "but"—why do we want to make the game more attractive to the spectator? Cricket is a game, and not a business; and as a glorious branch of sport I know of nothing so full of pleasure.

Drowned in Recovering a Stick

A youth named Matthew Dougherty, of Downpatrick, was accidentally drowned in the Quoile River, near that town. He was driving cattle to Strangford, and when passing the Quoile Quay threw his stick into the river and sent his dog after it. The animal failing to recover the stick, Dougherty divested himself of his clothing and entered the water. He swam to the opposite bank, and when returning was evidently seized with cramp, and he disappeared beneath the surface.

How a Shrewd and Daring Burglar Was Brought to Justice by the Modern Science of Finger Prints

JOSEPH A. FAUROT.
Inspector in Charge of New York City Police Detective Bureau.

"I Removed the Glass from the Door."

Charles Crispi.

Caesare J. Cella.

Different Rogues' Gallery Portraits Illustrating the Fallibility of Identification by Photographs.

By JOSEPH A. FAUROT,

Chief of New York City's Detective Bureau.

THERE is no more vicious or cunning band of thieves which the New York police have to contend with than loft burglars. There never was a more cunning or more daring loft burglar than Charles Crispi at the time of his first arrest, a mere stripling with a dozen aliases, but with the skill and foresight of an old offender. Had we adhered to old time police methods in establishing the identity of the burglar who led the band which perpetrated the many robberies which later we learned were of Crispi's conception the chances are Crispi would be at large to-day. That science which has to do with the taking, recording, classification and identification of finger prints brought about Crispi's capture.

Crispi had figured in many robberies and realized thousands of dollars from the loot he abstracted from the lofts of prosperous manufacturers. Apparently he led a charmed life, for the police were invariably just a few minutes too late in arriving at the scene of the robbery where he and his prime band of burglars had either crashed, broken, bored or climbed into the loft they had marked for plucking. Yet strange to say, the job that led to his capture netted him little or nothing. He maintains that he was frightened off by the police before he abstracted even a dollar's worth of loot. His captors assert his spoils totalled $500. The police are still in doubt and care less inasmuch as Crispi was caught, indicted, tried and convicted after one of the most sensational episodes ever enacted in a New York court of justice.

Crispi is recorded in police circles under various names. He first came to the attention of the authorities under the name of Caesar Cella. He was then but seventeen years old, presumably a cloth examiner by occupation, and in consequence in a position to know the value of goods stored in the lofts of the various suit and clothing manufacturers throughout the city. He also was known under the names of Cella, Ciss, Ross and Corey, and his every characteristic was that of a vicious and unscrupulous youth who sooner or later would graduate into the ranks of some criminal band which would never be content with loot that was not easily negotiable.

Late in February, 1911, the loft of Bernstein Brothers, in Wooster street, was entered. Entrance had been effected by removing a pane of glass from the door leading into the loft. It was evident that the loft above that of Bernstein Brothers' was the real goal, for the burglars had set to work to bore through the ceiling of the Bernstein rooms to that above.

As soon as I heard of the robbery, learning that the pane of glass had been removed from the door, I instructed one of my detectives to bring the window right to Police Headquarters. Then we set to work to search for telltale finger prints.

A novice after glancing at the racks in which the thousands of finger prints at Police Headquarters are filed would think an endless task lay before the official in charge to go through this labyrinth of data in search for a fac-simile of the print just brought in, but in this he is wrong. Only seconds are required before out comes a batch of prints, a few leaves are flipped over and there before you is the object of your search. To learn to classify the prints, even to group them into the four great classes of finger lines known as "loops," "arches," "swoles" and "composites," is, of course, a long study, but in half an hour I can teach a person of average intelligence to match given prints placed conveniently before him, so that he is absolutely certain that the two are one and the same.

It was only a question of seconds before we had the duplicate of young Crispi's prints. In less time than it takes to tell it we turned from the print files to those of the Bertillon, and there we found a minute and carefully measured description of the man I knew had been concerned in the loft burglary. This record was on file, and we knew at last we had a desperate young criminal to deal with—one who was as crafty as he was unscrupulous. But that gave me no concern. In my own heart I knew Crispi was the man who had handled the pane of glass. Finger prints never lie, and it only remained for me to convince the Court of this fact.

Our search for Crispi was only a matter of hours. He was living with his young wife in Hoboken, and soon he was before me in Police Headquarters. Without wasting words I told him I knew he had been mixed up in the Bernstein loft robbery. He was absolutely calm and not in the least worried by his predicament.

"You are wrong, Lieutenant Faurot," he casually replied. "From what you tell me of that job I can prove, and easily, too, that I was at the theatre with some friends when this trick was pulled. After the theatre I went directly home and to bed. My wife was with me and she can tell you the very minute I arrived at the house. My friends also know when I left them to go home."

There never was a crook—a clever crook, that is—on earth who can not readily produce an alibi. All policemen know this, and the alibi is one of the most serious obstacles to clog the wheels of justice. An alibi, seemingly, removes all doubt from the mind of the average juror, and I knew at once that should Crispi get an opportunity to frame up his alibi, if indeed he had not already done so, I would be up against it in convincing a jury that this man was actually in the loft at the time of the robbery, a fact I KNEW beyond any question of doubt. I, alone, knew the infallibility of the finger print, from long experience in police bureaus of Europe, where the system had been well tried out.

I learned from Crispi the names of the persons with whom he had attended the theatre. These persons were interviewed by detectives and, although they were interrogated separately, their stories as to the hour Crispi left them did not vary a minute. The prisoner's wife told what hour she and her husband returned home that night and her testimony was supported by a neighbor. The detectives who were detailed on the case, returned to headquarters, and one and all were convinced that the persons they had questioned had told the truth.

Nevertheless, after a battle in the Police Court we succeeded in having Crispi remanded for the Grand Jury, and after still more trouble his indictment followed. I talked with the prisoner and he was brazenly defiant. He realized that I was relying solely upon the finger print for his conviction, and he openly boasted that my case would crumple with the ease of an egg shell when it went to court. He even twitted me about trying to introduce a "newfangled French system" into New York police methods, and wanted to bet me he would be acquitted.

The day for the trial finally rolled around and none of the customary delays that mark the date of trial of a really smart criminal attended this case. Crispi was absolutely confident he would be acquitted, and his attorney, Mr. Robert L. Moore, was equally so. That trial in the Court of General Sessions, before Judge Rosalsky, is indelibly impressed upon my memory, and I will not forget it to my dying day. Not only was I unmercifully heckled by the prisoner's counsel, but I knew that I was battling for a system in which I had unbounded faith, and this was its crucial test.

I was not in the least disappointed in the stubborn fight I knew Crispi, through his lawyers, would put up. Every one of his witnesses testified unflinchingly as to his whereabouts on the night of the burglary, and there was no shaking this testimony. His alibi was perfect. His wife, supported by her neighbor, told that the prisoner had returned home by midnight and she had urged him to retire at once, which he did. He was asleep, she said, a few minutes after going to bed, and she soon followed him. When she awoke in the morning he was still sleeping at her side, and this same neighbor testified that she had visited the flat early the same morning and Crispi was just arising to partake of the breakfast his wife had prepared. Seemingly there was no going back of such evidence as this, but I was determined to prove to this court that Crispi was in the loft be that February morning and that he was the man who had handled the pane of glass on which the prints had been left.

But the speedy acquittal which Crispi and his attorneys had boasted of did not materialize. The trial opened on Monday morning, and its climax was not reached until Thursday. For two days I was on the witness stand in an effort to prove the infallibility of finger prints. All the while I took them over the academic and higher branches of the science, and while I was put to the severest tests the attorneys for the defence as well as the jurors could devise, I stood by my guns and plugged away with but one thought in view—that of proving beyond a shadow of doubt that the finger print could not lie.

The pane of glass taken from the Bernstein loft was brought to court and admitted into evidence as my chief exhibit. The entire paraphernalia which have to do with the taking of prints also were brought to court. For two days I lectured to that jury on the efficacy of the print system, and, to tell the truth, I could not tell how I was progressing—whether I was making a favorable or unfavorable impression. The jurors' faces were masks, for not a gleam of interest seemed to flash from the twelve pairs of eyes that were coldly focused on me and my exhibits.

Crispi was least concerned of all. He sat back in his chair with the air of a man excessively bored by a discourse which he was compelled to hear, although of a nature which did not in the least attract him. He paid little or no attention to what I had to say, and he seemed no more interested in the discourse of his lawyers, Mr. Moore and Mr. Louis Speigel. His confidence rested on the objections which his lawyers were constantly making to my line of testimony, which unquestionably was extraordinary at that time. His confidence was supreme in the testimony of his wife and in that of his sister and brother-in-law, with whom he had visited the theatre the night of the burglary.

But as time wore on I knew new law and new precedents were being established and that ultimately I would win. This was the first time, as far as I know, in the criminal jurisprudence of the country that such a case had even been tried, and it meant everything to me.

To prove that I could identify any one by finger prints, impressions were made of a person in the court room while I waited outside the room. These prints were photographed, developed and printed. Then I returned to the room, took the impressions of those within and developed them, and after comparing them with the first, unhesitatingly picked out the person who had been finger-printed in my absence.

"This test caused the jurors to manifest a little keener interest in my method. It also served to awaken the lawyers for the defence to the gravity of the case against their client, and from that moment they settled down to work in earnest. From then on every step of the way was contested with vigor and even bitterness. There were Crispi's prints on the pane of glass taken from Bernstein's door, and others' prints, gallaries. These, any novice could see by my guidance, were identical with the impression taken from his fingers at Police Headquarters in 1907 and still another taken while he was awaiting indictment.

"To offset my finger print theory the defence had in court Messrs. Kingsley and Osborne, handwriting experts, and the defence tried to prove through them that finger prints as a means of identification were not as conclusive proof as I tried to make them out to be, but just what handwriting experts knew about my system I could not make out. Surely there was nothing in their testimony that weakened my case in the slightest, but just what effect their discourse would have upon the jury I was not prepared to say.

When court adjourned Wednesday evening Crispi was far from being the self-confident, swaggering criminal that he had been earlier in the week. The desperation with which his lawyers were contesting my evidence, or, rather, the question of its exclusion or admission before the jurors, had had a wearing effect upon him, and when he left the court room that night I knew that he realized he was doomed. The jurors had come to see a great light, and my case against Crispi was complete, for I felt positive that the majority of those jurors at least would vote for a conviction.

When court convened on Thursday morning, May 11, Mr. Moore, Crispi's counsel, arose and said:—

"With the consent of the District Attorney the defendant desires to withdraw his plea of not guilty and enter a plea of guilty to the third count of the indictment, charging unlawful entry."

"The Court accepts the plea," Judge Rosalsky promptly replied.

But before the words had died upon the jurist's lips a ripple of surprise, electrical in its effect, ran through the court room and every court attendant as well as those among the spectators looked dumfounded as they gazed at the prisoner, who had crumpled up in his seat, all of the old time swagger and bravado now conspicuously absent from his mien.

At last my victory was at hand. For weeks I had worked on this case with only a little smudged daub to back my contention that this man was guilty. It was a battle for principle, for a new science which I knew was of inestimable value to police work was, in reality, on trial, and I was there to see that it was vindicated and that it should take its proper place and add a new chapter to the history of criminology. I knew it to be far more reliable and far reaching than the Bertillon system, and furthermore I knew it would be a greater aid as a means of identification than the time-worn and oft tricky photographs that

Immediately after routine court procedure had been dispensed with and Crispi had given the clerk of the court his "pedigree," Judge Rosalsky thus addressed the prisoner:—

"Crispi, I want you to make a full confession. I can assure you that no indictments will be found against you or against any witnesses who testified in your behalf during the course of the trial for perjury. But it is most important for the cause of justice and science that you do tell the truth. It is valuable for us to know whether or not the expert testimony given during your trial is correct or otherwise. Finger print experts are of the opinion that the science of identification by means of finger prints is more exact than the Bertillon system and photography. Experts are of the opinion, in fact, that this is more accurate than any other method of identification.

"Did you remove the pane of glass in evidence here from the front door of the loft of M. Bernstein & Brothers?"

"I did," answered the defendant.

"When?" queried the Court.

"Early on the morning of February 23."

"At what hour?"

"At about four o'clock in the morning."

"Will you explain to the jury and the Court just how you removed the pane of glass?"

"I took the framework off the glass and in pulling it out my thumb slipped, which caused the sliding finger imprint on the glass. Then I laid it against the wall."

"When you knew that you were guilty," pursued Judge Rosalsky, "why did you agree to furnish Lieutenant Faurot with your finger prints while you were awaiting trial in the Tombs?"

"I did not think the finger prints would be enough evidence to hurt me. I knew they had my prints at Police Headquarters, but I did not think they could convict me on anything so trivial as these prints."

"Have you changed your opinion?" asked the Court.

"I certainly have," the prisoner replied.

Then, turning to me, Judge Rosalsky said:—

"Lieutenant Faurot, I think it would be an excellent idea for you to consult Messrs. Kingsley and Osborne, the handwriting experts, to devise a method for developing this science further. It may interest you to know that these gentlemen came to me last night and said that if you had the right man in the prisoner here you were to be highly commended. The country should develop this science."

"Why did you not wear gloves when removing this glass? Do burglars find it difficult to cover their hands while at work?"

"Yes," Crispi answered.

"We must keep pace with the ingenuity of the crooks," the Court continued, as he turned to the jurors and remarked:—"Gentlemen, I am satisfied you would have hesitated to convict this defendant on the evidence of the finger prints alone."

The foreman nodded his head as an indorsement of this remark, as did several of his fellow jurors.

"This is now a science, gentlemen," Judge Rosalsky went on to say, "and out of 150,000 finger prints examined by the expert who testified during this trial there were no two found to be exactly alike. That is a marvellous fact. Handwriting can be simulated sufficiently to deceive even experts, it is said, and photography certainly errs occasionally."

Inspector Faurot will tell in his next article how the new system of identification, also a science which he studied in Europe, led to the capture by a recent graduate of his "School of Detectives" of a daring bandit after he had held up two men at pistol point and relieved them of their cash.

A friend of Senator Tillman's had been called an upstart. When this fact was narrated to the senator at a luncheon in Washington, he smiled thoughtfully and said:

"Sir," said the expert, "do you realize that I have been at two universities, one in this country and one in Germany?"

"What of that?" demanded the farmer, with a faint smile. "I had a calf nursed by two cows, and the more he was nursed the greater calf he grew."

Modern Ethics.

"There are two rich men, one of whom made his fortune by honest industry, while the other made his by fraud. Now, which of these men would you prefer to be?"

"Which made the most?" the boy asked sharply.

AS WE SEE OURSELVES.

Jones: Ah! Mr. Robinson, I Presume.

"Well, children, what's all the fuss about?"
"Please, sir, we g—got a pain in billy's st—stummick."

Fie, Fido!

At last the game of cards broke up, and he looked at the clock. It was 2.30. He started for home, making the best time he could, slipped off his shoes at the front steps, pulled off his clothes in the hall, crept into the bedroom, and began to slip into bed with the ease of experience.

His wife had a dog that on cold nights used to insist on jumping into bed with them. So, when the husband began to slide under the covers, his wife stirred in her sleep, and pushed him on the head. "Get down, Fido! get down!" she said.

And he just had presence of mind enough to lick her hand, and she dozed off again!

What She Wanted.

"Is this the information bureau?"

"Yes, ma'am. What can I do for you?"

"Do you happen to know of a good washerwoman?"

The Old Masters.

George Randolph Chester, the humorous writer, of Cincinnati, walked thru a New York book store the other day.

A small table was devoted to new novels, and all the rest of the space was taken up with gorgeous editions of Dickens, Thackeray, Scott, Moliere, Fielding, etc. magnificent leather-bound volumes that only cost, the copyright having long since expired, about 30 cents apiece.

Mr. Chester, waving his hand toward those long shelves of old masters, smiled and said:

"Literature would pay better if there were not so many dead men in the business."

Bill (from the country): "'Taint hot, is it?"

"It's curious," said Brown, "how coming events cast their shadows before them. I'll wager a fiver none of you gentlemen can guess what was the last thing played on the organ at the time of the fire."

"The Lost Chord," suggested Smith.

Brown shook his head.

"'Dies Irae,' said the classical gentleman.

Brown shook his head.

"What was it, then?" asked the practical member.

Brown got up, reached for his hat, and went to the door. Then he replied:—

"The hose!"

"That young Rawlings stays till a very late hour, Nora. What does your mother say about it?"
"She says men haven't altered a bit, Pa."

"There were two actresses in an early play of mine," said an author, "both very beautiful; but the leading actress was thin. She quarrelled one day at rehearsal with the other lady, and she ended the quarrel by saying, haughtily:—

"'Remember, please, that I am the star.'

"'Yes, I know you're the star,' the other retorted, eyeing with an amused smile the leading actress's long, slim figure; 'but you'd look better, my dear, if you were a little meteor.'"

"Can you build a stack?" said the farmer to a laborer who wanted a job.

"Sure I can. I can build a stack the shape of an egg."

When the stack was nearly completed, the bottom shot out and the stack came to the ground as flat as a pancake.

"I thought you said you could build a stack the shape of an egg," said the farmer.

"So I did. But I didn't say whether it was a boiled egg or a fried one."

Quiet But Visible.

Maude: "She's such a quiet little person that I'm surprised to hear she's wearing a diaphanous skirt."

Consolation.

Some people's idea of consolation is like the young girl's, whose older sister, peering into her mirror, said:

"Time is telling on me. I can see age creeping on."

"Never mind, dear," said the young girl. "Console yourself. You are nothing like as old as you look."

Getting Even.

A woman entered a tram-car and happened to take a seat in front of a newly-married couple. She was hardly seated before the couple began making remarks about her which some of the passengers must have heard.

Her last year's bonnet and cloak were freely criticized, with more or less giggling on the bride's part; and there is no telling what might have come next if the woman had not put a sudden stop to the conversation by a bit of clever feminine strategy.

She turned her head, noticed that the bride was considerably older than the bridegroom, and in the smoothest of tones said:

"Madam, will you please have your son remove his feet from the back of my chair?"

MacCohen: "Hey, mon, rather!"

Jack: "Thought so. I haven't noticed you put your hand in your pocket lately."

An Awful Plight.

Mrs. Newed: "I am in an awful fix, mamma."

Mrs. Eaglebeak: "What is the matter?"

Mrs. Newed: "I went thru George's pockets last night to hunt for change, as you advised me to, and I found some letters which I gave him to post last week, and now I dare not scold about the letters for fear he'll scold about my going thru his pockets.'

The Ideal Picture.

A painter of the "impressionist" school is now confined in a lunatic asylum. To all persons who visit his studio he says: "Look here; this is the latest masterpiece of my composition." They look, and see nothing but an expanse of bare canvas. They ask: "What does that represent?"

"That? Why, that represents the passage of the Jews thru the Red Sea."

"Beg pardon, but where is the sea?"

"It has been driven back."

"And where are the Jews?"

"They have crossed over."

"And the Egyptians?"

"Will be here directly. That's the sort of painting I like; simple, suggestive and unpretentious."

The transcendent beauty of falling autumn leaves is entirely lost on the man who is worrying about his winter coal supply.

He: "Why did that pretty girl marry that old miser."
She: "He said he'd die for her, and she took the chance."

Subtle Blarney.

Waitress: "That fellow there wants some hot water to weaken his coffee!"

Restaurant Proprietor: "Flatterer!"

"Here'd a drink, boy, but I hope it will be a teetotal one, eh?"
"No fear. I ain't no teetotaller, nor I ain't no tea caddie."

Prevention.

"George, what are you burning, dear?" she asked, going to the grate and peering over his shoulder.

"The letters I wrote you before we were married."

"You heartless wretch! I wonder if all men are so devoid of sentiment? You—"

"I am doing it in your interest, dear. I'm trying to fix things so that when I die nobody can dispute my will on the ground of insanity."

She Had Her Say.

After preaching a sermon on the fate of the wicked, an English clergyman met an old woman, well known for her gossiping propensities, and he said:

"I hope my sermon has borne fruit. You heard about the place where I said there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth?"

"Well, as to that," answered the dame, "if I 'as anything to say, it be this: Let them gnash teeth as has 'em—I ain't."

The Lesser Evil.

A certain island in the West Indies is liable to the periodical advent of earthquakes. One year, before the season of these disturbances, an English resident, who lived in the danger zone, sent his two sons to the home of a brother in England to secure them from the impending havoc. Evidently the quiet of the staid English household was disturbed by the irruption of the two West Indians, for the returning mail steamer carried a message to their father, brief but emphatic: "Take back your boys; send me the earthquake."

Variety may be the spice of life all right, but some of the variety shows piece entirely too much emphasis on the spice.

The Reward.

The workman was engaged in excavating operations, i.e., he was digging.

The wayfarer of the inquisitive turn of mind stopped for a moment to look on.

"My man," said the wayfarer at length, "what are you digging for?"

The workman looked up.

"Money," he replied.

"Money!" ejaculated the amazed wayfarer. "And when do you expect to strike it?"

"Saturday," replied the workman, and resumed operations.

A Title to Be Defended.

"What are you going to call the new baby?"

"Reginald Claude," replied Mr. Biggins.

"Isn't 'Reginald Claude' a rather affected name?"

"Yes. I want him to grow up to be a fighter, and I fancy that 'Reginald Claude' will start something every time he goes to a new school."

A young Irish curate was preaching his first sermon and chose for his text the miracle of the loaves and fishes.

He was very nervous, and read it: "And they fed five people with five thousand loaves of bread and five thousand fishes."

"That's no miracle, begorra. I could do that myself."

The curate overheard him, so on the following Sunday he announced the same text, but had it right this time: "And they fed five thousand people with five loaves of bread and a few fishes."

He paused a second, and then leaned over the pulpit and said:

"Could you do that, Mr. Murphy?"

Murphy replied: "Sure, yer reverence, I could."

"And how could you do it?" asked the priest.

. . . Widow: Do you know, Mr. Goldbagge, that my daughter has set her eyes upon you?
Goldbagge (flattered): Has she, really?
Widow: Yes; only today she said, "That's the sort of gentleman I should like for my father."

The Best Side.

Visitor: "How do you go about it to keep on the good side of the animals?"

Trainer: "I do my best to keep on the outside of 'em."

A Star Pedestrian.

Thesis: "When were yoh a leading man?"

Forges: "When the company had to walk back from Wigan."

An Autumn Prayer.

Altho we love to praise in rhyme
The season of the rose,
We're glad the good old summertime
Is drawing to a close;
For now, when come the cooler days,
To add to our repose,
We hope the girls will mend their ways,
And put on some more clothes.

A Polite Sting.

A bishop, at a certain congress, spoke, and at the close of his address the audience began to disperse.

A gentleman who was down on the program for an address touched the bishop's sleeve and murmured:

"I need not speak. I hardly think they expect me."

"Oh, to be sure they do!" cried the bishop. "To be sure they do! Don't you see they're all going?"

A Lesson.

"The charity worker," says one of them, "is always learning. We can learn much from the destitute. Thus, apropos of the affectation of some of our table etiquet, I once heard a ragged little chap at a school treat say, as he held a chicken leg in one fist and a hot potato in the other:

"'The trouble about table manners is that they was invented by people who was never very hungry.'"

The Grocer: "I think living's getting cheaper. For instance, two years ago them eggs would have cost you 50 per cent. more."

The Customer: "Two years ago, when these eggs were fresh, they would have been worth more."

Wanted, Football Reporters.

On some village football grounds the appearance of a ghost would cause less sensation than the visit of a reporter. Therefore, when a pressman does appear, it is only natural that he should be made much of.

One of the members of a northern club observed a smartly-dressed man writing at intervals in a fat notebook, and immediately asked him up to his house. After a royal time with wine and cigars, the host rose, at the stroke of ten, uneasily.

"You'll have to be sending off those notes now, I reckon," he hinted, opening the door.

"Notes? What notes?" asked the stranger, looking puzzled.

"Why, the notes you were taking for the football paper this afternoon."

"Oh, them!" cried the stranger, brightening up. "Bless you, them weren't for a paper. I'm no penny-a-liner, me. The club asked me to name 'em a price for re-laying the ground, an' I was calculatin' how much turf it would take to cover it."

A country minister had just received his first call to a small church, and his wife, of course, was highly excited, so much so that she was obliged to tell everybody of the good news. One day she met a farmer's wife, and began the conversation.

"Do you know, Mrs. Hayseed," she said, "my husband has just secured the incumbency of a church, and I can't tell you how delighted I am. I—"

"Yes," replied the sympathetic old lady, "I quite understand how you feel. I felt just that way when our pig won the first prize at the cattle show."

The Secret.

Mr. Gasip: "That romantic Miss Passe says there is a secret connected with her birth."

Miss Pickles: "So I've heard. It's the date."

Song of the Season.

Call me early, gentle mother,
That much time I may devote
Trying moth-ball smells to smother
In my last year's overcoat.

The Wife (to the husband who has been slung over the bank in a motor car accident): Oh, do come along up, Roddy dear, we're all waiting for you. The motor isn't hurt a bit.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE SPIRIT OF PROGRESS

"BE you a born ijit, Joshua Simkins?" Aunt Mary Simkins placed a hand on either hip and gazed at Uncle Josh over the steel-rimmed spectacles.

"Wal, I dunno as I be, Mary. This here farm don't look like it exactly, considerin' what it was when I tuk it.'

"Wal, when we tuk it. D'ye remember them bogs out yender where the corn is growin' now? Didn't we drain 'em by the newest methods?"

"Yes, an' paid fer it by the newest methods, too, I reckon. The biggest gainer by that smooth palaverin' feller that talked ye into doin' it."

"I ha' my doubts," he said slowly. Then he turned and brought down his fist with emphasis.

"I tell you what, Mary Jones, what we need is the speerit o' progress. It's progress that keeps this old world a-movin', an' unless we keep up with her we're goin' ter wake up some mornin' an' find ourselves left behind, trailin' along in space, like enough with no place to rest the sole o' our foot, an' th' world a-spinnin' away out o' sight.

Aunt Mary waited until he had finished. Then she sniffed audibly ,and stern lines gathered around her mouth.

"Joshua Simkins, ef you ain't a born ijit, then thar never was one. Who's been palaverin' to you now? Ef some idly-tongued varmint should come along an' tell you it was better to hop on one foot than to walk on two, I believe to goodness you'd go hoppin' 'round on one foot, you'd say it was to save shoe leather, but that wouldn't be the reason. It'd be just because the oily-tongued varmint said it was better, an' you hadn't brains enough to know any different."

"Wal, an automobeel ain't like hoppin' on one foot," he remarked with some spirit. "It's jest the other way. You go on four wheels 'stead o' two feet, an' you go like gee whiz when you want ter. I reckon it's the best way o' keepin' up with the world yit—that is, until them flyin' machines is done. Anyhow, that there automobeel's comin' next Saturday, an' ef you will be left behind, trailin' along in space, you'll ha' ter be. Mebbe ye c'n keep me an' the Sperrit o' progress in sight, but more'n likely we'll be lost to view in a few hours. You better git the sperrit o' progress an' jime us."

Uncle Josh cut short any further remarks by marching off to the barn and Aunt Mary returned to her pie crust with a scornful sniff.

"Whatever could I ha' been thinkin' of to marry sech an ijit as Joshua Simkins," she sighed. 'Some things is hard to understand, but a fool's the hardest o' all.'

Saturday came clear and cool. Uncle Josh was up before day'light. He had fixed the best place in the wagon house for the "Sperit o' progress," as he insisted upon calling his new acquisition and every possible preparation for its coming had been made; but Uncle Josh could not sleep. Not since he was a boy had he experienced the delicious thrill of joyous anticipation which now swept every nerve, wave upon wave. He could just feel the wheel in his hand, and the fanning of the breeze against his cheek, like the soft-brushing wings of the spirit of progress.

Aunt Mary had refused to discuss the matter with him after the first day, but not so the farm hands and villagers. They gathered in little knots at the store and at the tavern; they leaned on fences and on hoe-handles; they paused in the midst of milking or poised a curry comb in the air while they discussed Uncle Josh and his prospective purchase.

And Uncle Josh had never tired of answering their questions. What he had missed of sympathy and interest at home he had found in full measure abroad. His waking hours had been filled with delicious anticipation—his sleeping hours had been crowded with delightful dreams in which he and the "Sperrit o' progress" went whizzing through space to unknown lands of beauty and delight.

And now the longed for day had come. He tiptoed out of the house just as the first faint colorings of dawn appeared in the east, and drew a long breath. The road over which the "Sperit o' progress" would come stretched white and still between dark reaches of woodland until it lost itself in widening curves among the hills to the east. Uncle Josh sat down on a bench under the trees and lost himself in a maze of dreams.

He was roused by a voice from the kitchen.

"Joshua Simkins, be you a-comin' in to breakfast?"

Uncle Josh rose and walked slowly into the house. For the first time a doubt had disturbed his anticipations.

"Dy'e suppose I'l be able to run it, Mary?" he asked, as he sipped his coffee.

Aunt Mary gave him a scornful glance.

"A good time to think about that, I reckon; but it's jest like you, Joshua Simkins. How do I know whether you c'n run it er not? I'll ha nothin' to do with it."

The cloud of dust grew and spread. From its midst Uncle Josh caught the steady beat of the engine.

"By gum! that's her?" he shouted. "Hoo-ray for the Sperrit o' progress!" And with a bound he leaped the low fence and was off down the road.

Aunt Mary, brought to the door by his shout, returned to her work in grim silence, when with a flourish and a whizz, the automobile swept round in front of the wagon house, and stopped.

Uncle Josh was beaming. "Now, young fellar," he remarked, as the farm hands and a few of the neighbors gathered around, "you jest run her out agin an' give me a line of her workin's, an' then I'll try her, too."

The dapper young fellow at the wheel ran the machine smoothly out upon the road and began to explain most carefully and explicitly. Uncle Josh gave concentrated attention.

"Wal, that looks easy enough, young fellar; an' now ef you'll be good enough ter climb down I reckon me an' the Sperrit o' progress 'll git along pretty well together."

The young fellow hesitated and just then Aunt Mary reappeared in the doorway.

"Joshua Simkins," she said severely, "ef yer bound to run that thing you let that young fellar stay up in the seat beside you. I ain't goin ter take care o' no broken bones.'

Uncle Joshua scratched his head thoughtfully, and some of the men grinned.

"Wal," he said at last with reluctance, "sence Mary Jane's sort o' narvous 'bout me, mebbe you'd better sat up thar; no use of gettin' her all worked up."

A fourth time he passed the store, and now lines of anxiety were beginning to settle around his mouth, although his chin was still square and determined.

"Throw your lever back, and put your foot on the brake if you want to stop," called out the young man suggestively, but the noise of the engine drowned his voice, and Uncle Josh rolled on.

By the time he reached the store the fifth time, he had come to a decision.

"Guess, I'll go on home," he yelled; "'Tain't fur to walk, young feller. I'll meet you there."

The young fellow set out on a run, and the group around him laughed, and then looked serious.

"Uncle Josh'll never give in," remarked one. "How long d'ye s'pose he'll keep that up?"

"Till the gasoline gives out, 'nless he c'n think how to stop before," was the prompt reply of another.

When Uncle Josh came in sight of home, Aunt Mary stood in the doorway shading her eyes as she gazed down the road toward the village. Uncle Josh forced a gay smile to his lips and called out as he passed:

"Say, Mary, I'm goin' over to Buttehworths'. Tell the young feller to wait fer me here."

Aunt Mary gazed after him in consternation.

"Wal, of all the born ijits!" she said in a beat-out tone. "What's he done with the young feller? Spilled him out an' broke all his bones, an' left him there?"

"Where's Mr. Simkins?" he asked, as he caught sight of Aunt Mary. "Did he come home?"

"Come home?" snorted Aunt Mary contemptuously. "He went flyin' past 's if the old boy was after him. What'd ye sell him that thing fer, anyhow? He'll smash it up an' himself, too, before ,you c'n git yer money. An' then who'll pay ye? Ye needn't expect me to."

The young fellow climbed up on the fence and settled himself to wait.

In half an hour a cloud of dust appeared in the direction of the village, and the young man ran out to the edge of the road. Uncle Josh was a trifle pale and tired looking now, but he still smiled bravely and grasped the wheel firmly.

"Throw—back the lever—and—put your—foot—on—the—brake!" yelled the young fellow as Uncle Josh whized past him.

Another half-hour, and again the whizzing clouds of dust.

"Turn off the switch! Shut off your gasoline!" yelled the young fellow in desperation, but the dust cloud passed and vanished from sight.

Another half-hour's wait, and again the rising dust, but this time the speed was somewhat diminished and Uncle Josh seemed to be steering for the gate. He swept smoothly in, and the machine came to a stop.

"Hoo-ray for the Sperrit o' progress!" he quavered weakly. "An' now, young feller, you c'n put some gasoline in there an' show me the shortest way o' stoppin' the tarnal thing. I stopped her, but I ain't a gentleman o' leisure, an' I won't allus hev time to do it that way."

"Of all born ijits!" commented Aunt Mary from the doorway. "Joshua Simkins, be you a-comin' in ter dinner? The young feller might be hungry, ef you ain't."

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness" writes Mr. Wm Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

"I ATTRIBUTE MY CURE SOLELY

And Entirely To Taking "Fruit-a-tives"

HULL, QUE., DEC. 24th. 1909

"For the past twelve years, I had painful attacks of Dyspepsia. I could not digest my food and everything caused the most agonizing pain in my stomach. I also had a fearful attack of Constipation and at times, I had no movement of the bowels for two weeks.

Three doctors attended me for two years and gave me all kinds of medicine but did me no good. My weight came to only 80 pounds and everyone thought I was going to die. Finally, I had the good fortune to try "Fruit-a-tives" and as soon as I began to take them, I felt better. I persisted in the treatment and to my great joy, I steadily improved.

Now I feel very well, weigh 115 pounds, and this is more than I ever weighed even before my illness.

I attribute my cure solely and entirely to "Fruit-a-tives" and can never praise them too much for saving my life. To all who suffer from Dyspepsia and Constipation, I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" as a miraculous remedy"

"Whoa, there!" he said soothingly, as he pushed the throttle over, and the engine began to pound vigorously. "Seem to notice her noice more when ye have the wheel yerself, don't ye? Did she make so much noise when you was runnin' her?"

The young man nodded and pointed to the speed lever. Uncle Josh put his foot upon it somewhat suddenly, and the machine started on with a jerk.

"Steady there!" said the young fellow, warningly. "Now take your foot off that and throw your high-gear lever forward slowly. Be careful to take your foot off the other first, though, or you'll break your crankshaft."

Uncle Josh performed this feat successfully, and the machine glided smoothly forward. His eyes sparkled and he drew a long breath as he grasped the wheel with both hands.

The young fellow sat watchfully on the edge of his seat. He was feeling some of the nervous strain which Uncle Josh had ascribed to Aunt Mary.

"Keeps goin' faster the longer she goes, don't she? How long will she keep it up?"

The young fellow pushed the throttle back several degrees. "This is fast enough for you now," he remarked quietly, and a shade of disappointment crossed Uncle Josh's face.

"Pshaw! Let's hit her up when we come into the village. I want ter show them fellows what me an' the Sperrit o' progress c'n do!"

It was only a mile on a straight road into the village, and the machine ran smoothly.

Uncle Josh was jubilant. As he neared the village store where several of his friends and neighbors were gathered, he spoke to his companion hastily without turning his head.

"Say, young fellar, how d'ye stop this thing? I want ter stop in front o' the store. Quick, 'fore she gits past!"

"Shove back the lever and put your foot hard on the brake," said the young fellow, reaching in front of Uncle Josh and throwing the lever back in time to halt the machine in front of the store.

Uncle Josh was greeted by a chorus of comments as the group on the step surrounded the machine.

Uncle Josh beamed. The glow of youthful excitement shone in his eyes, and he displayed his purchase with the enthusiasm of boyhood.

"Now, young feller," he said suddenly, turning to his companion, 'you jest climb down an' wait here while I'll take a spin around the block. Then I'll come back and pick ye up."

The young fellow demurred but Uncle Josh grew impatient, and he was obliged to do as he was told.

"Don't go too fast," he warned. "Don't throw that throttle all the way open."

Uncle Josh climbed back into the machine with glowing cheeks. He shoved the throttle over carefully, put his foot on the first lever, and started off with something of a jerk, but creditably. Then he raised his foot very carefully and threw the high-gear gently forward. The machine moved smoothly and quickly ahead.

The group in front of the store waited expectantly. Presently the throb of the engine and the honking of Uncle Josh's horn reached their ears, and they stepped out to the edge of the road.

Uncle Josh was coming along the level stretch at almost full speed. He was guiding the machine steadily and surely, but as he neared the store there was no decrease in speed, and he swept past them as if they were not there. They gazed after him in surprise, and waited.

In a short time he reappeared, going at the same pace, but again he passed them by, and the young fellow, anxiously scanning Uncle Josh's face, thought that he detected a new expression underneath the smiling joy which before had been supreme.

"Why don't ye stop an' be sociable?" called out one of the men as he passed this time.

WAS TROUBLED WITH BOILS AND CARBUNCLES.

There is no more frequent source of illness than that arising from bad blood, for when the blood becomes impure, it is only natural that boils, pimples or some other indication of bad blood should break out of the system.

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still at the same time are very painful, and the only way to get rid of them is to cleanse the blood of the impurities. Cleanse it thoroughly by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and reliable blood medicine that has been on the market for nearly forty years.

Mr. James Wilds, Plaster Rock, N.B., writes:—"I was greatly troubled, a few years ago, with boils and carbuncles, and the doctor told me I was in a bad condition. My appetite failed me, I began to lose strength, and was pretty well run down when one of my friends recommended Burdock Blood Bitters. After using three bottles I began to feel like another man. My troubles soon left me, and to-day I can certainly give Burdock Blood Bitters a high recommendation to my friends."

ASCOT REALLY ROYAL

The King Could Take Half the Receipts But It Goes for Upkeep

It was an interesting story which Mr. Upjohn, K.C., told a Select Committee of the House of Lords when they had before them the Ascot Authority Bill, promoted by Lord Churchill, as the King's representative, and Sir William Carington, Keeper of the Privy Purse, for the purpose of forming one legal authority connected with Ascot Racecourse.

Mr. Upjohn said the objects of the Bill were to form one authority for the management of Ascot races and to vest in that one authority all the property until now vested in two different bodies.

Private race meetings were originally held in the King's Park, and in those days the races were under the management of the Master of the Buckhounds. One reason for the bill was that the office of Master of the Buckhounds was abolished in 1902, and since that time his place had been filled by Lord Churchill, as the King's representative, and Sir William Carington.

Another reason why it was necessary to put things on a more legal footing was that from time to time leases had been granted by the King. Ascot Heath was a Royal domain. With one exception—the grandstand—all the properties had been brought together and were now by Lord Churchill and Sir William Carington.

Colonel Bulkeley, the senior trustee, said it was desirable that there should be some body which would act as a buffer between the King and the people, because that body would prevent any evil-minded person from taking the King's name in a wrong way.

Mr. Reginald Coventry agreed that such an arrangement would prevent any suggestions that the King was making money out of horse-racing. The King was entitled to half the takings at Ascot.

"What does His Majesty do with it?" asked Mr. Balfour Browne, K.C., and, amid laughter, Mr. Coventry replied, "I don't know."

Lord Churchill stated that every single shilling was spent for the benefit of Ascot races. Expenses were very heavy, and the whole upkeep of the racecourse had to be paid for out of the income.

THROAT Troubles ARE Dangerous

because the swollen glands and inflamed membranes often affect other tissues and impair their healthy action.

Scott's Emulsion stands alone as nature's corrector of throat troubles; its cod liver oil is speedily converted into germ-resisting tissue—the glycerine is emotive and healing, while the combined emulsion upbuilds the forces to avert the weakening influence which always follow throat troubles.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is best for three important reasons—it relieves the trouble; it prevents a relapse; it is not charged with alcohol or stupefying drugs.

Shun substitutes and insist on Scott's.

EVIDENCE REVIEWED.

Beemer Murder Case Before Woodstock Grand Jury.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 5.—At 5.30 o'clock, the grand jury, which is considering the crown's evidence against Mrs. Grace Beemer, charged with the murder of her husband, Frederick Beemer, of Blenheim Township, was dismissed for the night, they having heard only about half the witnesses to be heard up to that time. The evidence was a repetition of that given at the inquest. It is expected they will not be in a position to report regarding the indictment until nearly noon to-day, and until that time the case will be held up.

Mrs. Beemer did not appear in court at all yesterday afternoon, although the large crowd in attendance waited long in the hope of getting a glimpse of the prisoner.

Frederick Beemer, as the autopsy showed, died from swallowing strychnine in March last on his farm near Drumbo. At the inquest, John Mason, employed by a neighboring farmer, testified to having seen Mrs. Beemer pour some white stuff from a bottle labeled "poison" while she was ministering to her sick husband, and that she afterwards threw the bottle in the stove.

Mrs. Beemer had no funds with which to furnish her defence, but about five hundred dollars has been contributed to a fund for her by the people of Woodstock and surrounding places, including her own neighborhood, near Drumbo.

BACKACHE A WARNING YOU SHOULD HEED

It is One of Nature's First Signs of Kidney Troubles, if Neglected, Serious Diseases May Follow.

When the kidneys are clogged up and inactive, nature has a way of warning you.

Backache is one of the first symptoms. You may also be troubled with disagreeable, annoying bladder disorders; have attacks of lumbago or rheumatism; become nervous, tired and feel all worn out; puffy swellings show under the eyes or in the feet and ankles; and many other symptoms are noticed. If they are neglected, dropsy, diabetes, or Bright's Disease, which so often prove fatal, may result.

It is not only dangerous, but needless for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, when a little Croxone now will quickly and surely end all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for all such troubles than Croxone, because it reaches the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the clogged up pores; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter and sift the poison out of the blood and drive it from the system.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to end the worst backache, relieve rheumatic pains, or overcome urinary disorders.

RE-ENTER MONTAGUE.

Once Noted Federal Legislator Joins Manitoba Cabinet.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5—Hon. W. H. Montague was sworn in yesterday as Minister of Public Works in the Manitoba Cabinet. This followed the receipt yesterday of Hon. Colin K. Campbell's resignation. Premier Sir Rodmond Roblin, who returned on Monday from Ottawa, found the letter containing the resignation on his desk. It was a complete surprise to him, but he lost no time in gaining Lieut.-Governor Cameron's assent to Dr. Montague, who was at once offered the post.

Dr. Montague has lived in Winnipeg many years. While here he has been engaged in the land and investment business. He was born in Adelaide Township, Middlesex County, Ontario, his father having been one of the early settlers in the Adelaide district.

From 1886 until 1900 he was member of Parliament for Haldimand, for some time Minister without portfolio in the Dominion Cabinet. During his Parliamentary career he was known as one of the best-informed debaters in the House. Finally he became Secretary of State and afterwards Minister of Agriculture of the Dominion.

Two Drowned In Wreck.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., Nov. 5.—The mystery of the ship reported to have foundered on Canoe Cove, has been solved. The Government steamer Brant, in her search yesterday for signs of the reported wreck, located the spars of a vessel projecting a few feet above the water, about four miles off Canoe Cove. The vessel was the 52 tons schooner Flora T., which left Pugwash, N.S., on Friday with a cargo of brick for Charlottetown. The vessel had only two of a crew, her captain, Bliss Trenholm, of Port Elgin, N.S., and Philip Arsenault of Summerside, both of whom went down with the vessel.

Commission To Tour.

KINGSTON, Nov. 5.—Next week the members of the prison reform commission will start out to visit several prisons in the United States to get information. They intend to visit Stillwater, Minn.; Mansfield, O., and Concord, N.H. This means that the sessions for hearing evidence will not be resumed until the end of the month, and it may be early in December before work is again taken up. There is plenty of evidence yet to be heard, in addition to hearing charges that have been preferred against H. S. Begg, assistant overseer of the penitentiary hospital.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

Since the time of Johnson the dictionaries have attempted to record the pronunciations prevalent among the best speakers of English in their generation. That they should dictate pronunciation was, of course, as ridiculous as it would have been futile. But, as in the case of Cæsar, the honor of dictators seems to have been thrust upon them. Those who found themselves wallowing in the slough of despond because of conflicting pronunciations appealed to the dictionary as their arbiter and protector, and for their future safety exalted it to the position of a despot. Thus, while nobody searches the dictionary to avoid those words which it stigmatizes as slang, the pronunciation fiend is continually devouring its pages lest he commit the unpardonable sin of uttering a syllable not sanctioned by its authority.—Robert J. Menner in the Atlantic Monthly.

Nurse's Years Of Experience

Proves Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Best Treatment for Kidney and Stomach Troubles.

The trained nurse has even greater opportunities than the doctor himself to watch the action of medicine in specific cases.

For years the writer of this letter has been recommending the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills among her patients, and is firmly convinced that no treatment is so prompt and effective.

This is the most valuable evidence obtainable, and we believe that all who know Mrs. Duffy will appreciate it to the full, knowing that she would not recommend anything in which she had not the fullest confidence.

Mrs. Duffy, nurse, 35 Lewis Street, Toronto, writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for years, and recommend them to my patients for all disorders of the kidneys, liver and stomach. In all my professional experience I have found nothing better." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Portuguese Barbers.

In almost all foreign countries the gentlemen whose business it is to cut hair have some peculiar sign whereby they seek, more or less successfully, to remind the passerby that he needs a haircut. Nowhere, perhaps, is this sign of the trade more distinctive than in Portugal. It is twofold. Sometimes a huge pair of scissors, sometimes a horse's tail, gracefully dangles over the threshold of the hair-cutting emporiums. The latter is by far the most popular, and is especially noticeable in Oporto. It naturally suggests that one's hair is growing inordinately long, and nobody cares for an excess of hair—except the rising poet. —London Strand Magazine.

Giving Her a Job.

Mrs. Strongmind—Our society has appointed me chairman of a committee whose object is to try to bring about a reduction in rents. Strongmind—I'm glad to hear it, my dear. You can begin at once on my trousers. —London Tit-Bits.

Train Express Wrecked.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The Marseilles-Paris express was in collision last night with another train, and seven coaches filled with passengers were practically reduced to splinters. The wreckage is now burning. The number of dead is estimated at twelve.

The accident occurred near Melun, which is 37 miles from Paris. All the doctors in Melun were requisitioned and others have been urgently summoned from the surrounding towns. At midnight last night the many dead and injured had been taken from the ruins.

There were no American or Canadian passengers on the express.

Ulster Capitalists To Resist.

BELFAST, Ireland, Nov. 5.—A resolution to pay no taxes under an Irish home rule parliament, and to make government under its rule impossible by unbleaching and continuous obstruction of the law, was passed here yesterday at a demonstration of 6,000 business men of Ulster, including representatives of leading firms with an aggregate capital of upwards of $250,000,000.

Outlays on Public Works.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—Expenditures by the Public Works Department last year aggregated $18,844,228, according to the annual report, now being issued. Of this amount, $10,177,821 was spent on harbors, including dredging, and $7,420,885 on public buildings.

Large buildings now under construction include a new postoffice at St. John, costing $381,800; Quebec postoffice, $385,000; Montreal examining warehouse, $999,000; Brantford postoffice, $344,208; Toronto customs, $4,000,000, and Ottawa customs, $1,500,000.

Three Children Missing.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 5. — Gilbert George, an Indian from St. Catharines, was here yesterday looking for his three children, a girl of 14, and two boys of eight and four years, who have been missing from their home since Oct. 11. The eldest child had $30 in her possession when she left St. Catharines with her brothers. They told friends in that city that they were going to Brockville, but no trace of them can be found here.

This Jaunt Had Hardships.

ATHABASCA LANDING, Alta., Nov. 5.—A party of Edmonton aldermen and newspapermen arrived here yesterday morning, five days overdue. They left Edmonton a week ago last Friday to go to Pelican Rapids to inspect the Pelican gas well at that place and were to have been here on the return trip last Thursday at latest. They were forced to walk sixty miles, which was responsible for their delay.

The Deaf and Dumb.

In early times it was an opinion, maintained even by philosophers, that the education of the deaf and dumb was impossible. It was then believed that language could be acquired only through the medium of the ear, as shown by the couplet of Lucretius:

To instruct the deaf no art could ever reach,
No care improve them and no wisdom teach.

The first mention of instruction for the deaf and dumb is found in Bede, A. D. 905. No other case is met with for some centuries. Rudolfus Agricola of Heidelberg makes mention of an educated deaf mute in his "Dialectica," 1489. It was not until 1650 that instruction for the deaf and dumb began to be general.—New York American.

A Pond on the Farm.

Why not build a good pond on the farm? The government will stock it with fish; it will furnish water for your stock the year round by installing pipes and hydrants to keep the water cool and sanitary, and when winter comes it will furnish a fine place for the amusement of the young folks. Then it will supply the material for the ice crop to store away for summer use.—Successful Farming.

To Sharpen Scissors.

Cut them rapidly on the neck of a small glass bottle or on a ground glass stopper. It trues the edges and makes them cut like new. Another way is to place the scissors upon an ordinary knife as if in the act of cutting. By drawing the steel along the blades in this manner several times you will sharpen your scissors.

She raised her tearful eyes to gaze
Upon the sun so grand.
He hid his face, and for two days
It rained to beat the band.
—Chicago Tribune.

She danced so lightly in and out,
Like gossamer she flew,
And all the little hills about
Were straightway dancing too.

OPENS UP NOSTRILS, CLEARS HEAD ENDS COLDS OR CATARRH AT ONCE

Instantly Relieves Swollen, Inflamed Nose, Head, Throat—You Breathe Freely—Dull Headache Goes—Nasty Discharge Stops.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake to-night struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Lower cables to-day formed the chief cause of a decline in wheat, ranging from 3-8 to 3-4c net. Sympathetically other grains were carried downward, corn to a net loss of 1-8 to 4-4c, and oats to a drop of a shade to 1-4c. Provisions also suffered from the general weakness, losing from 7 1-2 to 25c compared with the previous close.

Liverpool wheat closed ¾ to ⅞ lower; corn, ¾ to 1 lower.

BOARD IS GRANTED.

C.P.R. Maintenance Men's Demands Go to Arbitration.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—Over 5,000 maintenance-of-way employes on the C.P.R., from coast to coast, want an increase in pay, with better working conditions than now prevail. Through their representatives they have made application to the Labor Department for a board of conciliation to look into the dispute with the company, and Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has consented. The men have named Henry Irwin of Portage la Prairie as their representative, and the company Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto. A chairman will be named by the two.

It has not yet been decided where the board will sit, but it will likely be in Toronto or Ottawa.

Ritual Murder Ridiculed.

KIEV, Nov. 5.—The defence scored yesterday in the proceedings against Mendel Beiliss, who is on trial for the alleged murder of the Christian boy, Yushinsky, when Profs. Kokovsoff and Tihomiroff, theological experts, ridiculed the idea that the Jews practiced ritual murder.

Prof. Kokovsoff, who is attached to the St. Petersburg University, said: "Were I told that the body of a child had been drained of its blood, and were is proved to me that this had been done by a Jew, the supposition that the crime had been perpetrated for the purposes of eating would be less absurd to my mind than the theory of ritual murder."

UP AT HUDSON BAY.

Members of the Dominion Government hydrographic survey party sent to locate a harbor at Port Nelson, the future terminus of the Hudson Bay Railway, have brought back to civilization interesting tales of a winter spent in that outpost of civilization. Leaving Winnipeg on June 10, 1912, the overland party, consisting of four engineers, six half-breeds and six Indians, went by foot as far as Norway House. From here the journey was by canoe down the Hayes River to York Factory, which was reached early in the month of July. Port Nelson, the final destination, lay across the mouth of the river, some fifteen or sixteen miles from York Factory.

The locality chosen as the site of the future town and terminus is rather low and swampy, and presented a desolate appearance, with the marshy ground covered with patchy growths of small spruce and tamarac. Mosquitoes and black flies abounded, and added their quota to the discomforts of the party. The first few days, of course, were spent in the erection of a summer camp, tents being pitched and provisions stored for the fall. Early in October several log shanties were constructed, and into the comparative comfort of these the men moved during that month.

The winter sets in early in latitude 57 degrees north, and the working day soon contracted to the period between 8.30 a.m. and 4 p.m. The sounding was continued throughout the winter, the channel being frozen over for a distance of twelve or thirteen miles from shore. Each morning the party left the comfortable log hut headquarters and proceeded to the spot set out for the day's operations. Here a tent was generally pitched on the ice and a hole broken, through which the apparatus could be lowered into the water. If far from headquarters the members of the party ate their lunch in the tent, and thus saved a mid-day trip to the shore. In this way the channel was sounded directly out to the open water during a winter where the average temperature was 23 degrees below zero.

But what of the nights? Several miles away was York Factory, with its handful of souls—the factor and his family, the minister and his wife and a few traders. York Factory offered little in the way of social enjoyment. The result was that the party spent the long evenings at headquarters, amusing themselves with cards or reading the small library brought in under considerable hardship. One hundred and fifty records and a phonograph chased away boredom for awhile, but records can become stale even at Port Nelson, and the "canned" music gave way to the rather less stilted performances of a three-piece string orchestra. Once or twice in the long winter the monotony was broken by calls from transients, who arranged to pass a night with the "boys," the Mounted Police patrol making several such visits. Then, of course, there was Christmas Day, when several fancy touches were given the menu card and when two engineers dropped in from the neighborhood of Split Lake to enjoy the festivities of the day. Every second Sunday during the winter season the minister from York Factory appeared at headquarters, bringing with him his two-by-two hand organ, and the day was observed with due decorum.

Communication with "the outside" was practically cut off for several months, the first mail after October arriving by dog-train about Jan. 12. In the summer it came in by canoe from Norway House. This isolation was rendered less serious by the abundance of good food in the cook's larder. During the entire season fresh meat was daily on the table, the party finding plenty of game, such as caribou, wild geese and ducks, and ptarmigan. This supply of fresh and appetising food no doubt contributed much to the health of the men. Though a doctor was among their number till the month of April, 1913, practically not a case of a serious nature demanded his attention—Toronto Saturday Globe.

Not According to Law.

One of the officials at London tells of an incident that occurred in a train proceeding through the north of Scotland. There was another passenger in the compartment at the time an American entered.

At the next station three Scots came in. They were all big, burly men and completely filled up the seat on the side of the compartment where the first mentioned passenger was seated. At the next station the carriage door opened to admit a tall, cadaverous individual whose girth was about that of a lamppost.

He tried to edge in between two of the passengers already there, and said to one of them:

"Here, you must move up a bit. Each seat is intended to accommodate five persons, and, according to act of parliament, you are entitled only to 18 inches of space."

"Aye, aye, my friend," replied one of the Scots, "that's a very guid for you that's been built that way, but ye canna blame me 'f I ha' na' been constructit according to act of parliament."

DEPUTATION OF LADIES WAIT UPON THE BOARD

Women's Council Suggests That Parents Should Have Opportunities of Meeting the Teachers of Their Children.

MEDICAL INSPECTION

Last night was an unprecedented occasion for the Peterborough Board of Education, for the smooth tenor of their regular monthly meeting was interrupted by two deputations of ladies, representing the Women's Council of this City.

There were present at the meeting Dr. M. A. Morrison, chairman, Dr. J. E. Middleton, Dr. Burnham, Col. J. W. Miller and Messrs. L. M. Hayes, B. F. Ackerman, J. J. Turner, Jr., W. H. Hill, V. Eastwood and J. Crane.

The First Deputation.

The two deputations dealt with questions which the various members of the Board referred to after the departure of the ladies, as matter of vital importance to the well being of the pupils of the various schools of the City, and to the progress of the Education Department in this City.

The first deputaiton consisted of Mrs. Jas. Rollins, Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. J. C. Davidson and Mrs. Rogers. Mrs. Rollins acted as spokeswoman for the deputation, and in a concise, but extremely convincing address to the Board, she outlined the reason for, and the scheme of co-operation between parents of the pupils and teachers, in the furtherance of which the deputation had come to ask permission of the Board to proceed with their plans.

Mrs. Rollins explained that the aim of the Women's Council was for the advancement of the higher interests of the women and children. The purpose of their present move was to help the children by helping the parents. In the matter of educating their children along certain lines, parents were incredibly culpable, resulting in the numerous deplorable child tragedies.

The Ladies' Plan.

It was the intention of the Woman's Council to have the mothers of the pupils meet with the teachers of their children once a month. This could be arranged without adding to the duties of the teachers, and they desired to accomplish it, only in the schools where the teachers were in sympathy with the movement, to such an extent as to enter into it voluntarily. It would mean much to teachers just coming into the City, and it would establish a closer relationship between the teachers and parents that would be bound to result in benefit to the pupils.

The invitations to the mothers would be issued in a novel manner. The teachers would write the invitation to the meeting on the blackboards of the various rooms, and have the pupils copy it as a writing exercise. This they would take home to their parents, adding their own appeal to the otherwise impersonal invitation. Mrs. Rollins read notes from Inspector Hughes of Toronto, and Inspector Edwards of London, heartily endorsing the movement, as it had been conducted in their respective cities.

The request the ladies brought to the Board was for the members to give their sanction to the movement and rooms in which to conduct the meetings once a month in all the schools of the City.

On motion of Messrs. Eastwood and Hayes, the matter was referred to the Supervision committee with power to act.

Mr. Hill offered the opinion that it was one of the greatest advancements that had ever been made in the schools—"one of the finest schemes imaginable."

Medical Inspection.

Dr. Bernie addressed the Board on behalf of the deputation. She urged the advantages of a system of medical inspection in the schools. In cases where pupils had light cases of measles, scarlet fever, etc., they were merely kept in the house for a few days and sent back to schools. Dr. Bernie quoted statistics to prove the necessity and advantages of medical inspection.

The Board's Position.

In reply, Dr. Morrison said that the matter had been before the Board before, but in the pressure of other business, and the financial strain, the Board's plans did not materialize. He suggested making some arrangement with the Peterborough Health Association in regard to having one of their nurses visiting the schools.

Dr. Burnham agreed with Dr. Birnie. The mater was important and urgent and should not be postponed. The health of the children was more important than the financial loss.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., suggested that the Board enter into an agreement with the City Council in regard to having the duties of the Medical Health Officer extended to the schools.

Dr. Burnham, however, submitted that it would not be wise to make the M.H.O. go from the Isolation Hospital to among children of the schools.

Mr. Hill thought the time had come when steps should be taken in the matter. To engage a first class nurse might be a beginning. An appropriation for the execution of the project should be included in the estimates for next year he thought.

The matter, on the motion of Messrs. Hill and Burnham was referred to the Supervision committee.

Mr. Crane, chairman of the Supervision committee, promised early and favourable consideration of the two problems.

STREET SWEEPER PRESSED INTO COMMISSION

Will be Used to Clean on Newly Paved Streets—Initial Performance on Hunter Street

PAVING CONCLUDED

Ald. Buller had an opportunity of inspecting the "ornamental" street sweeper for the second time since his induction as chairman of the Board of Works committee. At a recent meeting of the City Council, Ald. Buller proclaimed the fact that the street sweeper was seldom used, and that he had seen it only once since it was purchased by the City. The advent of street paving has created a new office for the sweeper. Henceforth it will be used in conjunction with the street watering cart to clean the newly paved streets. It received its first introduction to the new pavements this morning, when it was pressed into service on Hunter Street. Ald. Buller and City Engineer Parsons were present at the initial performance. The baptismal name of the sweeper has been changed, and hereafter it will be known as a "street cleaner."

Plant Closed Down.

The street paving contractors completed the paving of George Street on Tuesday evening. It was a close finish, with an hour's overtime thrown in. The paving plant will be closed down for the winter, to again be pressed into commission as soon as the spring opens up. A large squad of Italians left to-day for St. Catharines, where they reside, and will be followed by another contingent bound for Toronto.

Herring Fishing In Pigeon Lake

Herring fishing in Pigeon Lake is at its height just now and many of the Indians are out, especially around the upper end of Big Island. It is not generally known that these fish are plentiful in the upper waters and during the present season they are a delicacy. Some of the Indians having friends in Peterborough remembered them by bringing in sufficient for a meal or two.

FINE SPECIMEN MOOSE'S ANTLERS

Mr. William McCracken, local manager for the Gordon-Davies Co., who was a member of the Jack's Lake hunting party, arrived home last evening after a very successful three weeks' sport in the moose runs of Northern Ontario. His advance guard arrived the day before in the shape of a Mammoth set of moose antlers, which are said to be the finest specimens ever seen here. The full spread of the main antlers from tip to tip are over four feet, and of the brow branch next to the head is two feet and a half. There are eight fully matured horns and twelve smaller ones.

This exceptionally fine trophy of the hunt was secured by Mr. McCracken, who is a safe shot with the rifle. The moose which he killed, and from which the antlers were taken, was a fine, commanding looking stag, said to be about ten years old. Those who can enjoy a moose steak, may now enjoy that rarity by sending in their order to the Gordon-Davies Co., George Street.

What the Spider Indicated

When Mark Twain, in his early days, was editor of a Missouri paper, a superstitious subscriber wrote to him saying that he had found a spider in his paper, and asking him whether that was a sign of good luck or bad. The humourist wrote him this answer and printed it:

"Old Subscriber: Finding a spider in your paper was neither good luck nor bad luck for you. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant is not advertising, so that he can go to that store, spin his web across the door and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

FOUR ARE DEAD IN CAR RIOTS

Eighteen Others Are Badly Injured in Fierce Street Battle in Indianapolis—Strike-breaker Arrested

TO CALL OUT MILITIA

Special Wire to The Examiner.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 5.—Four dead and eighteen in the hospital, some fatally hurt, is the toll till noon to-day of the casualities in the street car strike riots. There was one death this morning and Charles Fisher, a strike-breaker, has been arrested, charged with firing the fatal shot. There will be a conference between the authorities and strikers this afternoon, and if the police persist in refusing to protect the strike-breakers the State Government will be asked for protection by calling out the militia.

A New Market Management Suggested

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Sir,—In your issue of to-day I notice the question asked, "Where are the markets in which the consumer might buy for less and the producer sell for a little more." What surprised me is, that more or our citizens have not asked the same question "Where," I think it is high time that the consumers awakened to the fact that they are being systematically fleeced every week on the open market. These markets were established for the benefit of the consumer, and do away with the middleman profit. Let us consider how it works. The farmer demands both his own and the middleman's profit, and as a natural sequence many poor families have to do without the necessaries which help to make life worth living. What do our Christian friends and churches think of it? I would humbly suggest that a committee of ladies be formed from every church in the city to set fair prices for farmer and consumer, and have them published every Friday in the evening paper. The consumer would then know what price to offer, and if the farmer did not care to accept, let him take his produce home, having to cart it back one or two weeks would assuredly bring him to his senses. To those who consider that it is not the work of the churches to interfere I would say:

Is it not the work of the churches to protect the body. The temple of the soul?

I am,

Live and Let Live.

REPORT OF LOSS OF DREDGE IS CONFIRMED

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, ONT., Nov. 5.—While the government denied the previous report of the loss of the quarter million dollar dredge Port Nelson, it is believed to be now confirmed. The dredge was hauled out at high tide. When the tide fell it was found that the dredge had been placed directly upon a big rock. The result was that the weight of the machinery and hull broke the back of the dredge. The disaster will be a serious setback to the work of making Port Nelson a place where shipping can be handled.

COLONEL MAIDMENT—Who is taking the place of Commissioner Rees while he is seriously ill, as Commander of the territorial division of the Salvation Army.

SIX MONTHS FOR TWO VAGS

HALLOWE'EN CASES

In police court this morning, Thos. Ryne, and his travelling companion, who answers to the name of Jones, were called upon to answer to a charge of vagrancy. Ryne and Jones were arrested on the same charge yesterday morning, but were allowed to go. After they were released they got drunk again and commenced begging on the streets of the City. But P. C. Sills was hot on their trail, and before their spree was finished he gathered them in.

"I promised to send you to Central Prison the next time you came here, didn't I?" asked the Magistrate.

"Yes," replied the prisoners.

"Well, I will keep to my promise," said the Magistrate, and sentenced the pair to six months in the Central.

H. L. McIlmoyle, a farmer, was charged with selling a quarter of meat on the market last Saturday which was of less weight than he represented.

Mr. McIlmoyle pleaded "not guilty" to the charge.

It seems that Mr. Daniel McMillan, 569 Bolivar Street, bought a quarter of pork from McIlmoyle on the market last Saturday. The quarter was marked "61," showing that it weighed 61 pounds. He purchased it, paying 15c. a pound, or $9.15 for the whole quarter. When he received the pork at home he weighed it, and found that it tipped the scales at 50 3-4 pounds. This was ten pounds less than he had paid for. He took the meat to the corner grocer, on whose scales it weighed 50 1-2 pounds.

The grocer appeared in court to substantiate Mr. McMillan's evidence.

In defence, Mr. McIlmoyle exhibited the beam of the scales on which he weighed the meat. On it the figure "5" in 50 was so disfigured that it looked like a "6." This he explained was the cause of the mistake. He was willing to refund the $1.50 to McMillan and pay the costs of the case.

The charge against Mr. McIlmoyle

PETERBORO' CHEESE AT LOW PRODUCTION MARK

Quantity Manufactured This Year 50 Per Cent. Less Than Output of 1908—Some of the Reasons For Decline.

PRICE HAS BEEN GOOD

The products of the factories on the Peterborough Cheese Board totalled approximately $235,000.00 this year. There were 21,191 cheese boarded, which allowing 85 lbs. per cheese, gives a total of 1,801,235 lbs. And at an average price of 13 cents the Board's business reached $234,159.55.

Some of the factories sold off the board and their receipts will bring the total amount received for cheese in this district during the past season well over $235,000.00.

Figures for recent years bear out the fact that the Peterborough district is contributing its share to the gradual diminution of cheese production in Canada. In 1912 the local board handled 27,082 cheese with the top price 13 3-4 cents, the lowest 12 3-16 cents, but on only three occasions were the offerings below 13 cents.

Going back to 1908, for example there were 41,420 cheese listed. The lowest price was 10 13-16 and the highest, 12 9-16, with the average price for the season about 12 cents.

The intervening years have witnessed the falling off. In 1908 there were 34 factories represented on the Board. This morning there were only 13 factories selling, and during the busiest period of the summer there were only one or two over the twenty mark.

Equipment Is Good.

The past five years have witnessed the development of the methods of producing and handling cheese. Cool curing rooms are found in practically all the factories represented on the Peterborough Board. In quite a number of cases new buildings have been erected, the inspectors who covered this district have been most careful, and everything has been done to encourage the production of milk and to facilitate and standardize the manufacture of cheese.

The price of cheese has advanced during these years, and the cow has usurped the place of the goose that laid the golden egg. In spite of these conditions the number of cheese made this year is not much more than half of what it was in 1908.

What Are the Reasons.

There are several explanations of this situation. In the first place, it is stated, that some of the factories have found butter more profitable than cheese. Many farmers have been sending their cream to Peterborough, and the Peterborough Creamery has taken large supplies for butter and ice cream throughout this year. In addition there are the other ice cream manufacturers of the city, who have been dipping into the general milk supply. Again, the consumption of milk and cream in Peterborough has increased with the enlargement of the city, and a wider consumption of cream in many homes.

It may also be said that the number of dairy cattle has not increased at a rate proportionate to the demand for milk and cream. Again, this past summer witnessed an extremely dry season during which some cheese factories suspended business, and the output of the others was at a minimum.

All these are influences that explain the above figures. It is, also, a question whether the majority of the farmers are following the dairy department of farm business as closely as might be expected.

The increased population has demanded a heavier meat supply, and many young cattle never get a chance to make a milk producing record. Thus, the herds may not register as many good dairy cows as might be expected under the present opportunities of turning milk and cream into money. Again, has intensive dairying been followed as closely as would be expected in a district receiving the attention of experts in this branch of agriculture?

The whole question is an interesting one even from the standpoint of Peterborough county alone, and is too big a matter to be entered into in a brief article.

If it is desirable that the Cheese Board should reclaim some of the ground lost from various causes, the proposal to hold the annual meeting during the winter should give the members plenty of time to consider the matter and to make preparations for a good season in 1914.

INDUSTRIAL CLASSES ARE WELL ATTENDED

ONLY 13 FACTORIES REPRESENTED ON THE CHEESE BOARD

Ald. Gillespie Wound Up the Season By Taking Entire Offering

FINAL MEETING OF 1913

Mr. G. A. Gillespie bought up all the factories, Mr. W. S. Cook, of Belleville, delivered the valedictory and the Cheese Board adjourned sine die, in other words until the 1914 crop of dandelions blossom in the meadows and Secretary Hawthorne sends out notifications for the first meeting of the new year.

Only 888 cheese were boarded this morning, some of the factories having ceased operations during the past two weeks. The price paid by Mr. Gillespie was 13½c, a little more than a cent a pound higher than the figure at the concluding meeting of 1912.

Mr. Cook's valedictorian suggestions were principally to the effect that the board at its annual meeting should prepare to tighten up the screws for next year's sales.

"You'll soon be as bad as Lindsay," he said. "These meetings are called for 10 o'clock, and you should impress upon the salesmen the necessity of being here sharp on time. Several of the factories have sold off the board since the past meeting and they are called up for it. If you get into these loose ways of doing business the board will go down, and the best time to provide against a continuance of that kind of thing is at your annual meeting."

Mr. Hawthorne suggested that the annual meeting be held during the winter. If it were delayed as in the past until the first meeting of the board the discussion of the motion in regard to factories that sold off the board all this year would probably be too late.

It was felt that the members would endeavour to attend the meeting if it were called during the winter, and this proposal will likely be put into effect.

THE CHEESE BOARD.

Keene	40
Warminster	55
Shearer	60
Central Smith
Selwyn	65
Villiers
Warsaw	60
Westwood
Oakdale
Daisy D.	38
Myrtle	100
Ormonde	95
Young's Point
Lang	75
Indian River	50
East Emily	35
Trewern
Bensfort
Norwood	130
Fleetwood	40
Total	888

THE BIDDING.

Mr. Watkins opened at 13c. Mr. Cook raised it 1-16c and Mr. Gillespie called 13⅛c, and was unopposed. The fireworks were brief and sharp, and the price was satisfactory. Mr. Gillespie took the entire offering.

BEE-KEEPERS WILL MEET

There will be a meeting of the bee-keepers of the County of Peterborough on Saturday, Nov. 8th, at 2 o'clock in the agricultural rooms over the Bank of Commerce at which a Beekeepers' Association will be formed. Every beekeeper in the county is invited to be present at this meeting.

Report of the Supervising Principal Shows That the Efforts of the Committee Are Meeting With a Large Measure of Success.

LIST OF TEACHERS

Mr. V. Eastwood, Chairman of the Industrial Technical and Art Educational Committee on Friday evening, submitted the report of Mr. A. F. Hagerman, Supervising Principal to the Board of Education. This report gives a list of teachers engaged by the Committee for the different classes established, the number enrolled, the number of fees paid, the average attendance and the libility incurred in the matter of supplies, apart from the teachers' salaries.

The report is as follows:

The Report.

The Chairman and Members of the Board of Industrial, Technical and Art Education.

As Supervising Principal of your Industrial Classes I have the honour to report as follows:

Acting with your sub-committe the following teachers have been engaged, and our record of attendance goes to show that their efforts are meeting with a large measure of success. Mr. Ford Turner and Mr. Bowness are taking the three classes in Mechanical Drawing and Mathematics.

Miss Welsh and Miss Rose take Thursday Dressmaking Class. Miss Howell and Miss Wilson take Monday and Tuesday Dressmaking class.

Miss Dawson takes the Millinery class.

Mr. Firth of the Collegiate Institute Staff, takes Electricity. Following is the enrollment by classes:

	No. Enrolled.	Fees Paid.
Drafting and Mathematics	60	53
Dressmaking	69	61
Domestic Science	62	59
Millinery	19	17
Electricity	30	28
Total	239	209

It is perhaps sufficient to say that the attendance on these classes so far has been very gratifying, and we are looking forward to a larger and better enrollment after the New Year. Percentage of attendance for the month is 85.6 per cent.

The expenditure up to the present is, we are glad to say, well within the amount set apart for each class, and is as follows:

Drawing Classes.

24 drawing boards at 50c	$12.00
24 Tee squares at 25c., 48 triangles at 5c.	7.80

Total	$82.85

Millinery Classes.

2 doors for cupboard at $1.50	$3.00
1 1-2 doz. pliers at 30c each	5.40
Total	$8.40

Domestic Science Classes.

Towel Racks	$1.80
Groceries	2.05
Total	$3.85

Respectfully submitted.

(Signed) A. F. Hagerman.

Supervising Principal.

A copy of the report will be forwarded to Dr. Merchant of the Department of Education, Toronto, with the request that he may find an opportunity to pay a visit to the classes at an early date.

INVERTED BRAINS.

In Great Britain they have discovered a boy with an inverted brain—upside down. An investigation among the statesmen of the Conservative party might easily result in making it "two of a kind," and more. To begin with Premier Borden. He is tetotally topsy-turvy, in everything important he advocated when in opposition, and in the ideals he set himself to effectuate in office. He and his associates in office have in nearly everything disappointed those who trusted them; have disregarded and negatived nearly all the great principles upon which their support was sought to be justified. The British boy, with his inverted brain does his writing upside down, so that standing on the head is the most convenient way of reading it. His political counterparts in Canada have written promises and the fulfilment of ideals, in the same inverted order. Almost everything is opposite to what was expected by even their sanguine and optimistic admirers, long since become pessimistic apologists.

OF AGE.

The Toronto Star was twenty-one yesterday; completed its twentieth year of successful publication—became of age, ceased to be a minor. Journalistically, however, it has long since ceased to be a minor; it has developed into one of the best, (if not the best) evening, papers in the Dominion. It might have becomingly celebrated its majority by coming out in a special edition; but every issue of the Star is, so to speak, a special edition, in the way of special merit. It is a newspaper in the fullest sense of the word; it is bright and newsy. It makes special effort to get the latest and largest news—specializes in this department. It is withal well written—written sanely. Liberal in political matters, it is not hidebound, but truly liberal in sentiment and attitude. The Examiner gives its congratulations on the success our contemporary has achieved. It has become a star of the first magnitude. Here's perpetuity to its bright twinkle.

DRAWING THE LONG BOW.

The Mail and Empire is not like the mythical George Washington of hatchet and cherry-tree fame—it can tell a lie. In a heading to the election returns in Peel in yesterday's issue, the Mail and Empire says—"James R. Fallis returned by several hundred votes over the normal Conservative majority." A little lie like this doesn't mean much, perhaps, but it serves to show the unreliability of the Mail and Empire in purveying political information. To show the character of the Mail and Empire's whopper—its deliberate attempt to deceive its readers and to let itself down lightly over the reduction of the Conservatory majority by nearly 100 per cent., it is only necessary to state that the normal Conservative majority in Peel since 1908, when it was made a Conservative hive, averages 607; and 373, the Conservative candidate's majority in Peel on Monday, is not "several hundred votes over the normal Conservative majority," but several hundred—nearly three hundred—votes under the normal majority. In 1908 the Conservative majority in Peel was 498, in 1911, the Conservative majority in Peel was 716, making the normal—average—Conservative majority 607. When the Mail and Empire made such an absurdly misleading statement, it must have been under the influence of Sir James Whitney, who promised when in opposition, to discontinue the "odious and corrupt Grit practice" of giving members of the Legislature offices of emolument under the crown. In spite of this promise, Sir James Whitney made Samuel Charters, M.P.P., a registrar at a good fat salary, with no more elections to face, and financial provision for life.

MISPLACED CONFIDENCE.

The students of the Ontario Veterinary College are going to see Hon. James Duff, alleged Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, regarding defects in college matters. The students seem to be laying their money on the wrong pony. Their proposed visit suggests the possession of official horse sense.

NEW YORK ELECTION.

The skin of the Tammany tiger is on the fence at last. The Murphy forces of Tammany in New York, where they have so long prevailed, have been defeated by the Fusionists. New York is overwhelmingly Democrat in national politics, but it has come to the point where it won't "stand for" Tammany methods any longer, hence the conspiracy, the fusion of parties to destroy it. Not only in Tammany beaten in New York, but it has been downed in its campaign against ex-Governor Sulzer, who fell a victim to its crusade, in the courts, but has been vindicated, on appeal to the country by last resort, the people. He was elected for the sixth district of the State Assembly of New York yesterday.

THE TRUE EXPLANATION.

There's no gratitude in politics. Here we have the Conservative newspapers loading the blame of the loss of South Bruce by-election upon the shoulders of Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, who marshalled the Conservative cohorts—to defeat, in South Bruce. It is not only ungrateful but unreasonable to blame Mr. White for constitutional defects. He had a good training in political ethics, and has still a remnant of political honesty. His unsuccess according to the practical politician, is the result of sending a boy with a conscience to do a man's work. Hon. Bob Rogers should have been put on the job. He wouldn't have been hampered by Hon. Mr. White's scruples. He wouldn't have hesitated to tap the public chest if he had had it in charge as Mr. White has. He wouldn't have cherished Mr. White's delusion that the public money should be used for the purpose of building wharves and bridges in other places than bye-election constituencies. He wouldn't have ignored the potency of the whisky flask, with cork-screw attachment as an influence in moulding the minds of the electors. The party managers have, no doubt, seen their mistake. In future by-elections the Minister of Corruption will not be allowed to fritter his time away in concocting "homestead" deals. Hon. Mr. White will be kept at his moneybags, and Hon. Bob will be put upon the firing line. It is folly to allow the Grits to win by-elections, by not employing the man, whose statesmanship is self-confessed in the words—"I know how to win elections." The true explanation of the Conservative loss of South Bruce consists in not having put Hon. Robert Rogers in charge of the election.

SIGNIFICANCE OF BY-ELECTIONS.

By-elections are seed-time for the Opposition. It gives them an unrivalled opportunity to focus public attention on their policies. They need not worry about defeat for, as things are in Canada, it carries with it, in the case of by-elections, no loss of prestige. The Government, on the other hand, while it has nothing to gain from victory, has much to fear from defeat; and is apt to resort to methods for ensuring victory which offend public opinion. To illustrate from facts to hand—the Roblin Government will never recover from the injuries which it inflicted upon itself by the activities of its machine in the Macdonald and Gimli by-elections.—Manitoba Free Press.

LLOYD GEORGEISMS.

"Women and children by the million are suffering . . . and the nation is weakened."

"We are not the people who promised old age pensions. All the same we are the people who gave them." (Cheers.)

"With all respect to my profession, between ourselves we would like to get the land out of the hands of the lawyers."

"These are days when even the law recognizes that a man's soul is his own."

"Thirty-seven millions to the landowner and in tithe and 27 millions to the labourer; well, supposing they swapped." (Laughter and cheers).

"The resources of the State are quite adequate to build a house for everyone who wants it in the country."

AUSTRIAN VIEW OF CANADA.

The agitation for a general check on emigration from Austria to the New World is said to be directed against Caanda and not against the United States, for the alleged reason that Canada is regarded as "a barren land" in which they have no hope and can rarely make a living.

This Austrian notion of the Dominion is amusing. It shows how little Austrian statesmen have studied the resources of other lands. That any industrious Austrian can make a living and be prosperous in Canada is a proposition that no American would ever think of disputing.

It probably is unwise for any country to encourage emigration of able-bodied subjects, as Italy encourages it. But efforts to prevent emigration by law are foredoomed to failure. Men will escape if they are badly governed, if they are overtaxed, if conditions make a livelihood hard to earn. We think Austrians will continue to go to Canada, no matter what legislation may be determined upon by the advisers of the Emperor—Brooklyn (U.S.) Eagle.

YOUNG HEIRS TO GREAT FORTUNES ARE PROVING THEMSELVES WORKERS

BOTH ARE AMBITIOUS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Broadway is full of rich men's sons after dark each evening. That is why Broadway keeps the lamps lit. That is also why a sensational pulpiteer said the other day:

But if all the rich men's sons were like the heirs of two of America's greatest fortunes Broadway would have the bailiffs in in a month. The Astor money and the Harriman money is never heard on Broadway — and there is nothing noisier than a young man spending his first million. Pink lamp shades and a waiter in black and white over the left shoulder and a French chauffeur out in front do not interest William Vincent Astor or William Averill Harriman. They are not dustily serious all the time, of course. No youngster of 22 is. If he is, it's a signal to call on the old family physician. And they not only have gumption and industry, but a very practical interest in the great civic problems of the day.

Much Alike.

"They are as alike," said a warm friend of the pair, "as two hatchets in some respects. And in other ways they are absolutely dissimilar."

They're of the same age to a day. On 15th November next each will celebrate his twenty-second birthday. Astor is now in unhampered possession of the most solid fortune in America. Other men have more than the $70,000,000 with which he is credited—but real estate rarely decreases materially in value. The $100,000,000 fortune of Edward H. Harriman was left unreservedly to his widow. She can dispose of every centissimo as she sees fit. But it is well understood that the bulk is to go to Averill Harriman. Astor works several hours each day in the offices of the Astor estate. Harriman is a clerk in the Union Pacific offices. It is his ambition to some day head the great system his father built. Harriman graduated from Yale. Astor was obliged to leave Harvard at the time of his farther's death in the Titanic disaster.

Interested in Sports.

Both are interested in sports. Harriman was head coach of the Yale rowing crew at one time. He likes to drive and knows a good horse. Astor would make a good living as a mechanic. Now and then he gets into a canvas suit and takes down a few motors and puts them together again, and is perfectly happy for hours. It is his interest in mechanics that has led him into various experiments with flying boats and sea sleds and fast automobiles. Also he likes to ride very fast. Astor is an inch more than six feet tall, with dark hair and blue eyes, and is very slender. Harriman is tall and broad-shouldered and robust. Astor likes yachting and Harriman boats. They are good friends, but not close comrades.

"It's odd, too," said a friend, "for they think alike on most public matters."

There's an Honest Ballot Association in this city. When it was first formed the cash box was absolutely empty. An enthusiast explained the situation to Astor. Astor likes to sit on his shoulder blades while the other man is explaining the situation. Between times he puffs at a big black cigar. His eyes never leave those of his caller. He may end the interview very courteously, but very decidedly. If he is interested, he asks questions.

"He has a gift of asking questions," said one man who knew. "All his life he has been on the defensive against men who want a part of his money. And he can get the kernal of truth out of the nut of answer."

So that Astor gave a fat cheque. It happened that the next man the solicitor called on was Averill Harriman. He listened in his own way—which is quite unlike that of Astor's. Harriman sits straight, with chin up, and shoulders swung well back. He hardly asks a question until the other man has said all that he can say. Then Harriman goes to the weak point in the story with his probe. On this occasion he gave a cheque that matched that of Astor. The pair of twenty-two-year-old youngsters are the principal backers of the Honest Ballot Association.

One day Vincent Astor strolled into fusion headquarters.

"I want to know what is being done," he said simply. "I am interested."

So that he sat away down in various deep-seated chairs and smoked and thought, fully regarded various persons who told him what was being done and what was needed. By and by he said that he would give a cheque.

"But any one can write a cheque," he added. "I want to do some real work—if it is only to pull doorbells."

Works In Politics.

That made him treasurer of the committee. Cynics will say that rich men are always regarded as highly eligible treasurers of political committees. They are supposed to pay the shot when the fun is over. But Astor isn't that sort of a treasurer. He could pay the whole cost of the Fusion campaign and at the end not be able to find the scratch on his bank balance. But he has collected money. And his advice about the spending of money has been worth taking.

"Both go frequently to the theatres," said a mutual friend. "They run strongly to musical comedies of quality. Astor has figured in one press agent romance.

"'I have seen the young lady several times and liked her,' he said at last. 'But there is no truth in all this mushy talk. We've never been in love.'"

Neither man could properly be called a deep student of civic affairs. Each prefers a good novel to a thick book full of dry facts. But each keeps abreast of modern thought on public problems. It is likely that each has read at least a digest of every important publication along these lines in late years. Harrimarn has read very widely along the railroad groove. For very obvious reasons Astor has become something of a lawyer. His millions are not speculative or shifting, but a fairly close knowledge of many laws is required in their administration.

Harriman Works Hard.

Harriman has entered into only a portion of his inheritance. He is becoming a keen, careful business man, somewhat slow of decision, and showing a disposition toward independent judgment. It is reported, but not upon wholly responsible authority, that he regards government ownership of railroads as a possibility of the future, to be averted by the administration of the great systems as though they were only held in trust for the common good.

Astor's first order was to clean out of all the Astor-owned buildings tenants of doubtful character. His hope is to be of real public service. But he is no half-baked young rich man, whose soft pocketbook may be tapped by every needy grafter in the name of philanthropy. No man in America gets more begging letters or answers fewer. Now and then he gives money because he is sure that a good cause will be helped by it—though he is also sure that some of it will be diverted on the way.

His farm at Rhinebeck is an index to his character. He is trying to find out just what crops are genuinely profitable here, and why they are profitable, and how profitable they should be. One of these days he will give that information to the world. Accounts are kept with as great accuracy as though it were a bank.

"If a rich man can run a farm and make it pay," Astor said on one occasion, "a poor man should be able to do so."

Which is something of a cynicism itself.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

The fact that Doan's Kidney Pills are the original Kidney Pills has not prevented the placing of other preparations in pill form upon the market under the name Kidney Pills. It is necessary, therefore, that all wishing to secure the curative effects which have made Doan's Kidney Pills so popular everywhere, should see that the trade mark, the Maple Leaf, appears on the wrapper. Without this trade mark you are not getting the genuine Kidney Pills as originally placed before the people by Mr. James Doan, as shown by the following declaration.

DOMINION OF CANADA, PROVINCE OF ONTARIO, To Wit:

In the matter of Doan's Kidney Pills.

I, James Doan, of Kingsville, in the County of Essex, Druggist, do solemnly declare that Doan's Kidney Pills were first manufactured and sold by me on the 14th day of February, A.D., 1886.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and knowing it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act, 1893."

CHARGED WITH VAGRANCY

Two men answering to the names of Lyle and Jones, were charged with vagrancy. They pleaded "not guilty." The pair blew into town from Trenton yesterday, and P. C. Sills gave evidence to the effect that they were begging on the street.

"You are very deserving citizens," said the Magistrate. 'The City ought to put people on the street to give you money, to make it handy for you." The pair were given a couple of hours to get out of town.

Wm. Norman and Adam Brown were charged with trespassing on the C.P.R. They pleaded guilty and were given til noon to get out of the City.

Sage Tea Darkens Hair To Any Shade

Don't Stay Grey! It Darkens so Naturally That Nobody Can Tell

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

A TELEPHONE TEA PARTY

Our rural phone lines have made possible a new style of tea party that is much appreciated by the ladies of our district. Instead of dressing in our best clothes, hitching the horse, and gathering at some of the neighbors, we just draw a comfortable chair up to the phone and have a chat with all our neighbors. It is agreed beforehand that we will all meet at such and such a time and every receiver is down and there is no more trouble in keeping an interesting conversation going than would be the case were we all speaking together in a neighbor's room. Likewise, harmful gossip that might be passing at an ordinary gathering must be eliminated at a telephone tea party, for no one can tell where the gossip might go.

The beauty of our telephone tea parties is that the mud of spring, the rains of summer, or the snow of winter cannot interfere with our meeting. The phone has done away with the obstacles that the elements place in the road of country sociability.

Rural phones are seldom needed for business calls in the afternoon. The men are all busy on the farms. I must say that the men are very obliging, and unless business is pressing, they would not think of interfering with our afternoon calls.

NEUTRITIS FOLLOWS CRIPPLED NERVES

Painful Effects of Chronic Rheumatism Quickly Routed by Rheuma.

If your nerves are all crippled from attacks of Rheumatism, Neuritis can easily get a strong hold on the nerves. This most painful disease is one of the hardest known to expel, but RHEUMA can reach it if given a chance. This testimony is positive proof:

"Last March I was so crippled with Neuritis in left limb I could walk scarcely at all. Tried all remedies I heard of and had two physicians. Nothing did me any good until I used RHEUMA—$2.00 worth of your medicines surely cured me. —Mrs. C. E. Hayes, Russell, Ky.

Foolish Suggestion.

At a time when work was scarce and there was much distress in the South Lancashire coalfields, a parson met a collier who was taking his dog for a walk.

"Come, come, my man!" he said. "Do you think it is right to keep that dog when your wife and children are half starving? It would be a great deal better for them and for you if you sold the dog and bought a pig."

"An' a bonny foo' I should look goin' rattin' wi' a pig," answered the indignant collier.

THE BEST KIND OF LOVE

By RUTH CAMERON

"—for the faults of married people continually spur up each of them, hour by hour, to do better, and to meet and love upon a higher ground."—Stevenson.

"Why were you so late?" said the maid to the man, reproachfully, after the first ceremonials of greeting had been properly attended to. "I thought you would never come"

"I'll tell you just why, darling," said the man frankly; "I met Mr. Allin, that old neighbour of ours who was almost like a father to us after our own father died. I haven't met him for over a year and he wanted to know all about the whole family. He kept me nearly half an hour."

"Half an hour, and you only had two hours to stay with me! Couldn't you get rid of him somehow?"

"Not without hurting his feelings, dear."

"And wouldn't it have been better to do that than to shorten our evening so, dear? Don't you love me better than that?"

For a moment the man looked troubled. He was a man with a conscience and a kind heart, and he had high ideals of love. But the maid was one of those rare and fortunate women who can pout attractively, and the man was young, and so, of course, he kissed away the pout instead of trying to make her see that he would have been spoiling their evening together far more thoroughly by trampling on a kind old man's feelings in his haste to enjoy it.

Of course it would not have done him any good if he had tried to explain. If it seemed expedient she might have pretended to understand, but she wouldn't have understood. For she is one of those people who are not capable of understanding the kind of love that makes those who feel it want to be more perfect in all their obligations than they have ever been before.

Her idea of a great love is an absorbing passion that would sacrifice anything to itself. "I could not love thee dear, so well, loved I not honour more" would seem nonsense to her.

A married woman once said to me, "Jack used to go to see his mother every week when we were first married, but I soon broke him of that. I don't believe in having too much to do with your in-laws. It's likely to make trouble."

Think of that! Her husband tried to be a kind and faithful son (to one of the best mothers I ever know, by the way), and instead of loving him the more for it and doing everything to encourage him in it, she "soon broke him of it." And she thinks she loves him.

Real love makes folks want to continually "do better, and meet and love upon a higher ground." And whatever that emotion may be which is willing to sacrifice anything—honour, kindness, friendship, justice, family ties—to its selfish monopoly of the object, it certainly is not love.

PASSING THEM ON.

Past stall after stall went the rich merchant followed by a footman in smart livery. It was the annual village bazaar.

"Ah, Mr. Fitzbrendon," said the real sweet and charming lady at one of the stalls, "and what are you going to buy? Dear old auntie and I are running this table and we have home-made cakes, aprons, pen-wipers and—

"Yes," said F.; "and I'll buy just one of each. But do you sell kisses at your stall?"

"Oh, certainly!" came the ready reply. "One guinea each!"

"Right!" replied the autocrat. "Then I'll take a couple—and good measure, please!"

"Aunt," remarked the fair and dainty damsel, "forward, please! Two kisses for this gentleman!"

For a moment the man of means was nonplussed, but only for a moment. Then he turned to his servitor:

"James," he said coolly, "just take this purchase, please!"

How to Tell

Whether Tea and Coffee are Causing your Troubles

It seems easy to leave off drinking tea or coffee and note the results.

But you say, "I couldn't do without my morning cup," so the dreary days follow one another, the same old pains and aches slowly growing a little worse. Do you dare think of the road ahead, if that downward tendency keeps on, and why shouldn't it unless you change the dalty habit?

Suppose to-day you assert your right to crush habit and start a new and healthful life.

It's easy to quit tea and coffee and take on

POSTUM

It is made of clean, whole wheat, and contains no CAFFEINE—the drug in tea and coffee that causes so much trouble.

Is not only free from the poison in tea and coffee, but contains the natural phosphate of potash found in a part of the wheat berry which is included in making this famous food-drink.

It builds up broken-down body, brain and nerve cells, and no one needs this more than the chronic tea or coffee drinker.

Postum now comes in two forms. Regular Postum must be well boiled. Instant Postum is a soluble powder. A spoonful dissolves in a cup of hot water and with sugar and cream, makes a perfect cup Instantly.

Grocers everywhere sell both kinds.

MORE THAN EVER

Increased Capacity for Mental Labour Since Using Postum.

Many former tea and coffee drinkers who have mental work to perform, day after day, have found a better capacity and greater endurance by using Postum instead of tea or coffee. (Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

A Western woman writes:

"I had drank coffee for about twenty years, and finally had what the doctor called 'coffee heart.' I was nervous and extremely despondent; had little mental or physical strength left, had kidney trouble and constipation.

"The first noticeable benefit derived from the change from coffee to Postum was the natural action of the kidneys and bowels. In two weeks my heart action was greatly improved and my nerves steady.

"Then I became less despondent, and the desire to be active again showed proof of renewed physical and mental strength.

"I am steadily gaining in physical strength and brain power. I formerly did mental work and had to give it up on account of coffee, but since using Postum I am doing hard, mental labour with less fatigue than ever before.

INTERESTING REPORTS AT MEETING OF THE LOCAL SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS

Mr. R. J. Kidd, the President, presided at a representative meeting of the Sunday School workers of the City held at St. Andrew's Sunday School hall last evening.

Mr. McKenzie reported regarding the work of the Adult Bible Classes. He emphasized organization. All classes should aim to paint the picture of God upon the heart so that it could not be rubbed off.

The bringing of new scholars was a necessity. The roll-book should be first put into the hands of certain pupils so that they might visit absentees. This was valuable also because of its social nature. In going out after new scholars pick out definite persons and send definite pupils to visit them. These should continue to visit the prospective members until they met with success.

The Sabbath School should reach from the cradle to the grave. Some of the scholars should visit the old people who cannot go to the meetings. This brightens the life of the old and really develops the life of Christ in the visitors.

The teacher should visit the home of the scholar. Often he is the only spiritual life that enters the life of the home. Scholars are of different temperaments and to understand these visits to the home are quite necessary.

The social side of a class is apt to be emphasized too much, perhaps. The idea of club life is excellent in all classes. Debates, etc., draw out the ideas of the pupils. Mission study should balance this up and thus give a good, all-round development to the scholar.

Teachers should also guide pupils as to dangerous temptations and entanglements.

Teachers must bring out good spiritual food from each lesson. Make the lessons fit everyday life. To-day's life is an extension of the Acts of the Apostles. We ought thus to make the lessons practical.

Winning Souls.

Soul-winning is the most important work of the Bible Class teacher. It is the teacher's duty to speak personally to every scholar in his class and not take anything for granted. This is a difficult thing to do, and yet every teacher ought to overcome his diffidence in doing it.

Teachers ought to remember that they are taking mortal souls into their hands every time they enter the class.

It is not quipment, etc., that makes the successful class. The consecrated teacher is the chief factor of success. The teacher should study deeply at all times regarding the lesson and not limit himself to perhaps an hour's study. The teacher should think over the lesson at work or wherever he may be. Give the best that is in you to your class.

Let the class feel that each member is responsible for the welfare and growth of the class. Even God cannot accomplish without human aid, so every member ought to assist in bringing people to Christ. We do not know when we are helping others—how much others may be helping us or our friends.

Elementary Grades.

Miss Logan gave quite a comprehensive review of the speakers and subjects of the Elementary Grades. Among other things she mentioned that even the youngest child should give regularly to the funds of the Church, and that pastors should give simple addresses to the children or devote a part of each sermon to them. This added a great interest to the child in Church services.

Mrs. Helson reported on Teacher Training.

The Bible deserves careful study and competent teachers as the age demands such. A teacher training class ought to be organized and held during the regular session of the Sunday School if no other time is available.

Examinations of those who take the teacher-training course are held at the convenience of the student. The Secretary of the Sunday School Association of Ontario can provide all the information necessary for a teacher-training course, including books. There is no cost for the course but only for the books. Examinations on each book are held separately and can be taken at any time. This makes the course easier for all candidates.

Missionary.

The Mission Department was reported upon by Mrs. Parker.

The Sunday school is the place to give the missionary spirit. If it fails to do this it fails as a Sunday school. Teachers must, therefore, have the missionary vision of all the world redeemed for Christ. All the world should know about God, as the teachings of Christ were for all nations, not for us alone. Teachers must thus be awake regarding conditions in the world. The Bible is all one great missionary book. The teachers must know the missionary facts. Remember our obligation to God in this regard.

Missionary pictures and mottoes on walls, are good to interest the junior pupils. Pictures of children in foreign lands, curios, etc., all add a great interest to the children. Impress upon the children that Christ was a great missionary.

Have pupils take an interest in some special field. Let boys have parliaments and discuss and debate missionary subjects. Have also good missionary books in the library and let teachers arouse an interest in these books. The teacher can direct the pupils in this regard. It is a good thing to have missionary books in the home. These should be made attractive in appearance as in matter, so that children will take an interest in reading them.

It is wise to have missionary talks early in each session of a Sunday school. These need not be long, but will keep up the interest in missions.

Temperance.

Miss Curry reported on the Temperance Department. She advocated organization in regard to temperance in each school. Temperance instruction should be of the highest quality, and the quarterly temperance Sunday should be arranged for some time ahead. The Sunday school library should contain good temperance books. Study also what the Bible contains regarding temperance. Use plenty of illustration in teaching temperance lessons. Newspaper clippings are good to illustrate effects of intemperance. Statistics showing the amount of money spent on liquor in comparison with other things are valuable, as such illustrations should be made vivid. The standard in Sunday schools should be to have every member sign the pledge.

The World's Temperance Sunday should be made an important day. Let the preachers preach temperance sermons, have temperance literature distributed and let the pupils sign the pledge. Have pupils recite temperance gems. Use all legitimate means to promote the cause of temperance.

Mr. Anderson gave a general report. He dealt chiefly with the intermediate classe, the boy in his teens. Boys should be organized; they organize in their play life. Why not bind them together in Sunday schools. No not organize boys of all ages into clubs, but rather have the boys of about the same age. Organize for amusements. The organization must be the channel for the teacher to do his work. The teacher thus works from the inside instead of from the outside. The salvation of the boy must always of course be the aim.

The teacher should be the leader of the class. The boys' interests must be kept paramount. We must advance the kingdom of God and guide the boy into right channels. Boys have special instincts, such as the amusement instinct. Boys will pick up with chums, and let the teacher be thus one of the great chums. The fighting instinct and the sex instinct must be highly developed to promote courage and love, and such goodly qualities. Boys readily change their associates and thus he can readily be brought under the influence of better associates if it is desired.

Clubs can take up a vast variety of amusements, as baseball, etc. If plans fail, then the teacher is likely to be the one to balme. The teacher must study the boys and thus understand their characteristics, aims, etc.

The Sabbath school teacher has really the place of the parent, and thus each teacher must feel the responsibility of bringing the child to Christ, because if children are not brought to Christ early in life, the greatest chance of ever doing so is lost. There should be opportunities given the child to accept Christ.

Parents have also a responsibility in sending pupils to school. They should see that they are sent. The boy at first goes to day school because he is sent, so it ought to be in the Sunday school. After a while the boy will begin to think why he is going to the Sunday school and thus will arise opportunities to direct him aright. The teacher must have the interests of the scholars at heart, and must be thoroughly dedicated persons.

A very delightful discussion of the papers in general was then held.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The opening game in the Business Men's Gymnasium Class Basketball League was played last night between the Bowlers and Boosters, and a very fast and exciting game the Bowlers won. Score, Bowlers 20, Boosters 15. Referee, M. Turner. The next game in this league will be played Thursday, when the Browns meet the Boosters.

The Employed Boys' League is also furnishing some great basketball. D. Feinberg's Giants defeated J. Hones' Champions last night, 8 points to 2. Thursday night's game will be between the Leaders and Champions.

The Employed Boys' Leaders meet to-night at 7.00 p.m.

Friday night will see the opening of the Senior League. There are four games scheduled. The first game is called at 8.00 p.m. and captains are requested to have their teams ready to start on scheduled time.

Dr. J. E. Middleton will speak to the Senior Class to-night at 8.15 on the "Care of the Teeth."

Hurrah! For Me, I Can Eat

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Bring Joy to the Starving Dyspeptics Who Cannot Safely Eat

To seat one's self at a festive board or a heavily laden table and not be able to eat is positive sorrow to most dyspeptics and stomach sufferers, and likewise pain.

"I Walk to My Meals and Eat All I Want, Then a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet Makes Good For Me."

When your system is robbed of its natural digestive juices, in their correct proportion, a little candy-like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet gives to them the qualities they lack and you thereby rest the digestive apparatus and allay irritation, pain, gas and stomach trouble.

Pepsin such as used in a Stuart's tablet is one of nature's greatest aids; and when this is combiend with the other ingredients you simply bring happiness to every worn-out nerve of the stomach, liver, intestines, pancreas and other organs.

Predigested foods will not aid nature if she insists on manufacturing the wrong juices. Besides this the bowels need coarse and heavy foods in order to make bowel pack which is vitally essential to health.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets mix with the food in the stomach, have a tendency to stop gas formation, sour stomach, decay, etc.; then as the food passes into the lower digestive tract (the intestines) it takes the Stuart's digestive agents with it, and there is where the real work is done.

The nutritive value of food and tablet is separated from the waste matter and is assimilated and distributed into the proper parts of the body. The blood is enriched and the liver stored with the vitalities the system needs.

Go to your druggist now and buy a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, price 50c and then eat what you will; but take a tablet afterwards. Then will come to you the beginning of the end of all your stomach troubles and food fears.

515 JARS OF FRUIT AND $96.86 CASH

Were Received at Annual Shower of St. Joseph's Hospital

At a meeting of the Ladies' Aid of St. Joseph's Hospital, held yesterday, the secretary read the report of the proceeds of the annual shower held in the T.A.B. rooms on October 15th. Five hundred jars of fruit were received, and cash to the amount of $96.86. The Sisters and members of the Society desire to express their gratitude to all who so generously donated.

MT. PLEASANT PARAGRAPHS

Budget of Interesting Items From the Examiner's Correspondent

MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 5.—On Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. Joseph Lowe, wedding bells were ringing merrily, the occasion being the marriage of his daughter, Miss Jessie, to Mr. George H. Keen of Toronto. The Rev. J. H. Keith of Peterborough officiated. To the strains of "The Wedding March," played by Master Herman McLean, the bride entered the parlour attired in white silk and brocaded crepe de Chine, trimmed with shadow lace and pearls. Her bouquet was orchids and lily of the valley. Miss Mary Lowe was the pretty little flower girl and she carried a shepherd's crook. Miss Evelyn Bland looked charming as ring bearer, which she conveyed on a cushion of white satin. Both maids were dressed in pink voile with lace trimmings. The gift of the groom to the bride was a handsome gold wrist watch, to the bride's attendants, gold bracelets, and to the musician, a pearl stickpin. The invited guests, to the number of 30 or 40, partook of a sumptuous wedding breakfast, after which the young benedicts were accompanied to the 4.50 p.m. train at Cavanville. They will visit on their honeymoon trip, Toronto, Buffalo and New York. The bride was a very popular young woman and her esteem was evidenced by the large number of choice, pretty and costly presents she was the recipient of. The groom controls a business on College Street, Toronto, in which city Mr. and Mrs. Keen will reside.

Mr. C. R. Courtney made a business trip to Omemee on Saturday.

A number of our Villagers attended the anniversary and fowl supper at Omemee.

The Trustees of our Public School have improved the building so much and added such helpful equipment that the whole educational machine ranks as one of the first grade in the inspectorate.

Wednesday, at 6 p.m., was a time of Hymeneal celebration at the home of Mr. Jas. H. Best of South Emily. The Rev. D. H. Currie of Omemee was the officiating clergyman. Miss Maude Best was united in the holy bonds of marriage to Mr. Thomas Magee of Omemee, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful, useful and expensive presents. The bride and groom are well known and quite popular. They will live in Omemee.

Miss J. F. and Miss Stella Handley were business visitors to Peterborough on Friday.

Miss Annie Thexton, teacher, is home on a visit.

Our boys behaved well on Hallowe'en, playing but a few tricks and none of them of the destructive order.

Mrs. Wm. Greig was in Peterborough on Friday.

Messrs. Josiah Best and H. J. McLean were a delegation from Mount Pleasant Presbyterian Church to met the managers of the Omemee Presbyterian Church at Omemee on Thursday evening.

Mr. Jas. Hunter made his regular weekly trip to Millbrook on Friday.

Mrs. Wm. McAdoo was in Town last week.

The contract for a rural mail route from Mount Pleasant east to the East Boundary, has been let. Some mail boxes have been received and erected and the service will soon be in full swing.

Th Rev. Mr. Cree of Norwood occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian pulpit on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Linby and children of Toronto have returned home after a visit with Mr. C. R. and Miss Courtney.

Mr. Herman McLean, student of the Collegiate Institute, Peterborough, was home for over the weekend.

Mrs. W. Downer is visiting friends out of Town.

Mr. A. P. McLean autoed out from Peterborough on Sunday to visit his mother.

On Wednesday, Mr. Gibson of Toronto, made a business call in Town.

On the evening of October 22nd, the young people of this Village and vicinity assembled at the home of Mr. Joseph H. Lowe, in the form of a surprise party, the object of the event being to do honour to his daughter, Miss Jessie Lowe, who was presented with a miscellaneous shower. Miss Jessie was the recipient of many pretty, useful and valuable gifts, thus marking the esteem in which she is held. The remainder of the evening was spent in games, music and the serving of refreshments. The bride-elect had been a valued member of the Presbyterian Choir and a strong advocate in any movement that had for its object the public good. In saying farewell to her, the company tendered to her many expressions of happiness and long life.

Messrs. A. Brown and J. Rosenberg have returned home.

Sir F. W. Taylor Appointed

Former Local Man is New General Manager of the Bank of Montreal

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—Changes in the ranks of the officials of the Bank of Montreal were officially announced yesterday. H. V. Meredith, vice-president and general manager, Montreal, becomes president and chief executive officer. R. B. Angus, Montreal, the president, retires from that position at his own request, but remains a member of the board of directors. Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, manager at London, England, is appointed to the position of general manager, and will assume his new duties when his successor in London is appointed. A. B. Braithwaite, superintendent of Ontario branches, Toronto, has been given the office of assistant general manager.

Mr. Meredith, the new president, is a son of the late John Cook Meredith, London, Ont. He is a brother of Sir William Meredith, chief justice of Ontario, and Chief Justice Richard M. Meredith, of the Ontario court of common pleas.

Sir Frederick Williams Taylor was born in Moncton, N.B. He occupied positions in the Bank of Montreal at Picton, Peterborough and Deseronto. He was sent to London in 1905 as assistant manager of the bank's office here, becoming manager a year later.

Changes In The Cabinet

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—The Daily Mail which is supposed to have the backing of Hon. Robert Rogers, states this morning that Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice, will shortly be transferred permanently to the Privy Council or become High Commissioner at London and be succeeded by Hon. Arthur Meighen. The Mail also revives the rumours of other changes in the Dominion Cabinet including the appointment of Hon. Frank Cochrane to be Governor of Ontario.

Meeting Of The Court Of Revisio

The Court of Revision met yesterday afternoon with the following members present: Messrs. Langford Sr. (chairman), E. Morrow and W. H. Johnston. Mr. D. O'Connell was heard respecting the assessment of White and Ackford in respect to their machine shop at 204 George street. The latter claimed to be assessed too great a part of the property. The assessment was reduced from $2,000 to $1,300. Land $900, buildings $400. The difference will be added to the remaining part of the property.

Mr. N. T. Laplante claimed to be over-assessed on properties situated 266 and 95 Romaine street, 387 Reid street, and a lot on Lock street. The assesment in each case was confirmed.

The assessment on a piece of vacant property adjoining the Opera House, and owned by J. J. Turner and Sons, was reduced from $1,730 to $1,370. Two other appeals concerning properties owned by Mr. Turner were dismissed.

The Court will meet again on Friday afternoon at four o'clock.

SLEEP BENEATH A MAISH COMFORTER AND ENJOY WARMTH WITHOUT WEIGHT

"SOUND SLEEP IN THE COLD FRESH AIR SAVES MORE LIVES THAN SCIENCE" says an eminent London Surgeon. And without number is the host of people who are opening wide their bedroom windows and putting his suggestion into practice. But how often heavy bedclothes, wearying the sleeper by their weight, defeat the healthful purpose. To procure that rest which creates energy, bedcoverings that impart warmth without weight are an absolute essential.

Then here is the exceptional merit of the Maish Comfort. To get warmth without weight it's made by a special process in which the snow white cotton is curled and woven into one downy piece—the same fluffy thickness throughout. It is so bouyant that one is not aware of the slightest weight. These Comforts come in a variety of coverings, beautiful alike in texture and appearance; some being of silkoline, some of silk and others a combination of both. There are plain and bordered effects in many colours, the price beginning at $3.98 and continuing upwards by stages to the best, which is $12.90

And to this style of Corset is attributed many points of merit that the ordinary back laced Corset can never possess.

That the laces of a Corset should be loosened when removed and re-adjusted when next worn, is a practice highly endorsed by many women who have proved that by this means a better result is obtained, both in appearance and comfort.

Therefore the Frolasset is to be recommended, by reason of its hygienic, sensible and comfortable front lacing. The price is $4 25

BOARD OF EDUCATION DEAL WITH A NUMBER OF IMPORTANT MATTERS

Contractors to Receive an Extra $2,000 on Certificate of Architect and Chairman of Building Committee.

ATTENDANCE FOR OCTOBER

The Board of Education, in their regular meeting last night, received a communication from Mr. Morris, of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute staff, saying that through a technicality in his contract, to which he objected, he could not sign the same. Them atter was referred to the committee on appointment.

A letter was received from the A. P. Brown & Co., hardware merchants, requesting a share of the Board's business, which they believed was considerable in hardware commodities. This was referred to the property committee with power to act.

Principal H. R. H. Kenner, of the Collegiate Institute, wrote informing the Board that he had received word from the Minister of Education that the following P.C.I. pupils had received the highest marks at the following examinations:

Normal Entrance—Clarence McKee.

Junior Matriculation—Gladys Fife.

Faculty Entrance Pt. I.—J. Moloney.

Faculty Entrance Pt. II.—Beatrice Malane.

Honour Matriculation — Meredith Huycke.

These therefore were entitled to the following amounts: Clarence McKee $15, Gladys Fife $15, Joseph Maloney $20, Beatrice Malane $20, Meredith Huycke $20.

Mr. Kenner suggested that the money be paid at the commencement exercises on Friday, Nov. 21st.

On the motion of Messrs. Crane and Hill Mr. Kenner's report was received and the amounts ordered to be paid.

Mr. W. H. Munro wrote, asking the Board what system of charging they wished adopted for the new East City school which had already been connected up with the Peterborough Light and Power Co.'s distribution plant. Referred to the Building Committee.

Miss Mina Ross, a public school teacher, wrote asking for two months' leave of absence, on account of ill health. A doctor's certificate accompanied the request.

Miss Ross was granted the two months' leave of absence.

A communication was received from the Peterborough Typewriter Company, advising the Board that they could supply typewriter ribbons for the machines at the Collegiate Institutef or $6.00 a dozen. These would be guaranteed to be of as good as the $9.00 a dozen ribbons. Received.

Miss L. C. Kirkwood wrote the Board accepting her appointment to the Public School teaching staff, of this city. Received.

The question of paying the contractors for the East and West Ward schools $2,000 more than had yet been paid, was considered, and it was agreed to pay it, on the certificate of the architect and the chairman of the building committee.

The agreement called for the Board holding back 20 per cent. of the contract price, and paying 80 per cent., or $27,500, which had been paid. According to the law, however, only 15 per cent. can be held back.

The following report was received from the Committee on Appointments:

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Appointments beg to report and recommend that Miss R. Daisy Walker, of Sylvan, Ont.; Miss Ruby M. Sisson, of Bowmanville, Ont., and Miss Lucinda C. Kirkwood, of Terra Cotta, Ont., be appointed on the Public School staff at salaries according to schedule and duties to start January 5th, 1914.

All of the above are highly recommended and your Committee are of the opinion that they will give entire satisfaction.

Respectfully submitted.

W. H. HILL,
Chairman.

REV. DR. SYMONDS WILL REMAIN

In Montreal—Expects to Stay With Present Congregation For Many Years

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—Rev. Dr. Symonds, speaking last night at a banquet of the late Christ Church Cathedral Men's Association in regard to the invitation he had received to become president of Western University, London, Ont., said he did not see how he could draw himself away from the warm-hearted congregation of the cathedral, and he hoped to spend many years with them. He went on to say that many of the congregation had asked him to remain and although he had yet to consider the matter more thoroughly he hoped to remain with the people of Montreal.

A committee from the Western University Board of Governors recently visited Dr. Symonds in Montreal to secure his opinion as to becoming President of the Western University. Their report has not yet been received

TO ATTEND SALE

A number of the regular visitors to the market have signified their intentions of attending a sale on Tuesday next at the Pine Grove Cheese factory in Douro. The bills announcing the sale of Mr. T. E. Jury's goods include, "one brood sow, Tamrack," and as inquisitive farmers and drovers they want to see this new pig species. A few are inclined to think that the "tamrack" pig must be somewhat similar to the Tamworth, but the main question regards their points of difference. One man remarked that the "tamrack" barks instead of grunting as the Tamworth naturally does, but the matter will be settled on Tuesday when the deputation goes to the sale. The "tamrack" brood sow will be auctioned by Mr. R. H. Alford. Some printers achieve wonders and it is just possible that one of the Lakefield News staff discovered the tamrack species of swine. The bill was printed in Lakefield.

Praise For The G.T.P.

A prominent resident of Toronto, who recently returned from a trip through Western Canada, writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific as follows:

"I was very favourably impressed with the Grand Trunk Pacific service. I had heard much about it from others and I can assure you I was not disappointed in the least. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is certainly to be congratulated on the services it is giving to its patrons."

Should Amend Curfew Law

Attention of Women's Council is Called to the Matter

During the presence of the deputation of ladies from the Woman's Council at the Board of Education last night, Mr. V. Eastwood entered the list. He called the attention of the ladies to the deplorable conditions prevailing, whereby children of sixteen years of age could snap their fingers at the police and could not be put off the streets at late hours of the night. This was, he suggested, a splendid opportunity for the Women's Council to use their organization for the securing of some substitute for the curfew law, which he thought had been rendered useless by recent legislation.

Mrs. Rollins, on behalf of the representatives of the Women's Council, took up the gage without hesitation. She replied to Mr. Eastwood that she was one of a committee who had at present that very matter under consideration. The Women's Council had recognized the need of some legislation in this connection, and had appointed a committee, which had been discussing the matter from every viewpoint, and which would submit a report in due time. Mrs. Rollins left the impression, too, that the ladies were considering other matters of vital importance to the well being of the young people of the community.

Mr. Eastwood expressed his pleasure that the matter was being taken up by the Women's Council.

ST. JOHN'S AMBULANCE.

Change of Place of Meeting.

The illustrated lecture advertised to take place in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Monday evening, Nov. 10, by Capt. G. R. N. Collins, will be given at the Labour Hall instead of at the Y.M.C.A. as previously announced.

It will be a pleasant and instructive meeting. There will be an interesting story of the early Knights Hospitallers of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem and all the exciting events leading up to the foundation of the modern Order of St. John, followed by a display of First Aid Methods as taught by St. John's Ambulance Association and the work carried on in the St. John's Ambulance Brigade in all parts of the British Empire.

As it is proposed to form classes in this district the interest of our readers is earnestly requested. There is no charge for admission.

Those who intend being present at this most interesting and useful lecture will kindly note these facts.

Baseball Write-Ups.

She read the write-up of a game
And thought it was a rout.
Or else a rough-and-tumble fight,
For twenty were thrown out.

She thinks the law should take in hand
Such terrible disgraces,
When papers say in plain, cold print
That three men died on bases!

THE ISSUES IN THE PEEL BY-ELECTION

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—It is interesting to note in connection with the Peel bye-election the line of attack taken by the Liberals. That its results in Brampton, where the chief struggle occurred, were successful is proved by the decisive change of that town from the Conservative to the Liberal column.

In the first place the Rowell programme of Social Legislation was preached day and night. A few of the planks discussed were the following:

Rural Life: Improvements and increased privileges and attractions in country life to stop the course of rural depopulation and to foster the movement "Back to the land."

Education: The infusing of new vitality into our Educational System to develop the best in our children.

Tax Reform: A fairer adjustment of the burden of taxation not to penalize thrift and improvements:

Temperance Reform: The abolition of the bar and clubs and the curtailment of shops with complete elimination of the liquor traffic as the ultimate goal.

Workmen's Compensation: The securing of adequate compensation for losses arising from injuries sustianed in the course of work from any cause whatsoever.

Factory Laws: On adequate and just factory laws designed to meet modern conditions and to protect the interests of working men and working women.

Child Lavour: The abolition of child labour and the guarantee to every child of the opportunity for health and education.

Housing Reform: The substitution of respectable and sanitary dwellings for dilapidated, overcrowded and unhealthy houses.

Another very effective line of argument used by the Liberals was that the Whitney Government was suffering from inertia and that it was to the interests of Conservatives as well as of Liberals to show by their vote for the Liberal candidate that they were opposed to this lack of initiative on the part of the Government and demanded that they should move more energetically.

For example, a few questions were asked the electors as follows:

Do you want to see the Department of Agriculture in Ontario efficient? If so, vote for Milner (the Liberal candidate) and thus tell the Whitney Government what you want.

Do you want Tax Reform? Vote for Milner and thus show the Whitney Government what you want.

Do you want the Abolition of the Bar? Vote for Milner and thus show the Whitney Government what you want.

Do you want Workmen's Compensation? Vote for Milner and thus show the Whitney Government what you want.

Do you want a new Minister of Education? Vote for Milner and thus show the Whitney Government what you want.

Wants Aull Case Tried In Cobourg

Will Make Effort to Have Annulment Action Disposed of There

COBOURG, Nov. 4.—That an effort will be made by Robert Aull's counsel, T. F. Hall, to have the proceedings in the case for annulment of Doris Reid's marriage to his client held in Cobourg was the information volunteered to-day. "All or most of the witnesses live in Cobourg, and this being Robert Aull's home we believe that it would be but right to have the case proceeded with here," said Mr. Hall.

MERE OPINION.

The boy who is paid to be good never earns the money.

It frequently happens that a man who pays as he goes doesn't go very far.

Many a great man has considered himself a failure because he could not dance.

There is no evidence to indicate that God when He made the world limited Himself to an eight-hour day.

A woman always seems to be able to get a great deal of satisfaction out of boasting that her husband fell in love with her at first sight, even if he has grown cool on further acquaintance.

STOP, MOTHER! IT'S CRUEL TO FORCE OIL OR CALOMEL INTO SICK CHILD'S STOMACH

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels

"California Syrup of Figs" Can't Harm Tender Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "physic" that mother insisted on — castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing give "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. It should be the first remedy given as it always does good, never any harm.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

BIG CRACKS ON HAND AND FINGERS

Eczema for Three Years. Broke Out on Head in Scales. Itched and Burned Badly. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Lequa Brook, N. S. — "I suffered with eczema for three years. It started on my hands first in sores between my fingers and all over the palms of my hand and fingers were big cracks. Then it broke out on my head in scales. It itched and burned so badly I could not sleep. It was so itching and burning that I scratched and made sores and my hair came out awfully bad. I did not know what it was.

"I was treated for a long time and it did not do any good. I gave up my work for a month but as soon as I started doing my house-work again my hands got just as bad as ever. I used two bottles of ——— and it did not do any good. One day I read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and decided to try them. I sent for a sample and I used them till I saw it stopped the itching and burning, so I got three cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and that cured me." (Signed) Mrs. F. J. McKenzey, May 27, 1913.

Not only are Cuticura Soap and Ointment most valuable in the treatment of eczemas and other distressing eruptions of skin and scalp, but no other emollients do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skins, itching, scaly scalps, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and shapeless nails, nor do it so economically. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

RAIN IS NEEDED

Some of the farmers at the market this morning stated that the country requires a great deal of rain before winter sets in. Otherwise a shortage of water for cattle will be experienced. They say that the wells are not carrying sufficient water to meet the demands and a great deal more rain will be necessary.

BRONCHITIS CONQUERED

Royersford, Pa., Man Tells How.

At this season of year with such sudden changes, it is so easy to take cold, and almost before one is aware ther is inflammation in the bronchial tubes — a hard cough and unless checked in time chronic pulmonary troubles may result.

Townsend Young of Royersford, Pa., says: "A severe bronchial trouble contracted caused me much difficulty about breathing. My chest felt clogged up and there was considerable soreness. I tried different remedies without help; but I am glad to say that Vinol cured my bronchial trouble which had lasted for three months. My breathing is all right and the soreness entirely gone from my chest."

Vinol contains the curative, healing principles of fresh cods' livers (without oil) and tonic iron. We guarantee it to be delicious in taste and to satisfy you with its medicinal effects. A Snow-ball Diet For The Tiger Now

Tammany is Facing Four Leanest Years of Its History

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. — That Charles Francis Murphy must be shorn of his leadership immediately and that Tammany Hall faces the leanest four years of its history, is admitted by all its friends this morning after a calm deliberation of the result of yesterday's landslide by the election of John Purrey Mitchell by a crushed majority of one hundred and fifteen thousand. Tammany has been shorn of patronage and its Tiger must live on snow-balls this winter. It is hoped that President Wilson may help things somewhat by appointing Murphy Collector of the Port of New York. Mitchell, who is Gotham's youngest Mayor, aged 34, is this morning taking his honours modestly. He has been inundated with congratulations, including many from candidates and Britishers interested in the fight from a moral reform standpoint. Mitchell is expected to do startling things in the way of cleaning up Gotham.

Taylor Trial On Thursday

Special Wire to The Examiner.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 5.—Jas. Taylor, who confessed to murdering thirteen-year-old Charlie Dawson, here, on September 8th, will be arraigned for trial Thursday next, with J. J. Drew, K.C., of Guelph, as Crown prosecutor. As a plea of irresponsibility on account of insanity, likely to be given by the defence, the Crown will not rely on the confession but has located witnesses who will say they saw Taylor and his victim together on the night of the murder.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Examiner Special:

Following is the official report of the Toronto Live Stock Market:

Union Stock Yards, Nov. 4.—Receipts were light. 78 cars, 1,408 cattle, 725 hogs, 1,062 sheep and lambs, 83 calves.

Cattle—The quality of cattle generally was common and medium; there being few good to choice butchers on sale. Choice butchers steers, $7.25 to $7.50; good butchers steers, $6.25 to $7.00; medium butchers steers, $5.75 to $6.00; common butcher steers, $5.00 to $5.50; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.25; good cows, $4.75 to $5.50; canners, $3.00 to $4.25.

Feeders and Stockers—Trade was not nearly as brisk for feeders and stockers, and prices were not any higher, but lower if anything. Choice steers, $6.00 to $6.25; medium steers, $5.75 to $6.00; stockers, 500 to 800 lbs., $5.00 to $5.75.

Sheep and Lambs—The market for sheep and lambs was firm. Sheep, $4.25 to $5.35; culls and rams, $2.75 to $3.75; lambs, choice ewes and wethers, $7.40 to $7.50.

Hogs—Receipts were again light and prices very firm. Selected, fed and watered, $9.00 to $9.75, f.o.b. cars, and $9.25 weighed off cars.

TO HOLD "SHOWER"

The directors of the Peterborough Protestant Home intend holding a jam and linen shower at the Home on Wednesday afternoon, November 12, from 3 to 6 o'clock. The public is cordially invited, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance as the Home is greatly in need of house linen and also jams, fruits and pickles for the winter. Tea will be served.

ORGANIZATION OF MISSION CIRCLE

A re-organization meeting of the Mission Circle of George Street Methodist Church was held on Tuesday evening, when the following officers were elected:

Hon. President—Mrs. Rutherford.
President—Miss Annie Wood.
Vice-President— Miss Hazel Pentland, 16 Benson Avenue, Peterborough.
Reading Secretary — Miss Verda Hinds.
Corresponding Secretary —Miss Agnes Allison.
Treasurer—Miss Gladys Pentland.

THE LANGUAGE OF THE SCOT.

The annexed lines, culled from the columns of the "Greenock Telegraph," will be read with pleasure by all who are interested in things Caledonian. They are to be found in a book of poems by a Mr. Raleigh. On its first appearance, it was a favourite piece with all budding reciters at "swarees," etc.

Their jaws are chafts, their hands, when closed, are neives;
Their bread's not cut in slices, but i shaves;
Their armpits are their oxters, palms are luiffs;
Their men are chiels, their timid fools are cuifs;
Their lads are callants, and their women kimmers;
Guid lassies denty queens, and bad ones limmers;
They thole when they endure; scart when they scratch;
And when they give a sample, it's a swatch;
Scolding is flytin', and a long palaver Is nothing but a blether or a haver;
This room they call the but, and that the ben,
And what they do not know they dinna ken;
On keen, cold days they say the wind blaws snell;
And when they wipe their nose they dicht their byke;
And they have words that Johnson could not spell;
As Imphm, which means—anything you like;
While some, though purely English, and well known,
Have yet a Scottish meaning of their own.
To prig's to plead—beat down a thing in cost;
To coff's to purchase, and a cough's a host;
To crack is to converse; the lift's the sky;
And bairns are said to greet when children cry;
When lost, folk never ask the way they want—
They spier the gate; and when they yawn they gaunt;
Beetle with them is clock; a flame's a lowe;
Their straw is strae; chaff, cauff; and hollow, howe;
A pickle means a fe, muckle is big;
And a piece of crockeryware is called a pig.

The man ate on a while longer, then he growled again: "Still no ham."

"Oh," said the attendant, "you've bit over it now."

was dismissed, but as his mistake caused the action, he had to pay the costs of the proceedings, something over $3.

Manley Smith, a blacklister, pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $10.

In the witness box, Keenan said that one day in the works of the Quaker Oats Company, Jeffries came to him and gave him a message from his (Jeffries') wife, to Keenan's wife. He considered the message, which concerned the state of rooms which Keenan and his wife had left, was insulting, and told Jeffries so. Jeffries said Mrs. Keenan was a liar. Keenan replied that Mr. and Mrs. Jeffries were both liars. Jeffries, according to the witness, thereupon commenced to pummel him.

In defence Jeffries said Keenan struck the first blow.

The only eye witness of the affair, testified to the effect that Keenan struck the first blow, so the case was dismissed.

Two young fellows arrested on Hallowe'en were charged with acting in a disorderly manner. Through their counsel, Mr. John Corkery, they pleaded 'not guilty.'

John Haywood, who was a special constable on Hallowe'en, testified that on that night he was with Constable Dundas at the corner of McDonald and Reid Streets. They heard the crash of a fence across the road and ran across to catch the offenders. They arrested one of the boys, who was on the spot where the torn down fence was.

Constable Dundas said he was with Haywood Hallowe'en night. He heard a noise at the corner of Reid and McDonell Street, and turning he saw one of the defendants and three other fellows tearing down the fence. He ran across with Haywood and apprehended one of them.

In defence the boys swore they were together all night. There was no one else with them. They were returning from down town, along McDonell Stret playing the flute and mouth organ when they stumbled over a fence that was lying across the sidewalk. One of them dropped his flute and was still looking for it when arrested. The other ran for fear of being arrested and got away.

The Magistrate reserved judgment in the case for a week.

John Moher was charged with supplying liquor to John Findlay while the latter was on the blacklist. Mr. John Corkery appeared for Moher.

Findlay told how he gave Moher $1 to get him a flask of whiskey. Moher got it for him. He (Findlay) told Moher he was on the blacklist, previous to the day he bought the liquor for him.

Moher, in the witness box, admitted buying the fire water, but denied that Findlay told him he was on the blacklist. He had no idea that Findlay was on the blacklist, or he would not have bought the liquor.

The case was adjourned until tomorrow, when additional evidence will be offered.

The cases against the eight other boys arrested on Hallowe'en were allowed to drop.

Varicose Veins And Itching Piles

Usually Arise From Same Cause — Relief and Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Nearly everybody knows of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the most effective treatment for piles or hemorrhoids that medical science has been able to compound. So much suffering and misery arises from this ailment that one is not long in telling his friends when he has found an actual cure. This accounts for the enormous sales of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

This letter tells of relief from the suffering of varicose veins by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Many suffer from this trouble, not knowing the comfort to be obtained by the use of this great soothing ointment.

Mrs. R. J. Evans, 187 Munro Street, Toronto, writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years. I have been troubled with varicose veins, and find it the only thing that gives relief. For every purpose when a soothing, healing ointment is needed there is nothing so good as Dr. Chase's Ointment." 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

PETERBOROUGH BOYS ARE MAKING GOOD IN INTER-COLLEGIATE RUGBY

Pete Campbell, Harold Hill and Harold Matthews Are All in the Lime-light--Tigers Fancied for the Big Four Championship

Special correspondence to Examiner:

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Peterborough's contributions to various Inter-Collegiate teams are proving their worth this year without a doubt. Pete Campbell, now that he has none of the worries that attended his position as captain of the 'Varsity team last year, is playing a strong, useful game this year. The stunt he pulled off Saturday against the soldier boys simply electrified the crowd, and will go down in College football as a record touch. Pete grabbed the kick-off at the beginning of the second half ond contrary to his usual custom, punted it high and over the heads of the oncoming wings. Barwis darted after the ball, which bounced over his head, grazing his shouder on the upshoot, but before it reached his hands, the Peterborough boy, who had darted through the broken line, grabbed the pigskin and was away for the famous run that netted five more points for 'Varsity, being brought down by Macaulay just a foot over the line.

Dick Sheehy has been passed up during the last couple of games, owing principally to a sore hand received in practice a few weeks ago. He looks to me like a better all-round man than big McKenzie, although the latter is worthy of consideration on account of his ability to boot the ball.

Harold Hill has the makings of a great half-back. He has youth, weight and speed to burn, lacking however in experience and the use of the straight drill when running the ball. Dr. Leeming Carr, the president of last year's Dominion champions, was very favourably impressed with his work here against 'Varsity a couple of weks ago. Dr. Carr is the father of one of the 'Varsity halves and a good critic. Harold Matthew's tackling last Saturday was as good as I have seen this fall. He had the honour of bringing down the fast 'Varsity half who essayed a run down the side, and Matty had him right by the shoe strings after a couple of his brother wings had missed. I noticed particularly in this game that Backstock didn't come through the line following down punts as he did in the Queen's game, and the reason was Matthews mostly.

I pick 'Varsity to win Saturday, barring eleventh hour accidents that once in a great while crop up. Queens played better than they know how ast Saturday, and I hardly think they can do it again against a team like 'Varsity. After their last game, however, picking a winner is more ofa guess than I ever before thought it to be.

All round strength considered, the Tigers look like the best team in the big four, and it is doubtful if they ever had a stronger aggregation than this year's. Every man on their half line has everything a half could wish for, and their wing line—well, you know them, Craig, Isbister, Gatenby, etc., about the best in the game. The crowd may make it different—it generally does, I think, but the nHamilton wil have no end of supporters over here too. The betting is now, and will be, even money on the struggle. If you feel like making a small bet yourself, toss a quarter, for it is pure gamble, this game is. I was speaking to Matt Yonter just five minutes ago, and he said: "Well it's our last chance and we've simply got to win to keep in the running.' Further than that he wouldn't commit himself.

INTERESTING ITEMS RESPECTING OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL

A Transient Football Player--Tom Barber Scores Three Goals in a Birmingham Cup Tie--Northern Union Rugby is Flourishing at Present.

It is stated on excellent authority that if Holbem, the St. Mirren back, who "wants to be," signs for another club this season, a commission will be appointed to enquire into all the particulars. This, of course, is not written to injure Holbem's prospects in the slightest—he is entitled to do the best for himself. It is given out as a friendly warning to clubs who may fancy the Englishman.

Tom Barber asked the Villa directors to play him in the reserve team at inside right against Burslem Port Vale in a Birmingham Cup-tie at Burslem last Monday. This they did, and the ex-Boltonian scored three goals.

The news that Harry Logan, formerly of Sunderland and Woolwich Arsenal, has determined to restart football, has created quite a flutter in Scottish First League circles.

Hardman, who is playing a hard, bustling game for Derby this season, was on Oldham's list last season.

McMurchie, late of Dundee Celtic, Fairfield, and Harp, is doing well just now in the Land of the Maple Leaf. He is now a pro. with Queen City.

Billy Meredith is surely the cheapest player any club ever had. In 18 years he has not cost the club over $15 in doctors' fees.

Davison, Sheffield Wednesday, ranks among the smallest of the League's goalkeepers, but all the same he is among the best, and one day he should be an internationalist.

That defence is worth $35,000, remarked a well-known manager on reading Scotland's select. To wit, Brownlie, McNair and Dodds. That sum would buy them, thinks not a few.

Northern Union Rugby in England is flourishing greatly at present. At Hull the "gate" was $575 more than the previous best, and at Huddersfield it was $300 ahead of record.

Tottenham Hotspur evidently believe in being prepared for emergencies. They have just signed on their sixth custodian.

"Tiny" Joyce, the gigantic goalkeeper, is still in fine form, his displays being a feature of the Spurs Reserves' play this season.

Footballers used to be considered too old at 30, but the figure has changed. Bob Crompton has just celebrated his 34th natal day.

Bolton Wanderers have already played six half-backs in Glendinning, Greenhalgh, Whiteside, Gunblett, Thomas and Rowley.

Charlie Thomson, of Sunderland, is to receive a benefit of $5,000 this season—a striking tribute to the value placed on his services by the club.

It has often been remarked that Bolton Wanderers have a wizard on the wing. Now it is stated they have a wizard wing, for the present combination of Vizard and Smith is wizardly indeed.

The Hearts have yet to take full points from Raith Rovers at Stark's Park. It is just three seasons since the Fifers were promoted, and they hold the lion's share of points up to date.

Collegiate Team's Season Is Completed

Students Will Pack Away the Moleskins Until Next Fall

The Collegiate Institute Rugby Club have voted to drop the game for this season, and the club has been disbanded. The students played four games this season, losing two away from home, while they kept up school traditions by refusing to allow themselves to be beaten here. The team this year was probably the youngest and lightest that ever wore he Garnet and Grey, nearly all of last year's seniors having graduated, but the youngsters were fast and willing, and proved one of the best tackling teams that has represented the Central Park brigade. Most of the players will be available next year, and the 1914 team should be a good Rugby machine.

Canadian Leaguers Are Football Stars:

In a recent Rugby game between two big colleges in the United States, two Canadian League players were pitted against each other. One of these players was Oskee Neale, of the London Club, while the other was "Chief" Garlow, the Hamilton pitcher. The teams playing were the University of West Virginia and the Indian College, Carlisle. The Indians were victorious by the score of 29 to 0, but the star of the game was Oskee Neale, former London outfielder, but now belonging to Toledo. Neale played a remarkable game, according to the press despatches, and his team would have been beaten by a much larger score had it not been for his wonderful punting.

In commenting on the game, the New York Telegraph praised Neale, and also mentioned that he was a player of some note. Oskee is one of the best football players ever turned out in West Virginia, but his friends have advised him to igve it up for fear he will meet with an injury that will put an end to his promising baseball carer.

Bill Cristall After A Job

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Among the applications for the management of the London Baseball League for next season is one from Billy Cristal, the Toronto boy, who has had many years of experience in all the leagues in the game. Cristal was with Hamilton in 1912, and this year he managed the Appleton Wisconsin-Illinois League, where he developed four players who were grabbed up by higehr-up leagues. Pitcher Graham, who was drafted by the Chicago Nationals and claimed by the Toronto Leafs, was one of the players drafted. Graham is a Toronto boy, and his first professional experience under Cristal, speaking well for the managerial abilities of Cristal. He attended the gathering of the magnates in Toronto yesterday, and with six clubs in the league on the lookout for leaders, Cristal may be the man needed by any of those in search for a good man.

SUPERSTITIOUS CRICKETERS

Why cricketers should be superstitious is hard to say, but that the majority of them are very much so is a well known fact. Probably the most common belief in the cricketer's creed of superstition is that a bat which has made a good score can, if given a fair chance, repeat the performance. Hundreds of cricketers would give very large sums to possess themselves of a bat with which some famous batsman has knocked up a big score, and high prices have been offered for the bats of the leading cracks by amateurs who believed in the superstition.

Very frequently a batsman who discovers that he is unable to score with his own bat will borrow one with which some other man has made a big score. Another popular belief is that if a batsman places his pads on before the preceding batsman is out the bowler will almost invariably bowl him before he reaches double figures, and he will often ignore his captain's orders to be ready in that he refuses to put on his pads before he sees the retiring batsman well on his way to the pavilion.

TAX ON RACING BETS

German Government Proposes to Legalize Making of Books

The "bookmaker question" is one which has long agitated German sporting circles. For the last thirty years bookmaking, according to the strict letter of the law, has been "verboten," like so many things in the Fatherland. Yet the profession has contrived to run its business and prosper to a fair extent.

Now the whole position is about to be changed. The Government has been considering the matter, and a bill has been drafted which will have the effect of giving State recognition to the bookmaker.

In Germany, as in France, the parimutuel system is in vogue, and the Government taxes all the transactions of that machine to the extent of 16 2-3 per cent., and realizes about $7,000,000 annually therefrom.

Now it is proposed to reduce that tax to 12 per cent. Of that the State takes one-half, the other 6 per cent. going to the various Renuversine, or racing associations, for the purposes of horse-breeding. The Government hopes that it will lose no revenue by the decrease, as the bookmaker tax will preserve, and very possibly increase, the amount the State receives. As to the bookmaker, the bill provides for the recognition of a certain number in each large town, the figure to be fixed according to the population. He must pay a tax of 6 per cent. of his takings to the Government, and the Renuversine will receive a small percentage of the winnings from the person betting. Small wins will be free from tax, which will afterwards rise as high as 10 per cent.

Danger in Matches

On this continent, matches are everywhere. Every room contains matches and even every pocket of a man's clothing contains matches. They are scattered about on desks and in drawers and are so common and are handled so carelessly that it is not to be wondered that we have a great many fires resulting from their use.—Halifax, N. S., Chronicle.

PUGILISTS' PARENTAL AFFECTION

By the recent death of the mother of Fred Welsh, champion light-weight boxer, another instance was recalled of the strong parental affection shown by so many prominent fighters. Amic all his triumphs, Welsh's first thought was always of his mother, to whom for years he remitted half his earnings in the ring.

Packey McFarland, one of Welsh's greatest rivals, is another exemplary son in this respect. Two years ago he wished to return to England for another bout with the Cardiff champion, but his mother, who was in fil health, begged him not to go while she lived. And nothing could tempt Packey to break the promise he then made.

Jim Jeffries, after losing to Jack Johnson, begged that the news of his defeat might be kept from his mother. Johnson, himself, out of his championship winnings, bought his mother a house, and invested a sum of money to ensure her an income for life.

SPLENDID SPORT IN FLYING BOATS

All the Thrills of the Automobile, Aeroplane and the Motorboat But Not Nearly So Much Danger

Year by year, almost day by day, flying is becoming to the regarded more as a sport than what was once called "the art." Although flying is yet in its infancy, it is not too much to predict that the flying machine will become a strong competitor of the automobile and likewise, if not more so, the flying boat, to any other kind of sail pleasure craft. The landings from the aeroplane have not always been successful, but to alight with a flying boat after a flight is as easy as to guide a motor car to a standstill.

In the first recorded race of these craft, held on Long Island, the sight of three machines jockeying for position was inspiring, while the close finish of the return trip from the outer buoy would stir the blood of any sportsman.

Water flying is safe mainly because there is always a good place to alight. It is not necessary to guide the machine along a narrow course for starting or to pick one's ground in landing. The surface is smooth and level, and one may head in any direction with safety. Winds over the water are invariably much steadier than over land, and if, through carelessness or inexperience, the operator does make a bad landing, or plunges the boat at too steep an angle into the water, or strikes a wing too hard, the accident cannot be grave. The machine is not seriously damaged and the operator is none the worse, except for his "ducking."

The first development in water flying, the hydro-aeroplane, has these advantages, but the later flying boat with its large surplus of buoyancy has all the advantages of a motor boat and a flying machine combined. It is as seaworthy as any motor boat of its size, and flies as well as any aeroplane of equal proportions.

Now that we have a safe system of flying, the development of aviation is sure and unlimited. For racing nothing can compare with the flying boat. There is the same chance to struggle for position as in yacht racing, and every opportunity for the aiman to exhibit his skill in rounding the buoys and making his starts and landings. No prettier or more impressive sight can be seen than a fleet of flying boats rising from the water at the start of a race, or coming down the course "neck and neck" at the finish.

On the water, the flying boat is handled like an ordinary motor boat, although the controls resemble those of an automobile. The rudder is operated by a steering wheel, which also operates the device for elevating.

Budding Combiner.

Johnny's mother had instituted a fine of ten cents for every spot made on the tablecloth. One day Johnny was observed rubbing his finger for a long time over the cloth at his plate.

"John, what are you doing?" said his mother at last.

"Nothing. I was just trying to rub two spots into one."

QUICK SERVICE.

A striking testimonial to the efficacy of the Examiner Want Ad Department was recorded on Monday, when a valuable fur muff was returned to its owner simultaneously with the arrival of the paper at the house. In fact the little want ad. had consumated its mission before the register on the big press had ceased clicking of the last half of the day's issue.

ST. JOHN'S Y.P.A.

Another of these social gatherings will be held in St. John's schoolhouse at 8.15 p.m. on Friday evening next, Nov. 7, at which, amongst other items the permanent officers of the Young People's Association will be nominated and new members enrolled. No charge for admission. Young people and those who want to be, or keep young, come along and bring your friends!

HISTORY IN CITY SCHOOLS.

A teacher in the Central school set History examination recently, which contained one question about the American Indian. The following is part of the answer received from one of the pupils:

"The Indians taught us how to make canoes. They made theirs out of the bark of trees. They also taught us how to make snow shoes and moccasins out of deer skins. The Indians wore nothing else except these shoes."

OTTAWA, ONT., Nov. 5.—Hon Geo. E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, intends to leave for England about Christmas. In January he will attend some sittings of the Imperial Trade Commission and may accompany the Trade Commission to South Africa.

Wise Youngster.

A little boy of four years, noticing for the first time a lock of grey hair on his father's head, asked:

"Papa, why are some of your hairs grey?"

Thinking to drive home a moral lesson, the father answered:

"Papa has a new grey hair every time his little boy is naughty."

The child seemed lost in thought, but after a pause said gravely:

"Then grandpa must have had awfully naughty boys!"

Dr. Horning, Prof. of Modern Languages of Victoria College, will deliver a Lecture in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall on Friday Evening next, Nov. 7th, at 8 o'clock. FAILED TO RECOVER FROM PARALYSIS

Mr. Wm. Errington, Stricken While Lighting Fire, Died To-day

Following a paralytic stroke with which he was stricken while lighting the kitchen fire at his home on Thursday last and from which he never regained consciousness, Mr. Wm. Errington, 580 Bethune Street, passed away at Nicholls Hospital this afternoon at 1 o'clock. On Thursday morning he had risen as usual and was apparently in his ordinary health when he was seized with paralysis. He was removed to the hospital but the hopes for his recovery were in vain.

The deceased was 79 years of age and was born in Belturbet, County Cavan, Ireland. He was twice married and is survived by his wife, formerly Margaret Lunham, whom he married twenty-five years ago in Georgetown, Ont. Mr. Errington moved to Peterborough from the latter town twelve years ago, and has resided here continuously since then. He was a man of high principles and splendid character, and commanded the respect of all those who met him. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake Cemetery.

He was a member of St. John's Church and a Conservative in politics.

OBITUARY

MRS. PHILIP O'BRIEN.

The deceased lady was 85 years of age and spent the last five years of her life in St. Joseph's Hospital. She was born in Cavan County, Ireland, and came to Peterborough in 1832. She was a member of St. Peter's Church. The late Mrs. O'Brien was one of Peterborough's oldest residents.

The funeral will be held from the residence of her nephew, Mr. John McDonald, 385 Queen Stret.

MRS. EDWARD WARD.

Miss Agnes Ward of Hooper's confectionery store, received a telegram to-day, saying that her mother, Mrs. Edward Ward of Rochester, had died. Mrs. Ward formerly resided on Wescott Street, in this City.

G.T.R. WILL BE FINISHED BY NEXT YEAR

Special Wire to Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 5.—"The golden spike of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will be driven near Fort Fraser, B.C., early next summer. By April the grading of the line will be completed." This announcement was made last night by Collingwood Schreiber, the Dominion Government's Chief Engineer. There remains less than 300 miles to make the connection between rail ends, marking the belting together of the Transcontinental. Schreiber said he thought that either the Duke of Connaught or Premier Borden would drive the final spike. Old No. 1 engine of the Grand Trunk, still doing duty as a shunter in the East, will pull the first through train over the new Transcontinental line from Old Ontario to new Pacific Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Barnard, of Bailieboro, announce the engagement of their daughter Edith to Mr. Jas. E. Whittington, of Bensfort. The wedding is to take place on November 27th.

Mr. W. J. Houlihan, Assistant Superintendent of the Great Northern Railway, and Mrs. Houlihan of Butte, Mont., who are en route for home, after an extended trip to New York and other eastern points, spent Sunday in Town, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Moran, Bolivar Street.

Mr. Crawford Rush, who satisfactorily fills the important position of Accountant in the Bank of Montreal, at Summerland, British Columbia, has returned to his duties after spending a month's holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Rush, 249 Aylmer Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Norcliff and little daughter, Phyllis, of Aylmer Street, returned home yesterday afternoon after a very pleasant time spent in Toronto, the occasion being the marriage of Mrs. Norcliffe's brother, Mr. Edwin E. Page. The wedding took place on October 1st. Mr. Page is from Regina, but has lived in this City and has many friends here.

THANK OFFERING SERVICE AT MURRAY STREET

The Thank-Offering service of the Murray Street Mission Circle, held in the Sunday School room of the Murray Street Church last night, was most successful in point of attendance and offering.

Mrs. Hunter presided at the meeting.

The Rev. Mr. Webb gave an address on Danial Crawford, the African missionary, that was interesting and inspiring. He gave a vivid description of the work Crawford had accomplished, and the obstacles he had overcome. Before he concluded his address he had given the audience an insight into the character of this great man, who is to return to Central Africa with his wife, next February.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

The market will be governed to a certain extent by the election day developments of Tuesday, by the Mexican news, foreign financial reports and the local monetary situation. It will be well for daily operators therefore to continue the trading position, with preference for the standard railroad stocks as purchases on weakness after reactions. We would ignore the prophets of disasters who continually refer to the 20 year cycle of panic and would fully watch the actual developments. There is no questions that liquidation has been going on and that it will probably continue for a time, assisted by the political situation, but the stock market does not wait for the end of liquidation in commerce and labour before it starts to discount the new era of things, and we believe in speculative investment purchases now on a scale down by those who can afford it. C.P.R. earnings increased $367,000.

SCHOONER SAFE IN PORT

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 6. — The death of the cook and the probable loss of their captain, Vincent Nelson, and three of their mates, form part of a tale of the sea brought here last night by the fourteen survivors of the crew of the Gloucester fisherman, Annie M. Parker. The fact that their abandonment of the stranded schooner near Nantucket and the loss of life was unnecessary was not known to the crew until word reached them last night that the schooner was in port at New Bedford practically undamaged.

Nine survivors of the Parker's crew reached here aboard the lumber schooner Tifton from Jacksonville, which had picked them up from dories thirty miles off Nantucket Sunday morning after they had been afloat twenty-four hours without food or drink.

Reuben Kenney, the cook, found a watery grave when he was swept overboard from a dory while his mates looked on powerless to help. His home was at Glenwood, N.S. He leaves seven children. The missing men, besides Captain Nelson, are: Lester Fletcher of Argyle Sound, N.S.; Ross Worthen of Pubnico Head, N.S.; Thomas Landry of Arichat, N.S.

The Annie M. Parker, bound home from the fishing grounds and carried off her course by adverse winds, went aground on Rose and Crown's Shoal off the Nantucket coast early Saturday morning. The vessel was wrecked by the waves, and the crew agreed with Captain Nelson that hope for safety lay in getting clear of their craft. So they abandoned her.

The British steamer Astrakhan, bound from New York for France, sighted the Parker on Monday, drifting about with all sails set. Boarding the schooner, the officers of the steamer learned that she had evidently been abandoned in haste. Four of the eight dories usually carried on the fisherman were "nested," and lashed to the deck. The other dories were missing. The clothing and valises of the captain and crew were found in their bunks. A few burned pieces of bread were all the food that was found in the galley, indicating that before leaving the crew had hastily gathered together a supply of provisions.

The schooner was not leaking and appeared to be in perfect condition, except for the loss of one jib that was carried away, possibly after the vessel was abandoned.

POLITICAL REVENGE!

Young Lawyer Turned Firebug To Get Even With Opponents.

WILLIAMANTIC, Conn., Nov. 6.—Startling evidence was given in the Superior Court yesterday at the trial of Frank E. Howarth, a young Putnam lawyer, charged with arson by Mrs. Viola Bennett, a detective retained by the state, who swore that Howarth told her he burned a number of buildings in Putnam to get "revenge" for political defeats. Some of the houses burned were owned by political opponents of Howarth, Mrs. Bennett declared.

Howarth, who is only 24 years of age, is charged with causing 14 fires in Putnam during the past year or so.

Mrs. Bennett said she visited his office under the pretext of doing business with him and that during the course of 16 interviews he told her he had set fire to some of the buildings.

Cruiser With Powerful Radio Apparatus Is Rushed To Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—Secretary of State Bryan was willing to say yesterday that he had received several telegrams from Nelson O'Shaughnessy, U. S. Charge d'Affaires in Mexico, reporting on various phases of the Mexican situation, but he did not feel at liberty to make public the nature or the contents of Mr. O'Shaughnessy's communication.

Nothing that occurred here yesterday gives ground for the likelihood that European or other foreign Governments will be asked to adjust the Mexican troubles by mediation.

The most significant thing bearing on the present strained relations between the Wilson Administration and the Government of President Huerta that became known yesterday was the announcement by the Navy Department that the scout cruiser Chester had been ordered placed in full commission and will leave Philadelphia in a day or two for the east coast of Mexico.

The Chester is fitted with the most powerful radio-telegraph apparatus of any ship in the United States navy. It is believed that she would be able to communicate by wireless from Vera Cruz to the Pensacola navy yards, and perhaps be able to send messages to and receive them from the naval radio station at Arlington, Va., a few miles from Washington.

ANOTHER BANK SWINDLER.

Gets Check Marked In Toronto and Cashes It In Brampton.

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Although reports appear in the newspapers nearly every day of swindlers getting money from banks by means of fake checks, there seems to be no let-up in the game. The latest bank swindle was pulled off in Brampton Tuesday.

The man dressed as a lumberman and posing as the agent of a northern lumber contractor got a well-known Toronto horseman to introduce him to the manager of the Sterling Bank at the corner of Adelaide and Simcoe streets, Toronto. There he said that he had an account in the Union Bank at Owen Sound and got a check for $2,500 marked. He went to Brampton ostensibly to buy some horses. He called on Albert Kee, a Brampton horse dealer, and when he had completed his fake horse deal deposited the check for $2,500 in a Brampton bank and drew $1,250 in cash. Then he disappeared. The check marked in Toronto was sent to Owen Sound and was returned by the Union Bank branch there marked no funds.

The Toronto police have a good description of the man, but so far they have been unable to locate him.

TORONTO MEN SCARED.

They Seem Afraid the Hamilton Milk Strike Will Spread.

HAMILTON, Nov. 6. — The chief item of discussion in Hamilton at the present time is Mayor Allan's determined fight against the high cost of living, and to say that his worship is meeting with success would be terming it mildly. Tuesday the milk dealers announced that their sales had decreased about fifteen per cent. Yesterday it was said that the decrease had reached twenty-five per cent. Several representatives of Toronto milk companies were in the city yesterday and approached the mayor in connection with his campaign. It was said that they asked a lot of questions with the intention of discouraging him in his fight, but his worship evidently does not intend to bother his head about the affair from a Toronto standpoint.

It is figured that those in the Queen City are afraid of the present agitation spreading there, and are also standing behind the Hamilton dealers, whose aim, it is declared, is to boost the price of their commodity to ten cents per quart.

Cannot Redirect To Canada.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Aigrettes and other plumage denied importation under the new tariff act, cannot be received by a firm in this country to redirect and forward to Canada or other countries.

The Treasury Department so ruled yesterday in a decision for Postmaster-General Burleson. No objection would be raised, however, if the packages remain in the custody of the postal officials and be forwarded by them.

HOODWINKS POLICE

Sylvia Pankhurst Addresses Her Meeting After All

ANNOUNCES ARMY PLANS

LONDON, Nov. 6.—By a clever stratagem, which completely hoodwinked the large force of police sent to prevent her from speaking, Miss Sylvia Pankhurst was enable to announce at the Bow Baths, in the east end of London, last night, the formation of a volunteer corps, organized under command of Captain Sir Francis Vane, a Boer war veteran, for the protection of militant suffragettes and labor unionists.

Miss Celia Emerson, of Jackson, Mich., presided over the meeting. Just as the meeting was called to order the statement was made that the residence of George Lansbury, Socialist member of Parliament and a warm supporter of the militant suffragettes, was surrounded by police. The crowd rushed from the Baths and found a large number of foot and mounted police around Lansbury's house, with a taxicab in front of the entrance.

Mr. Lansbury arrived on the scene and was uproariously greeted as he entered his home. The report was spread that the preparations portended the arrest of Sylvia Pankhurst.

The lights in the house were extinguished and suddenly a woman rushed from the doorway and sprang into the taxi, which, surrounded by mounted police, proceeded to Bethnal Green. Then Miss Daisy Lansbury, daughter of the ex-Socialist member, stepped out of the taxi much to the discomfiture of the police.

Meanwhile Miss Pankhurst entered the Baths practically unobserved. The only disorder was caused by an attack by the women on a few reporters whom they suspected of being detectives. Mr. Lansbury and Francis Vane followed Miss Pankhurst to the platform. The Boer veteran explained that he proposed to establish a labor training corps. Waving aloft a huge knotted club, Sir Francis said he was prepared to use that weapon wherever he saw women injured, and in labor disputes, or wherever the oppressed needed aid.

The general staff of the organization will be drawn from officers who have seen war, and both men and women are eligible for the ranks.

Miss Pankhurst said the plan was based on the Ulster model, and she expected the same immunity from Government interference as Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, enjoyed.

When Miss Pankhurst left the meeting she was surrounded by a bodyguard of east-enders, and made her escape after a lively battle with the police, who were compelled to draw their clubs. The crowd retaliated with sticks, and the result was that several of the belligerents were injured.

WANT TERMS REDUCED.

Labor Leaders Urge Leniency For Nanaimo Strike Miners.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—J. C. Watters and Fred. Bancroft, president and secretary respectively of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, have laid before Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, a plea for reduction of the heavy sentences, ranging up to two years in prison, imposed on the miners at Nanaimo, B.C., who were convicted of being leaders in the strike riots there last month.

It is likely that every branch of organized labor in Canada will sign a petition supporting the plea.

The Minister has promised to get a copy of the evidence taken at the trial at Nanaimo so that he can acquaint himself with the facts of the case.

Wives To Blame Too.

LACROSSE, Wis., Nov. 6.—"Some of the homes I have seen almost justify the husbands running away from them," declared Mrs. Catherine L. Van Wyck of Milwaukee, president of the State Conference of Charities and Corrections in concluding yesterday her annual report before the convention.

"The wife who does not know her job," she said, "must take her share of the blame for the many cases of wife desertion."

To teach woman her work, she advocated compulsory domestic courses in the public schools.

Two Asphyxiated By Gas.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—Returning home Tuesday evening, slightly the worse for liquor, according to the story of his landlady, George Sicotte, 2105 West Notre Dame street, turned on the gas, but did not light it. Sicotte and his son, George, were found dead in bed yesterday morning, both having been asphyxiated.

Mayor Nathan Will Quit.

ROME, Nov. 6.—Mayor Nathan and the aldermen of Rome after a heated discussion yesterday decided to resign from office. This action was due to the defeat on Nov. 2 in the second ballot of the general elections of the two candidates in Rome supported by the municipal "bloc."

Express Car Robbed.

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 6.—A Dominion express car over the Canadian Pacific from Winnipeg to Edmonton, was robbed somewhere along the route and a number of parcels taken. The discovery of the robbery was not made until the car arrived here, and there is no clue.

Tramp Steamer Seized.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—Customs inspectors impressed a gang of stevedores and attacking party in a raid for opium on the British tramp steamer Kendal Castle yesterday. The steamer's Chinese crew had resisted the inspector's entrance, but surrendered when the stevedore joined in the attack. The officials seized a large quantity of the drug, charging that it was being smuggled into this port from Montreal. The steamer had just arrived from Louisburg, N.S. No arrests were made.

New Island Confirmed.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 6.—The Government steamer Acadia arrived in port yesterday morning and confirmed the reported discovery of new land in the Atlantic off Sable Island. The Acadia had on board the crew of the steamer Alette, which was beached at Port Nelson, Hudson Bay, some weeks ago, to prevent foundering. The Acadia had been ordered by wireless to proceed to Sable Island for the purpose of reporting officially upon the existence of the new island.

"CASCARETS" RELIEVE SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Get a 10-cent box now.

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children— their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Xmas isn't so very far away and it takes quite a little while to reach your friends in the Old Country or any distance away.

Would'nt it be as well to make an appointment and be sure of your friend receiving that Photo of yourself.

ORME

ON TRIAL FOR LIFE

Mrs. Beemer Arraigned With Baby in Her Arms

COURT ROOM IS CROWDED

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 6.—Sad of face, but without a trace of nervousness, and with her nine months' old infant in her arms, Mrs. Grace Beemer of Drumbo, who was placed on trial before Mr. Justice Kelly at the Criminal Assizes here yesterday on a charge of murdering her husband by administering strychnine in a dose of salts, sat in the prisoner's dock and listened silently to the stories told by the crown witnesses. When court resumed after the noon adjournment yesterday the grand jury, after a ten hours' deliberation returned a true bill against the accused woman. The courthouse was crowded all day, and hundreds of people were unable to get in. A number of people brought lunches and stayed in the court all day.

Upon being arraigned Mrs. Beemer pleaded not guilty. It took just fifteen minutes to obtain a jury.

Mr. Edward Meredith, K.C., of London, the crown prosecutor, expects, so he informed the jury in his opening address, to prove that the accused woman was the dominating spirit in the man's death, despite the fact that the defence would undoubtedly attempt to show that Beemer himself was responsible for his death.

Sylvester Beemer, a brother of the deceased man; Charles Cassidy, Jas. Smart and David Troup, who testified yesterday, were subjected to a vigorous cross-examination by Lieut.-Col. W. T. McMullen, K.C., the defending counsel. The bulk of the evidence was a corroboration of that given at the coroner's inquest and the police court investigation.

The defence, however, succeeded in bringing out a few additional features, which, it is said, will have an important bearing when its case is presented. The testimony of three of the witnesses differed slightly on certain points from that appearing in the certified copies of the evidence taken at the previous investigation. Another important point for the defence was the statement of David Troup under cross-examination to the effect that four days prior to the day Beemer was taken violently ill, the witness was present at the Beemer homestead when Beemer drove home from Galt. Upon entering the house he said Beemer complained of stomach trouble.

The crown, in presenting its case, examined the witnesses at some length relative to the actions and the conditions which asserted themselves when the witnesses, all neighboring farmers, were called in to render assistance. They declared that when Beemer was seized intermittently with violent spasms, he shrieked with pain, and insisted upon his limbs being held down, as it served as a measure of relief. On one occasion, said a witness, he saw him drink almost eight gallons of water. They had seen Mrs. Beemer giving Beemer what they supposed to be salts on various occasions, in fact they had been present when Dr. Woolner had prescribed salts and certain tablets to be administered periodically. They could not say whether Mrs. Beemer had put any other ingredient in the mixture. The salts had been supplied by two of the witnesses, who had used similar salts without injurious results. They had never heard of family squabbles in the Beemer household, and had frequently noticed Mrs. Beemer helping her husband in the fields.

Charles Cassidy was taken to task by the defending counsel for telling different stories relative to the occasion upon which he accommodated the Beemers with the loan of some Epsom salts. A the previous investigations Cassidy said that a little boy had been given the salts to take to his mother, but yesterday he stated that James Mason, the farm hand, who claims to have seen Mrs. Beemer put something in a dose of salts, was the messenger that carried the package to the Beemer house. He was satisfied the latter statement was correct.

It is expected that the crown's case will be closed to-night. The crown will call twenty-five, and the defence twenty witnesses.

Another Term For Miller?

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—R. C. Miller of Montreal, who went to jail rather than divulge to the public accounts committee of the House of Commons how he spent $41,000 in securing Government business.

When the Parliamentary session ended Miller was released. It is learned that the public accounts committee will take up again this coming session the inquiry into the dredging administration of the late Government. Miller is bound to be called again to testify in this connection, and unless he is willing to supply the important information which he so obstinately withheld last winter he seems booked for four or five months as a state prisoner.

Ludwig Is Now King.

MUNICH, Nov. 6. King Ludwig, formerly prince regent, yesterday formally proclaimed himself King of Bavaria, in accordance with the recent constitutional amendment adopted by the Diet.

Two members of the Bavarian Diet were on Tuesday sent as a delegation to fourteenried Prince to visit the mad King Otto. They found him, according to their report, in a pathetic condition, and when he saw them he hammered some inarticulate words.

DIARY IS PUBLISHED.

Record of Scott's Ill-Fated Dash Has New Details.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—"Capt. Scott's Last Expedition" is published to-day in two big, handsome volumes. It contains Capt. Scott's diary of his journey to the South Pole and its tragic conclusion, written methodically day by day from the departure of the Terra Nova in 1910 to the moment in March, 1912, when, with death actually in the tent pitched for the last time in the frozen waste of the great barrier, the dying commander wrote:

"The end cannot be far. It seems a pity, but I do not think I can write more. For God's sake, look after our people."

In addition to his diary, when dying, Capt. Scott wrote letters to friends and relatives. An extract from his last letter to his wife is:

"Make our boy interested in natural history if you can. It is better than games. Keep him in the open air. Above all, you must guard him against indolence. Make him a strenuous man. The great God has called me. Take comfort in that I die in peace with the world and myself, and not afraid."

Scott, next to the blizzards and the phenomenally low temperatures on the Barrier, ascribed the disaster mainly to the astonishing failure of the strongest man of the party, Petty Officer Evans, a physical giant. A study of the diaries shows the course and the causes of the failure.

Capt. Oates did not begin to fail until March 3, when he reluctantly admitted that his feet were frostbitten. On March 6 Scott expressed fear that Oates would not survive the increased cold.

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S

"I was a great sufferer from eczema and salt rheum for years," writes Mr. John W. Naas, Lunenburg, N.S. "Five years ago three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is soft as a child's now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

THE SPAN OF LIFE SHOWN BY FIGURES

For Those Under Thirty the Expectation of Longevity Has Increased—Married People Fortunate

How long do you expect to live? Perhaps you have never given the matter a thought. The majority of people simply want to live as long as they can—and let it go at that. Therefore maybe it would be better to ask: How long can you expect to live?

Suppose you are between 40 and 45 years of age. If that is the case you may expect to live 23.4 years more—if you happen to live in a city. The matter of where you live changes the figure slightly but not much.

It occurred to the health department of one city to prepare a table of the expectation of life among the inhabitants of its city, in the hope that the people would help fight disease and so prolong their calculated allotted span.

The preparation of a table of this sort is a very complicated proceeding that requires an expert. But the results obtained are highly valuable. The figures are practically the same for all sections of the country. These show that there has been an increase in the expectation of life, as it is called, from the age of 1 year to the age of 30 and a decrease from 30 years on. For instance, a child 5 years old might expect to live 52 years more. That is an increase of 11 years over the expectation of life calculated a third of a century ago. An adult between 25 and 30 years of age has 32.6 years more to live, according to this table, while a person 85 years old may reasonably expect to live only 2 years and 3 months longer.

The expectation of life for men and women is different, for people in different trades it is different. These differences bring to light some curious facts. For instance comparison of the sexes instead of ages shows that women in general have about 6 years longer to live than men. The figures also show that married men live longer than single men and that married women live longer than single women. The Jew lives longer than the Gentile by a round dozen years. The negro appears to have less chance of life than the white man.

But throughout it is found that the span of life for people up to the age of 30 has increased during the last 30 years while that for people beyond the age of 30 has decreased.

An Ancient Bank Note

St. Petersburg's Asiatic Museum claims to have a Chinese bank note issued at Pekin in 2600 B.C. It is similar to those now in use. It is of thick white paper, inscribed in blue ink. Round the border is engraved the counsel: "However much you may possess, strive to be thrifty." If its date is authentic it disposes at one blow of a number of seemingly well-substantiated facts. It throws back the use of written characters at least 1,000, and the invention of printing more than 3,000 years and proves that a highly developed state of civilization and an utterly unsuspected economic system must have existed under the Emperor Fu Hsi, who has hitherto been treated as a purely legendary monarch.

WOULD COUGH SO HARD Would Turn Black In The Face.

A cough cold is one of the most dangerous kind. It leaves the throat or lungs, and sometimes both, affected if not taken care of immediately.

Obstinate coughs and colds yield to the grateful soothing action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, containing as it does all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree.

Mrs. C. J. Selig, Dartmouth, N.S., writes:—"My little boy, six years old, had a dreadful, hard cough. At night time he would cough so hard he would turn black in the face, and at times he would cough nearly an hour before he would stop. I tried different cough syrups, but they did him no good. The little fellow was wasting away, as he could not eat or sleep, the cough troubled him so. I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and it did him so much good I got another. Now I am only too glad to be able to write this to tell how thankful I am, and to tell every mother to use nothing else."

Price, 25 and 50 cents.

Be sure you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. See the trade mark; the three pine trees.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

Sixteen ounces of cough syrup — as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

AN UNLUCKY LETTER

Despite the fact that sailors are strong and hearty, they, nevertheless, are very superstitious. The most common of all is the superatition that ships whose names end with the letter "A" are often unlucky to sail in.

If we go into the question, the letter "A" does seem to rest under a spell. The following are instances: The Victoria sank in the Mediterranean, the Stella was lost off the Channel Islands, the destroyer Cobra broke her back on her maiden voyage, the Araquipa went ashore on the West Coast of America, and the Sardinia, when in harbor at Malta, was burned. The remains of a ship's boat were found in a cave at Polbream's Cove, Lizard, together with a name-board painted "ss. Sola, London." There are several hundreds of vessels now sailing with absolute safety which carry the superatitious final letter. Still, the list of losses has been heavy.

Old sailors aver that ill-luck is bound to follow a ship that changes its name. It is also commonly known that every boat possesses a lucky mascot in the form of a dog, goat, cat, or fowl, etc.

Canadian Grape Fruit

A fine specimen of grape fruit and weighing 29 ounces was produced at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, and the horticultural department there proved that this article of diet can be successfully produced here in green houses. While an occasional specimen has been grown by private people, it was not generally known that it could be grown here. This fruit equalled the flavor of that grown in southern latitudes. The plant from which this fruit was grown was bought in the nurseries in New Jersey ten years ago but went nine years without bearing.

ROYAL NICKNAMES

In Great Britain and also in Germany nicknames for the respective monarchs are popular, and almost every member of the Royal Families, as well as prominent men, generally have them.

His Majesty King George V. is frequently referred to as "Doddie" in Scotland, where "Dod" is the vernacular for "George," though his subjects south of the Tweed prefer the plain "George."

It would be impossible to give all the nicknames bestowed on that most active monarch, the Emperor of Germany, inasmuch as the cartoonists give him a new one every day or so. "Frederick the Greatest," "Ajax," "Gondola Willie," and "The Captain" are probably the most used.

That the Emperor of All the Russias is beloved of many of his subjects, despite popular ideas as to the contrary, is easily proved by the familiar designation of "Nicky," which has clung to him since his boyhood. "The Father," as the late King of Denmark was usually termed, as well as the "Father Francis" by which name the Emperor of Austria is known, are evidence of the depth of affection and reverence shown to each by their subjects.

"The Little Signor," as the King of Italy is called by his people, brings to recollection the endearing term of the war-battered French for their "Little Corporal." While "The Friend" or "The Heart," as a popular designation of the King of Spain by many of his subjects, shows clearly how they look upon him.

"Her Royal Shyness" is the nickname given by the Queen of Norway to her sister, the Duchess of Fife. The Queen Dowager has always been known to her relatives and most intimate friends as "Mama."

Back Was Lame For Two Years

Stomach Troubles and Weakness of Kidneys Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is an enormous amount of suffering from kidney and liver derangements and stomach troubles that could easily be avoided by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If you could only realize the scores of everyday ills that arise from a sluggish condition of the kidneys, liver, and bowels you would not be long in giving this medicine a trial.

Mrs. Edward Stewart, New Richmond West, Que., writes: "I want to tell you how thankful I am for using your Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for stomach troubles and backaches caused by weak kidneys. I was unable to wash any clothes for over two years on account of my back being lame. I read the Almanac and began using these pills. Two boxes made a complete cure. I can do my own washing and other work now, and want to say to lady friends that they do not know how much I appreciate Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills".

A TITLED SHERIFF

Lt.-Col. the Hon. H. Aylmer, of Sherbrooke of Distinguished Family

Lieut.-Col. the Hon. Henry Aylmer, sheriff of the district of St. Francis, Que., into whose custody Harry Thaw came when that troublesome young man slipped across the border, was well known in Canadian politics nearly 40 years ago. He sat in the Dominion House of Commons as Liberal M.P. for Richmond and Wolfe, from 1874 to 1878, when he lost his seat. He was defeated in 1880 when he contested Richmond for the Quebec legislature, and in 1896 he was an unsuccessful candidate for Sherbrooke in the Dominion House. Earlier in his career he served 12 years in the Royal Marine Artillery. On returning to Canada he was called to the bar and practised his profession for many years at Melbourne, Que. In 1877 he commanded the Canadian Wimbledon rifle team. The year before he had organized the Richmond Field Battery of Artillery, and commanded it until 1887, when he retired from the service with the rank of lieut.-colonel. In 1900 he was appointed sheriff.

The first Lord Aylmer, a distinguished naval officer in the reign of James II., was elevated to the peerage of Ireland as a reward for his professional services. The 5th baron was a general in the army, and commanded a brigade under Wellington in the Peninsular War. In 1828 he was appointed Governor-General of Canada, and held the appointment nearly five years. He died in 1850, and was succeeded by his brother Frederick, 6th baron, who died unmarried in 1858. The title then went to Mr. Adolphus Aylmer, a third cousin of the 6th baron who resided at Melbourne, Que. Adolphus, who was born in 1814, accompanied his father, Capt. John Aylmer, R.N., to Canada during the governorship of the 5th Lord Aylmer, who was a second cousin of Captain John (the latter being son of Rear-Admiral John, and grandson of Rev. John, who was a son of the second baron). The young man remained in Canada, and when he was 23 years old, served in the Canadian militia during the rebellion of 1837. He retired as lieut.-colonel in August, 1894. He survived until 1901, when he was succeeded by his eldest son, Colonel the Hon. Matthew Aylmer.

The present Lord Aylmer was inspector-general of Canadian militia, and retired in 1907 with the rank of major-general.

PROVIDING MEALS FOR TOMMY ATKINS

The Problem of Providing Rations For the British Soldier is Not an Easy One

The problem of feeding Tommy Atkins when he is on the march or on active service is one of the most important with which military authorities have to deal.

The soldier is allowed a pound of bread and three-quarters of a pound of meat a day. This is the most serious part of his ration, but there are also such trifles as tea, coffee, jam, or vegetables, cheese, biscuits, butter, salt, pepper, and milk. These things—or as many of them as possible—have to be supplied to the men who are moving about the country, and they have to be used to the best advantage. There is not much margin for waste.

The bread for the troops taking part in the operations is made by the Army Service Corps at Aldershot, but the rest of the cooking is done by the ordinary regimental cooks, of whom there are two to each company. The cooks of a battalion act under the instructions of a sergeant-cook, who has usually gone through a course of training at the Army School of Cookery.

He directs the setting up of "field kitchens," as they are called, where the food is prepared with the aid of fires burning in trenches. And, by the way, he has to see that there is no waste of fuel. The amount of coal and wood is strictly limited.

Soldiers usually welcome the season for manœuvres because it gives them the chance of a little variety in the bill of fare. It is no uncommon thing for a body of the troops to be invited to march through orchards, while the ladies of the house stand with big baskets of fruit, giving freely to all as they pass.

The villagers, too, take a keen and friendly interest in the passing of the soldiers. Many of them have sons or brothers in the Army, and they are proud to do what they can to give the men a good time. In districts where fruit is plentiful, a tremendous amount is given away at cottage doors. In other places milk and lemonade are freely offered—and only those who have done a bit of route marching under a blazing sun can have any idea how welcome are such gifts.

When men are on active service, the allowance of food is rather more liberal, but there are, of course, greater difficulties in getting it to the men and preparing it.

British foreign trade statistics show that London leads in imports with $1,640,000,000, and Liverpool in exports with $796,000,000, two cities together handling 56% of foreign commerce in the United Kingdom.

Force of Habit.

Senator LeBaron B. Colt, of Rhode Island told a story a few evenings ago which would seem to indicate that it is well to carefully weigh your words and study your surroundings before you spring the talk.

Some time since, the senator related, a preacher was invited to speak in a New England penitentiary, and the following Sunday found him facing the sinful congregation.

In the beginning the prisoners were very attentive, but suddenly a smile floated over the features of all, and to the end their amusement was evident. Whereat the preacher greatly wondered.

"I am afraid that I did not seriously impress your prisoners," he said to the warden on leaving the jail. "They seemed to be very much amused."

"I don't wonder, Mr. Parson," smilingly responded the warden, "after what you said."

"After what I said!" cried the preacher in dismay. "Didn't I preach a proper sermon?"

"Oh, yes," rejoined the warden, still smiling, "but in starting it, undoubtedly from the force of habit, you remarked to the congregation: 'I am glad to see you gathered here in such large numbers.'"

Why Do Women Suffer

When They Could Be Well?

It is so easy to be well and strong and able to enjoy life, that it is surprising how many women drag themselves through the day suffering tortures from lame back due to kidney trouble. Mrs. Wilcox found the way to cure herself and gladly writes about it so that others may be induced to use the same remedy.

ROOM TO SPARE

The World's Inhabitants Still Have Plenty of Space

We are constantly hearing that the population of the world is increasing so rapidly that it is impossible for the food supply to keep up with it, says London Answers. But as regards crowding, the population of the world will have to increase a lot more before we begin seriously to suffer from lack of elbow-room.

Working on the fact—supplied by Scotland Yard—that in an average crowd there are four persons standing on each square yard, a scientist has recently calculated that the whole of the 1,623,000,000 or so inhabitants of the earth could be accommodated on the 130 square miles occupied by the County of London.

All the inhabitants of Canada could find room in the 400 acres of Hyde Park, while the 250 acres of Battersea Park could easily stow away the whole population of Australia—men, women and children. King George could give a garden party—though a distinctly crowded one—to the whole of New Zealand, babies in arms included, for the whole population of New Zealand could be got into the house and grounds—50 acres—of Buckingham Palace.

The whole French nation could stand in Richmond Park, while Epping Forest, with careful management, could be made almost to accommodate the population of Russia.

The famous English artist, Frank Brangwyn, has been commissioned to execute mural decorations for several courts in the fine arts section at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco.

Wreckers yesterday abandoned the Montreal Transportation Co. barge Cornwall, which sank with its cargo of 40,000 bushels of wheat in the St. Lawrence Canal while en route to Montreal.

BEACHED ON ROCK.

New Government Dredge a Twisted Wreck In James Bay.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—It is reported here that the loss of the new Government dredge, the Port Nelson, in James Bay, was due to the lack of precaution on the part of those in charge.

According to the latest advices, the dredge was hauled up on the beach at a high tide that the valuable piece of apparatus might be placed beyond the chance of damage by ice. The plan was to let the dredge down on the soft mud and take it off in the spring.

Unfortunately, those who had charge of the work failed to pick out a spot that was all soft. The dredge was hauled out at high tide. When the tide fell it was found that the dredge had been placed directly upon a big rock. The result was that the weight of the machinery and hull broke the back of the dredge.

The result was that the dredge, which cost a quarter of a million dollars, lies on the shore of Hudson Bay twisted out of shape and probably a total loss.

The Port Nelson was built at the Polson Iron Works, Toronto.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active, and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Ambassador Off For Holiday.

BOSTON, Nov. 6—After a few days spent here, the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice left last night for Washington. The ambassador has improved in health recently, but his physicians insist that he spare himself as much as possible until he has fully recovered from his debilitating illness. Lady Spring-Rice had preceded him to the capital.

The ambassador came here Saturday, following a cold snap that made the summer embassy at Dublin, N.H., uncomfortable. He was accompanied to Washington by Sir William Tyrrell, private secretary to the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Sir Edward Grey, who will be the guest of Sir Cecil for another month.

Show People Starving.

GHENT, Belgium, Nov. 6.—A body of 55 Filipinos, who were brought here as one of the attractions at the exposition, appear to be actually starving, and nine of them have died from exposure. They alleged yesterday that they had received no wages for eight months, owing to the failure of the amusement enterprise by which they were engaged.

The Filipinos have petitioned the American consul-general at Antwerp to be sent home, declaring that otherwise they must starve or be sent to jail as vagabonds.

Charge Is Dismissed.

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Robert G. Leahman and Capt. Wm. Crawford were found not guilty and honorably discharged by Judge Morgan in the Criminal Court at the City Hall yesterday morning on the charge of distributing forged tickets for the Laurier meeting held in the Arena on May 5, which was organized by F. G. Inwood, Liberal organizer for the province.

Escaped Prisoner Caught.

SARNIA, Nov. 6.—Word was received here Tuesday by the police that Arthur Reynolds of Sarnia, in company with F. Fleming and James Newman, fellow prisoners, had escaped from the Guelph Prison Farm.

At a late hour Tuesday night, P. C. Maitland arrested an anxious-looking man at the ferry dock and the latter admitted that he was Fleming.

Child Scalded To Death.

STRATFORD, Nov. 6.—Two-year-old Tommy Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, was scalded to death yesterday morning in boiling water. The accident occurred about 8.30 o'clock when the little lad's mother was lifting a boiler of water which tipped and the contents poured over the child.

Seekers After His Job.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Tuesday the Ottawa papers announced the death of Horace St. Louis, French translator of the Commons. The announcement was accompanied by a very flattering obituary. Yesterday there was a rush of politicians for the position. The applicants were much surprised to find that Mr. St. Louis is still very much alive, and while he is ill, he hopes to be on the job again next session.

TRAFFIC IN DRUGS

Too Much Cocaine Sold In Ontario—Government Inspection

The Canadian Pharmaceutical Association is on record as against the traffic in cocaine. The Registrar-General, said that over two thousand ounces of cocaine were sold in Ontario alone during one year, and that was far more than is necessary for surgical use and prescriptions. He declared that too much of the habit begetting drug is being imported into this country by degraded agents, who distribute it like any other commercial commodity. "They barter them on the highway and in secret places for the sake of gain, which is a disgrace to humanity," said the speaker, who told his fellow-pharmacists that the only source of detection and imprisonment of such unscrupulous persons was by the appointment of a Dominion Inspector. The cocaine laws of the Province and the Dominion were not put on the statute books any too soon. Speaking from actual experience, as inspector for the Ontario College of Pharmacy, of sales of cocaine by wholesale houses, he was of the opinion that there was far more cocaine being sold than was necessary for legitimate prescription purposes, and had the same opinion in regard to the sale of morphine and opium. Something should be done to further curtail the illegitimate sale of these three bad habit-forming drugs, and money should be expended by the Government toward furthering this end. He had not found it necessary to bring all cases and druggists into the public courts, but privately faced them with the charge that they were personally violating the law. In some cases, he was sorry to say, such accusations had been denied, but when they discovered that he had had access to wholesalers' records of sales, they acknowledged their faults, professed sorrow and begged of him to overlook their action, and humbly promised never to do it again. Judging from what he knew he would advise all pharmaceutical associations to recommend the Government to appoint a Dominion Inspector.

WINNING THE V.C.

During the siege of Delhi in 1857 Lord Roberts performed the act of gallantry for which he was awarded the Victoria Cross a few months afterwards. At the close of a pursuit which had continued for nearly five miles a body of mutineers had been overtaken who faced about and fired into the squadron at close quarters. Roberts saw Younghusband fall, but could not go to his assistance, as at that moment one of his sowars was in dire peril from a sepoy who was attacking him with his fixed bayonet, and had he not helped the man and disposed of his opponent he must have been killed. Roberts then descried a sepoy making off with a standard and rode after the rebels and overtook them, and while wrenching the staff out of the hands of one of them, whom he cut down, was nearly killed by another man who put his musket close to his body, but the weapon fortunately missed fire, and he carried off the standard.

SOAP ON YOUR HAIR CAUSES DANDRUFF; SCALP GETS DRY, THEN HAIR FALLS OUT

Girls! Get a 25 cent bottle and try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse"

After washing your hair with soap always apply a little Danderine to the scalp to invigorate the hair and prevent dryness. Better still, use soap as sparingly as possible, and instead have a "Danderine Hair Cleanse." Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will remove dust, dirt and excessive oil. In a few moments you will be amazed, your hair will not only be clean, but it will be wavy, fluffy and abundant, and possess an incomparable softness and lustre.

Besides cleansing and beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; stimulates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause th hair to grow long, strong and bautiful.

Men! Ladies! You can surely have lots of charming hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it!

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—At the C.P.R. live stock market offerings were 2600 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 1700 hogs and 500 calves.

The bulk of the offerings consisted of common and inferior cattle, suitable for the trade which is being carried on for shipment to the United States. Demand for this class of stock was good, and an active trade was done, with common bulls at $3.90 to $4.40, and canning cows at $3.15 to $3.40 per 100 pounds. The supply of good butchers' cattle was none too plentiful, and in consequence the undertone to the market was very firm, but prices showed no further change. Good steers sold at from $7 to $7.25, but the bulk of the trading was done in cattle ranging from $6 to $7 and from $5 to $5.75 per 100 pounds. pounds. Choice butchers' cows brought from $6 to $6.25; good, $5.50 to $5.75, and the lower grades sold at from $4.25 to $5.25, while good butchers' bulls sold at $4.50 to $5 per 100 pounds.

The demand for small meats was active and the tone of the market was firm with sales of western lambs at $7 to $7.25, and eastern at $6.50 to $6.75, while ewe sheep sold at $4.50 to $5 per 100 pounds. A good trade continues to be done in grass-fed calves for shipment to the United States at 3 3-4 to 4 1-4c, and the demand from local buyers for milk-fed stock is good at 6 1-2 to 7 1-2c per pound.

Hogs were steady under a good demand and sales of selected were made at $9.75, and straight lots at $9.50 per 100 pounds weighed off cars.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

"Farm and Dairy" Live Stock, Produce and Grain Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Nov. 3.—While financial experts are circulating optimistic reports as to trade conditions in Canada, it is becoming increasingly evident that there will be much hardship in this new country during the winter months. Already laborers are more plentiful than is work. This is particularly true of the cities of Western Canada, but it is also true to a certain extent of Eastern cities. We are not going to survive the recent insane land boom so easily as we expected.

There is little of note happening on produce markets nowadays. In most lines trade is dull. Cattle, however, are an exception and receipts continue to be large. There is just a danger that receipts are too large and that the country is being drained of its future beef supplies. In many sections, moreover, crops were short and cattle had to be sold.

WHEAT

The wheat market has strengthened appreciably during the past week. All crop statistics that come to hand serve to strengthen the previously considered view that wheat will show a great surplus over world requirements. The trades seem to be rallying to the situation, and are now effectively taking hold of the wheat surplus. Ontario wheat is steady in price. Millers report a slow export demand for their flour. Quotations are as follows: No. 1 Northern, 85c; No. 2, 87c; feed wheat, 65c to 70c; Ontario No. 2, 85c to 86c outside; 86c to 87c here; corn, 70c; peas, 90c to 91; barley, 57c to 58c; rye, 68c to 69c. Quotations at Montreal are: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 41c; No. 3, 40c; corn, 82c to 83c; barley, malting, 66c to 70c; feed, 48c; buckwheat, 55c to 56c.

HAY AND STRAW

Hay quotations are now fixed according to United States levels averaging about $1 a ton less than quotations across the border. United States dealers are still active buyers of Canadian hay. Quotations here are: No. 1 baled hay, $14.50 to $15; No. 2, $11 to $14; No. 3, $8 to $9; baled straw, $6. Montreal quotations are firm at last week's level: No. 1, $15 to $15.50; No. 2, $12 to $14.50; No. 3, $10 to $10.50.

EGGS AND POULTRY

Storage stock is supplying the egg trade now and the trade has settled down to winter conditions. What new laid eggs there are coming to the market are quoted to the retail trade at 35c to 36c, and fresh eggs, 30c to 32c. Storage eggs are quoted 24c to 25c. Montreal dealers quote fresh eggs at 40c; selected, 32c; No. 1 stock, 29c and No. 2, 26c to 27c.

Receipts of dressed poultry are large and generally the quality is anything but satisfactory. Wholesale quotations are: Dressed fowl, 12c to 15c; live, 9c to 11c; spring chickens, 17c to 20c; live, 14c to 17c; geese, 12c to 15c and 18c to 19c; ducks, 15c to 18c and 16c to 18c; turkeys, No. 1, 22c to 25c and 20c to 22c; No. 2, 18c to 20c and 13c to 15c.

POTATOES AND BEANS

Potatoes on this market have advanced 10c to 15c in the last week, the advance being due wholly to the strong demand coming from all United States points. The strength at Toronto has been reflected at Montreal, where potato quotations have advanced, though not to the same extent. Canadian potatoes sell here at $1 a bag, while at Montreal they command 70c to 75c.

Local bean quotations are: Primes, $1.75 to $2; hand picked, $2.10 to $2.20.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The most satisfactory aspect of the dairy produce market is the continued stronger demand for cheese. Prices at country boards during the past week have been higher than in previous weeks, and the demand from the other side is still reported good. Figures are not yet available as to the total make for this season, but it will be considerably behind that of last year. Dealers quote dairy prints at 23c to 24c; creamery prints, 27c to 28c; solids, 26c to 26½c; inferior, 22c to 24c. Cheese is rather dull, new, large, 14½c to 14¾; twins, 14¾c to 15c; old, large, 15c to 15½c; twins, 15½c to 16c.

LIVE STOCK

Have United States farmers gone "stock mad?" Great scarcity and high prices for beef have been predicted from many sources. United States farmers expectedly have faith in these reports, and it would seem that they are willing to pay almost any price for good feeder cattle. There has been a slight reaction in the past week, and stockers are not now in as great demand as previously, but the price is still well up to the levels of last week.

Very few of the cattle now reaching the market are of the high quality that butchers demand. Fitted animals are at a premium. Average quotations are about as follows: Export cattle, choice, $7.50 to $7.75; medium, $7.15 to $7.40; butchers, choice, $7.35 to $7.75; com. to good, $6.60 to $7.25; bulls, $6.25 to $7.25; choice cows, $6.10 to $6; com. to good, $5.75 to $6.75; butcher bulls, $4 to $7; feeders, $6.25 to $6.60; feeding bulls, $5.50 to $6.25; stockers, $4 to $6; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4.50.

Choice milch cows bring $60 to $90; com. to med., $40 to $60; springers, $40 to $65. Veal calves go at $8.50 to $10; inferior, $4.50 to $6.

Wether lambs are in good demand at $7.50 to $7.75; buck lambs, $6.75 to $7; ewes, $4.50 to $6.50; bucks and culls, $3.50 to $4.50.

Hogs have not yet reached the $9 mark, but they have got very near it; f.o.b. they are quoted $8.65 to $8.95.

At Montreal cattle prices are firmly maintained, and small advances have been made in some sections during the week. The chief complaint is the scarcity of good to choice steers. Fairly carloads crossed to the United States this week. Quotations: Best butchers' cattle, $7.25; lower grades, $6.60; best cows, $5 down to $5.50; cogs, bulls, $4.75 to $5.25. Small meat quotations range as follows: Western lambs, $6.75 to $7; Eastern, $6.75 to $6.25; sheep, $5.75 to $6.25; grass fed calves, 3½c to 4½c; milk fed, 6c to 7c.

MONTREAL HOG MARKET

Montreal, Nov. 1.—The tone of the market for live hogs was firm this week under a good demand from packers, and prices were unchanged, with sales of selected lots at $9.50 to $10 a cwt., weighed off cars. The trade in abattoir fresh-killed dressed hogs was fairly active and sales in a jobbing way were made at $14.25 to $14.75.

EXPORT CHEESE TRADE

Montreal, Nov. 1.—There was a stronger tone to the cheese market this week and prices have closed another ½c higher than the ruling for last week, this week's quotations ranging from 12½c to 13c, the latter price having been paid on Cornwall on Friday for colored cheese. Colored cheese are in better demand than white, and are commanding a premium of ½c a pound. The better tone of the market is entirely due to the increased demand from Great Britain, which this week has been more brisk than it has been for several weeks past. Bristol and London being the principal buyers.

Receipts of cheese keep up fairly well in spite of the reports coming from all over the country of milk and cream being diverted to the United States, and the total for this week is 29,000, as compared with 45,000 boxes for the corresponding week last year. There should be a rapid falling off, however, from now until the end of the month, as factories in all parts are closing up, and this season will soon come to an end.

Market for butter is stronger this week owing to the increased demand from the West and from local dealers, and finest fresh receipts are quoted to-day at 27½c to 28c, with undefinest at 26c to 27½c.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Woodstock, Oct. 28.—1,265 boxes cheese offered; 280 boxes of finis sold at 13 3-16c; 13c was the highest offer for the balance, but this price was refused; 400 boxes of finis sold on the curb at 13⅛c.

Cornwall, Oct. 31.—670 boxes colored. The bidding started at 13⅞c and after several rounds was raised by Mr. Welsh to 13c, at which price the board was cleared. Corresponding rate last year 1,219 at 13½c and 12 9-16c.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN IT THUNDERS

Simple Explanation of Cannonading in the Sky—Little Electric Particles Make Lightning

What is thunder?

Blow air into a perfectly tight paper bag until it is full. Hold the bag so that none of the air can escape and strike it sharply and suddenly. There will be an explosion like the crack of a pistol. That is what thunder is!

The scientific explanation for it is the expansion, compression and sudden escape of air. It is the same thing that happens in a cartridge shell when you press the trigger of a gun or pistol. In fact that is really a better explanation of thunder than the paper bag experiment because it has all the elements that cause thunder. The spark caused by the cap causes the ignition of the powder, forming a gas which pushes the bullet out of the barrel of the gun and when the gas comes in contact with the air, it makes a roaring, crackling sound trying to get through, because the pressure of the gas is greater than the air. The thunder therefore, is the result of the lightning.

Now, what is lightning?

We don't know. We know that it is electricity—which is another way of saying we don't know because we don't know what electricity is. But we do have a general idea of what lightning does to make the thunder. There is electricity in the air all the time. Sometimes we feel it more than we do at others—or at least we are more conscious of it being there at one time than at another. This is due to the condition of the atmosphere. If a good breeze is blowing and the mixture of water and gas and dust that we call air is kept stirring we don't feel the electricity much.

But if there is not much of a breeze the air feels heavy and oppressive and seems to be filled with moisture. It is filled with tiny particles of water we call droplets which, when in large groups are rain clouds and when these clouds run into a cool strata of air they condense and form rain drops.

These droplets are curious things—curious because they are so small. It takes 300 trillion of them to make one drop of rain. And it is in the making of the drops of rain that the lightning comes. The surface of every droplet is covered with electricity. This brings out another curious fact. When you take two balls of the same size and make one ball of them you find that the surface of the one big ball is really smaller than the sum of the surface of the two original balls. So that when the 300 trillion droplets form the single drop of rain there is an enormous amount of electricity left over after the surface of the rain drop is covered as full as it will hold.

This great excess has got to go somewhere else. Whenever there seems to be a good place for it to go—to another rain cloud or to the earth a lot of these electrical particles get together and make a sudden break for it, making a lightning flash. They go through the air so fast they heat it considerably.

The heat causes the air to expand, to become greater in volume than it was originally and this volume of air—just like the gas in the gun barrel or the air in the bag when you hit it—has got to distribute itself over the atmosphere and it starts doing so with a roar and a bang just as there is a roar and a bang when the gas is shot out of the gun barrel and when the compressed air is released from the paper bag.

Glorious War

M. Philouze, a French statistician, calculates that the war in the Balkans cost the belligerent countries $500,000,000. The money went for ammunition that was fired away, arms that were largely lost or broken, for soldiers' clothing that was worn out, food, etc. There is nothing material to show for it. The situation is as if a fire had swept over the land and destroyed so much property. The countries as a whole and the people individually are poorer than they were when the war began. Their case illustrates what the waste of war means.—Montreal Gazette.

The Land of the Chrysanthemum

A Japanese Lady

NATURE has been kind to the "thousand Isles of the Rising Sun." She has arrayed them in a garb often strange, sometimes stern, but always fair. Whether they be judged by their coasts, their mountains, their rivers or their lakes, these islands of the Eastern Sea can hold their own with any of the countries of the West. The grand and the sublime are no less present than the simply beautiful, and an infinite variety comes in to complete the charm.

It has been the fashion of late to decry Japanese scenery on the score of littleness. "Pretty, but petty" is a common verdict; but it invariably proceeds from a superficial acquaintance with the country. Landscapes dominated by mountain-peaks 8,000 to 10,000 feet high cannot be dismissed as insignificant—even when, as frequently happens, they are robed in verdure to their summits. Intermingled here and there with granite giants of rugged form may be discerned the soft and graceful contours of volcanic cones. With these also the suggestion of sublimity is not wanting. The most beautiful mountain in Japan—and perhaps in the world—was once the terror of the countryside. Fujiyama and Yarigatake perfectly represent the two diverse types of scenic grandeur to be found in Japan; but even where Dai Nippon does not aspire to magnificence, she can boast the charm of novelty. There is nothing in any part of the world quite like the landscape known as the typically Japanese which makes a peculiar but irresistible appeal to every lover of the picturesque. The traveller who sees the real Japanese is always pleased, but—unless he can repeat, or make perpetual, the new experience—he is never satisfied.

Times and Seasons.

The question is, "What is the best time to visit Japan?" has to be considered as much from the point of view of the visitor's intentions as from that of the climate. Late spring and early winter are usually recommended. People coming from temperate climes would find the heat of the "doyo," or Japanese dog-days, too trying if they purposed remaining in the vicinity of the treaty-ports and great cities. On the other hand, nothing could be more agreeable than to spend these same burning days in the mountain districts—three, four or five thousand feet above sea-level. But these very districts, with their romantic scenery and the precious boon of mineral springs, are for the most part inaccessible—or at any rate unpleasantly cold—in mid-April or November. Outside of them, Japan, essentially a land of flowers and foliage, looks her best in the first three weeks of April, "sakura" (cherry trees) are in full bloom, and "all the world" goes forth to see them. But the weather at this time of the year is sometimes the reverse of genial. The people of Tokyo, a few seasons ago, awakened one morning to find the cherry-blossoms weighed down with snow—a weird, if not pathetic, study in pink and white.

Without doubt, the season to be avoided is that known to the Japanese as the "nyubai," or rainy season, which prevails from the middle of June to the early part of July. This is of a peculiarly muggy and disagreeable description—alternately hot and cold, but always damp. In a normal year, however, these wet and misty weeks give place to a spell of brilliantly fine, hot weather, when all who can do so flee from the ports and plains to the cool, all-verdant hills. Perhaps the most settled and generally agreeable season of the year is the latter part of October. Bright sunshine out of a clear sky atones for the inclosing days, and the crimson tints of the fading maple-leaf turn many a mountain-side into a blaze of vivid red.

A good many years ago, when Japan was slowly opening her gates to the West, there appeared a book entitled "Unbeaten Tracks in Japan." Those tracks are no longer "unbeaten"; but, from the standpoint of the traveller visiting Japan for the first time, they are none the worse for that. "Call nothing magnificent," say the Japanese, "till you have seen Nikko." Thousands of travellers from Sunset lands, arrested by the vision of the Sacred Bridge above the rushing Daiyagawa—a span of scarlet lacquer athwart the sombre green of the cryptomerias which o'ershadow the gorgeous Shogun tombs—have enthusiastically endorsed the native proverb. Nikko still is Nikko, and will be to the end of time. But, if summer has come, linger not by the scarlet bridge. Mount your horse and push on through crowds of big-hatted pilgrims to the famous brink from which the surplus waters of Lake Chuzenji fall like a silver beam into the throat of a dead volcano; pass to the lake itself—made sacred by the sacred peak which dominates it; and then ascend, in five miles, another thousand feet to the still waters of Yumoto—the loveliest lake in Japan. Those who can claim acquaintance with the little spa which nestles mid steaming sulphur-springs and pine-clad solitudes at its head, five thousand feet above the sea, may "lay the flattering unction to their souls" that they know something of the real Japan.

Seishas in a Japanese Tea House

A Street in Kyoto

Less of a journey, but equally delightful in its way, is that to the Hakone hot-spring district, where a group of round-topped volcanic hills forms as it were a stepping stone to the majestic Fujiyama. Four hours travelling, by raft, electric car and jinrikisha in turn, will suffice to transport the visitor from the Yokohama Docks to the famous Fujiya Hotel. There amid the most romantic surroundings the traveller may rest in luxury to the "lullaby of waters far and near." Within easy walking distance lies Ojigoku ("Big Hell") a gorge which roars and trembles with solfataras and boiling springs, while, on the further slope of the low divide, Hakone Lake presents, by way of contrast, a scene of tranquil loveliness. No visitor to Japan, even if he have but two days at his command, should fail to pass a night at one of the little semi-foreign hotels on the margin of the lake. Only less impressive than the sight of sunrise from the summit of Fuji is the vision of the great volcano, rose-tinted with the earliest rays of the rising sun, and mirrored thus in the placid depths of the "Sea of Reeds."

From America the quickest and without doubt the most picturesque route to Japan is by way of the Canadian Rockies to Vancouver, where the two fastest boats on the Pacific, the "Empress of Russia" and the "Empress of Asia" ply to Yokohama Shanghai and Hong-Kong. The Canadian Pacific carries the bulk of the silk trade, Japan's chief export, and has recently placed on the Pacific those two very fine steamers for the growing passenger traffic.

In three weeks' time travellers can see a good deal of the Land of the Chrysanthemum. As to the best way of spending that time, if the visitor is specially interested in the arts and industries of Japan, he will prefer to spend it in the vicinity of Tokyo, Kyoto, Nara and Osaka. If, on the other hand, he desires to see as much of the country and its scenery as possible, he will leave the great cities for the picturesque interior. Much, again, depends upon the time of year. If it be April, the visitor has practically no choice. None of the mountain districts, with the possible exception of Nikko and Miyanoshita, is agreeable except in the summer months. The suggestions that follow will be found adaptable, with very little modification, to the requirements of the average visitor to Japan.

Starting from Yokohama, a day might be spent in visiting the great bronze Buddha (Diabutsu) at Kamakura—much superior as a work of art to the somewhat larger image at Nara—proceeding thence by electric car along the coast to the pretty island of Enoshima. Two days will suffice for the sights of the capital, among which the shops of the Ginza, the popular resort of Asakusa with its temple and bazaars, and the Yoshiwara, or licensed quarter, are perhaps the most characteristic—though in early April, the banks of the Sumida (Mukojima) should not be omitted. From the northern station (Uyeno) a journey of five hours brings one to Nikko (Kanaya Hotel) where a day may well be devoted to the magnificent shrines of the Shogun. Proceed by road to the Kegon waterfall (250 feet high), Chuzenji (Lakeside Hotel, four hours) and Yumoto (Namma Hotel, semi-foreign, two hours). Four days should be allowed for this district. Instead of returning to Tokyo the traveller, by changing at Utsunomiya and again at Omiya, could the same day reach a mountain resort of a very different type—bare, by comparison with Nikko's wealth of foliage, but much in favor among foreign residents in Japan. This is Karuizawa (Mampei and other hotels), whence the ascent of the great volcano of Asama (8,250 feet) may be made. Thirty miles to the north by road—horse or jinrikisha—lies the most remarkable of Japanese spas, Kusatsu (Shirane Hotel), where, in water containing free sulphuric acid and of a temperature of 125 degrees F., the bathers submit to a species of drill under a bath-master. The railway may be regained by crossing the grand Shibu-toge, a pass 7,000 feet high, to Shibu (Japanese inns with hot springs) and Toyoso (for Nagano).

From Nagano the traveller may return direct by way of Suwa Lake, Kofu and Hachioji to Yokohama, catching, en route, in the neighborhood of Matsumoto, grand views of the sharp, snow-streaked summits of the Japanese Alps. Three or four days might then with advantage be devoted to the Hakone-Fuji district. On reaching Kobe, the old-world cities of Kyoto and Nara, with their numerous temples, flower-gardens and curio-stores, would amply occupy the balance of the traveller's time.

If arrangements have been made to rejoin the "Empress" at Nagasaki, the traveller could, by breaking the railway journey at Miyajima, visit that sacred island, which is ranked by the Japanese as one of the "Sankei" or Three Beautiful Places of their beautiful land. Kyushu, the southernmost of the four main islands, offers as its chief attractions the great volcano of Aso (rail from Moji to Kumamoto) with the largest crater in the world, and the scene of frequent suicide; and, in the opposite direction, the coalfields district of Unzen. For either of these excursions, three days should be allowed.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Her Own Way

She Wouldn't Have It When She Could

By HELEN ORMSBY

Walter was an only son. He early developed an individuality and talent. Instead of being made worthless by petting, he was led to consider himself of especial importance. At college he was an honor man and a leader in class politics. He studied the profession of the law and was early picked out for a prominent man.

Such, in a nutshell, was Walter when I first met him. As for myself, I can only say that I was born inordinately selfish.

Both Walter and I, though we were conscious of an attachment for each other, were equally conscious of the difficulty of two persons, each accustomed to expecting all others to bend to their individual will, to get together, or, what would be more difficult still, to live together. However, for my part—I can't answer for Walter—my deliberations on the subject were naturally confined to myself until he proposed to me. Then the subject was opened between us without reserve.

"I confess," I said to him, "that I admire you, respect you, and I am not sure but that I love you. But there is one person whom I confess I love better than you."

He paled at this, supposing that I referred to a man. I quickly set him right.

"This person whom I love is a woman."

"I see. You refer to yourself."

While I am perfectly willing to acknowledge my shortcomings, it is not pleasant to have others agree with me. I was a bit piqued.

"Quite right," I assented, and instead of continuing, as I had intended, I retorted in this wise: "It occurs to me that two persons cast in the same mold"—

"Selfishness," he interrupted.

"Yes, selfishness—would not be likely to get on together."

There was a brief pause between us, during which he seemed to be turning the matter over in his mind.

"I admit," he said presently, "that while I am the most important man in the world to myself, I am not the most important"—

He had got mixed in his construction.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., NEW YORK.

Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price.

LOOK!

If you were told of a new discovery for the treatment of coughs, colds and bronchitis, as certain in its action on all chest troubles as anti-toxin is on diphtheria, or vaccination on small-pox, wouldn't you feel like giving it a trial? Especially if you could try it for fifty cents!

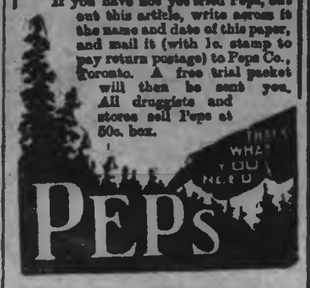
Pepe is the discovery!

Pepe are little tablets, neatly wrapped in air and germ-proof silver foil. They contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapour, and are at once breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the capillaries and tiny air cells in the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Pepe fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

Pepe are entirely distinct from the old fashioned liquid cough cures, which are merely swallowed into the stomach, and never reach the lungs. Pepe treatment of coughs and colds is direct treatment.

If you have not yet tried Pepe, cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Pepe Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Pepe at 50c. box.



and I took advantage of his dilemma.

"You couldn't very well be a woman without being born over again."

"I mean that the requirements of a woman might be of more importance to me than my own."

He had not put me in a good humor by agreeing with me as to my own selfishness, and I was indisposed to do my part in making room for him on the narrow path on which we were trying to walk side by side. Indeed, I concluded not to divide it with him, but to step before him.

"My selfishness," I said, "which, fortunately for an understanding between us, you have noticed"—

"Pardon me: I meant"—

"Never mind what you meant. You spoke the truth. I am quite sure that you could not give way to any one, man or woman."

"Well?"

"Then why do you make this proposition?"

"I have not denied that I could give way to a woman. I referred to a man."

There was a bit of triumph in his tone, and I knew very well that he had intended to trap me for taking advantage of him when he got mixed up in a sentence that brought him out in a reductio ad absurdum—in other words, ridiculous. Possibly had he said that he loved me so well he would be happy to give way to me in all things without this little sting attached to the declaration I would have been more yielding. As it was, the spiteful skirmishing must continue.

"I have not understood," I said, "from your words thus far—words, words, nothing but words—that you are capable of giving way to any one, man or woman. And since, as you have observed, I am inordinately selfish myself I don't see what object there would be for us in tying ourselves together."

"We would fulfill a natural law."

"By living unnatural lives. No, thanks; I prefer to remain single. There are too many couples who fulfill a natural law and live a life of perpetual quarrel and end their effort in a divorce court."

He had taken my hand when making his proposition; now he dropped it, saying that since I could not give way to any man and I had no confidence that he could give way to any woman there was nothing for it but to drop the matter. This was not to my liking. Walter had a disagreeable way of agreeing with me.

"Since it is so soon done for," I said with some acerbity, "the wonder is what it was begun for."

"It was experimental on my part," he said. "I am looking for a girl who will permit me to give way to her in all things. It seems that I shall have to look further."

What impudence!

He rose and was going to leave me when I called him back.

"By what right," I said, "do you accuse me of not permitting you to give way to me?"

"Did you not say that you were quite sure I could not give way to any one man or woman?"

"You have shown no disposition to do so."

"Try me!"

"How?"

"I will put myself under your orders. The first time I refuse to obey you, to give way to you in any disputed point,

"BY WHAT RIGHT," I SAID, "DO YOU ACCUSE ME?"

send me about my business. The first time you refuse to be obeyed or to have your own way you are to accept me for your wedded husband with the words love, honor and obey thrown in."

Good gracious! He quite took away my breath.

There was a lot more talk in the same vein, I affecting to believe that he was not in earnest or that he would not keep his contract. But he adhered to his purpose, and since I must either lose him or yield to him I yielded. I didn't realize that I was yielding at the time or I would not have done it. He left me, it being understood that the next time we came together we were not to speak of the matter between us, but I was to be on trial. It seemed very absurd to suppose that I was to refuse to have my own way about anything, and I felt quite sure of standing the test. I also felt confident that he was so used to leading every one with whom he came in contact that he would try to make me follow him in all things.

A week passed, during which Walter did not come once to see me. The days seemed inordinately long, the evenings endless. All this time I was having my own way, every hour, every minute. What did Walter mean by keeping away? Was he never coming again? I would have sent for him had not my pride forbidden me. I entered upon a second week with misgivings, beginning to conjure up all manner of reasons for his keeping away from me. At last I settled down to this: He had been convinced that it was useless for two such selfish persons to get on together and had made up his mind to drop the matter.

Now, I am not one of those clinging creatures who rather than lose an idol will beg pitifully. Not I. I made up my mind that if this was his game, if he were intending to drop me, I would have the satisfaction of dropping him. I wrote him a note stating that after full consideration of his proposition I had decided that the facts would not warrant his going any further with the matter and I could not consent to receive him should he call again, except with the understanding that his suit was not to be renewed.

I received no reply at once, as I expected I would, but in four or five days a note came from Walter stating that he had been called away on important business soon after parting with me and had not written since he had expected to return every day. His departure had been delayed and he had reached home to find my note. He added, "Your forbidding me to call again as a suitor has broken my heart."

"Oh, heavens!" I exclaimed. "What have I done?" He had evidently taken my note for a dismissal. I must hasten to assure him that it had been sent through a misapprehension. I wrote him an explanation. He replied that the mistake had been very unfortunate, but since I had forbidden him to call except as a stranger he had not the heart to call at all.

How provoking! He should have understood that this prohibition was recalled without my saying so in words. However, I must withdraw it, and I did so.

The same evening he came to see me and, folding me in his arms, exclaimed: "I've won! You must love, honor and obey me, especially the obey."

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"You forbade me to call again as a suitor, and when I gave you your own way in the matter you would not have it."

"How ridiculous!"

"Ridiculous! Do you deny that you have refused to be humored?"

Of course there were a number of ways to get out of it. No woman can be cornered in a way like that. But I'd had quite enough of it in the two weeks I had been waiting for him, and I didn't care to go through any more of it. So I pretended that he had been very shrewd and had beaten me and I was quite content to let him have his own way.

"My own way!" he exclaimed. "I like that. I have proved conclusively that you won't have yours."

WAS TROUBLED WITH

Weak and Dizzy Spells.

Heart Would Beat Something Awful.

Those feelings of weakness, those dizzy spells which come over people from time to time, are warnings that must not go unheeded.

They indicate an extremely weakened condition of the heart and a disordered state of the nerves. One dizzy spell may pass off, but eventually they will come frequently, and at the same time more serious.

Those who are wise will start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills before their case becomes hopeless, for they have no equal for restoring the heart to its usual strength, and making the nerves firm and steady.

Mrs. Len. Kinney, Moose Mountain, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with weak and dizzy spells, and my heart would beat something awful. I got so I had those spells every day. I got so I would try one medicine, and then another, but nothing did me any good until I got Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I can safely say they did me more good than anything I ever took, for I feel like a very different woman. My friends often ask me what I have been taking, and I always say 'Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.' I tell all my friends who say their heart troubles them, to take your pills."

A. B. SMITH has a dry goods store in a certain Canadian city. He does a good business, but wants to do more. He believes that Advertising in his local newspaper is the way to get more business. So he advertises—every now and then.

This is where our friend Smith is wrong—in advertising every now and then. He should advertise regularly—as frequently as his local newspaper is published.

Smith says he wants to advertise regularly, but he can't always find the time to prepare advertisements, which is true, for he is his own buyer, sales-manager, director of store service, credit man and half-a-dozen other things.

What Smith should do is this: If he is located in one of the smaller cities, in which there are no advertising agencies giving a local copy service, and he has no one among his own staff qualified by instinct or experience to write the daily announcements, he should go to the publisher of the newspaper in which he means to advertise, requesting his help. In nine cases out of ten, the publisher, through his advertising manager, will be only too glad to give Smith the assistance desired.

If Smith is located in one of the larger cities he should secure the services of a recognized advertising agency which will take over the work of preparing his advertisements.

In this way Smith can be sure of having his advertisements prepared regularly and intelligently, with no more trouble to him than the supplying of the information required by the writer of the advertisements.

So Smith can do more business, and more business means a larger income for himself, to say nothing of other gains that go hand in hand with the doing of bigger business.

This man Smith---do you know him?
Are YOU Smith?

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1913

MILITIA IS CALLED OUT

Every Company of the State Guard is Ordered to Indianapolis to Quell Street Railway Riots

MANY ARE RELUCTANT

Special Wire to The Examiner.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 6.—Governor Ralston has called out every company of the State militia, and this morning they are mobilizing all over Indiana, to proceed to this city to put down the street railway strike riots and get the cars running. Special trains will be given the right of way carrying troops here. As soon as sufficient soldiers have been gathered here martial law will be declared. Serious trouble is feared as the strikers and strike sympathisers are strong. Moreover, the citizens and civic authorities are against the calling of troops. Many of the Indianapolis militiamen have positively refused to turn out. There were scenes of confusion at the National Guard headquarters where the local troops assembled. The city militiamen were very slow in reporting and many were threatened with arrest before they would don the uniforms. Loaded cartridges are being issued and attempts will be made to move the cars under militia protection this afternoon.

ESTURION TIED UP FOR WINTER

Made Last Trip of Season This Morning After Two Months' Idleness

NAVIGATION NOTES

After two months of idleness, the "Esturion" was coaled up this morning for its last trip of the season. At 8:30, excursion volumes of smokes were belching from her as she prepared to steam across the lake to Lock Number six, where she will be tied up for the winter. The Esturion's fires died out during the first week of September and since then she has been tied up at the George Street wharf.

Lift Lock Closing.

With the closing of the Lift Lock to-day navigation between Peterborough and the upper waters is brought to a close for 1913. It was casually remarked this morning that with weather as balmy as May it seemed too bad to nail things down for the season. But the authorities have a dread of ice, and the Weather Man is not to be trusted these days.

Trips From Rice Lake.

The Geneva, Rainbow and other craft from Rice Lake may be expected to keep on ploughing the waters for a number of weeks yet. Both boats have been busy freighting recently, and have had practically all they could handle. But at that the Rice Lake farmers refuse to trot out their potatoes for anything less than 90 cents a bag in the cellar. This is the principal reason for the lean business that has been done in the usually good potatoes from the Lake district. When Manvers farmers are letting their stocks go at something in the neighbourhood of 65 cents, the Lake people have a small chance of getting their tubers in on this market. And from the abundance of potatoes this year, they will have a good supply for seed next spring unless they cut a slice off their present price.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY'S ANNUAL MEETING TO-NIGHT

One of the most important interests of Peterborough is involved in the annual meeting of the Horticultural Society which will be held to-night in the Council Chamber, City Hall. It is urged and hoped that there will be a large attendance. Let every one interested in the progress of what the society represents, be on hand this evening.

COLLEGIATE GIRLS TO GIVE CONCERT

The Collegiate Institute Girls' Athletic Association have chosen Friday, Nov. 28th, as the date for a concert and social evening to be held in the Assembly Hall. The programme will consist of music, readings and a playlet and other entertaining features that are expected to attract a large attendance.

TO VISIT PETERBORO'

It is Understood His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught is to Honour This City in the Spring

FIRST OFFICIAL VISIT

Peterborough will in all probability be favoured with an official visit early next spring from His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught. It is learned that the Governor-General proposes to make a tour through Canada and that he has signified his intention of including Peterborough in his itinerary.

His Royal Highness has passed through Peterborough several times but has not yet visited the City. Preparations will be made to entertain the Duke and his party in a fitting manner.

MARKET SENATE ON PRICE MAINTENANCE

Proposal to Have City Women Set Prices Receives a Laugh

The morning session at the Market was conducted with decorum, and the usual handful of citizens residing on Easy Street were present.

"I see some one is suggesting that the women should get together and set the prices for the Saturday market," said one. "That the foolishest idea I've heard in a long time."

"They'd soon get snubbed if they started dictating to the farmers," remarked another. "As if the man who grows things does not know what they are worth."

"I can't see that it is the duty of church people to look after these affairs. Farmers are church-goers as much as City people, and on the whole they may be better."

"The market will be governed by supply and demand, and there is not much need of the women taking up the question in this City."

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Examiner Special:

Following is the official report of the Toronto Live Stock Market:

Union Stock Yards, Nov. 5.—Receipts were moderate. 147 cars, 2,893 cattle, 1,178 hogs, 1,124 sheep and lambs, 45 calves.

Cattle—The quality of the bulk of fat cattle was not all that could be desired, being principally common and medium. There were several new buyers on hand which caused trade to be fairly good at unchanged quotations. Choice butcher's steers, $7.25 to $7.50; good butcher's steers, $6.75 to $7.00; medium butcher's steers, $5.75 to $6.25; common butcher's steers, $5.00 to $5.50; choice butcher's Heifers, $7.00; common butcher's heifers, $6.50 to $6.75; choice cows, $5.50 to $6.00; good cows, $5.00 to $5.25; canners, $3.00 to $4.25.

Feeders and Stockers—The quality of feeders was not up to usual standard. Too many heifers, that should be kept in Ontario for breeding purposes are coming forward. Choice steers, $6.00 to $6.35; medium steers, $5.75 to $6.00; stockers, 500 to 600 lbs., $5.00 to $5.75.

Milkers and Springers—Trade very active; market strong at $50 to $90 each, bulk sold at $65 to $75 etch.

Calves—Market steady. Choice veals, $9.00 to $10.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Lambs sold at about an average of 10 cents higher. Sheep steady. Sheep, $4.25 to $5.35; culls and rams, $2.50 to $4.00; lambs, choice ewes and wethers, $7.50 to $7.60.

Hogs — Receipts moderate and prices firmer. Selected, fed and watered, $9.20 to $9.90, f.o.b. cars, and $9.45 weighed off cars.

FARMERS RECEIVE $20 A TON FOR HAY

With hay $20 a ton the farmers are on the way to become capitalists. A local horse owner said to an Examiner reporter recently, "Why do you say the price of hay is $20, when it can be got for $19 and sometimes lower than that?"

The answer is simple. It occasionally happens that a farmer will sell out at three or four o'clock it there have been quite a number of loads brought to the city that day. But take the average day in the present busy season, and there are now many loads knocked down at less than $20 a ton. The farmer is an opportunist, and usually asks as much as he thinks he can get, and that is often governed by the conditions of the day. One load this morning was worth about $29. With the waggon the scales showed 3,000 pounds, and the waggon did not appear to be more than 1,000 lbs. in weight.

A BIG FIGURE IN THE WORLD OF SURGERY.—The visit of Sir Rickm an John Godlee to Canada is an important eevnt in the realm of medicine and surgery. He visits the leading hospitals. As diagnostician and operator, Sir Rickman stands all but alone in his profession. His surgery is the most technical in the world. He spurns such common operations as amputations and so on, and uses the knife in cases where there is a thickness of a hair betwen life and death.

NO ACTION IN CONNECTION WITH SHOOTING EPISODE

Parents of Cyril Devey Are Reluctant to Precipitate Legal Proceedings —Boys Rounded Up

CASE WILL BE DROPPED

It is understood that no action will be taken in connection with the shooting accident, in which Cyril Devey was shot in the hand on Hallowe'en night. The incident which occurred on the Chemong Road resulted in a general round-up, being made, of the boys who were said to be in the vicinity on the night in question. The names of thirteen boys were secured by High County Constable Cochrane and submitted to Crown Attorney Wood. After a consultation with the authorities, it was decided to let the case drop owing to the difficulty of proving the identity of the party who fired the shot. This is in accordance with the wishes of the boy's parents, who have no desire to precipitate a prosecution.

Cyril Devey's injury did not incapacitate him from his studies which he has been able to continue without interruption. The bullet which ploughed through a couple of fingers of the left hand was removed without difficulty.

OLIVE OIL AS FOOD

One of the most sensible things inaugurated of late is the taking of olive oil as food and medicine. Physicians have advised such uses of the oil, but it has only been of recent date that it has become a "fad." It has been proved in many cases to be not only a corrective of the liver, but a food for the system as well, and is of great benefit for w[illegible] mach and bowels. The dose [illegible]lly a teaspoonful of oil to be taken half an hour before breakfast and half an hour after supper. The oil may be freely used with vegetables and on salads, as it is harmless and beneficial. Its use may be continued for years, and in assisting the liver to do its work (it is in most cases mildly cathartic), the complexion is cleared of the ugly brown spots and leathery yellow appearance due to torpidity of the liver. The taste is not unpleasant, although a liking for it has, in most instances, to be acquired. But very few effective medicines are really finely flavoured, although any unpleasant taste can be disguised. Many physicians strongly recommend its uses, both internal and external it is excellent to use after the bath, and many delicate person —especially children — are greatly benefited by being massaged with it. The best quality of oil can be procured at McDermid & Jury's Drug Store in 25 and 50c bottles.

WILL REPAIR THE LONDON STREET BRIDGE

Girders Are Submerged in the Water—City Will be Represented at Municipal Conference

CITY HALL NEWS

The Board of Works Department have in hand a report respecting the condition of the traffic bridge at the foot of London Street, near the Hydraulic Power Company's dam. The report which was furnished by City Engineer Parsons recommends that the girders supporting the bridge be raised at least eighteen inches so as to relieve them from ice pressure. Some of them have already been bent by the ice. The estimated cost of raising the concrete abutments so that the bottom of the girders will be eighteen inches above the present water level is placed at $105. This includes the cost of raising the floor and incidental expenses. The matter has been left in the hands of the Board of Works, with power to act.

CITY WILL BE REPRESENTED.

In all probability the City will be represented by City Clerk Armstrong at the annual meeting of the National Municipal League, which will be held in the City Hall, Toronto, on November 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th. Important topics will be discussed at the Canadian session by the Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, the Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, and other representative men familiar with conditions in this Province. The matter of appointing a representative from Peterborough has been left in the hands of Mayor Bradburn.

Sacred Heart "At Home"

One of Brightest Affairs Ever Held in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum

The "At Home" held in St. Alphonsus Lyceum last night under the auspices of the Sacred Heart Sodality, was one of the most enjoyable affairs ever held in that place, which has been the scene of many social evenings.

Cards, music and dancing, was the order of the night and they were entered into with a good deal of enthusiasm. Delightful refreshments prepared by the young ladies were served, and were eagerly appropriated by the guests.

The young ladies of the Sacred Heart Sodality were greatly pleased at the very large attendance, and the success of the affair generally.

IS FINED FOR GIVING LIQUOR TO BLACKLISTER

Thos. Moher of East City Must Pay 29.55 For Infringement of Liquor Law Although he Denied the Charge

VAG ORDERED OUT

In this morning's police court, the case of Thos. Moher, the East City man, charged with supplying liquor to Joseph Findlay, who is on the backlist, came again before Magistrate Dumble. Mr. J. D. Corkery appeared for the defendant.

In yesterday's session of the police court, Joseph Findlay told in the witnes box how Moher had supplied him with the liquor. He told Moher he was on the prohibited list. On the other hand Moher swore that he had not been told Findlay was on the blacklist, and that when he bought the liquor for him he was not aware of the fact.

This morning Mrs. John Doig gave evidence, which resulted in Moher's conviction. He was fined $25 and costs, amounting in all to $29.55.

Mrs. Doig, who with her husband lives in the same house as Findlay, told of Moher's bringing the liquor to the blacklister. They drank it in the stable, and while they were drinking it Mrs. Doig went out and said to Moher:

"Don't you know Mr. Findlay is on the black list," and at the time Moher admitted that he did.

In imposing the fine the Magistrate said the weight of evidence warranted Moher's conviction in spite of his denial of his guilt.

Jas. Baron was assessed $5.75 for being drunk and disorderly.

Alex. Burnette pleaded "guilty" to being drunk and disorderly. He was fined $2 and costs or $5.75.

John Maher pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of vagrancy. He was ordered to leave the City at once.

FOOTBALL

After a very hard task Manager Moffatt of the Single Men has picked a team to represent the Single Men against the Married Men in the big game on Saturday afternoon at the Exhibition Park. From the line-up of both teams and the importance of the game it looks like a battle royal from start to end, and Captain Hotston of the Single Men thinks his men will have an easy win and partake of the good things at the banquet at the expense of the Maried Men.

The Single Men's team will be: Packwood, Pullen, Perry, Wilson, Gamble, Knight, Edwards, Hotston, (Capt.), Burters, Bartley and Davey.

Mr. A. Day will start the game at 2.30 p.m., sharp, and all players are asked to be on the grounds at 2.15 p.m.

T. B. Moffatt, Manager.

SITUATION IS WORSE

It is Stated That President Huerta Has Notified Uncle Sam That He Will Continue the Government

COMPLICATIONS LIKELY

Special Wire to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 6. — That disquieting advices had been received from Mexico to-day seemed certain from the attitude of the administration officials. Secretary of State Bryan came to the executive offices almost immediately after he reached the State Department this morning. He carried a big envelope containing a number of official documents received during the night. The report is in persistent circulation here that President Huerta has given the United States notice of his intention of continuing the government himself. This would be a defiance of the United States and would certainly lead to serious complications. It is known that the anti-American feeling is increasing in Mexico City and other large towns.

Fifty Calls In The Year

King's Daughters Have a Balance of $143.46—Officers Elected

The annual meeting of the local branch of the King's Daughters was held on Tuesday, the 4th inst., at which the following officers were re-elected:

President—Mrs. Hasen Ritchie.

Sec.-Treas.—Miss Margaret English

Hospital Com.—Mrs. Travers and Miss Pearce.

Home Com. — Mrs. Harvey and Miss Munro.

The Secretary reported that considerable work was accomplished by the Circle during the year, although the demand for help was not as large as usual owing to the very mild winter and abundance of work.

Some 50 calls were made by the members on families in need of sympathy and material help, and the Hospitals and Home were very regularly visited by the energetic Visiting Committees.

Over 70 baskets of Christmas cheer were sent out, and delivered through the kindness of the Boy Scouts.

The funds of the Circle were materially increased through the proceeds of a lecture, very kindly given by Mr. Dobbin, and through the Annual Charity Ball, which was well attended.

Through the courtesy of the Library Board the meetings were held each month in the Board Room of the Public Library.

The Treasurer's report was as follows:

Receipts.

Balance on hand Nov. 5, 1912	$13.68
Donations	42.25
Proceeds from Talk on Peterborough	10.75
Christmas donations	62.50
Proceeds from Charity Ball	206.05

Hospital and Home	20.00
To balance	143.46
Total	$327.39 $327.39

By balance on hand Nov. 4th, 1913 . . . . . $143.39

Respectfully submitted,
Margaret A. English.

Real Estate Transfers

Mr. H. J. McCannon has sold five residential properties within the last few days. It begins to look as if Peterborough would have quite an activity in real estate again in a short time. Everything points to a revival not later than late next winter or early in the spring. Those who are buying now are getting property at prices that will no doubt show them reasonable profits as soon as the activity in real estate is confirmed.

The properties sold were situated on Weller Street, Charlotte Street, Frederick Avenue, John Street and Stewart Street. Mr. McCannon has a further list of good purchases in his advertisement in the Examiner, which you are invited to look over.

IS BORDEN TO RESIGN

Ottawa Report Says a Plan is on Foot to Prevent Hon. Geo. E. Foster From Succeeding to the Premiership

CONSERVATIVES CONFER

Special Wire to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., Nov. 6.—The possibility of the resignation of Premier Borden through ill health has revived public attention as to his possible successor, and it is stated to-day here that a decisive movement has been undertaken to prevent Hon. George E. Foster succeeding to the premiership. He is the Senator member of the government and one of the ablest debaters among the ministers, but the majority group favour Hon. Robt. Rogers. It is stated that a movement was started to-day to make Foster chairman of the permanent Finance committee and so provide for his leaving the Cabinet. The situation has attracted a large number of Conservative members to Ottawa to-day during the last few days, including several Ontario supporters of the government.

INDIAN FINED FOR TRAPPING

On Monday afternoon, John P. Chase, an Indian from the Alderville Reserve at Roseneath was brought before Magistrate J. L. Squire on a charge of trapping muskrats on the Ouse out of season. Game Inspector Hess, of Hastings, who laid the information, found eleven skins in the possession of the accused, also some traps, all of which he confiscated. The prisoner pleaded guilty to the charge, and the Magistrate, after reviewing the circumstances with considerable pity for the former, would have let him off if possible with a warning only, but could not go contrary to the law, and was obliged to impose a penalty, very leniently taxing him $5.00, the minimum fine.

Chief Marsden, together with other members of the Reserve, spoke on behalf of the prisoner. The Indians claimed that according to an old treaty made in the reign of George III. that they are entitled to hunt as long as the grass grows and the water flows, and on the strength of this, said they would appeal against the decision and take the case before the Privy Council.—Norwood Register.

Fired From Steamer And Killed A Deer

It is the irony of fate that while some hunters trample through the tangled underbrush of the northern woods for two weeks without getting a sight of a deer, that one of these antlered monarchs of the forest should commit suicide by swimming across the bow of a Stony Lake steamer, yet which is exactly what happened on Tuesday.

It seems the Steamer Stoney Lake was on a trip to the head of Stony Lake with some supplies for the Peterborough Lumber Company. When the steamer was in the Boschink narrows a buck was seen to take the water near Dr. Race's summer home and start swimming towards Mr. W. G. Ferguson's island. Mr. John Thompson of the Peterborough Lumber Company, was in the wheelhouse of the steamer when the deer was spotted and seizing a rifle, fired and killed the buck, which weighed one hundred and ninety pounds.

New Serial On Saturday

Don't Miss "That Affair Next Door"

Don't forget The Examiner's new serial story "That Affair Next Door," which begins in Saturday's issue. Written in Anna Katharine Green's best style, the story is one of the most thrilling detective yarns issued in a serial form here and will be read through from start to finish with absorbing interest. It is a mystery story which completely baffles the reader and which cannot be solved until the end of the cleverly written book.

THE DEMOCRATS HOLD.

The Democratic party in the United States still rides on the crest of the wave of popularity. In the recent partial elections, they made significant wins. Their candidates were successful in New Jersey, Ohio and Virginia. Even in New York, where the Tammany wing of Democracy got its set back, the set back was administered by decent Democrats cooperating with the other elements of the Fusionist party. President Wilson can still count upon the country being behind him, and with this assurance he will have greater courage to wrestle with the perplexing problems that confront him.

STILL ALOOF.

Newfoundland maintains an exclusiveness and aloofness that make one think codfish and a "codfish aristocracy" are cause and effect. One sometime wonders why Newfoundland, has never longed to round out Canadian Confederation by casting in her lot with us. But she is coy. Even the pinch of hard times created no sentiment towards relief by joining destinies with Canada. Now when the island is prosperous, and her great resources are being developed by railway building and otherwise, there is no prospect of a feeling towards union with Canada.

INDUSTRIAL CLASSES.

It is a pleasure to note the increased interest taken in practical education in our schools. A record attendance of 235 at the industrial classes conducted under the auspices of the Board of Education is an encouraging beginning of the winter season. Training and education that fit boys and girls for practical life are all-important. No one will minimize the value of the instruction imparted at the Collegiate Institute and in the public schools. But at the best this is only preparatory and a stepping stone to the practical knowledge that will equip boys and girls for a useful place in life. The day schools provide the science of doing things. The industrial schools convert this knowledge into an art. We all know that nine-tenths of the miscellaneous smattering of knowledge is gained in the short term of school life, is of no direct use (apart from the profession of teaching) to a boy or girl in earning his or her living. The practical application is what counts, and if we do not combine in our education the practical and the theoretical, by adding industrial training in our schools, to the literary curriculum, the establishment and operation of industrial classes is the next best thing; and the Board is to be commended for the course it is taking in this regard.

A CITY PAVING PLANT.

The City of Peterborough seems to have a bias towards municipal ownership. We have municipally owned water works and are gradually approximating municipal ownership of light and power supply; though, apparently, a good deal of water will run under the bridge before we get Hydro-Electric working smoothly. We have also a municipally owned fire-fighting equipment, and a foot walk building equipment. We are attacking street paving and for the sake of argument there does not seem to be much reason why we should not have a municipally owned street paving plant. On principle it seems that it would be about as logical to farm out our fire fighting by contract as it would be to give out our street paving by contract. We know, at least, we hope we know, that our sixty miles of concrete sidewalk are all better built—cost less—under municipal making than if they had been built by contract.

If, however, this experience is not to be regarded as satisfying, the city of Calgary furnishes an instructive precedent for a street paving plant. The Calgary News Bureau states that figures just prepared show that the Calgary municipal paving plant has laid pavements at approximately twenty-five cents per square yard more cheaply than private firms. This is regarded as a demonstration of the success of municipal ownership in this regard. One hundred and forty-five thousand square yards of asphalt have been laid by the city plant this year at an average cost of $2.10 per square yard, after allowing for all expenses. The average price paid to private companies during the year for the same kind of work was $2.35 per square yard, so that the city has made a saving in one year of $35,000 by its investment in two municipal paving plant units. It is very probable that owing to the greater accessibility of materials in Peterborough the work could be done here at much lower rate than in Calgary, where labour is also much dearer.

Our city fathers might think this matter over. The figures quoted of Calgary's saving by doing its own paving are given out as official and may be depended upon? If Peterborough, will in the future, do the area of street paving which Mayor Bradburn forecasts, it might be well to consider the question of the application of municipal ownership of paving plant to street paving; and if investigation should verify the advantages Calgary claims, the case is proven. If Peterborough, by doing the work itself could save twenty-five cents per square yard—making the cost $1.90 instead of $2.15—we should save money at a considerable rate. Assuming that the present paving contract amounts to $65,000, a reduction of 25 cents per square yard would mean a saving of $16,250. And it seems that we could make a much greater saving in Peterborough. Calgary has to bring in her gravel long distances by rail, while we own an inexhaustible gravel pit and have installed there facilities for crushing the stone needed. Compared with Calgary we might effect a saving of perhaps fifty cents a square yard by doing our own paving. It seems that the subject is worth investigating.

PREMIER AS "DUMB AS CIGAR SIGN"

Orangemen Claim to be Sir James Whitney's Creator, and Hotly Criticise Their Creation

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5—Sir James Whitney will come into the riding in the East Middlesex bye-election and declare the position of the Government in regard to the bilingual schools. This was announced to the London district Orangemen at their annual banquet to-night by Rev. E. Fish of Owen Sound, the Grand Chaplain, who said that he would tell the people of Ontario how hard he intended to put his foot down. Mr. Fish was satisfied that the Government was reasonably trying to do all it could, and he suggested five years as the time in which it would take the teaching of French to be stamped out in this Province. Mr. Fish did say, however, that if Sir James Whitney betrayed the Orangemen in this matter he would fight him all over the Province.

Orangemen Made Him Premier.

Mr. E. T. Essery, Lecturer for Ontario, who preceded Mr. Fish in the banquet speeches, was not satisfied with the Government. He is a Conservative, but he characterized Sir James as being "as dumb as a cigar sign."

The Orangemen asked no favours of the Government, he said. "We placed them in power," he remarked "and without us Sir James Whitney would have never been heard of as Premier."

He said that the school regulations were contradictory, and he wanted to know where the Premier stood. He also wanted to know what Mr. Rowell had to say about bilingual schools.

Immigration came in for some comments by Rev. Mr. Fish. He declared that the increase in the Roman Catholic population in Ontario was a menace. He claimed that Sir James Whitney had repeated an interview h had had once with Bishop Procunier, who wanted 30,000 acres in New Ontario to colonize the Catholics. Sir James, according to the speaker, had asked the Bishop how the colonists were going to vote, and as the Bishop could not say whether the Church would dictate as to how they should vote, the Premier had refused the request.

PETERBOROUGH.
Population - 1909 - 17,907.
Population 1913 22,500

Buy property at present prices and a profit is yours on the investment in the near future.

WHY FIRST—because Peterborough is going to be a much larger City than it is at present.

SECOND—Experience of clients and the profits taken by them in Peterborough Real Estate is sufficient evidence of the rapid and substantial growth of the City.

THIRD—Note the present population of 22,500 and see five years from now what it will be. Don't be afraid to venture if you are honestly advised.

One new 7 roomed modern house on Bolivar St..... .....$2450

Two lots on Burnham and Boswell Property, each..... .....$525
$50.00 down on each one and two years for balance.

Two lots Corner Braidwood and Park Sts., near New Presbyterian Church Property—very easy terms, each.....$240

Mr. McCrae, B. S. A., representative of the Department of Agriculture arrived this week to assume his work here.

On Tuesday night an impromptu concert was given in the High School. Addresses were given by Rev. Cree, Principal Lawlor and Mr. Armstrong. Several musical selections were rendered.

During the evening the prizes won on Field Day were given out. The certificates for Normal entrance were also presented to the students who were successful in their recent examinations.

Was a Bad Guesser.

The guest who had been having a good time at the mountain hotel all the summer ruefully packed his trunk, then went to interview the proprietor.

"Well," he said, "I've had a great time. It's the first summer I've managed to get away from business in ten years. I've made the most of it, but now I've got to run back to town. What are the damages? Bring along the bill."

"I'll let you have your bill after luncheon," said the proprietor. "You're going to take the afternoon train, I suppose?"

The guest thought he'd had all the fun, laughed all the laughs, and enjoyed all the jokes he could have had, laughed and enjoyed in that hotel. But there was another laugh coming.

The bill was after the manner of most summer hotel bills, only a little bit more so. The guest was almost staggered.

"I say," he said, "you've made a wrong guess here. I've got a couple of dollars more than that with me!"

Girl's Nerves Fully Restored

Was Never Able to Obtain Lasting Benefit Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Was Used.

Too many girls grow up with weak, anaemic bodies and exhausted nervous systems. Indoor life and too much application in school are sometimes the cause.

The blood needs enriching and the nerves need strengthening by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food cure is doing wonders for many thousands of girls whose parents had almost despaired of their ever developing into strong, healthy women.

Mrs. J. Bagnall, 325 Woodville Avenue, Toronto, writes: "My daughter suffered from nervousness since childhood, and any medicines she tried did not do any lasting good. We read in the papers about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and my daughter used it with wonderful results. This treatment has built up her system and so strengthened the nerves that she feels like another girl".

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

TRANSMIGRATION OF SOULS

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Nov. 3.—The transmigration of souls is the subject which Mrs. S. S. Raymond, a school teacher, of New Canaan, has astounded her friends and her declarations and graphic tales of previous existence have filled all around her with astonishment. In one instance the details of her death, when as a child, she stumbled and fell down the cellar steps at her home, were unfolded. Another case she tells of visits to her parents in a prior existence and they recognized her.

"The truth dawned on me," says Mrs. Raymond, "when I was driving with my husband to Bridgeport. I suddenly pointed to a house and said that I had lived there in a previous existence. He was sceptical, and I recited how I, as a maid in the household of the minister who then lived there, was sent out at night, and being molested by some men hid behind a fir tree in the back yard. I had never seen the place before, but Mr. Raymond himself went around to the back, and there was found the stump of the fir tree just as I said."

Mrs. Raymond states that she never got any ideas on the matter of transmigration from friends or books. It simply dawned on her. She now remembers that her grandmother communed with spirits, and thinks she must have inherited the peculiar faculty of mental retrospection from her.

A soft answer may be all right upon occasion, but it takes something more to turn away the agent who is selling face cream or corsets, or taking orders for enlarged photographs.

The "Chivalry Club Dance," held in the Town Hall on Wednesday night of last week, was a most successful event, and was largely attended. Bodley's Four-piece Orchestra, of Toronto, furnished the music, which was highly appreciated by all and added much to the success of the evening. Among the out-of-town guests were: Miss Loretta Bennett, of Toronto; Mr. L. Bennett, of Orillia; Miss Hilda West, of Hastings; Messrs. Cressman McCrimen, Reid and Bradshaw, of Peterborough; Messrs. Niebel and Puffer, of Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. Huycke and Miss Huycke, of Tweed; Mr. Robt. Elliott, of Sharbot Lake, and others.

Mr. H. Falkner has returned from a short vacation at Ottawa and Toronto.

Hallowe'en was royally celebrated by the Picture Association on Friday night, when films appropriate for that festive event, were on view in the Town Hall. Comical costumes and frolics of all descriptions to delight young and old.

Mr. Jas. O'Brien, who was held up at the point of a revolver in Toronto recently and robbed of his money and watch, is smiling now over the incident, having recovered the timepiece, which he valued so highly, it being a family heirloom. The detective department located the hold-up men, who gave their names as Frank Nesbitt and John Hicks, both young men. The former pleaded guilty, and was let off on suspended sentence on account of his previous good record, but Hicks, who had a bad pedigree, was sent down for eight months.

Miss Margaret Major, of Perth, spent the week-end in town, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Thos. Lloyd.

Pat got on the rear end of a crowded street car and was obliged to steady himself against the door. "Move up!" shouted the conductor at every street, as more passengers were taken on. Pat moved up a step each time, but at the next stop he got mad and he yelled back at the conductor: "Bedad, I paid to ride. Do you expect me to walk all the way home?"

CROSSED WIRES.

Here amid the city's bustle
We must strive and stint and strain,
We must without ceasing hustle
If a livelihood we'd gain.
Then by added hours of slaving
Our day's earnings we increase,
Hoping that by dint of saving
We may win the price of peace.

Dreaming, in the lull of battle,
Of a little country place,
With its meed of hogs and cattle—
If we can but keep the pace
We shall buy it and retire,
For our old age comfort win
By a modest hearth of fire,
Far from all the city's din!

Meantime, on the very acres
We should like to make our own,
Some poor farmer wears his Maker's
Handiwork to skin and bone,
Toiling, skimping, stumbling, groping,
Driven up and beaten down,
Yet sustained and soothed by hoping
His old age to spend in town!

CAUGHT UP WITH HIM.

It was a wizened little man who appeared before the judge and charged his wife with cruel and abusive treatment. His better half was a big square-jawed woman with a determined eye.

"In the first place where did you meet this woman who, according to your story, has treated you so dreadfully?" asked the judge.

"Well," replied the little man, making a brave attempt to glare defiantly at his wife, "I never did meet her. She just kind of overtook me."

BOREAL GALES AND SNOW PROMISED FOR NOVEMBER

Hicks' Weather Forecasts for the Month--Keep Your Eye on Your Barometer, Take No Reckless Risks---An Earthquake Period Due About the Middle of the Month.

A regular storm period, covering the first seven days of November, bids fair to be a decidedly stormy and inclement period. It is central on the 4th, coincident with the centre of the Venus equinoctial period. The Mercury period will also add its perturbing power to these disturbances. The barometer will show the oncoming of these storms, in western extremes, as early as the 2nd; rain wind and htunder will attend falling barometer, and as these storms travel eastward across the country, from about the 3rd to the 7th, they will grow in intensity and extent, until most parts of the country will feel their influence and direct force. Surprising dashes of early winter, with boreal gales, sleet and snow, may very reasonably be anticipated over much of the country northward, as the western sides of storm areas push the tropical features of the storm out of the way to the eastward. A November cool wave will wind up this period, sending much cooler weather and frosty nights far into the south. This is a time when we would warn every navigator and shipper on the northern lakes against danger. Watch storm warnings, keep your eye on your barometer, take no reckless risks.

Storm Period.

A reactionary storm period will bring a return of storm conditions — falling barometer, change to warmer southerly winds, with probable thunder and rain—on and touching the 9th, 10th and 11th. The moon being on the celestial equator on the 9th, storms of rain, wind and thunder wil be natural consequences on and touching that date. The Mercury influence will prolong and intensify threatening and falling weather, bringing thick cloudiness, autumnal storms, with drizzle and sleet, for days beyond the normal limits of this period, possibly past the full moon on the 13th and into the storm period next following. Plan your outside work so as to escape the exposure, inconvenience and loss from bad weather conditions at this and other November periods. See that your 'taters," apples and a hundred other things are safely garnered before this time. An earthquake period is from the 10th to 16th, central on the 13th.

A regular storm period involves the 14th to 19th, having its centre on the 16th. The moon is at extreme north declination on the 16th, which fact will tend to suppress the change to colder, which would normally follow the storms of this period. If low barometer areas should cover the southern parts of the country, with counter storms moving out of the north-west at this time, cold, frosty weather will spread southward after this storm period, giving an early smack of winter to states far toward the gulf, say from about the 17th to 20th.

Snow Squalls.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 23nd and 23rd. On and touching these days, all who are observant may note perceptible weather changes. Cold will relax, winds fall to the south, barometer will fall, and cloudiness with more autumnal rain, possibly ending in snow squalls, will pass eastwardly across the country. These disturbances will be more pronounced from the fact that the moon is on the celestial equator on the 23rd, and in perigree on the 24th. Electrical storms, with rapid rise of the barometer following, will naturally bring a sudden change from warm to cold, lasting for two or three days behind the storms. The moon on the celestial equator, and at the same time in perigree; or closest to the earth, we always reasonably expect a maximum spasm of electrical excitement, with quick revulsion to colder in winter. Other astronomic conditions being in force, seismic trouble is also more probable at such times. An earthquake period being at its centre on the 27th, heavy shocks in many quarters of the globe need be no surprise as early as the 23rd and 24th.

A regular storm period covers the last wek in November, having its astronomical centre on the 27th. The moon is also at new, or in conjunction with earth and sun, on the 27th. The barometer will fall, and other indications of brewing storms will appear westward by the 25th and 26th. Decided autumnal storms of rain and wind, turning to snow northward, will traverse the country from west to east on and touching the 27th, 28th and 29th. Watch for such developments at this time, and see if your barometer does not rise very high after the storms have passed to your east, and if an early cold wave is not spreading southward and eastward from the northwest before we reach the first day of December.

Guy Fawkes Was Burned

Annual Entertainment of Loyal Orange Lodge No, 321

L. O. L. No. 321. Downer's Corners, last evening celebrated the anniversary of the Gunpowder Plot by their annual supper, entertainment and the burning of "Guy Fawkes." The event was a great success. The hall was filled, over 200 being present. Col. Miller was the speaker of the evening, and his patriotic address was appreciated and warmly received.

Supper was served from six to eight, after which the following entertainment was rendered. Mr Ernest Kitney, Master of the Lodge, was in the chair:

Chairman's address.
Recitation—Mr. J. Runnett.
Song—Mr. T. Hendry.
Address—Colonel Miller.
Recitation—Mr. J. Johns.
Phonograph selections — Mr. J. Robinson.
Sketch—"Taking the Census."
"God Save the King."

After the entertainment at Downer's Corner last night, which was such a success and enjoyed by all, just as the members and their wives were leaving, a couple of intoxicated men from the City came out with the intention of causing a disturbance. They were quickly taken care of, and will be dwelt with by the proper authorities.

Dr. Horning, Prof. of Modern Languages of Victoria College, will deliver a Lecture in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall on Friday Evening next, Nov. 7th, at 8 o'clock. The subject of Lecture is "England and Germany - The Present Day Attitude of Each to the Other." Mr. Peck, M.P.P., will occupy the Chair and Mr. John Renwick, Organist of George St. Methodist Church, with his efficient Choir, will render the recessional and other musical selections. Says Local Market Should Be Reformed

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I agree with "Live and Let Live," that something should be done with the management of our market in order to reduce the high price of living, but I am not sure that his suggestion would be workable. However, the importance of the matter demands our consideration. We have set apart a large tract of valuable land for market purposes and built thereon a costly market house and spend a large sum annually for its upkeep and improvements to accommodate the farmers and market gardeners in selling their produce to our citizens, and in order to dispense with the middleman's profits, but our plans have been frustrated in more ways than one. The farmers and gardeners have availed themselves of the benefits accruing to them, but have coolly deprived us of the benefits accruing to us. They systemetically price the articles they have for sale in some retail store and then forthwith offer their's for the same price. They sometimes ask even more. I knew of a case where they were selling egs for 20c. a dozen, when the stores were selling them at 18c a dozen. They are further enabled to impose upon us by reason of others than the home consumer, being allowed to swoop down on the market and buy up everything in sight that is liable to be scarce before our citizens get around. I not only refer to the storekeepers, but to the agents of Montreal and Toronto dealers where prices rule higher than they do here. As to the former there is a by-law against their doing so, before 11 a.m., but it is not enforced, or its terms are evaded by deceit; but as to the latter, not even the semblance of a by-law has been passed to check the evil. Now that the United States tariff wall is thrown down on som foodstuffs we may expect buyers from the other side of the border as well, where the prices are still higher.

Another thing that might enlist our attention is the combine that is said to exist among the fruit dealers, headed by a few Italians, many of whom return to their own country when they have scooped up enough of our money. While peaches in this record year were selling as low as 10 cents a basket at St. Catharines, and plums at 20 cents for 11 quarts, peaches here were selling at from 60 cents to $1.00.

Yours, etc.,
Citizen.

The Woman—Here's a wonderful thing. I've been reading of a man who reached the age of 40 without learning how to read or write. He met a woman, and for her sake he made a scholar of himslf in two years.

The Man—That's nothing. I know a man who was a profound scholar at forty. Then he met a woman, and for her sake he made a fool of himself in two days.

H. B. COLLIER ON DISCREDITED ASTROLOGY

Interesting Address to the Astronomical Society by Former Peterborough Man

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—"If a man were undecided about any business offer or proposition submitted to him in the early centuries, all he had to do was note the hour and the minute of the day and construct an astrologer's chart or horoscope. In five minutes according to the Ancients, all his doubts would be dissolved," said Mr. Herbert B. Collier, addressing the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada last night on "How Astronomy has Discredited Astrology."

Sections of the chart, as illustrated with chalk, were supposed to relate to certain planets with distinct individuality by which the character and actions of the parties concerned were easily ascertained. When the planet Saturn, for instance, came within the proper section, it was known that he represented a person seldom without a cough, and either bow-legged or knicking one knee on the other." Jupiter was jovial and fat, while Mercury was a prattling busy fellow. The astrologers, however, were fooled often enough to warn their adherents to avoid rash judgments, especially concerning death.

Herschel and his first 40 ft. telescope were given a prominent place by the speaker in the transition from astrology to astronomy. Just as the horse shies, he said, so humanity feared the elements which supposedly held countless deities until they learned the simple movements. Through Herschel's eye piece, elementary as it was, the moon was shown to be altogether too rough in surface and extreme in temperature for any comfort-loving god. And Saturn, being really steam—three-quarters the density of water—was also no place for gods. As for Jupiter, Herschel thought him too cold, though as a matter of fact he is now known to be too hot. But it all amounts to the same thing. No god would tolerate it.

At the close of the lecture the secretary of the society reported a membership of nearly 500, and he ventured to look forward to the time when this society would rival the British with 972, or even the French Association with 1,800 members.

Mr. H. B. Collier, who formerly resided in Peterborough, has addressed the local Astronomical Society on various occasions. He is well known here and has always manifested a keen interst in the work of the Society.

BUDDHISM DISCUSSED

Interesting Meeting Held in the Y. M. C. A. Last Night

A most interesting and helpful class was held last evening in the Young Men's Christian Association under the leadership of Mr. Hainsworth. The topic for discussion was Buddhism. Papers were prepared by Mr. Harry Hastie on the Life of Gautama, the founder of Buddhism; the Doctrine of Buddhism by Mr. Arthur Therbault; the Relation of Buddhism to Brahmanism and Hinduism by Mr. Milligan. Mr. Roderick Grant read from the Koran.

On next Wednesday evening a debate will be conducted on the following question: "Resolved that Hinduism has done more for the world than Buddhism." Affirmative, Mr. R. Grant; negative, Mr. Milligan. The class meets at 7:30, and all young men are invited to attend.

The Association officers are giving special attention to the religious work. The classes are well attended which shows that the boys and young men are interested in this phase of the work. Eighty-five students have been thus far enrolled.

CROSSING THE TIGRIS.

At one ferry on the Tigris River, the toll is as follows: For a poor Arab, two cents; for a prosperous Arab, four cents; for a soldier, ten cents; for a pilgrim, twenty cents; for a European, eighty cents. The scale of prices for nearly everything along the way is similar. But many of the Arabs are so poor they prefer to swim across in the ancient manner. They bind several old gourds together, and then, sitting upon them, paddle their way along.

DESERTED HIS WIFE

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 3.—James Cooper, of Larksville, deserted his wife because she was an ardent baseball fan. He so testified before Judge O'Boyle yesterday, when Mrs. Cooper had him arrested for non-support.

Cooper told the judge that his wife attended a ball game nearly every day during the past season, and that he was compelled to prepare his own supper. He said that she talked baseball morning, noon, and night, and that he took no interest in the sport.

Judge O'Boyle suggested that with the baseball season over, Mrs. Cooper probably would remain at home, and upon her promise to cook the meals, the judge sent the couple home with the understanding that they would make a new start.

Good Boots Are Half the Sum Of One's Appearance

You may be dressed in a smart suit, making a call or doing some shopping, orperhaps you are spending a few hours at an evening gathering. But no matter where you are, or what you may be wearing, the power to make or mar one's appearance lies with one's shoes. And seeing that at this season, the high boot is in demand both for comfort and health, let us here say that in the shoe section on the second floor, we have gathered to-gether a pleasing assortment of winter footwear for girls and women.

There is a Tan Walking Boot at $4.50 that deserves special mention. It has stout extension soles and a natty raised toe that is capped. The last is of medium shape while the leather is a sound Russian Calf. It has 12 buttons, and the heel being broad and low, this makes an ideal boot for street wear.

Crarenette Cloth is employed as a top in a neat, dressy little model of patent kid. This is a somewhat lighter boot and is also in button style possessing a Cuban heel and procurable with plain or capped toe. The price is $3.95.

For evening wear there is probably nothing quite so smart as this Black All Suede Pump which has a small cluster of brilliants as its only ornament. The French heel of medium height is also covered with suede, and is finished with a small tip of leather. This is an English made pump and is price at $3.95.

PETERBORO' WITNESSES SUMMONED

To Give Testimony at Important Trial in Whitby—True Bill Returned by Grand Jury

ROPE WAS DAMAGED

WHITBY, Nov. 6.—A true bill was returned by the Grand Jury at the autumn Assizes here in the Stead M. Gamble case, in connection with a charge of damaging a scaffold rope with sulphuric acid. Mr. H. H. Dewart, .C., counsel for Gamble, was present, with Col. Farewell, K. C., opposing him on behalf of the Crown. The jury heard several witnesses. Gamble will come up for trial at the present Assizes, over which Mr. Justice Britton is presiding. The rope alleged to have been damaged with sulphuric acid by Gamble lies in the Court House here boxed up and sealed. It will probably play an important part in the trial, if the attiude of Mr. Dewart at the preliminary hearing is any criterion.

Peterborough Witnesses.

The following witnesses from Peterborough have been summoned to appear at the trial: Superintendent Armstrong, Joseph Deshayes foreman), Timekeeper Donegan and several of the structural ironworkers employed by the Hamilton Bridge Company in connection with the construction of the new C.P.R. bridge at Peterborough.

The above witnesse were employed on the construction work at Cherrywood last Spring in connection with which Gamble is said to have damaged a scaffold rope upon which a number of lives depended.

A Plot To Assassinate The Cabinet

Special to The Examiner

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 6. — According to advices here to-day eighteen members of the Liberal party of Nicaragua are under arrest charged with plotting to wipe out President Adolphus Diaz's government by assassinating Diaz and his whole cabinet together with several under officials. The discovery was accidental.

No Kitchen Showers For This Wedding

Special to the Examiner.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 6.—It is announced from the White House that Miss Jessie Wilson requests no kitchen showers of such pre-nuptial demonstrations from her friends in connection with her approaching marriage. President Wilson desires the ceremony and all incidents to it shall be dignified in all respects as becomes the wedding of the President's daughter. This was the substance of an ultimatum given to-day.

Riots In Vera Cruz

Special to the "Examiner."

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 6.—There was considerable agitation and threatening of riots in Vera Cruz to-day, and Admiral Fletcher ordered the cancellation of all shore leave to the United States seamen and marines. There is a good deal of excitement among the minebers of the fleet, and there is keen competition for places on the landing force which the officers expect to be ordered by Washington any time.

May Do Away With The Bars

Special Wire to The Examiner.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—It is understood here that the commission recently appointed by Premier Gouin to examine the liquor licenses question will recommend the abolition of the bar in Quebec and the substitution of open cafe and table system as exists in Paris. They may also recommend license fees according to the percentage of business done.

EVIDENCE AGAINST THE PRISONER

Special to The Examiner:

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 6.—At the trial of Mrs. Beemer to-day, charged with murdering her husband, John Mason, a farmhand repeated his story of how he saw the prisoner pouring out something out of a bottle labelled "poison" into an egg cup when her husband was sick in bed. The defence lawyers are said to have witnesses coming to state that Beemer had told his friends he was tired of life, the inference being that he poisoned himself. A verdict is possible to-morrow.

Maniac Shoots Up Police Station

DETROIT, Nov. 6.—One police officer was shot and instantly killed and another fatally wounded here shortly before midnight by a madman who had been detained at police headquarters for examination.

Warren J. Snow is the dead officer, and Arthur J. Mitchell will die as a result of his wounds. Walter Kuhlmann is the man who did the shooting.

Kuhlmann came into the police station proclaiming That he had been sent by God to kill all nations.' As Dr. Dowling, city physician, started an examination of the maniac, Kuhlmann attempted to leave the room, but Patrolman Snow barred his way. He drew his revolver and began to shoot. Snow fell at the first shot with a bullet through his brain . Patrolamn Mitchell, attempting to seize Kuhlmann, got the third shot through the breast and fell dying. The man was finally overpowered by sheer force of numbers.

Has Been Identified

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—William Campbell, the negro, who was up for trial yesterday for the murder of George Muir, has been identified as Charles Jones, who is wanted in Chicinnati on a charge of murdering a white woman, Bertha Courtenay.

The police here have not yet received any official notification since they sent the photographs taken here and the detailed description. A letter is expected to-morrow.

This afternoon, however, an Associated Press despatch from the American city states that the police there are convinced that Campbell is the man they want, and that every effort will be made to have him taken to Cincinnati to stand his trial.

Bertha Courtenay was a woman of doubtful reputation with whom, it is alleged, Jones had been living. The cases are said to be remarkably parallel. Here Campbell was at one time living with Lillian Hiobert, a white woman, who later left him and went back to her former lover, Muir. A few days later Muir was found with his head almost cut off, lying beside the road near Senecal Station.

In Cincinnati the police state that Jones, who is wanted, was living with Bertha Courtenay, who left him to go with another man. He cut off her head with a razor and threw her body into a sewer.

Jones is also wanted by the Cincinnati police for several other murders of which he is accused. The evidence, however, is said to be strongest in the Courtenay case. All the crimes were committed in the years 1911 and 1912, and in all he is suspected of nine crimes of violence.

According to the despatch, Chief of Police Copelan, of Cincinnati, will endeavour to have Campbell extradited, and if he is successful he will charge him with the Courtenay murder.

According to Chief Charpentier, Campbell will stand his trial here, and if he is acquitted of the Muir charge he will be re-arrested, and sent to Cincinnati. Not until he has stood his trial here, however, will the Cincinnati police have anything to do with the case.

Inspector Cowan is responsible for the linking up of Campbell with the man Jones. While looking over a copy of "The Detective," a police paper published in Chicago, he noticed in an issue some two years old a photograph of a negro who was remarkably like Campbell. The man was wanted for murder, in Cleveland. On reading the description, the inspector became more conviced that this was the man. Height, weight, age and marks on the head and body all corresponded. The police of Cleveland were notified, detailed descriptions were interchanged, and the result is that if he is acquitted here, Campbell will have to face trial in the American city.

The identification has not yet, perhaps, been proved beyond a doubt, but the Cincinnati police are convinced.

Mr. Wilfrid Pilon states that tomorrow he will apply in the Court of King's Bench for a remand in this case for ten days. He states that a most necessary witness is not present. This was the reason for the last adjournment of the case.

According to Inspector Cowan, the police have a warrant for this witness on a different matter altogether. Detectives Weston and Lebarge have been looking for him for several days, but he cannot be found.

Campbell, when seen to-day by Mr. Pilon, denied that he was Jones. He stated that he did not know Mrs. Courtenay or Miss Smith, a mission worker, who it is alleged, was another of the victims of Jones. He admitted being in Cincinnati at the time of the crimes, but said that he was in no way responsible for them.

Royal Templars Held Meeting

A regular meeting of the Royal Templars of Temperance was held last evening in the Knights of Pythias Hall, Moose Street. About twenty members were present. After the business of the Lodge was completed a social hour was spent during which refreshments were served, and a short programme rendered.

FOUND GUILTY

EDMONTON, Nov. 3.—Charged with the wilful murder of Sydney Pellant at Edmonton on September 25, Mrs. Dean Davis, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury after twenty minutes' retirement.

Many sordid details came out in the trial. Mrs. Davis stated in her evidence that she had been providing for both deceased and her husband by leading a life of shame.

When the body was first seen by the police a few minutes after the shooting, Mrs. Davis was caressing the dead man and calling him by his pet name of "Darkie." There were several affectionate letters written by each and apparently they were very fond of each other.

Native of Cork, Perhaps

A genial looking gentleman wanted an empty bottle in which to mix a solution and went to a chemist's to buy one. Selecting one that answered his purposes he asked the shopman how much it would cost.

"Well," was the reply, "if you want the empty bottle it will be a penny, but if you want anything in it you can have it for nothing."

"Sure, that's fair," said the customer; "put in a cork."

A CHALLENGE

To One Who Knows and to all Who Know and all Who Are Willing to Have Their Knowledge Used

(A challenge to "One Who Knows" and to all who know and are willing to have their knowledge used.)

Mr. Editor,—For a considerable time rumours have been abroad regarding immorality in our City. There have been numerous anonymous letters on the subject, and of late these letters have increased in number and in outspokenness. Since it became known that the laymen of the City were organising an aggressive missionary campaign, several of these letters have taken a slap at that movement. Is anything to be gained by this Let us do both. Let the Laymen's Missionary Congress and banquet be the success it deserves to be. Let us get to the bottom of what lies behind the rumours of immorality and the anonymous letters and the editorials—for there have ben editorials. To this end, I challenge the author of the letter signed, "One Who Knows," and I challenge all who know facts bearing on the said immorality of this City to meet me at St. Andrew's manse, beside St. Andrew's Church, corner Rubidge and Brock Streets Friday evening of this week to organize, to plan together further information and to keep on the job until conditions are vastly changed. If the rumours are not true, they are a crime against the City. If they are true, the City should be cleaned up. I am willing to take any place on the job no matter how inconspicuous it may be. Remember the place, St. Andrew's manse, and the time, Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Faithfully yours,

JAMES ROLLINS.

STATEMENT OF CIVIC RECEIPTS AND EXPENSES FOR TEN MONTHS OVERDRAFT HAS INCREASED

City's Hydro Electric Scheme and Street Paving Represent a Large Expenditure---"Cash on Hand" $22.17---Police Court Produces a Big Revenue--Cost Connected With Operation of Civic Government--Queen Mary Hospital Appropriation is Running Low.

On October 31st, 1913, the civic treasury was able to show a cash balance of $22.17, according to the regular monthly statement of receipts and expenditures. The statement covers a period dating from January 1st to October 31st of the current year. A striking contrast to the cash balance is an overdraft amounting to $89,642.69. The overdraft, at the beginning of the year, was $24,800. This has been increased by $44,842.69 since the first of the year.

Hydro-Electric and street paving figure largely in the expenditure column. The former represents an expenditure of $15,666.35 up to date, while the latter has swelled the total amount by $15,318.16. The sum of $5,533.10 has been spent on street extensions. The cost of moving the plant of the De Laval Dairy Supply Company from Montreal and St. John's to Peterborough amounted to over $3,500. This was provided for in the by-law which received the endorsation of the ratepayers. Following is a full list of receipts and payments for the ten months of the current year:

The first account on the list and by no means the least important, concerns the administration of justice. The appropriation for this department is $6,200, out of which the sum of $1,588.89 has been paid. The recipts amount to $178.35. Further on down the list the Police Court shows a revenue of $2,307 37, or a little more than one-third of the total cost of maintaining the police department for the ten months of the current year. Municipal government has depleted the City's finances to the extent of $4,062.50, leaving a balance out of the appropriation of $937.50. Less than $500 remains of the Queen Mary Hospital appropriation, with two months yet to account for. A number of the departments connected with the civic administration have a comfortable margin to their credit and, providing no unforseen circumstances arise, should round out the year with a surplus.

A Daring Robbery At Hamilton

Special Cable to The Examiner.

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 6.—Thirty-six pearl rings valued at $850 were stolen from the show windows of the jewellery store of John Diggins on King street east at 2 o'clock this morning. The robbery was the most daring perpetrated in Hamilton in recent years. A perfect circle large enough to admit the entrance of a man was cut from a window and a tray containg the rings was removed. Diggins maintains that it was cut with an instrument of recent invention which cuts glass like so much putty.

First Skating Fatality Of The Season

Special Wire to The Examiner.

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Ont., Nov. 6.—Sidney Smith, a boy of eleven, lost his life in Edwards Lake near here. With a young girl named Mina Hogg, he had gone skating on the ice and the two went through. Sidney Smith lay flat on the ice and reached the girl, but she struggled so that ice gave away and both sank. Others rushed to the rescue and Mina Hogg was saved, but the boy never came up again.

A TEN TON STACK FOR THE INCINERATOR

The City's incinerating plant is rapidly nearing completion and the workmen are now preparing to erect the big, ten-ton steel stack. For this work a long jib pole, with blocks and tackle has been set up, but it may be several days before the stack is lifted to its position. Mr. T. D. McGregor, who has charge of the work, states everything is progressing rapidly and the plant will soon be completed.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 6.—William McIntyre, formerly Accountant of the Bank of Nova Scotia, here, who was arrested in Toronto, was sentenced to two years in Dorchester Penitentiary to-day for the embezzlement of ten thousand dollars.

To Remove First Sign Of Old Age

"The infallible first sign of age is the sagging cheek muscles," says Mme. Lina Cavalieri, whose fame as a beauty culturist is scarcely outshone by that gained before the footlights. "These are more difficult and perious to treat than wrinkles," she continues. "The sagging muscles indicate that they have grown too weak to remain in place; they must be assisted, strengthened."

The best way to strengthen and harden them is by using a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hasel. This creates a freer circulation to the affected parts, besides causing muscle and skin to contract. Saxolite, procurable at every drug store, has long been known by complexion specialists to possess remarkable properties, valuable in treating not only flabby tissues, but all wrinkles and furrows.

Vagrant Crop Is Heavy

Statistics Show New Record Has Been Set by "Vags" for October Migration

The number of vagrants being brought before the magistrates of the different Ontario towns has been larger during the last month than for some time. In Kingston, Brockville, Belleville, St. Thomas, Guelph and other cities one or more are being led into the prisoners' box every morning. On Tuesday there were four suspicious looking characters before Magistrate Dumble, and yesterday two of them came back, and were sentenced to six months in Central Prison. In this city over half the "vags" are arrested while drunk, showing that this is a common habit among the members of the great unwashed.

Statistics show that the number of vagrants turned back at different points along the international boundary between Canada and the United States, was larger during last month than during any period of the year.

The months of May and June are usually busy ones for the Immigration Department, and the police, as the hoboes come north for the summer, and go south for the winter. This year the lure of Indian summer, or some other reason, has caused the knights of the highways to seek Canadian soil, and a new record was made in October.

The number of men turned over by the Provincial police so far is 917, which is considerably in excess of the figures of former years, and nearly 300 more than in 1912.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh health tissue from beiw is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day, Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had ben a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

NOTTS FOREST SUFFERS 14 CONSECUTIVE DEFEATS

A Distinct Contrast to What the Forest Team Were Some Years Ago When They Won the English Cup--Old Country Football Gossip.

Notts Forest terminated a run of 14 consecutive defeats by playing a tie game at Huddersfield on October 4. Since then they have played two games and won one. This is a distinct contrast to what the Forest were some years ago as in 1897-8, they won he English Cup, beating Derby County in the final by 3 to 1. In the season 1906-7, they were head of the second division and in the following season played with the first division.

It was in 1910-11 that they began to fall and were relegated back to the lower division. Since then luck has seemed to be against them, with the result that they have only got three points out of the last 17 games. The following is the record of these games:

1912-13—h, Notts Forest 1, Bradford 2; a, Notts Forest 0, Birmingham 2; a, Notts Forest 1, Bradford 3; h, Notts Forest 0, Huddersfield T. 1; a, Notts Forest 0, Leeds City 1; h, Notts Forest 1, Grimsby Town 2; a, Notts Forest 0, Bury 2; h, Notts Forest 2, Fulham 4.

1913-14—h, Notts Forest 1, Leicester Fosse 3; h, Notts Forest 1, Wolverhampton 3; a, Notts Forest 1, Leicester Fosse 5; a, Notts Forest 0, Hull City 1; h, Notts Forest 0, Barnsley 2; a, Notts Forest 0, Bury 1; h, Notts Forest 1, Huddersfield 1; a, Notts Forest 0, Lincoln City 1; h, Notts Forest 3, Blackpool 0.

Total — Notts Forest 12, other teams 34.

Fourteen consecutive losses is by no means the most in the history of English football, for only last season Woolwich Arsenal played 23 consecutive matches without scoring a point. The two previous worst are Bolton Wanderers, who lost 22 in 1902-3; and Notts County with 21 in 1906-7.

HUMOUROUS PARS FROM LONDON TOWN.

Darby and Joan.

A Derby supporter was evidently very pleased with the visitors' display at Tottenham. He continually shouted: "Well played, Darby!" "Good, Darby!" In fact, he was all "Darby," until Cantrell scored from a penalty, when a Spura' supporter turned and said: "Well, how do you like 'Joan,' eh?"

Kitchen's Range.

Meeting a friend who had accompanied the Saints to the Welsh coal port, where they defeated the Cardiffians by the odd goal in three, I asked what struck him most about the game.

"Oh," he replied, "I think it was the frantic efforts of the 'Best Welsh Nuts' to get without our 'Kitchen's Range.'"

To Lift the Championship.

While the Millwall-Crystal Palace match was in progress, a train with a large crane on a truck stopped on the line overlooking the ground.

"That's to take our two points back," said a Crystal Palace man.

"No fear," said a Millwall man, "that's for the Lions to lift the championship with."

In The Negative.

During Fulham's match with Huddersfield, Walker, the Cottager's outside left, sent in a shot which struck a photographer who was near the goal.

"Would you call that a snapshot at goal?" I asked my friend.

"You might," he replied with a smile, "but I think if you asked the photographer's opinion his reply would be in the negative."

Ilford's Great Win.

There was the usual keen rivalry between the supporters of Shepherd's Bush and Ilford in the Isthmian league game at Newbury park, but the "Bush" received anu npleasant surprise in being beaten by 7-1.

At the finish of the game I was greatly amused by the remarks of the rival supporters.

Medical Advice.

"Ha!" exclaimed the doctor to his visitor. "I see what is wrong with you; you don't take enough exercise. A young fellow like you should go in for some form of exercise. For instance, football. Surely you can find time to do that. What is your vocation?"

Visitor: "Professional football, sir."

Collapse of M.D.

Prohibited.

It was at Park Royal. Within five minutes of the start Whyman handled the ball, and indirectly gave Merthyr their victory. A stranger arrived on the scene a few minutes later, and, asking a constable the score, was told Merthyr were one up—"through a penalty," the informant added.

"Why, man?" queried the stranger.

The constable looked at him, exclaiming: "'Oo said so?"

Then recovering himself and eyeing the interrogator sternly said: "'Ere, that's enuff, young feller! I've orders to run all fortune tellers and thought readers in and quick, so 'ook it while you're safe!"

Wanted.

During a junior cup tie on Wanstead Flats an enthusiastic supporter of the visiting team loudly praised the players of his side on every possible occasion. "Look at our centre forward; isn't he tip-top? West Ham United were after him," he shouted to some of the home crowd around him.

"Wot did he steal?" queried one of the opposition. Silence of enthusiastic supporter for the remainder of the game.

Mighty Faith.

As he was leaving the field he said to his comrades: "Sorry, chaps, I can't play any more. Still, I hope you win." (His side eventually lost by 18 to 0).

Riot Act.

In a league match in the north of London, the centre forward of the visiting team was a big policeman, who charged most unmercifully at the home centre half whenever an opportunity presented itself.

This treatment continued until at last the aggrieved centre half murmured in protest after one specially violent, and unnecessarily vigourous charge.

"What do you want?" asked the P.C. "Do you expect me to serve a writ on you before I charge you?"

"No, but you seem to have been reading the whole Riot act up to now!"

GOOD BALL PARK FOR THE KOLTS

Hamilton Spectator: It is almost certain that the Hamilton baseball club officers and the directors of the Alerts, Limited, will get together in a few days and arrange for the playing of the Canadian league games at Britannia park next season. The Alerts, Limited, directors met last night and agreed to give the ball club a five-year lease of the grounds at a rental of $2,000 a year, with the option of purchasing the park outright at any time.

The ball club was not represented. It was also decided to have J. J. McCaffery, two-third owner of the club, interviewed, with a view to having the ball club's answer to-day. The Hamilton club will in all probability subscribe to the Alerts, Limited, and will have a representative on the board of directors. The club will also foot the bill of erecting new stands and in other ways improving the ball park.

The Alert football club will also be well looked after. They will be allowed to raise sufficient on their stock in the Alerts, Limited, to have the house that is now on the park removed and fitted up for a club room.

The officers of the baseball club are anticipating big changes in the park, and it should be one of the best ball yards in minor league ball.

DOHERTY TO BE PLAYING MANAGER

Fred Doherty, the Norwood boy of hockey fame and well known in town, will be the playing manager of the Halifax Crescents this winter in the Maritime Professional League.

A GREAT TEAM.

Pitcher—David. He could "sling" with speed and control.
Catcher—Goliath. He caught David's best.
First base—Abraham. Good on the sacrifice and a clever field leader.
Second base—Jonah. A "whale" for inside play.
Shortstop—"The Wandering Jew." He covers lots of ground.
Third base—Jacob. Used to goats and could therefore handle bunts.
Right field—Job. Lots of patience, but given to "crowing."
Centre field—Sampson. A strong man, and a Baker for putting it over the wall.
Left field—Ruth. The Maud Nelson of her day and clever in the field.

CLOTHES NOT NECESSARY IN ICY REGION.

Scottish Captain's Story.

An American journal publishes an interesting account of a surprising incident witnessed by Captain James Leslie, of the British steamship Earl of Elgin. Captain Leslie is now convinced that clothing is not a necessity, and as proof, he cites a happening among the dwindling race of Yahgans, in the Straits of Magellan, between the island of Tierra del Fuego and the mainland of South America.

The steamship was in the midst of icebergs when two natives, father and son, paddled out in a canoe. The father wore a simple belt and the son was attired in the remains of a coat.

Feeling certain the lad was freezing, the captain had him wrapped in a blanket and sent to the galley to get warm. The boy speedily became weak and fainted. The father, seeing his son's plight, rushed forward, seized him, and threw him overboard into the icy waters.

The boy immediately revived and climbed into the canoe, where he laughed merrily as he caught ship's biscuits tossed to him by members of the crew.

CYRIL MAUDE IS WARMLY RECEIVED IN OLD NEW YORK

That very gratifying blend of some humour and sentiment, "The Second in Command," provided the means last night of introducing Cyril Maude to the general American public, whose misfortune it has hitherto been to know him only by reputation, says the New York Times in Tuesday's issue. And it was pleasant to see that under his genial ministration Capt. Marshall's delightful play seemed to give evidence of taking on a new lease of life. Certainly for most of thos present last night the illusion of reality was created, a difficult thing, indeed, in a theatre from which the sentimental mood has been banished more or less and replaced by a sort of reflected realism. And in the presence of this play of Capt. Marshall's, acted as it was acted at Wallack's last night, it was impossible not to feel that with our greater sophistication in things theatrical we have lost something of a very desirable quality of romance and charm.

Happily, Mr. Maude comes at a time when we are beginning to pine for the simpler, sweeter things, when the play of domestic intrigue and worse has grown a bit busy in our mouths, and when a pretty love store, prettily and simply told, is a refreshing novelty. And as such last night's audience welcomed and enjoyed it.

The method of procedure in Mr. Marshall's play is merely familiar, the relationships are never complex, and the emotions never so deep that on is misled into a belief that they can eventuate into conditions other than happy for the persons principally concerned. Nevertheless, "The Second in Command" is a capital stage play, with several exceptionally adroit scenes so contrived that the suspense is well maintained. It has, too, an appealing blend of very natural and gracious humour. And, though a sentimental play, it is a man's play in the sense that it introduces several really splendid human characters, good fellows tried and true, whose relationships during the progress of the story are of the sort to warm and cheer the heart.

All of which, by the way, too comparatively unimportant at the present moment when Mr. Maude, rather than Mr. Marshall, takes the centre of the stage. Nor will it be any news to the actor to learn at this late day that his performance of the Kit Bingham is as ingratiating a piece of characterization as any one would desire, exquisitely varied in its humour and deeply touching in its manifestation of the deeper, tenderer note of one who, somehow, seems to be a "muff" all around, until a supreme act of unselfish devotion brings him the Victoria Cross.

SERVED HIM RIGHT.

The following story of a British nobleman, now deceased, was recently told in a London West-end club:

"The duke was once in church when a collection was announced for some charitable object. The plate began to go round, and the duke carefully put his hand into his pocket and took out a florin, which he had laid on the pew before him ready to be transferred to the plate.

Beside him sat a little snob, who, noticing this action, imitated it by ostentatiously laying a sovereign alongside the ducal florin. This was too much for his grace, who dipped his hand into his pocket again and pulled out another florin, which he laid by the side of the first. The little snob followed suit by laying another sovereign beside the first. His grace quietly added a third florin, which was capped by a third sovereign on the part of the little snob. Out came a fourth florin to swell the duke's donation, and then the little snob triumphantly laid three sovereigns at once upon the board. The duke not to be beaten, produced three florins.

"Just at this moment the plate arrived. The little snob took up his handful of sovereigns, ostentatiously rattled them into the plate, and then turned defiantly toward his rival, as if he would say, 'I think that takes the rise out of you.'

"Fancy his chagrin when the duke, with a grim smile, put one florin into the plate, and quietly swept the remaining six back into his pocket."

Big Mistake.

Bluffers bounced into the club, jammed his hat down on a table with a fierce, resounding bang, and flung himself into an easy chair.

"What's wrong to-day, Bluffer? You look bad."

"I'll never forgive myself. I kicked a man out of my house last night!"

"Humph- I've kicked out many a one. Young fellow, I suppose?"

"No: past middle age."

"Well, these old codgers have no business to be coming round courting young girls. I would have kicked him out myself."

"Yes; but I have found out since that this man wasn't courting my daughter. He was after my mother-in-law."

A LITTLE BUSINESS CORNER

The cold weather has brought back mince meat, and some of the grocers are displaying the season's first supplies. Mince meat of the store variety might be termed a proprietary article and, realizing that its quality must be above question in order to secure repeat orders and establish itself on the market, manufacturers have used the utmost care in its preparation. It seems a pity that the average housekeeper is being lured away from so many of the historical duties which have taken up her time from sunrise. Some people say it is more economical to make these preparations at home, but the manufacturer is said to claim that the retail price is, in the long run, a cheaper method, when all phases are considered. If that be so, he has not tried to impress the point upon the retailer. At any rate, mincemeat is almost a staple article now. It may be that in a few years instead of hearing neighbours boast of Mrs. Smith's or Mrs. Brown's mincemeat it will be Clarks, Sheriff's or some other manufacturer's that will be mentioned.

One other headliner on the grocers shelves just now is rolled oats, which receives particular attention with the return of cold weather. A breakfast without the old reliable would be passed up by a majority of the people, but at that there are not sufficient using it. Many tastes are diverted during the summer to other foods and they forget about it when winter is setting in again.

And speaking of breakfast, W. J. Oke and most of the fruit dealers are showing a nice line of grape fruit. For those who can afford it this highly recommended for a position in the morning meal and at the same time the fruit is not very expensive.

Aigretes and other plumage for the adornment of milady's hat are now under the ban in the United States as the result of the agitation condemning the slaughter of the birds that furnished them. Even those intended for Canada are barred in transit unless the packages remain in the hands of the postal authorities. They cannot be received by a U. S. firm and then forwarded to this country.

Will Waterproof Footwear.

The production of waterproof footwear will, it is said, be made possible by an invention that will soon be placed on the market. The inventors say that the thinest sole and welt used on any kind of footwear can be waterproofed by the new method, and that they will remain so throughout the life of the shoe. One of the features of the new process is a complete saturation of every surface and internal fibre of the leather, which does away with reapplication of the waterproofing agent. The men interested in the new process are so confident of its success that they will shortly make the details known to a committee of shoe manufacturers in order to allow them to determine its value before putting it to commercial use.

Invisible "Air Curtains."

The open door which during the summer months draws trade into stores may be extended through the winter if a new invention called an "air curtain," which, it is said, will shortly get a trial in several Boston stores, can be put into practical use. The "air curtain," it is understood, is operated by a system of fans. Some of these fans are used as blowers and the others to create suction. The plan calls for a set of fans placed above the open entrance of a store to blow warm air downward and another set placed beneath a grating in the doorsill to draw down the air created by the upper fans, with sufficient force to form a curtain capable of holding back the warm air and preventing the entrance of cold air from without.

Aluminum Ware Popular.

"In the last twenty years, a great many efforts have been made to introduce aluminum household ware," said a hardware man recently, "but until lately without success. Conditions were the same in the past as now, with one vital exception — the public mind was not ready to perceive and appreciate the real value of these articles. There is no trouble about selling them now. They appeal at once to the prospective user, who is generally a woman, because they are attractive in appearance. They are practically everlasting, and, best of all, they embody the sanitary idea, which has become so widespread of late.

Notes.

A new perpetual calendar has been put on the market by a New York firm. By means of a celluloid film on reels, marked with a series of different length red lines, the calendar marks off automatically each day of the month. It is made up in red, green, and purple leather, and also in mahogany.

The 1912 wheat harvest in Victoria, Australia, yielded 20,891,877 bushels, in South Australia, 5,149,899 bushels, and in Western Australia 5,149,899 bushels, showing a shrinkage of 18,680,903 bushels, as compared with the previous year's crop.

According to the latest available statistics the Republic of China now has 5,960 miles of railroad opened to traffic and has 2,273 miles under construction.

For the month of August, this year, registrations of cinematograph companies in the United Kingdom numbered 27, and represented an aggregate capitalization of $606,850, in contrast to 33 registrations, with $466,700 capital in the coresponding month of 1912.

Exports to the United States from the Bradford, England, consular district for the first nine months of 1913 totalled $7,386,446, a decrease of $3,968,199 from last year. Raw wool shows the greatest decline, these shipments totalling only $2,116,096, compared with $6,019,748 in 1912.

Exports of almonds from the Palermo, Italy Consular district in 1912 showed an increase of $134,023 over the value of those of the previous year. There was a decrease of $87,308 in the exports of filberts that year, however.

WITH YOUR BACK AGAINST THE WALL

By RUTH CAMERON

How many people go through life without ever knowing half the force there is in them, just because adversity never comes to drag it out.

Many a man astonishes his friends, and most of all, himself, when he shows what he can do when his back is pushed against the wall.

A friend of mine had a collie dog. He was a wonderfully intelligent animal. He would bring in the cow with the crooked horn when so ordered, or round out half a dozen sheep from the flock, or do any of the marvellous sheep-dog tricks which stagger the credulity of all except those who know these wonderful beasts.

But there was one thing he could not do. He could not, or rather would not, fight. If he saw another dog coming down the road, he would desert his master and run home, with his tail between his legs.

Now his master, being a wise man, conceived a wise idea. He decided he would see what Bobbie could do if he had his back up against the wall; and so, one day, when Bobbie started to skulk away at the sight of another dog his master took him by the scruff of the neck and held him until the other dog was upon him. Then Bobbie had to fight and he fought, and in no time he had licked that other dog to a frazzle.

Bobbie's master, the owner of the other dog, and the other dog himself, were all surprised, but Bobbie was the most surprised of all. Nor was that the end of it. The coward was gone forever. Bobbie is now the champion of the village.

That's life.

A few human beings will put forth their utmost force and efficiency of their own accord, but most men have to be pushed against the wall to show what stuff they are made of.

A newspaper man was offered a fine job with a fixed salary by a magazine. He took the position, began to pat himself on the back and to do slovenly work. At the end of one year he lost his job. He tried to get back his old place on the newspaper and couldn't even do this. He had an expensive wife and children and no money. His back was hard against the wall. He had to do good work and he did it. To-day he is writing far better fiction than he ever wrote in his life.

Nobody welcomes adversity. Nobody likes to believe that he is going to be up against it. The thought of having your back pushed hard against the wall is alarming to all but the stoutest hearts, and yet that's what makes men,—and women. My hand to the man with his back against the wall. Courage, comrade, next year you will be thanking God for the adversity which pushed you there and gave you a chance to find the stuff that was in you.

NOT YET AT THE BOTTOM.

"I want the woman strikers to have the independent spirit of a lady I used to know," said the leader, addressing some of the strikers. "This lady had a neighbour who had prospered. The neighbour, a very spiteful sort, for all her property, said to my friend one day:

"I see you're still your own washerwoman, Kate."

"Yes," Kate answered cheerfully, "but thank goodness, I haven't been reduced to playing nursemaid to a

SOME ON THE DOCTOR, TOO.

A doctor who had a custom of cultivating the lawn and walk in front of his home every spring engaged O'Brien to do the job. He went away for three days and when he returned found O'Brien waiting for his money. The doctor was not satisfied with his work and said:

"O'Brien, the whole walk is covered with gravel and dirt and in my estimation it's a job."

O'Brien looked at him in surprise for a moment and replied:

TO WED AT 76

MONTREAL, Nov. 3. — Love's young dream came rather late in life to Miss Emmeline Smith, a passengen on the Allan Line steamer Virginian, which arrived in port this morning from Liverpool. Miss Smithers, who is hale and hearty, despite her 76 years, is an ardent suffragette, and a firm believer in militant methods.

Miss Smithers is on her way to Winnipeg, where she is going to wed J. D. Campbell, who is 68 years of age, and a rich grocer there, who came to this country nearly twenty years ago, during which period the couple have corresponded regularly. "You know," said Miss Smithers, "we would have been married years ago, but I could not pluck up enough courage to cross the Atlantic.

"Were you afraid to travel alone on the water?"

"No, that was not the reason, because Joe, my sweetheart, came over for me at least once a year, but I couldn't for the life of myself get enough courage to cross over," continued Miss Smithers. "I am sure that suffrage will become law in this country very soon, and if it does not I am going to have a good try to make it after I am married."

It takes a snail fourteen days and five hours to travel a mile, says an exchange. But that's nothing compared to the slowness of the average man when asked to bring in a bucket of coal or to hand over $5 towards his wife's autumn hat.

Girl Was Rescued

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Josephine McLoughlin, a fourteen-year-old girl, missing from home for a week, and for whom a general police alarm had been sounded, was rescued this afternoon from a band of alleged traffickers in women, who had taken her clothing from her and kept her prisoner since the night of her disappearance.

A note imploring aid was written by the girl to-day and pushed through the shutters of a window. It fluttered down before the feet of a citizen who notified the police, who made a spectacular raid of the place, and took two prisoners.

Went With Young Man.

The girl told the police that she left her mother's home on the night of 23rd October with a young man she had met a few days previously to attend a dance. Her escort took her, instead, to the flat from which she was rescued to-day. There she met a man and woman who appeared to be waiting for her. They confiscated her clothing and watched her closely till this morning, when their vigilance was relaxed long enough for her to write the note appealing for help.

John Hamilton, a driver, one of the girl's alleged captors, was locked up on a charge of abduction. A girl companion was charged with disorderly conduct. She said her name was Elizabeth Clark, and the police, on searching their records, found that her disappearance from home had been reported a month ago by her father, and that a general alarm for her, too, had been issued. The police sought the young man who took the McLoughlin girl to the flat. His arrest was believed to be imminent. The flat is in a tenement house on the upper West Side.

IS WANTED BADLY

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Said to be wanted as a swindler in England, Canada, and a dozen American cities, "Professor" Charles Dennis, a member of the alleged "Clairvoyant Trust," which was broken up here last spring, is in the hands of the Chicago police, and will face trial on several indictments charging fraud.

Dennis was arrested in Boston, on 24th October, and was held in secrecy until turned over to the Chicago police. He was brought back here last night.

Among the criminal transactions charged against the "professor" and for which indictments have been returned are:

Swindling five Chicago people, among whom were two employees of the International Harvester Company; arranging with another "professor" for holding up two clairvoyant friends who had "cleaned up" $6,000 and a $1,500 diamond ring in Louisville; swindling many persons in New York by card games, wire tapping, and clairvoyancy; assaulting a girl in Buffalo; forfeiting bond in Montreal; arranging two "fake" horse races in England, one for $35,000 and one for $5,000; operating an alleged $10,000 clairvoyant swindle in Peoria, Ills., and swindling trans-Atlantic and trans-continental tourists.

Dennis is wanted in Chicago as "Professor" Salisbury. He is also known under half a dozen aliases.

A woman in Chicago wants a divorce from her husband because he threw a six-pound ham at her. We're not like that, and anyone who wishes is at perfect liberty to shower six-pound hams upon us. Think what a saving on the winter's meat bill.

Was a Great Blessing.

Lawrence D'Orsay, the actor, recalled an incident that happened in one of the Western States. Some time since a certain rural preacher who was more or less unsophisticated, was invited to a dinner given by an esteemed citizen at his handsome country home.

During the dinner a milk punch was quietly placed at the plate of each guest, and the good dominie, like the others, quaffed the delicious beverage with evident pleasure.

"I feel, brother," impressively remarked the dominie as he set his drained glass upon the table, "that I should congratulate you on the great blessing that is yours."

"I don't quite get you, Mr. Jones," returned the host wonderingly. "To what are you particularly referring?"

"To that milk, brother," was the earnest response of the pastor. "You should daily give thanks for having such a splendid cow."

TO REFORM BANKS

India's Financial Panics Call for Quick Action

TO ENCOURAGE DEPOSITS

CALCUTTA, Nov. 7.—The continued failure of banks in India is causing much alarm, and the Government is contemplating legislation restricting the use of the term "bank" in this country. The Government has no intention of posing irksome restrictions on solid banking institutions conducted by either foreign or domestic concerns.

Some of the clauses of the new measure approved by the Marquis of Crewe, Secretary of State for India, bear striking resemblances to many of the provisions of the currency bill now before Congress in Washington, and it is believed that the India Government has availed itself of information furnished as the result of the Senatorial hearing on banking and currency.

India also has banking problems peculiar to herself. The Indian public is lowly substituting for the time-honored custom of burying its gold, the more lucrative practice of making bank deposits, bearing interest. The Government considers that this practice should not only continue until checked, but should be encouraged by legislation, which will make the deposits as safe as possible.

For years the world's supply of silver has been appreciably lowered by the Indian habits of burying savings, but the abundance of this metal has rendered this practice comparatively harmless as far as the rest of the world is concerned.

Lately, however, with increased prosperity the East Indians have begun to bury gold with alarming results on the world's gold supply. Hence the anxiety of the Government to give India an irreproachable banking system.

WILL REFORM BARS.

Quebec May Substitute Tables For Long Mahogany.

QUEBEC, Nov. 7.—The gradual abolition of the bar in hotels, the collection of revenue, not by the sale of licenses for a fixed amount, but on a percentage basis, and the reduction of licenses in the cities and towns of the province, it is believed will be recommended in the report the license commission appointed by Sir Lomer Gouin to consider the liquor question in Quebec is now preparing, and which the session of the Legislature, which opens on Nov. 18, will consider. Legislation dealing with these points is expected to provide an interesting struggle in the House.

The exact nature of the recommendations that the commission will make will not be known until its report is tabled, but it is taken for granted that they will suggest legislation of a most drastic character. It is thought that, instead of the bar, hotels will be compelled to establish cafes, with tables and chairs, after the fashion of the European resorts.

ATTACK ON DIAZ.

General Is Stabbed In Streets of Havana by Mexican.

HAVANA, Nov. 7. — Gen. Felix Diaz, the Mexican general who fled from Vera Cruz on the American warship last week, was attacked by five men last night and stabbed, one or more times. The wounds were not serious. Gen. Diaz, with a party of friends, was attending the band concert in the plaza at the time. The attack created tremendous excitement.

Gen. Diaz was wounded behind the ear and in the neck, besides receiving several blows on the head from a cane. Diaz was removed to a hospital. His assailant, a Mexican, was arrested.

McIntyre Gets Two Years.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 7.—William McIntyre, former accountant of the Bank of Nova Scotia here, pleaded guilty before Judge Forbes in the county court yesterday to stealing $10,000 of the bank's funds. He was sentenced to two years in Dorchester Penitentiary at hard labor, but the judge said he would willingly recommend to the Department of Justice that McIntyre be released on parole.

It is understood a petition will be sent to the Minister of Justice along these lines, and that the bank authorities are ready to join in the petition.

GAMBLE ON TRIAL.

Union Man Appears on Charge of Damaging Rope.

WHITBY, Nov. 7.—The trial of Stead M. Gamble of Toronto, financial secretary of the Structural Iron Workers' Union on a charge of damaging a rope used to support a workmen's trestle on a C.N.R. bride, while a strike was on, began here yesterday.

The crown desired to delay the opening of the trial until Dr. Rogers, provincial analyst, who has been at Woodstock in the Beemer case, might be present. In order to get on with the case the defence admitted the contention which Dr. Rogers was to be called to prove, namely that a bottle which was found contained sulphuric acid, and that the damage done to the rope was caused by sulphuric acid.

Gamble appeared in the court room with his wife and two children, and seems to be quite confident. He pleaded not guilty.

An engineer named Black testified that on June 17 he saw Gamble and a man named McCaig in the vicinity of the bridge; McCaig left Gamble and went on toward the bridge, while Gamble sat on a coil of rope. Witness saw him moving his hands over the coil, but imagined he was whittling a piece of wood. Then he saw him throw over his shoulder something which glinted in the sun, and which he presumed was a flask. On June 21 the coil of rope was discovered to have been damaged, and the actions of Gamble came to his mind as being suspicious. Gamble had also thrown stones in the direction of the bottle he had tossed away.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dewart, Black held to his story. He admitted that at the time he had not suspected Gamble, but was really more watchful of McCaig. Mr. Dewart endeavored to show that there was ample opportunity during the period between June 16 and 25 for many other men to damage the rope. Gamble did not appear to be afraid of detection in his movements.

BRYCE IS HONOURED

Former British Ambassador to U.S. Banqueted in London

REPLIES TO HIS CRITICS

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A large and distinguished gathering welcomed the Rt. Hon. James Bryce, late ambassador to Washington at the dinner given in his honor by the Pilgrims last night. The American ambassador, Walter Hines Page, read messages from the President of the United States, John H. Choate, former ambassador at London, and others.

A large part of Mr. Bryce's speech was devoted indirectly and directly to replying to criticisms made by the Conservative papers of his work as ambassador. He emphasized the idea that the British ambassador to the United States had to deal with problems between Canada and the United States, for Canada's interests were as important to the Empire as were England's. He then made a direct reply to these criticisms, saying that he would not have noticed them except for the important principle involved.

An ambassador to a foreign country, he said, acted merely as the agent of his Government and carried out the instructions of his Government. The critics acted in ignorance, because the only persons who knew what the ambassador was trying to do was his Foreign Office and himself. The danger was that criticisms of an ambassador by the press of his own country had the effect of weakening his status and prestige with the country to which he was accredited.

He had been criticized for being absent from Washington. The criticism amused him, but he hoped the bad precedent would not be set of criticizing servants of the crown when absent upon business abroad, thereby injuring the public service itself.

Foul Play Suspected.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Nov. 7.—County officials are investigating what they believe to be the murder of John C. Byer, a veteran of the civil war, aged 70, whose badly decomposed body was found in his house about three miles from Cape St. Vincent, on Lake Ontario. He had been dead about a month, according to the coroner, and a considerable sum of money he is supposed to have had on his person is gone.

Two Sentenced To Death.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 7.—Herman F. Clarke and Frank Davis were yesterday afternoon found guilty of the murder of Police Constable James Archibald on a brush-covered lot on Powell street on May 28 when he surprised them in the act of packing their burglar tools after having committed a burglary. They will be hanged at New Westminster on January 15.

PRISONER EXPIRES.

"Drunk" Dies at Police Station After Hasty Diagnosis.

TORONTO, Nov. 7. — Thought to have been suffering from the effects of alcoholism a man who, from papers found in his possession, is believed to be one Levine of Cleveland, Ohio, died yesterday morning in No. 2 Police Station and the police are now endeavoring to locate his relatives. An inquest will be held this evening at the Morgue.

Levine was found on York street by Constable Norton, who summoned the patrol wagon as he thought also that the man was in an advanced state of intoxication.

Sergt. Crowe of No. 2 Police Station sent him to the General Hospital, where the case was diagnosed as one of intoxication and the man was sent back to the police station.

The station duty man made him as comfortable as possible, but shortly afterwards found him in a dying condition. Before he could be sent again to a hospital he had died.

Several similar cases have occurred in the past few years.

DODGES THE ISSUE.

Prosecuting Lawyer Talks of Everything But Beiliss.

KIEV, Russia, Nov. 7.—The name of Mendel Beiliss, the man standing trial for the alleged murder of the Christian boy, Andrew Yushinsky in March, 1911, was barely mentioned in the speech of counsel for the prosecution yesterday. This was remarked by those present in court as the same thing that happened when counsel delivered his opening speech on the indictment. Toward the end of his address to the jury, however, prosecuting counsel expressed his profound conviction that Beiliss was guilty.

M. Zamislovsky, counsel for the Black Hundred, followed, repeating the prosecutor's arguments, but, contrary to expectation, in a tone of great moderation. His restraint is generally attributed to powerful external influence.

ORME

POISON IN EGG CUP

Farm Hand Says "Yes," Mr. Beemer Says "No."

NO EGG CUPS IN HOUSE

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 7—The Beemer trial was resumed at the court house yesterday morning at nine o'clock. Mrs. Beemer appeared, looking comparatively fresh after Wednesday's hard day.

Much interest attached to the evidence of John Mason, one of the central figures of the case. He testified that he had been employed by James Smart and was sent by his employer to render aid to the sick man's family by cutting wood.

Upon his arrival there, the witness said, he found Beemer suffering extreme pain and asking for water. He was sent to summon the doctor, and on his return found Mrs. Beemer pouring some white stuff from a small bottle labelled "poison" in white letters into an egg cup which stood on the table, after which she threw the bottle into the stove. She was apparently mixing what he thought was salts in a tea cup. Upon receiving the medicine, Beemer had remarked that it tasted very bitter, to which Mrs. Beemer replied that it was the same as he had been taking.

The witness had protested at the doctor's leaving poison around, and Mrs. Beemer remarked that it had been in the cupboard for several years, although she had previously told witness that the doctor had given her the medicine. He had not given this story at the inquest and did not make mention of it until the report of the analyst at Toronto was received, his reason being that he was not sure of his own judgment that Beemer had been poisoned.

Mason acknowledge to the defending lawyer that he had been convicted more than once in England; one charge being that of theft, and that he was sent out here by his father and a missionary who attended criminal courts to make a fresh start.

In direct contradiction to Mason's story was the evidence of Mrs. Beemer, who testified in her own behalf.

She declared that she had never kept egg-cups in the house, and that Mason was untruthful when he asserted that he had watched her empty poison into an egg-cup, which, it was alleged, she subsequently dumped into a dose of salts for her husband. She said she had no poison in the house, and had not purchased strychnine for over two years. It was a mystery to her why Mason should make such assertions, because she had positively dispensed no other form of medicine, salts or tablets, except that prescribed by Dr. Woolner. She entertained no fear of serious results until her husband had remarked, "Would you look after the children if anything happened to me?"

She had pondered over the remark and concluded that he was only joking, because he was desirous of living.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ball, Mrs. Beemer denied having heard her husband say in the presence of two of the crown witnesses that he felt like a man that had been poisoned.

"Do you suspect he took it himself?" queried the crown prosecutor.

"It is hard to believe it! I certainly did not do it," she replied.

Dr. Woolner, of Ayr, testified concerning his visits before and after Beemer's death, and said he had refused a burial certificate on the ground that the patient had been poisoned.

J. Rogers, the Toronto chemist who made the analysis of the stomach and liver of the late Frederick Beemer, stated that in the stomach he had found strychnine poisoning.

Dr. Jukes Johnson of Toronto expressed no doubt that death had been due to strychnine poisoning.

Dr. B. F. Henderson of Toronto was of opinion that strychnine had been the cause of death.

Dr. Mitchell of Drumbo submitted the poison book in his store, showing that Mrs. Beemer had purchased 12 grains of strychnine in February, 1911. He said that Beemer also had been in the habit of buying this poison.

Theresa Beemer, the 16-year-old daughter of Frederick Beemer, and the crown's last witness, corroborated the former evidence that Beemer had recovered from his first attack of illness. She stated that there were no egg-cups in the house, but that after her father's death had heard her mother say: "Thank God, I didn't buy any strychnine when he wanted me to kill mice."

Charles Coham was the first witness for the defence. He related a conversation he had with Beemer the latter part of March, shortly before his death, in which Beemer seemed very much worried over his financial affairs.

John Milton of Galt and George Buchanan of Galt, an uncle of the deceased, also testified that Beemer had complained to them of his poverty and poor health. He would be better dead than alive.

Mrs. David Troup, a neighbor of the Beemers, and Mrs. Bright of Galt stated that the relations between Beemer and his wife were always of the best.

OLIVE OIL AS FOOD

One of the most sensible things inaugurated of late is the taking of olive oil as food and medicine. Physicians have advised such uses of the oil, but it has only been of recent date that it has become a "fad." It has been proved in many cases to be not only a corrective of the liver, but a food for the system as well, and is of great benefit for weak stomach and bowels. The dose is usually a teaspoonful of oil to be taken half an hour before breakfast and half an hour after supper. The oil may be freely used with vegetables and on salads, as it is harmless and beneficial. Its use may be continued for years, and in assisting the liver to do its work (it is in most cases mildly cathartic), the complexion is cleared of the ugly brown spots and leathery yellow appearance due to torpidity of the liver. The taste is not unpleasant, although a liking for it has, in most instances, to be acquired. But very few effective medicines are really finely flavoured, although any unpleasant taste can be disguised. Many physicians strongly recommend its uses, both internal and external. It is excellent to use, after the bath, and many delicate persons —especially children — are greatly benefitted by being massaged with it. The best quality of oil can be procured at McDermid & Jury's Drug Store in 25 and 50c. bottles.

George and Clement Young, and Vivian Marple, were drowned in a small slough by falling through the ice at Invermere, B. C.

Maurice Chevaillard, French aviator, yesterday imitated Pegoud, and flew over the aerodrome at Versailles in his biplane head downwards.

Lieutenant-Governor Brown opened the Saskatchewan Legislature yesterday, forecasting a measure to provide for agricultural credits.

Sidney Smith, a boy of eleven, lost his life in Edward's Lake, near South Porcupine, but rescued Mina Hogg, aged 12, who had broken through the ice.

No decision has been reached by the Dominion Government and no definite steps taken in regard to securing a site for the Canadian building in London.

The next development in aviation will be the "flying motorcycle" according to Glenn H. Curtiss, aviator, and builder of the Curtiss aeroplane and flying boat.

Dr. L. C. Prevost of Ottawa, one of Canada's leading authorities on gynaecology, died yesterday at Saranac Lake, N.Y. He had been ill for about a year with tuberculosis.

C. H. Minchin, former assistant city treasurer of Calgary and alderman, was found guilty of the theft of $5,000 from the city and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Mrs. Anna Tasnes, 30 years old, strangled herself to death in the Beth Israel Hospital at Newark, N.J., without disturbing eleven other patients or a nurse who sat within a few feet of her.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The Farm
Family First

To me that which counts for most around a farm home is the comfort and happiness of the members of the household. Virginia C. Meredith says: "It might be a forestaste of Paradise if the money earned on the farm was spent for the betterment of the farm and the farm family." I prefer to read this quotation, "for the betterment of the farm family and the farm."

I believe that many farmers spend more time planning how they may add another 50 or 100 acres of land to their farms or of investing their money in some way that will bring financial results, than in how they may provide more comforts for the home. But really isn't the latter the more profitable of the two?

PUT PLANS INTO FORCE.

It seems to me that at this season of the year especially, when we think of needed conveniences in the home, our minds immediately turn to a furnace and running water. Now is the time, housewife, before the cold weather sets in, to persuade your husband to install that furnace that you have been talking about every fall for years.

A furnace is surely a convenience that should be in every farm home nowadays. In too many homes, however, we find that as a general rule the only room that is kept warm all the time is the kitchen. The other rooms in the house are cold and damp and anything but inviting. Under these conditions, when work has been completed for the day everyone must sit in the kitchen. How much nicer it would be if the house was comfortably heated with a furnace. Then Mary could amuse herself and the other members of the family with music, or if John wished to read quietly in his own room he would be at liberty to do so and be comfortable.

CONSIDERABLE AMOUNT REQUIRED

And how about running water? It almost appears sometimes as though more water is used in the farm home in winter than in summer; but I suppose this is not the case. One does not mind carrying water from the well so much in summer, but when it is necessary to wade through the snow for every pail of water, the trips seem very frequent. And when water is required do we wrap up warmly before going out into the cold? Not very often. The most natural thing is to rush out without any protection from the severe weather. Then we wonder how we have contracted such a cold.

On a great many farms to-day the farmer has a complete water system in his stables. And yet on some of these farms where all the cattle have to do when they require water is to drink from a basin right at hand, the housewife still carries water daily from the well. I don't believe that these farmers are naturally hard-hearted or selfish, but so long as the women folk do not complain they thoughtlessly neglect these improvements.

Why not talk the matter over with your husband right now, sister, and if it is impossible to have running water and a bathroom installed this fall, plan to have water on tap in the kitchen at least. Then who knows but the bathroom may be forthcoming next spring.

Grandma Used Sage Tea To Darken Hair

She Mixed Sulphur With It to Restore, Colour, Gloss, Thickness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, grey or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

FALL WORK IN THE ORCHARD

Do we ever realize the full value of our small orchard? Many of us farmers who have considered the orchard as a mere sideline have been in the habit of cramming all our work on the trees into a day now and then in the springtime. This is not as it should be.

Of late we have heard much said about steady employment on the farm. The orchard offers this steady work if we will choose to go about it intelligently. There is work in the orchard in November just as there is work in October, in September, or in May.

This month is the month in which I would clean away all rubbish. Broken limbs and all dead wood I would remove to the fire heap, as pests both in the form of insects and fungi are apt to infest such quarters.

BURN THE FIRE BLIGHT

Did you ever notice any of your trees in June and July to be suddenly seized with a scorched-like appearance. They look as if a fire had swept through the branches and burned the leaves quite black. This is not due to fire, but to a deadly disease to which the Alexander and a few other summer varieties, I have noticed, are susceptible. Pear trees are even more liable to attack, and in a mixed orchard are generally the first to show the deadly symptoms.

This disease is known by the name of Fire Blight. If these affected branches were not removed and burned at the time they were noticed they should be immdiately taken out and completely burned, now that the busy season is over.

The Bitter Rot, which has the appearance of round sunken spots on the twigs, leaves, and fruit, should also find a place on the fire heap. Many other fungus diseases affect the leaves and fruit of the apple tree, but these can be mostly prevented by spraying, which should be duly performed next spring.

THE OLD SOD

Now what about the innumerable twigs and leaves affected with the diseases already mentioned that lie strewn on the sod? Can we not do something to prevent those untimely visits of rot and apple scab? I believe this is one reason why we should cultivate our orchards, since old sod gives refuge to the disease-affected parts.

Reference to the standard authorities will show that cultivation of the orchard should be undertaken in the early spring, yet they say little, very little, about late fall plowing after trees are dormant.

It seems to me that orchards, particularly old ones, requiring renovation, could with profit be plowed after the trees are dormant.

SHE GAINED 8 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was, in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. By using 18 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 16 pounds in weight."

THE SPLIT LOG DRAG

I have used the split log drag long enough to know its efficiency on clay roads. I never really understood the principle, however, until three or four years ago when a young Institute speaker explained it in this manner:

"Did you ever see a hog rolling around in a clay wallow? At first, after a rain, the water all sinks out of the wallow. Presently, however, the walls become impervious, and the water will stand in the wallow for weeks after a rain.

"That," said the speaker, "is the principle of the road maintained by the split log drag. You smooth over the surface with the drag until presently you have a hog wallow turned upside down. Instead of retaining the water it sheds it."

I have seen people smile when a split log drag enthusiast was talking. This simple illustration so thoroughly explains the operation and shows that the split log drag is effective in spite of its simplicity, that I pass it on for the benefit of others.

NERVES ARE SORE AND PAINFUL

Neuritis, or inflammation of the nerves, is the most painful of nervous ailments. You may feel the soreness or tenderness throughout the body, or it may be confined to certain nerves. In the head it is called neuralgia; in the hips and legs, sciatica; in the face, tic-doloreux, and in the chest intercostal neuralgia.

The application of dry heat affords relief from the lance-like pains, but the essential thing is to build up the exhausted nervous system by the persistent use of such a restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You will have other symptoms to warn you of the depleted condition of the nervous system, and this is your opportunity to restore to the body the energy and vigour of health.

While this great food cure is instilling new vitality into the starved nerve cells it is also forming new, firm flesh and tissue, and, by noting your increase in weight, you can prove beyond doubt the benefit being obtained by its use. This is Nature's way of curing diseases of the nerves, and it is the only way to obtain lasting benefit.

BEAUTY PAYS

I have not yet heard that any of the Provincial Government officials are taking up Farm and Dairy's suggestion re a beauty contest for cheese factories and creameries. I think it a capital idea. Even if the Government officials do not see fit to consider it, it strikes me that our butter makers might well clean up around the outside of their factories with the stimulus of a prize offered, and it would pay them well. Here is a little personal experience to illustrate the point.

In a creamery in the northern part of this county to which I at one time carted cream, was a butter maker who was cleanly enough inside the factory, but never considered that outside appearances counted. Littered around the front of the factory was all of the discarded machinery of the previous 15 years, and growing all over it were immense burdocks. In the course of time the factory changed hands. Likewise, the appearance of the factory changed. The machinery was cleared away, the weeds were cut down, and a very presentable lawn made. In spare minutes the factory was painted.

Every one began to take a little more interest in the local creamery. They saw that the new butter maker was anxious to do things right, and consequently when he called on his patrons to assist him, he was met with a much better response than had ever been accorded the former maker. It pays to clean up.

BURDOCK-BLOOD BITTERS

CURED A BAD ATTACK OF ECZEMA.

All skin diseases such as Eczema, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Rash, Boils, Pimples, and Itching Skin Eruptions, are always caused from the blood being in a bad condition, and it is impossible to eradicate them from the system unless you put your blood into good shape. This you can very easily do without the slightest trouble by using Burdock Blood Bitters.

It drives out all the humor from the blood, and makes it pure and rich, and not only are the unsightly diseases removed, and a bright clean complexion produced, but the entire system is renovated and invigorated at the same time.

Mrs. G. A. Day, Somerville, N.B., writes:—"Last spring I had a bad attack of Eczema. I tried several patent medicines as well as the medicine of a physician, but they seemed to make the disease worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and I did so with the result that in two weeks time the sores began to disappear. I continued to take it until I had taken three bottles and they worked a complete cure."

TO PLOUGH AMONG TREES

Many trees are killed or injured from being barked by the end of the whiffletrees when plowing or cultivating. The use of a 'traceless' orchard harness will avoid this danger and also make the work lighter for man and team, for the weight of the evener and whiffletrees is done away with. Such a harness, illustrated herewith, is made of a yoke, d, which is hung beneath the horses with a broad webbing band, a, that goes over their backs. When they are pulling the weight of the yoke is removed from their backs. Short traces are hitched to each end of the yoke and a pull bar is attached, b, from the middle of which is fastened the chain, c, that draws the plow or harrow.—Ex.

SEASONABLE POULTRY NOTES

Begin now to have things in snug condition for winter. Be careful that you do not take the young stock from airy coops and shut them into winter quarters that are warm and tight. Let them have plenty of fresh air but no draughts. Do not have too many windows as they make the houses hot during the day and cold at night.

Remember the birds have on their winter coats and are not in need of so much warmth. Damp and wet are far worse for fowls than cold, and hens are often kept from laying on account of poor houses. This time of the year a change to damp and cold will often give colds that will perhaps lead to a case of roup during the winter.

Keep the house, clean, warm and dry, disinfect often and much will be done to prevent disease. Warm and dry quarters are necessary for the birds that are not through with moult.

Do not keep the cockerels intended for market too long as the price is going down as it is now November, and the turkey has the right of way.

If you have a number of cockerels on hand and they fight a great deal, put an old cock in with them. He will settle the scraps and be proud of his job.

Some of the best girls that are shown at the shows this season have been raised on the farm. The farmer can let them have free range and a variety of food, both of which are valuable in the production of shape and color.

Early hatched pullets, or yearling hens that have moulted in season; airy houses that have not too many glass windows and no draughts; plenty of litter to keep the fowl busy scratching; a good supply of fresh air; clean water, shell and grit; and all this mixed well with a good supply of human kindness is a simple recipe for getting eggs this winter.

Bank the houses to keep them free from draughts and keep enough litter on the floor to keep their feet warm and to give them plenty of exercise scratching for their morning feed. The circulation of the blood is very active through a hen's foot and she cannot make her food into eggs if it takes too much of it to keep her feet warm.

The weather seems to have the same effect on poultry as it does on people. On gloomy days if the stock seems to

EDWARDS' desiccated SOUPS strengthen weak stews, they impart the fine fresh flavour of Irish garden-grown vegetables to tasteless soups; they make the gravy much more savoury; they improve nearly all the recipes in the cookery book;—these handy "Jacks of all Dishes," these Edwards' desiccated Soups. The food bills will be smaller, the appetites larger, the cooking better, and the work easier, with Edwards' Soups to help you in the kitchen.

Important: Remember to let them boil for at least half-an-hour.

EDWARDS' DESICCATED SOUPS

But you MUST boil them for half-an-hour — worth it.

Edwards' Soup is good as a soup by itself, it is good as a strengthener of other soups; good as a thickener of gravies; good for hashes, good for stews—too good to be spoiled by insufficient boiling.

WHO ARE YOUR COMPANIONS?

Intercourse with persons of virtue and excellence is of great importance in the formation of character. The force of example is powerful. We are creatures of imitation, and by a necessary influence our tempers and habits are very much formed on the model of those with whom we associate. Ill qualities are infectious as well as diseases, and the mind is more liable to infection than the body. The greater part of our education is obtained through example, rather than precept. This is especially true respecting character and habits. How readily does a child copy all that he sees done around him, whether it be good or bad.

It is a true maxim that a man is known by the company he keeps. He naturally assimilates by the force of imitation to the habits and manners of those by whom he is surrounded. Evil company is like tobacco smoke, "you cannot long be in its presence without carrying away the taint of it." We should avoid as much as possible the company of all vicious persons, for no vice is alone and all are infectious. When unrestrained, we are prone to choose and associate with those whose manners and dispositions are agreeable and congenial to our own. Good company not only improves our manners, but also our minds. If they be pious they will improve our morals; if they be polite they will tend to improve our manners; if they be learned they will add to our knowledge. On the other hand, if they be immoral, ignorant, vulgar, their impress will most surely be left upon us.

Troubled With Weak Back and Kidneys For 10 Years.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Take notice to the warning and cure the backache on the first sign, for if you don't do this, serious complications are sure to arise and perhaps develop into Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills will strengthen the weak back, and prevent any form of kidney trouble entering the system.

Mrs. Ed. Boyer, Nokomis, Sask., writes:—"I have been troubled with weak back and kidneys. I had terrible dizzy headaches, and could not sleep at night. In this way I suffered for ten years, until I read about Doan's Kidney Pills. I purchased two boxes, and as they helped me, I sent for two more; they put me on my feet, and I have been able to work ever since."

There's Something Wrong. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Will Right It.

Thousands of Women Feel Just Like This.

When it seems as if you simply could not bear up any longer it is high time to look for the cause of the trouble—and the remedy. In an astonishingly large number of cases the real cause of woman's misery is found to be constipation, and the remedy that always cures is Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Neglect of the daily movement of the bowels, so necessary to health, soon poisons the whole system from the impurities retained in the body. Headaches, indigestion, biliousness and lassitude follow, and often more serious female disorders are brought on or aggravated.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only regulate the bowels, but they stimulate kidneys and skin as well to throw off waste matter and purify the blood. The result is quickly apparent in the disappearance of the headaches and biliousness, and the return of health and vigor. Thousands of women all over the world owe their present good health to Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

A RULER'S HOME LIFE

King George is Described as the Best Father in England

The King's home life and tastes were described by a writer in the Liverpool Daily Post.

"In private life he is the simplest and quietest of English gentlemen," the article says. "He is the most domestic of men, the kindest of fathers, and always happy in the bosom of his family. The King is the best father in England. Next to his children, the King best likes agriculture, but he has practically no time for this.

"His Majesty is a most abstemious man, not fond of champagne, but as a rule drinking a light white wine or whiskey well diluted with mineral water. The King loves a good English cheese both at lunch and when he is dining quietly. He likes a cheroot, somewhat mild cigar, and it is not unusual for him to consume a dozen a day.

"He has very little leisure for reading beyond what he devotes to studying the daily papers, but when he takes up a book it is never a novel, but a volume of geographical exploration, and he is fond of studying the reports of the Geographical Society."

THE AGE OF THE WORLD

Record of Mankind Goes Back Only to the Merest Yesterday

The age of our world, this ball on which we are whirled round and round the sun, and onwards with our solar system through infinite space, can only be estimated vaguely. Professor Ulrich, one of the greatest living authorities on this subject, stated at Toronto that the world is from 75,000,000 to 750,000,000 years old, and that his own estimate would be somewhere in the neighborhood of 300,000,000 years.

Our historical records, that is of humanity, cover only a few thousand years. When man first appears on the scene in these records he is far advanced in civilization. He has domesticated the horse and other animals; he has flocks and herds and he tills the soil. He has vehicles and tools to help him in his work. He has bows and arrows, spears and swords for defence. He can communicate his ideas in a speech which submits itself to rules of grammar. He can dig ores out of the earth, and convert them into workable metals.

Before this point was reached there must have been a long history of toil and endeavor. Its joys and its tragedies have never been described, and can only be imagined. Efforts have been made to write a history of civilization, but such histories must always be imperfect, because the tollsome beginnings of civilization can be the subject only of conjecture. The savage tribes of our own and recent times give us examples of civilization carried a certain distance and then arrested. The pioneer, moving from a civilized to a wild country, may realise some of the difficulties and dangers of his ancestor in remote ages. But he has the forces of civilization behind him, and communication by rail and telegraph and steamship has now been so highly developed that the immigrant changes his environment far less than he did forty years ago.

Women Compared With Men in Feats of Endurance

The athletic young woman of the twentieth century has shown that there are some sports in which she could give points and a beating to the men of her grandfather's time.

Take golf, for instance. Some few years ago, Miss Nancy Hazlet did a 77 at Burnham on a rough day. It would take a very fine player of the other sex to equal this score, let alone to beat it. And, more lately, Miss Leitch showed that even an Open Champion could only just give her a hit—that is, nine strokes in an eighteen hole round. This is all the more wonderful when you come to consider that the longest drive yet achieved by a woman is 234 yards, whereas a man has driven a golf ball a distance of 370 yards.

Mastering Ben Nevis

Men have run the hundred yards in under ten seconds, but no woman has done the distance in less than thirteen, and man can long jump nearly twenty-five feet as against less than fifteen by the best feminine athlete.

"Daily enough, when it comes to spells of endurance rather than short and concentrated effort, women shows up to much better advantage. Take, for instance, the favorite race up Ben Nevis, which is a terrific strain even for the best trained man. The time taken by the champion runner was just an hour and a half. A woman has done it in under two hours.

"In long distance swimming the case is similar, for while a man is one-fifth faster than a woman in swimming a hundred yards, what if choice to a mile race in the water man is only one-fourth faster than his best feminine competitor. In other words, a man has only ten seconds' advantage over a woman in a mile swimming race. There is actually a case on record of a thirteen-miles swimming race, from Brooklyn to Coney Island, in which two girls came in ahead, beating no fewer than thirty-one men. Madame Isaacson, the Austrian lady swimmer, has done forty-eight miles in the Danube against the current in just over eight hours. Very few men could emulate such a magnificent swim, especially in fresh water.

In Shooting

Coming to shooting, we find that women can hold a rifle as straight as most men. A team of European ladies living in the Straits Settlements actually beat a team of marksmen by 19 points, the distance being 100 yards and the weapons rook-rifles. And with the gun, too, there are women who can bring down fast-flying birds with unerring accuracy.

The Duchess of Bedford has killed 115 partridges in a day's driving, and more than 200 pheasants in one day's covert shooting. She has also bagged 39 wild ducks with 56 cartridges, a record that any man might be proud of. A woman is not so quick with her cartridges as a man, but, apart from that, she is practically his equal as a game shot.

Mountain Climbing

At mountaineering, woman has showed herself to be able to bear the strain of climbing great heights. Mrs. Bullock Workman has climbed a peak 23,560 feet in height. Very few men alive can boast of having accomplished such a feat as that.

At long distance cycling man is hard pressed by the other sex. At a hundred miles on the road the latter is barely an half an hour slower than her male competitor.

There is just one game at which ladies can boast that they are equal to men. This is croquet. Miss Lilian Gower, after winning the Ladies' Championship, threw down the gauntlet to men, and proved victorious.

The Soft Answer.

There was an old darkey who drove the solitary hack in a small town on the Virginia shore where the late Senator Daniel had spent the season. In good weather the Senator, who was lame, was its only patron, but in storm the old vehicle was so popular that he had narrowly missed several engagements owing to the old man's taking more orders than one antiquated chariot could possibly fill.

One stormy night the Senator said: "Now, Jordan, be here to-morrow morning in time to take me to the ten o'clock boat without fail. I have an important engagement in Washington."

Jordan drove away, promising to show up in good season. But next morning a quarter to ten came, and no Jordan. Finally, at five minutes to ten, he drove up, and the Senator climbed, and started on a mad race to the wharf, arriving there just in time to see the boat pulling out.

"Now, Jordan," cried the exasperated Daniel, "I said we'd miss it!"

"Yes, suh, dat's so, but," with sudden inspiration, "she ain't been long gone."

THE MODERN WONDER

It is surprising what a single cent's worth of electricity will do. Taking 10 cents a kilowatt hour as a basis, it will do any one of the following things:

Bring two quarts of water to a boil.
Run an electric broiler for six minutes.
Operate a twelve-inch electric fan for eight minutes.
Heat a luminous radiator eight minutes.
Make a Welsh rabbit in an electric chafing dish.
Operate a sewing machine motor for three hours.
Keep a four-inch disk stove hot for fifteen minutes.
Operate a seven-inch frying pan for twelve minutes.
Make four cups of coffee in an electric percolator.
Keep a foot warmer hot for a quarter of an hour.
Keep an electric flatiron hot for fifteen minutes.
Raise 250 gallons of water 100 feet.
Keep a dentist's electric hammer and drill running for one hour and a half.

SHORT HONEYMOONS

Members of the Royal Family Have Little Time for Long Wedding Trips

It has always been the custom of members of the British Royal Family to pass the first few days of their married life very quietly. King George and Queen Mary, for instance, drove away from Buckingham Palace directly after the wedding "breakfast" and reception had taken place to York Cottage, where they remained for some time.

The Princess Royal and the late Duke of Fife passed their honeymoon for the most part in their favorite Scotland, subsequently staying for a time with Queen Victoria at Balmoral. Royal Honeymoons, as a rule, are rather short since even in the case of junior members of the reigning family they have so many public and semi-public duties to perform that they cannot even at this interesting period of their lives devote very much time to even a wedding holiday.

When the late King Edward was married the honeymoon lasted precisely nine days, passed at Osborne, when the newly-united couple returned to Windsor to enter upon a long round of exacting public duties. This included an evening reception at St. James's Palace, when the leading figures in London society thronged to the old palace to do homage to the "Sea King's" fair young daughter.

It is very rarely indeed that a British Royal couple pass their honeymoon outside their own country, and, indeed, one has to go back for many years to discover such an instance. The late Duke of Edinburgh and his bride, however, passed some days in Russia shortly after their wedding. Princess Henry of Battenberg, too, paid a short visit to Germany shortly after her wedding at Osborne on July 23rd, 1885. These are the only notable exceptions to the rule that Royal honeymoons are passed in the British Isles.

A PECULIAR VEIL

A Mohammedan belle of Muscat, Arabia, wearing the mask-like veil without which she would not appear in public. These veils are made of red or black silk, and their universal use in Arabia makes it very hard to judge whether the ladies may or may not be classed as beauties.

AN UNUSUAL TRADE

Among the many curious trades that are carried on in different parts of Great Britain, that of worm-gathering is one of the most weird, but certainly one of the most remunerative. The chief centre of this strange industry is Nottingham, upon which the anglers of England depend chiefly for their supply of red worms. They are the most tempting bait for certain classes of fish, and to catch the worm requires almost as much skill as to hook a fish.

It is for barbel-fishing that the worms are principally used, and every day large quantities are sent to anglers on the Thames. Sixty-five cents a thousand is the general price paid for worms, and in a favorable season a good gatherer can "bag" as many as 30,000 a week. One man has been known to have earned $6.00 in one night, but that is a record which is seldom reached even by the most expert "wormer." In a dry season, however, the price goes up by 12c, and sometimes 25c a thousand, and in a very exceptional year it rose to as high as $1.25 a thousand.

The greatest demand for worms is in the weeks immediately preceding Bank holidays, and it is not uncommon for as many as 100,000 to be dispatched from Nottingham during that period. But, strange to say, the worm is not so popular as a bait as it was some years ago, nor has the general demand increased in proportion to the number of fishermen.

ROYAL WARRANTS CONFER PRESTIGE

They Are Issued to Merchants and Manufacturers Patronized by the Sovereign

Once a year in the New Year's "Gazette," appears a long list of tradesmen who are holders of Royal warrants. This list at present considerably exceeds twelve hundred names. It has grown greatly of late years, for at the time of the death of Queen Victoria, the number was not quite nine hundred.

It is a privilege greatly coveted and much envied—this of the Royal warrant, for it is not one lightly bestowed upon every tradesman who has supplied goods to his Majesty's household. It is distinctly a mark of Royal favor, and to some extent also a testimonial to the excellence of the purveyor's goods.

Its principal outward sign is the use of the Royal arms over the shop front and upon the writing-paper of the warrant-holder, and it is an offence against law for any person, not being a warrant-holder, so to use the arms.

Once a warrant is granted it is very rarely revoked before the death of the holder. Bankruptcy, however, or a conviction for fraudulent dealing annuls it.

A Royal warrant is granted personally to the head or owner of a business, and therefore does not pass with the goodwill of the business. If the owner sells out or retires, his successor can no longer enjoy the privileges granted to a warrant-holder. Even the taking of a partner is sufficient to annul these privileges.

Thirty Butchers Honored

The authorities who issue Royal warrants are four in number. First there is the Board of Green Cloth, as it is called; in other words, the Lord Steward's department. The Board of Green Cloth is responsible for everything connected with the Royal table, and therefore its warrants go to butchers, bakers, fruit merchants, fishmongers, confectioners, poulterers, game dealers, wine and spirit merchants, tobacconists, and the like. Of butchers alone there are over thirty who hold the Royal warrant.

The Lord Chamberlain's duties comprise everything connected with the furniture, fittings, and repairs of the various Royal residences, and the large number of warrants which he issues comprise among their recipients wallpaper manufacturers, upholsterers, decorative painters, heraldic painters, glass and china manufacturers, masons, and even chimney sweeps.

The Master of the Horse has, of late years, issued many new warrants. In old days the warrants signed by the Master of the Horse went to carriage makers, harness manufacturers, and the like. To-day, they include motor manufacturers, makers of rubber tires, and other branches of the newest forms of locomotion.

Woman Issues Warrants

The fourth department which has to do with the issuing of Royal warrants is that which is under the Mistress of the Royal Robes. Among warrant-holders under this department are a maker of yachting shoes and manufacturers of tartan and of Highland cloaks.

The long list of Royal warrant-holders includes some curiosities. There is, for instance, a turtle merchant, a mustard manufacturer, a maker of bride cake, and a manufacturer of bagpipes.

Warrants are not confined to British tradesmen. There are a number of foreign firms which are entitled to exhibit the British Royal arms. Among these are manufacturers and merchants at Marienbad, Biarritz, Hyères, Nice; and in Gibraltar, Malta, India, and other of the oversea dominions.

Coffee From Figs

Ever since coffee has been a popular beverage, apparently, efforts have been made to find substitutes for it, either as mere adulterants, like chicory, or for the sake of greater wholesomeness or cheapness. Rye and other grains, lupine, acorns, beets and carrots have all been thus used, but the fig coffee of Austria is a decided novelty. An excellent coffee it is claimed to be made from dried and roasted figs, which need not be of the first quality.

They are dried in the sun or in evaporating pans, according to climate, and then roasted in ovens till brown or almost black and quite brittle. They are then ground up and the resultant powder is pressed into tablets. When made use of they are merely dissolved in hot water. The beverage is said to be agreeable in color and flavor with a somewhat sweeter taste than that made from chicory.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS

The worst feature of bronchitis is the tendency to return year after year until the system is worn out and gives way to consumption, or other disease.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine owes much of its great popularity to the fact that it positively cures bronchitis, and this is about as severe a test as can be made of a medicine of this kind.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years, had bronchitis, and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linsed and Turpentine for her, and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use, and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

In fighting diseases of the throat and lungs half the battle is in having Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine at hand to be used promptly. This is why many people prefer to buy the large family size bottle.

TO AVOID FIRES

Don't kindle fires in stoves with kerosene.
Don't put hot ashes and coal in wooden barrels or boxes.
Don't thaw out frozen water pipes with a torch or lamp.
Don't allow waste paper and rubbish to collect.
Don't use gasoline for cleaning in a closed room.
Don't look for gas leaks with a match or lamp.
Don't allow lace curtains near gas brackets.
Don't allow oily rags near stoves or about the premises.
Don't allow sawdust to be used in cuspidors or on floors.
Don't throw waste paper in a fireplace.
Don't throw cigarettes or cigars away lighted.
Don't keep matches in paper boxes, or lying about carelessly.
Don't use snapping parlor matches.
Don't forget that matches are the beginning of many conflagrations.
Don't hang your clothing near open fires or stoves.
Don't fill lamps after dark, and never when lighted.
Don't allow rubbish in hallways.
Don't burn leaves and dead grass on windy days.
Don't forget to have the chimneys of your home cleaned once a year.
Don't fail to look twice at everything that looks like fire.
Don't fail to give the fire department representatives every opportunity to make a careful examination of your property.
Don't fail to notify the chief of the fire department of anything you may see that is dangerous and liable to cause fire, remembering that every day is fire prevention day.

She Set a Trap For Him

By F. A. MITCHEL

A gentleman alighted from a railway train, took a cab and was driven to a suburban residence. His summons at the front door was answered by a maid in a white uniform, trimmed far more elaborately than is usual for servants. Indeed, had it not been for the cap on her head he would not have taken her for such.

"Is Miss Mulford at home?"

"No, sir; she's not. She's gone to the city."

"That's too bad. I've come a long distance to see her." The gentleman seemed much put out. He stood thinking what he would do next.

"Beg pardon, sir. Are you Mr. Fitz Hugh?"

"Yes."

"Please come in. Miss Mulford left a message for you."

Mr. Fitz Hugh entered the house, and the maid showed him into a very pleasant reception room. On a table he found a note addressed to him. It read:

My attorney has advised me that you will visit me for conference upon the settlement of our interests in the Ormsby estate in the hope that we may come to an agreement whereby litigation may be avoided. I have been called away today and have instructed my maid to keep you till my return this evening. Annie will provide you with whatever will enable you to pass the time so far as she can.

The maid stood by demurely waiting while the gentleman read the note. When he had finished he looked up at her admiringly and said:

"Miss Mulford assures me that you will do what you can to keep me till her return. The way for you to do that is not to give me books to read or pictures to look at, but to entertain me yourself."

"How could I do that, sir," protested the girl, "you being an educated gentleman and I only a lady's maid?"

"You can do it better than the lady herself. Heaven protect me from these intellectual women. They know just enough about a subject to show their want of depth and think all the while that they are showing their brains in my opinion a woman is intended for motherhood and has no business with ideas."

"Oh, sir, you're very hard on us poor women."

"Not on your kind—on women who know everything. Doubtless if you had left Miss Mulford to entertain me she would have bored me with a lot of opinions that would interest no one but herself."

"What kind of woman is your ideal?"

"To me amiability and beauty are the only requisite traits."

"Then you don't care for smart women at all?"

"I don't wish one of them to come near me."

"Not even a woman who is capable of taking care of her business affairs? Miss Mulford wouldn't suit you, sir, for she's all of that."

The maid entertained Mr. Fitz Hugh during the day by listening to him talk. By the afternoon mail came a note from Miss Mulford asking him to leave a proposition with Annie since she would be delayed in the city for several days. He submitted a basis for settlement, and Annie picked out several points in it that would lead to trouble. He saw and corrected them at once and complimented her on her foresight. Then he left her and returned to the city.

In a few days he received a note from Miss Mulford that she was sorry to give him another journey, but she would be pleased to have him call again. He went, wishing that he might find the lady again absent and be turned over to the care of the maid. "That girl," he said to himself, "is just what I'd want for a wife—that is, if she were in the same social class with myself."

On reaching the house he was admitted by a butler, which was a great disappointment to him. He had intended to say a few nice things to the maid before seeing her mistress. He was ushered into the same room as before, and in due time Annie came into the room dressed like a lady. Fitz Hugh looked at her surprised.

"Mr. Fitz Hugh," she said, "pardon me for playing maid the other day. I desired before entering upon a discussion with you as to business affairs of great importance to both of us to learn what kind of man I had to deal with. I found you, I am happy to say, a gentleman of sound ideas, liberal and capable of understanding your own interest as well as mine. You know that it is in your power to deprive me of my interest in the estate if I go to law. In other words, I am at your mercy. Can you blame me for learning your disposition before taking action?"

"No, I can't," rejoined Fitz Hugh earnestly. "I can suggest a way by which our interests can be made identical."

"What way?" asked the lady, dropping her eyes before his impassioned gaze.

"Marry me."

"I will," said Miss Mulford.

A few days later Miss Mulford visited her attorney.

"Well?" he asked. "What luck?"

"I've got him."

"Good! It was your only chance to save anything. How did you manage it?"

"Oh, that's a little story," she replied, and, dropping into a seat, she told him of her ruse to trap Mr. Fitz Hugh.

Our idea of genuine love is when a woman can listen to her husband learning to play the cornet and still entertain kindly feelings towards him.

LONDON FOG

This Mist Has Been Inconveniencing Londoners For Many a Year

There are records as far back as the seventeenth century which indicate that London suffered even in those days from mists as intense as any of those to-day.

In November, 1609, Lord Evelyn made a note in his diary to the effect that there was "so thick a mist and fog that people lost their way in the streets, it being so intense that no light of candle or torches yielded any direction. Robberies are committed between London and Kensington on both sides and while coaches and passengers were passing. It began about 4 in the afternoon and was gone by night. At the Thames they beat drums to direct the waterman to make the shore."

Visitors to London in those days were in the habit of making fun of the fog just as the visitors of to-day. Condomara, Spanish Ambassador in Queen Elizabeth's time, said to a friend who was returning to Spain: "My compliments to the sun, whom I have not seen since I came to England."

In Elizabeth's time the burning of coal was prohibited while parliament was in session. So dense were the fogs during the years of 1813 and 1814 that when the Prince Regent tried to make his way to Hatfield, the home of Lord Salisbury, he could not find his way and was compelled to forego the trip and return to Carleton house, which he reached after a succession of accidents.

WHY I WOULD LIME SOIL

Four years ago, while travelling through the Niagara belt, I talked with a farmer at the corner of a field that showed a luxuriant growth of alfalfa. On one side of the field, for about 50 feet, was a pile of stone chips, which, on closer examination, I found to be of a limestone nature. What really attracted me to make this close examination was the fact that in the close proximity to the stone pile the alfalfa showed a still more generous growth than in the rest of the field.

We often hear that the supply of lime will benefit certain soils, but peculiarly enough the soil to which I refer appeared to be an excellent soil of good friable loam. This clearly shows that lime may be applied at regular intervals to even the best of our soils to considerable advantage in so far as certain crops are concerned. My friend told me that he had grown alfalfa in this field without interruption for over 10 years. He took three crops every year, which were sufficiently good to cause him to continue this method without introducing any rotation. It is well known that alfalfa will not thrive well in a acidic soil, so that the fact of this stone pile affecting to such a marked degree the situation would make one believe that this style of cropping was either producing poisons in the soil or failing to liberate sufficient plant food of a potassium or phosphoric nature.

LITTLE LIME, BUT OFTEN

A few years ago it was the custom in supplying lime to the soil to make the applications at periods varying from three to five years. Recent investigations tend to oppose such a procedure on the grounds that when much lime is applied to soil already containing quantities of ammonia, there is a loss due to the chemical action so produced. If the soil should contain large amounts of ammonia such as it will when a lot of humus is present, then the lime should be applied in smaller quantities, producing thereby a moderate supply only and so permitting the plant to use the liberated nitrogen before it escapes into the atmosphere or into the drainage water.

In supplying lime to a soil, we must take into account the particular nature of the crop to be grown. Raspberries, for instance, and also watermelon, will not thrive on a soil where lime is present to any degree, while certain crops, such as beet and alfalfa, show to considerable advantage when supplied with this element.

LIME AND PLANT DISEASES

Certain diseases seem to be assisted by the application of this fertilizer, while others are controlled, and even exterminated. Among the former class may be mentioned potato scab, among the latter club root of cabbage, or as it is sometimes designated, "finger and toes." Many of our noxious weeds seem to prefer soils of an acetic nature so that by frequent applications of lime we deplete their quantity.

Another advantage of liming, one which increases, in my estimation, with the increase in knowledge of bacterial activity in the soil, is that the bacteria which cause nitrification or the production of nitrogen from decomposing material, appear to thrive much better in soils which are not pronouncedly acidic. Liming corrects acidity in soils.

While a soil may increase its productivity by being supplied with lime, we may, on the other hand, over-supply it. Hence the injunction not to give a soil large quantities of lime at periods of three to five years, but rather to give it oftener, distribute it better and in small quantities. We will thus avoid diseases such as accrue from an over-supply.

LIME ON CLAY SOILS

On clay soils we can generally apply more lime than we can on those of a lighter nature. This is due to and also from the fact that the particles will be aggregated or brought into larger particles, thereby making the soil more porous. This may be termed as the chief physical action which lime affects on the soil.

On sandy soils, soils which are porous, the application of large quantities increases the production of nitrogenous gases to such an extent that the surplus that the crop cannot use either escapes into the atmosphere or is washed away by the underdrainage water, since so many nitrogenous compounds in the soil are soluble, and therefore removed in all porous soils.

I always prefer to do my liming in the fall, especially when using quick or slaked lime. By so doing, any injurious effects from its caustic nature are avoided. It also gives plenty of time for the lime to sink into the soil before you apply manure. Lime and manure must never be applied together, since loss of nitrogen from the manure will follow as a consequence. Limed land I manure in the spring.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A NARROW ESCAPE

By SAMUEL E. BRANT

When young Mrs. Marshall came to L., knowing that the start one makes socially in a place counts for a good deal, she made herself agreeable to every one, became familiar with only the best, was careful that her costumes were cut in the latest fashion, and since the dominant circle admitted of cavaliers for their prominent members, she rather encouraged the attentions of Huntington Dabney.

It must be admitted that keeping Mr. Dabney up to his duties as her cavalier was hard work. His main accomplishment was leading a cotillion, and he was not known to have any secondary one. Mrs. Marshall could stand to be put in a straitjacket costume and listen to society gossip, including private quarrels and the mishap of the last social climber who had fallen from an upper round of the ladder to the bottom, but found it tiresome, indeed, to pretend to be flirting with Huntington Dabney in a solitary corner at a function in order to maintain a reputation for being one of those ladies to whom husband and children are a bore. And it was the harder for her because she was devoted both to her husband and her children. As for Mr. Marshall, she told him in the beginning what her designs really amounted to, but he didn't take sufficient interest in the matter to remember the explanation.

Among the other penalties Mrs. Marshall must pay for effecting an entrance into L. society was the sitting in tight slippers for several hours at dinner parties. Her feet were tender, and for this reason her footwear was made of light material, but even silken slippers, made very small, binding the feet for hours on a stretch, will at last cause pain. It was sitting thus at a dinner party for an unusually long period that brought about a mishap to Mrs. Marshall that came very near plunging her to the foot of the social ladder and rendering her fall so unfortunate that she would not have been able to begin to climb again.

At the dinner in question Mr. Dabney was assigned to take Mrs. Marshall out. Mr. Marshall having been honored by being assigned to the hostess. Mrs. Marshall's shoe pinched, and after enduring a long period of suffering she slipped it off. Mr. Dabney, who was a restless man, must needs kick his legs about under the table till he sent the slipper off to parts unknown. When at last the innumerable courses had been finished and a pousse cafe put a close upon the feast the diners arose to go into another part of the house for a cotillion.

Mrs. Marshall, who had for some time been feeling with her toe for the missing slipper, finding that without some expedient she must go with the others in a stocking foot, so to speak when the party were rising, kept her seat, talking very hard to her cavalier pretending to be so wrapt in her subject as not to notice the movement. Of course the gentleman kept his seat, too, and was all attention. The lady watched out of the corner of her eye the retiring guests and saw that no especial notice was taken of her remaining behind. As soon as the others were all gone she informed Mr. Dabney that she had lost her slipper under the table and had lagged behind to recover it. Dabney started to get it himself, but the lady stopped him and, getting down, groped for the missing article. It was dark down there, and Mrs. Marshall was nearsighted. She hunted some time without success. Then Mr. Dabney's gallantry got the better of his discretion, and down he, too, went under the table to help.

The host had scarcely left the dining room before he proposed that the men return for a pony brandy. Several of the ladies whose heads were not easily overturned by spirituous beverages declared that they, too, wanted "another." Suddenly the dining room door was thrown open, and a merry party entered. Mrs. Marshall, realizing the horror of the situation of being caught under the table with her cavalier, whispered to him:

"For heaven's sake be still!"

Mr. Dabney obeyed orders. What else could he do? The host poured the liquor and all were standing around the table ready to drink when those under it heard him say:

"What the deuce became of Dabney and Mrs. Marshall? They didn't leave the dining room with the rest of us."

"They must have gone out by another door," suggested one of the women.

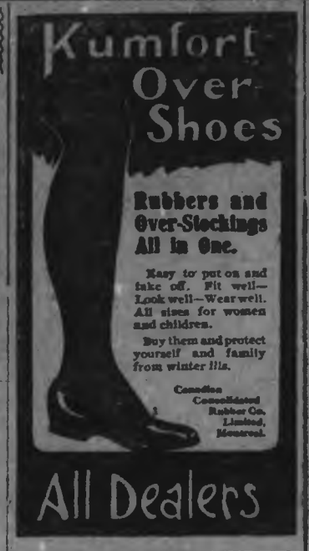
"Drink her down," said the host, "and we'll go and look for them. They must have gone up that stairway. I don't allow any scattering in my house," he added jocularly.

The revelers tossed off the brandy and ran laughing up the staircase. As soon as the last one had disappeared Mrs. Marshall scrambled out and ran like a deer to an unoccupied room, followed by Mr. Dabney with the slipper. Then Mrs. Marshall sat down to a piano and began to run over the keys. This brought those who hunted for them, and all exclaimed:

"How did you do it?"

When Mrs. Marshall that night before going to bed told her husband of the narrow escape she had had he looked at her in holy horror.

"Great Scott, mummy," he exclaimed, "that's the nearest thing to a catastrophe that ever happened in this family!"



MARRIAGE AT SEA

The Captain of a British Vessel May Act as Marriage Registrar

Very few people are aware of the power vested in the commanding officer of a British merchantman, when on the high seas or in a foreign port, where there is no British representative, as regards marriage, providing one or both of the contracting parties be a British subject. The scope afforded either of the officers is such as might be turned to very good account by enterprising novelists.

The captains of His Majesty's vessels are authorized by the Foreign Marriages Act of 1892 to act as marriage registrars just the same as an Ambassador, Consul, or British Resident abroad, and the ceremony may take place on the high seas or on board a British man-of-war on a foreign station, subject to certain "prescribed modifications." These indicate that the legality of the marriage depends on the commanding officer fulfilling the conditions of the Foreign Marriages Act, which, with very slight differences, conform to the conditions as to age, consent of parents, false oaths, residence, and so on, applying to marriages in the United Kingdom.

Though no one can question a captain's authority to marry at sea or on board a vessel on a foreign station, if any of the provisions laid down are not fulfilled, a Secretary of State has the power by means of a warrant to vary or annul the marriage performed under the Act.

Before this Act commanding officers of men-of-war and merchantmen celebrated marriage on board under the old Act, and the marriage had to be confirmed on arrival at the nearest port by the British representative there. Where there was none, the captain himself had to act as Consul and confirm his own deed.

In the merchant service the skipper has even greater power. He is not obliged to give a certificate, the only compulsion on him being the necessity to "log" the marriage in his official log-book, where it may be seen entered between reports dealing with the vessel's victualling, her course, the weather encountered, the ships spoken to, and the many humdrum details of "writing up the log."

Treasure in Bag of Feathers

The wife of a farmer at Kiltoom, near Athlone, sold a bag of feathers to a pedlar, and then remembered that she had put a purse containing $20 in the bag. When she came into Athlone the man had returned to Dublin, but his purchases were lying at the railway station. These were searched by the police, and the money was recovered.

THAT LET JAMES OUT.

The conversation turned to the power of flattery at a recent histrionic social session when Miss Billie Burke, the actress, was reminded of an incident along that line.

Some time ago, said Miss Billie, a certain young man got rather negligent in his courting duty, and it was not until after an absence of nearly a week that he finally presented himself at the home of his heart's desire.

Obviously somebody was exceedingly peevish, and a large bunch of explanation was in order.

"I wonder you came at all!" she petulantly exclaimed, not deigning to notice the five pounds of chocolates, and keeping to the piano stool where there wasn't room for two. "Of course, you were called away on a business trip, and the wires all being down, you couldn't notify me."

"No, dear," he answered, in his tenderest tones. "I haven't been away. I have been sick with dyspepsia, and the doctor told me not to come."

"What!" she cried in scornful amazement. "You had dyspepsia, and the doctor told you not to come because of that?"

"It amounted to the same thing, dearest," he coolly responded. "He told me to keep away from all sweets!"

TOO MANY CHILDREN

are pale and frail—backward in studies—with pinched faces and poor blood—their minds and bodies are actually starved because their regular food does not nourish.

Such children need Scott's Emulsion above everything else; it contains nature's rarest life-giving fats; it is essentially food value—blood-food and bone-food, free from wine, alcohol or harmful drug.

Scott's Emulsion often builds many times its weight in solid flesh—its medicinal, tonic and nutritive properties make all good food do good.

Refrigerator Ship Burned.

CURLING, Nfld., Nov. 7. — The steamer Alcona, a floating refrigerator for the Gloucester boats engaged in the herring fisheries on this coast, sank in Curling harbor yesterday after it had been swept by flames for eighteen hours. All the crew of fourteen escaped, although some were thrown in the water when the steamer went down.

The Alcona was valued at $100,000. She was owned by the Gordon-Pew Fisheries Co. of Gloucester, Mass., and was partly insured. The refrigerator ship had just been put in order for this season's fisheries about to begin, and it will require much time before another boat can be secured to take its place.

Pastor Gets Fat Check.

GUELPH, Nov. 7.—Rev. H. E. Abraham of St. Andrew's Church was a surprised man when he opened his morning mail yesterday. One ordinary-looking envelope, with a city post mark, when opened showed him that he was richer to the extent of $500, a check for that amount having been sent him by his congregation as an expression of their appreciation.

Canada Unkind To Asiatics.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.) A meeting held to protest against the treatment of British Indians in the dominions arraigned South Africa, as the chief offender, but Canada was also included in the resolutions which threatened retaliatory measures.

TROOPS GUARD CARS.

Indianapolis Is In the Hands of the National Guard.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7. — Indiana's entire National Guard, consisting of more than 2,000 soldiers are encamped in different parts of Indianapolis last night, ready for duty in the strike of the employes of the Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. Special trains yesterday brought troops under hurried orders, and they were detrained in the suburbs, virtually surrounding the city. Great secrecy was maintained as to the movement and arrival of the militia, and few citizens even knew that they had been called out until late yesterday.

The trains bringing the troops were stopped outside of Indianapolis by officers of the National Guard, and given directions. All companies were held when they arrived until they were of such number that it was deemed safe to bring them into the city. This was done to prevent any clash with the strikers, who, after learning the troops had been called out, were on the downtown streets in large numbers.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys, in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

WATCHING HUERTA.

U. S. Interested In Fate of Relatives of Madero.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—No new developments, good, bad or indifferent—this was the word that came from the White House late yesterday as to the status of the Mexican situation, following the presentation to Provisional President Huerta of the wish of the United States that he resign.

The news from Mexico that Huerta would reject the United States demands for his elimination was received in official circles without comment. Secretary of State Bryan had a long conference with President Wilson, and Chairman Bacon of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was an early White House caller. Talk of lifting the embargo on arms was revived in Congressional circles with considerable vigor.

Manuel Madero, uncle of the late President of Mexico, and several relatives who were recently arrested at Saltero and placed on a Mexican gunboat supposed to be bound for Vera Cruz, have been taken to Mexico City. Consul Canada, who, under instructions from the State Department, has been watching for the party's arrival at Vera Cruz with the purpose of seeing that they were fairly treated, has reported that in some way they were taken to the interior without passing through Vera Cruz. Charge O'Shaughnessy, who has already made representations to the Provisional Government in the interest of the prisoners, will continue to watch developments in the case.

Money Is Seized.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 7.—One hundred and eighteen boxes of silver pesos, each valued at about $3,000, forwarded here by Hugo Scherer & Co., bankers of Mexico City, for shipment on the steamer Mexico, were seized by Government officials yesterday. It is asserted by the authorities that under the law prohibiting such exportation, the money is liable to confiscation.

The same steamer has on board more than half a million in gold and silver bars, shipped by banks of Mexico City.

WOMAN MAY DIE.

Revolver Went Off In Hands of Brother—Latter Missing.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Ethel Parrington, of 39 Delaney crescent, lies at the General Hospital in a serious condition with a 22-calibre bullet in her back, fired from a revolver in the hands of her brother, James Kosminske, aged about 19. The shooting is believed by the police to have been accidental and happened at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in the woman's kitchen, where she was working while her brother was engaged in cleaning the revolver.

According to an eye-witness of the affray, Miss Marion Hall, of 52 Delaney crescent, the young man pointed the revolver at his sister's back, and, evidently not knowing it was loaded, pulled the trigger. There was a report and the woman fell to the floor. Kosminski has disappeared.

Engineer Is Held.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The Minister of Commerce yesterday refused the request of the French Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers for the release on bis own recognizance of Dumaine, the engineer of the Paris-Marseilles express which collided on Tuesday evening with a local train at Melun and caused the death of thirty-nine people.

Dumaine was arrested after the accident, and the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean Railroad Co., affirm that it was through his inattention to the signals that the disaster was brought about.

Mitchell To Quit A. F. L.

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 7.—John Mitchell, for fifteen years actively connected with the work of the American Federation of Labor, and for years one of its vice-presidents, announced here yesterday at a banquet given in his honor, that he would withdraw from official connection with the federation at its meeting in Seattle next week.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism, and Serious Diseases Follow

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worn-out feeling, weak bladder, or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous, for the slightest kidney derangement if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's disease, dropsy or diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, for Croxone promptly ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy for kidney, bladder trouble and rheumatism, than Croxone, because it reaches the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the clogged up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter, that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to relieve the worst backache or overcome disagreeable urinary disorders.

You will find Croxone different from other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it should fail in a single case.

Hurrah! For Me, I Can Eat

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Bring Joy to the Starving Dyspeptics Who Cannot Safely Eat

To seat one's self at a festive board or a heavily laden table and not be able to eat is positive sorrow to most dyspeptics and stomach sufferers, and likewise pain.

"I Walk to My Meals and Eat All I Want, Then a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet Makes Good For Me."

When your system is robbed of its natural digestive juices, in their correct proportion, a little candy-like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet gives to them the qualities they lack and you thereby rest the digestive apparatus and allay irritation, pain, gas and stomach trouble.

Pepsin such as used in a Stuart's tablet is one of nature's greatest aids; and when this is combined with the other ingredients you simply bring happiness to weary, worn-out, nerve of the stomach, liver, intestines, pancreas and other organs.

Predigested foods will not aid nature if she insists on manufacturing the wrong juices. Besides this the bowels and coarse and heavy foods in order to make bowel pack which is vitally essential to health.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets mix with the food in the stomach, have a tendency to stop gas formations, sour stomach, decay etc.; then as the food passes into the lower digestive tract (the intestines) it takes the Stuart's digestive agents with it, and there is where the real work is done.

The nutritive value of food and tablet is separated from the waste matter and is assimilated and distributed into the proper parts of the body. The blood is enriched and the liver stored with the qualities the system needs.

Go to your druggist now and buy a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, price 50c, and then eat what you will, but take a tablet afterwards. Then will come to you the beginning of the end of all your stomach troubles and food fears.

Toronto Crusaders Enlist Aid of Secret Inspectors.

TORONTO, Nov. 7—The secret life of the people of the city is to be secretly surveyed by inspectors appointed by the Social Survey Commission in an endeavor to obtain information as to vicious habits of the populace. When this has been done the commission will put their heads together and suggest ways and means of perhaps curing and in any way preventing it.

The first secret meeting was held yesterday afternoon. Con. McCarthy presiding. In addition there were present Mrs. A. E. Huestis, president Local Council of Women; Miss Neufeld, Dr. C. J. Hastings, Hamilton Cassels and Commissioner Starr of the Juvenile Court.

CURIOUS FISH

Remarkable fish have been captured in depths of from one thousand to two thousand fathoms in the Atlantic and brought to the surface. The majority of those living at great depths were jet black. Their luminous portions which light up the dark regions which they inhabit are marvellous.

These fish plough through the dark waters like flaming torches. Some have elongated snouts with luminous tips emitting great volumes of light. Others have rows of luminous cells on top of and below their bodies, with reflectors and lenses which serve the function of projecting light in definite directions. This light serves the purpose of illuminating the surrounding water to avoid foes, to recognise their own kind or to capture prey.

The greatest depth found by sounding was until lately 5,269 fathoms, or 31,614 feet—nearly six miles. This is a point in the Pacific ocean off the coast of Guam, about 100 miles or so. But a surveying ship of the German navy has recently discovered a deeper spot in the ocean, near the Philippines, about forty sea miles off the north coast of Mindanao.

Some Statistical Facts About British Columbia

British Columbia has an area of about 353,900,000 acres, of which about 1,600,000 acres is composed of lakes in the interior. There are over 100,000 acres of timber land of no value for farming other than for stock purposes, and while it is estimated that 3,000,000 acres are either under cultivation or partly so, statistics show that the actual yielding acreage, other than for grazing purposes, is not more than 250,000 acres.

It is stated that with the exception of Siberia, Brazil and the Northwestern United States, British Columbia's timber wealth is unparalleled in any other country. The investigations of the forestry branch show that there are not less than 100,000,000 acres of forest land in British Columbia and that the total stand of commercial timber amounts to about 300,000,000,000. Taking the present lumber output of the province as a basis of figuring, which is about 1,250,000,000 feet per annum, and making no allowance for annual growth, it would take nearly 250 years to use up merely the mature timber now standing.

In the production of copper British Columbia stands first among the provinces, the output amounting to more than a third of that of all Canada. Fishing is one of the province's chief industries, and the vessels of all kinds which enter Vancouver total up to over ten thousand per year.

Valparaiso Is Hopeful.

VALPARAISO, Nov. 7.—A record number of steamers passed through the Magellan Straits in the ten months from Jan. 1 to Oct. 31 this year, according to an official statement issued yesterday. The traffic comprised 221 steamers from the Atlantic and 137 from the Pacific.

Officials here are of the opinion that the number of vessels using the Magellan Straits will not be affected by the opening of the Panama Canal, and that Valparaiso will continue to be the principal port in the southern Pacific.

Unlikely To Reimprison Miller.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—That R. C. Miller of Montreal, last session's state prisoner, will be subjected to further imprisonment at the coming session of Parliament is not believed in official circles here. Miller, it is pointed out, was confined in the tower for contempt rather than on any charge.

The case in which Miller was involved is now in the courts.

The true way to conquer circumstances is to be a greater circumstance yourself.—Old Saying.

IF MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Ends Indigestion, Gas, Dyspepsia and Stomach Misery in Five Minutes

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fulness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

They Felt Guilty.

MONTREAL, Nov. 7.—This city is without 13,000 telephones in its business district as a result of the fire in the switchboard at the head exchange Wednesday morning. The long distance service was reinstated yesterday.

When the phones did not work, numerous subscribers thought they had been cut off because of bills owed and there was a rush to the Bell Co.'s office by many who were in arrears.

Deny Dredge Was Destroyed.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7—The report that the dredge Port Nelson had been practically destroyed in Hudson Bay is given an emphatic denial here. It is stated that the dredge is resting on a bed of mud and is not injured in the least.

THE MARKETS

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 6.—The wheat market opened under realizing 3/8 to 1/4 lower, being induced by the lower American cables yesterday, and the weakness in Winnipeg. Advices from the Argentine are generally favorable with cheaper Manitoba offerings and larger Australian offers. Spot market opened generally half lower with cargoes rather pressed for sale. Winnipeg receipts continue large.

During the morning there was some disposition shown to support on the decline and prices reacted, gaining 1/4, with near at hand Manitoba offerings firmer. At 130 the market was easy and 1/2 to 3/4 lower than yesterday with the pressure in May.

Corn—The market was generally erratic and after opening a half lower further declined 1/4 and then advanced. Pressure at the opening was due to lower American cables, weakness in Buenos Ayres and expectations of large Argentine shipments this week. Later the recovery was attributed to the prominent firms supporting.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Bull activity, based on belief that wheat had been oversold, lifted prices today, the close showing a net advance of 2-8c to 1/4c. Covering by shorts sent corn up to a net gain of 1/4c to 3/4c. Strength in Canada helped oats here to a net improvement of a shade to 2-4c. Provisions rose 10c to 20c on good speculative buying.

Father of Wireless Dead.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The death occurred yesterday of Sir William Henry Preece, known in England as the "father of wireless telegraphy." He was in his 80th year. Sir William introduced both the telephone and talking machine into England and was the inventor of many patents connected with the telegraph and the telephone. For several years he was engineer-in-chief and electrician to the British postoffice and was at one time president of the Institute of Civil Engineers.

Copper In Queensland.

A sensational copper find is reported from Queensland. Between Selwyn and Frieziand, and within five miles of the railway, an outcrop which shows nine feet wide, has been traced over 80 feet. Two men obtained over three tons of ore, estimated to contain 30 per cent. copper.

Three Killed, Four Injured.

ALLIANCE, O., Nov. 7.—Three men were killed and four injured in a head-on collision of freight trains on the Lake Erie, Alliance & Wheeling Railroad, three miles southwest of here, at noon yesterday. All were trainmen.

MRS. W. W. LAKE

Tells Others How to Get Strong and Well.

Mrs. W. W. Lake of Aberdeen, Miss., says: "The grippe had left me in a weak, run-down condition from which I suffered for some time. I tried different remedies but nothing seemed to do me any good until I took Vinol, from which I received great benfit. My cough is almost entirely gone and I am strong and well again, and I am glad to recommend Vinol to others who suffer as I did."

Mrs. Lake's recovery was due to the combined action of the medicinal elements extracted from cods' livers—combined with the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron, which are contained in Vinol, and her cough disappeared as a natural result.

We guarantee that Vinol will do all we claim and will pay back your money if Vinol does not satisfy you. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.

President's Address.

Mr. Beal as President of the Society, reported that the most important work of the past season was the piping of Central Park. This was accomplished during the summer at an expenditure of approximately two hundred dollars. The foot paths in the parks were repaired and the fountain in Victoria Park restored to service. The City suplied a quantity of new chairs for the band stand. Owing to the destructive propensities of certain parties it was found advisable to construct a gate at the entrance to the band stand. Several hundred feet of hose was purchased for use in the parks. The lower part of the band stand was made to serve the purpose of a tool house.

A Modest Secretary.

Mr. Frank Wise recommended that the secretary's grant be fixed at seventy-five or one hundred dollars a year. The grant was raised to seventy-five dollars last year, but owing to a financial stringency Mr. Williamson, secretary, declined to accept more than fifty dollars as remuneration for his services.

Both Mr. Beal and Mr. Williamson were commended for the efficient and consistent service which they rendered to the Society during the past year. A vote of thanks was also tendered to Mr. C. W. Clee, caretaker of the Parks.

The latter in presenting his report said that the beginning of the season found the parks in a bad condition. Owing to the delay in installing the water service in Central Park it was impossible to get the park in good condition before the close of the season. It was used as a playground by the Collegiate Institute students, whom he suggested, should be confined to a restricted area and not be allowed to monopolize the whole park.

Efficient Service.

Mr. Stocker said that the Society was to be congratulated upon procuring the services of such an efficient caretaker as Mr. Clee had proved himself to be. "The best we have had in twenty years," said Mr. Stocker in conclusion.

Messrs. R. Beal and C. H. Williamson will represent the Society at the coming Horticultural convention to be held in Toronto during the latter part of November.

Messrs. Denne, Cowan, Stocker, Wise, Beal and Williamson were appointed a committee to look into the matter of arranging for a banquet to be held at the beginning of the year. The committee was instructed to report back at the January meeting. The Society will also take steps to secure affiliation with the Horticultural Society of Ontario. The membership of the Society compose three hundred and sixty-one members which is an increase of approximately fifty per cent in the last two years.

OVER A MILE A MINUTE

G. T. R. Special Train Makes Distance From Lindsay to Peterborough Yesterday in 22 Minutes

A RECORD TRIP

A new record for a locomotive run between Lindsay and Peterborough was set up yesterday afternoon when a special G.T.R. train carrying the Engineer of the Railway Commission, made the journey from Lindsay Station to the diamond here, a distance of twenty-three miles in twenty-two minutes. The engineer had been inspecting some of the northern lines of the Grand Trunk and was desirous of catching the 4:33 C.P.R. train for Toronto. Mr. Coyle, Superintendent of the G.T.R., at Belleville, was with him and arranged a special train composed of an engine, tender and one coach. The train was in charge of Driver Jeffrey and Conductor Halpin, and ate up the ground in great style. The flying locomotice slackened speed at Omemee and of course had to slow up coming into the city, so that the greater part of the trip wasm ade at greater than a mile a minute clip.

INTERESTING CONTEST SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Two Tons of Coal Free to the Person Who Estimates the Weight of a Load of Coal

With the view of affording an opportunity to the public to witness the modern methods of handling coal introduced by Mr. Robert Hicks, an interesting demonstration has been arranged to take place on Saturday afternoon at his new coal elevator, corner of Bethune and Charlotte Streets. By reference to an advertisement in another column, the particulars of an open air estimating contest is given. This rather unique contest is to take place at 3.30 p.m. on Saturday. A waggon load of screened Scranton coal is to be drawn from the new elevator, and every adult resident of the City will be given a chance to estimate the weight of the load. Estimating cards will be handed round to all on the ground who have inspected the modus operandi of the new coal elevator, and the person estimating the nearest to the weight of the load of coal will receive two tons of screened coal free. Further details of this interesting contest may be gleaned from the advertisement elsewhere.

PUPILS MAY BE BARRED FROM PARK

It is Claimed That Pupils of the Central School Abuse Privilege Accorded Them by the Horticultural Society

A PARK CONSTABLE

Steps may be taken by the Horticultural Society to prohibit the pupils of the Central school from playing in Victoria Park. It is claimed that the school children have abused the privileg accorded them by the Society. As an alternative the Society may decide to appoint a uniformed constable who will be impowered with the authority necessary, to maintain order in both the Central and Victoria Parks.

The matter was discussed at the annual meeting of the Society which was held on Thursday evening. It is altogether probable that some definite action will be decided upon at the begining of the year. In the meantime Mr. C. Williamson, Secretary of the Society, will take the matter up with the Board of Education and endeavour if possible to effect some arrangement whereby the pupils will be restrained from further acts of vandalism.

"It is not what we would like to do, but what we should do in the interests of the Society," said Mr. H. B. Cowan in referring to the matter.

Mr. Frank Wise thought that the presence of a uniformed official would have the desired effect. The caretaker of Victoria Park affirmed that the teachers at Central Park made no attempt to restrain the pupils from destroying park property.

ANOTHER ARTICLE ON MARKET PRICES

Editor, Examiner:

Sir,—In your issue of the 6th inst. I see some of the citizens residing in Easy Street are pleased to laugh at women setting market prics. Might I remind them that it has been tried with success in other cities I would like to draw their attention to page one of this evening's Examiner, where they will see for themselves what a bold fight the Mayor of Hamilton is putting up on behalf of the people. If the idea of women setting prices is distasteful the Mayor of Peterborough might take a leaf out of the Mayor of Hamilton's book, and get to work. Citizen does not think my plan feasible, but has failed to suggest anything better. The following comparisons prove conclusively that though the farmer grows the produce he has little idea of its value:

1 Barrel high-grade flour costs, in Winnipeg, $5; the same grade in Montreal, $5.10; in London, England, $4.16.

1 Barrel patent flour costs, in Winnipeg, $4.80; in Montreal, $4.90; in London, England, $4.06.

1 Barrel bakers' flour costs, in Winnipeg, $4; in Montreal, $4.10; in London, England, $3.60.

How is this when the grain is grown in the north-west? Is it not enough to make the Canadian working man think that something must be done? It might be interesting to hear the opinion of the residents in Hard Street. I am, etc.,

LIVE AND LET LIVE.

FUR MONTH

This month is the most important fur month to the fore-handed woman because any day may be severely cold and warm garments must be in reidiness.

The question of furs for the winter is not a difficult one to the woman who can, without thought of price, go out and buy what happens to strike her fancy. If she regrets her purchase later on she can buy something else.

To the thrifty woman, however, there are problems of quality, style, price, and durability to be considered more carefully in buying fur garments than in buying almost any other articles ofd ress. Then, too, there is the possibility of making over slightly worn pieces, or of combining some new fur with the old.

All of these points need careful thought. Many hints and suggestions may easily be obtained by a visit to Barrie's, Limited, opposite the Examiner. More than likely, the most satisfactory solution of your problem will be found there. 2d-108

Motor Car Collides With Little Girl

An automobile accident which, fortunately, was not attended by serious results, occurred at the corner of Hunter and Queen Strets, yesterday afternoon, of which Edyhe, he little daughter of Wm. F. Huffman, Queen Street, was the victim.

It seems that the little girl was playing on Hunter Street, opposite the end of Queen Street, and did not see the approach of an automobile, going east, until it was too late to get out of he way. The car was driven by a local lady, who attempted to stop the car to prevent running down the child, but a collision was unavoidable and the automobile struck the little girl, knocking her down. This was about 5.30 oclock, yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Eastwood was called and dressed the ankle of the injured girl. It was not broken, but was so badly bruised that she is spend to-day in bed.

According to her story the car was on the wrong side of the street when the accident occurred.

CONCRETE WALKS DAMAGED BY THE ROADSIDE FIRES

Oil Spilt on New Road Pavement Will Likely Damage It—Concrete Burned by Tar Pot

CARE MUST BE EXERCISED

Thoughtlessness and possibly ignorance on the part of citizens resulting in extensive injury to some of the city's permanent improvements were reported at Thursday night's meeting of the Board of Works.

The autumn fires of leaves on the roadside have caused the curbing or outer edge of thec oncrete sidewalks to flake and crumble in quite a number of places. Alderman Buller said that the leaves are usually made into piles right against the edge of the sidewalk, and the heat has caused material damage.

Engineer Parsons stated that fire was practically the only element that would injure the walks. Under ordinary conditions they should last a lifetime or more.

Alderman McIntyre — Does the pavement crack when a fire has been made against it?

Mr. Parsons—It usually flakes.

Chambers Street Burned.

Alderman Buller also stated that a tar kettle had burned a round hole in the concrete pavement on Chambers street near Brock street. This was the result of theh eat from the lower part of the kettle where a strong fire had exerted its destructive force while some roof was being tarred. This might happen on the newly paved streets. Alderman Buller suggested that a by-law should be passed to cover this point.

Mayor Bradburn—Let them keep their tar pots in the back lanes. They should not be set up on the street.

Oil and Gasoline Too.

Mr. Parsons said he saw oil on Hunter street in front of a garage and apparently it had been spilled there. Oil acts on asphalt as it does on rubber. Next summer it will likely be found that the asphalt is rough where the oil has fallen on it.

The same applies to gasoline tanks, he stated. And these must not be allowed to leak on to the pavement.

In some cities too automobiles that drip oil call down the attention of the police, and if they are left standing on the street the officers order them to be moved away.

Alderman McIntyre—What are you going to do about the hole in the Chambers street pavement?

Alderman Buller—We will dig up the tar and dirt with which it was filled and put in new concrete. The damage was doubtless caused by thoughtlessness.

Mayor Bradburn asked if the joints in the Chambers street roadway were showing signs of heaving.

Mr. Parsons stated that apparently water had soaked through but there was no uplifting of the pavement.

Will Be Reminded.

The Board intends to take measures that will prevent the repetition of the fires above mentioned, and other carelessness that would damage the new street material.

"THE LAND OF GOLDEN DREAMS" BIG SUCCESS

Spectacular Musical Extravaganza Produced By Over 300 Local People at the Grand Opera House Last Night.

A PLEASING PERFORMANCE

An ever-changing melange of pretty stage pictures, tuneful music and pleasing specialties, with all the characters of Mother Goose brought before the footlights, 'The Land of Golden Dreams" produced by local young people at the Grand Opera House last night under the direction of Miss Hattie Leonard, was a delightful performance that received the unqualified approval of a large audience. The affair was put on under the auspices of the ladies of St. John's Church.

The extravaganza has been very cleverly arranged. The plot is a slight one, but is sufficient to introduce the familiar beings of "those olden golden days when the jingly jingly nursery rhymes were true." Bluebeard, Jack and the Bean Stalk, Golden Locks, Aladdin, Cinderella, Beauty and the Beast, and all the other favourites of childhood times in also their appearance throughout the action of the bright play, drills, marches, dances, musical specialties of a high order follow each other in rapid succession and there is a constant series of surprises.

With over three hundred people in the cast, and with only a little over two weeks' rehearsing, the production was carried out with remarkable smoothness. It is one of the most ambitious amateur efforts of its kind staged here, surpassing that big success of last year, "Alice in Wonderland," also produced by Miss Leonard and for the talent and ability of the young people who took part.

The whole production is staged on an elaborate scale, with a lavish scenic investiture and brilliant costumes, the result being a number of very striking stage pictures that make the offering a feast for the eye as well as the ear.

It is not possible in the limited space of a newspaper to fully describe the many bright features of "The Land of Golden Dreams." The best advice the Examiner can give item readers is to go and see the production for themselves during the balance of its run. They will find a programme full of good things, well worth seeing. From the opening song by a bevy of little tots to the final ballet of the seasons, there are few dull moments, and last night's audience indicated its approval by frequent encores.

One of the big features of the extravaganza was the spectacular congress of nations in the second act in which girls wearing the colours and carrying the flags of different countries, went through a pretty drill, while with each contingent was a graceful dancer who performed to the different national airs. The specialties distributed throughout the play are bright and cleverly put on. It is impossible to do justice to them all here, but they are admirably handled. The Spanish number in scene four of the first act, with solos by Miss Willa Blewit and Mr. Asa Huycke, assisted by a chorus of prettily attired girls, was one that was especially well received.

"There are a host of catchy song numbers, "Harmony Joe," "Apple Blossom Time in Normandy," "Peg O' My Heart," "Burglar Rag." These are just a few of the musical hits that delighted the audience.

Special mention should be made of the little tots who took part. There are scores of these little ones and their work throughout was one of the bright features of a fine production. The children had a number of specialties and took their parts very cleverly indeed. The finale, "The Ballet of the Seasons,' was a pretty conceit that took the fancy of the audience. The stage setting was a picturesque one, and the costumes and music for this number made it one of the most notable on the programme.

Miss Margaret English presided capably at the piano and was assisted by the Grand Opera House orchestra. Following is the cast and synopsis:

PETERBORO' HAS GROWING "PAINS"

Board of Works Realizes That the City's Development Has Brought New Responsibilities

A BRIEF LIST OF THEM

Growing pains are indicative of development and are resultant from the passing of immaturity. Since the completion of the street paving Peterborough has had a sudden attack of growing pains.

The city has developed from the mud to the asphalt stage, but the care of the pavement presents a new problem.

"It must be kept clean," Alderman Buller stated at the Board of Works meeting, "or it will be worse than the former road."

The sweeper has been going over the asphalt recently and a permanent system of street cleaning must be prepared. When the road is wet the sweeper is unable to perform a new broom service.

Mayor Bradburn suggested that the sweeper should be out early in the mornings in order to avoid vehicles drawn up at curbs.

Mr. Parsons stated that if the pavement could be "dry-swept" the results would be better. The City Clerk stated that the dry-sweeping by-law refers only to sidewalks.

Mayor Bradburn—Go ahead and sweep dry. We can take a chance. The sweeper should be out say at six o'clock three mornings during the week.

Then comes the question of the number of "white wings" to be employed. Mr. Parsons said it would be better to employ all "white wings," or simply the sweeper.

At any rate the problem has to be worked out and the City Engineer will report on the question.

Wants a Coal Hole.

J. J. Turner & Sons applied for permission to place a round metal plate in the sidewalk in front of their store for the purpose of emptying coal into their basement. The present method is to lift the grating and run a chute across the sidewalk. With the city form of coal hole there will be no obstacle to traffic.

Mr. Parsons remarked that this opened up the question of the use of the ground beneath the sidewalks and in giving permission for its use the city should fully protect itself by agreements. Furthermore, the space beneath the sidewalks on the main streets may be required some day for conduit purposes.

Street Elevators.

Elevators under the sidewalk and covered with iron doors that open upward may be asked for. The Mayor said that many of them are found in Toronto. Alderman McIntyre said he would not have them at all.

And likewise, said Mr. Parsons, the city should protect itself if grates are placed in the sidewalks. The only present restriction is a by-law passed in 1879 to the effect that no opening shall be made in the sidewalks without the Council's consent. This does not place responsibility in the event of accidents, and Mr. Parsons will prepare a by-law to cover these points. They are all outcroppings of Peterborough's realization that it is in fact a city and is facing the responsibilities that progress entails.

BANQUET OF S. S. TEACHERS

At George Street Methodist Church Last Night

The teachers and officers of the George Street Methodist Sunday School held a banquet in the S. S. room of the church last night. There were over eighty present at the affair, which was presided over by the Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of the church.

The good things for the banquet were prepared and served by the lady teachers of the Sunday School, in such a way as to leave nothing to be desired by the guests. During the evening Mr. Peever gave an address containing a number of suggested improvements for the Sunday School, which were discussed in detail by the teachers and officers.

Reports were presented by Mrs. Shortly and Mrs. Helson, who were delegates to the recent Sunday School convention at Ottawa. These were warmly received and were enlightening summaries of the work accomplished by the Sunday School workers in Ottawa.

Splendid solos were given by Miss Sanderson and Master Jack Renwick, and a reading by Miss Beattie All were very heartily received.

FRIDAY, NOV. 7, 1913

QUITE NATURAL.

A subscriber this morning buttressed a request that the Examiner print an article on "Hell," with the statement that two lawyers be mentioned, took a great interest in it. Quite natural.

THE GERMAN PERIL.

Germany itself has put another nail in the coffin of Mr. Borden's "emergency"—sire "German Peril," dam "political emergency," out of "anything for office.' The two largest German battleships now in commission, have been transferred from the North Sea to South American waters. Two such fire-eating instruments of punishment of perfidious Albion removed from the danger zone, makes a big gap in the "German Peril."

A CHALLENGE.

The letter of Rev. James Rollins in yesterday's issue, was rightly denominated a "challenge," for it was a call to active philanthropic cooperation, as a substitute for mere fault-finding over social conditions and dangers assumed to exist. The physician finds the treatment of an ailment a comparatively easy matter, once a correct diagnosis is made, once the existence of disease and its nature is ascertained. We have frequent references to bad moral conditions, involving danger to the young, especially girls. There is necessarily indefiniteness in the statements or assumptions made, because there is absence of concrete knowledge. Before definite and effective remedial action is possible, there must be definite knowledge that conditions such as are more or less obscurely hinted at can be dealt with. If there is certain knowledge elicited, through such an organization as Mr. Rollins inferentially suggests, definite action wil be more warrantable and justifiable, and above all, practicable. Though it may be pointed out that there is an embarrassing multiplicity of organizations, associations and societies, yet if these numerous agencies fail to reach the root of the suspected evil, another organization that will secure definite information and take definite and effective action, will be welcomed.

LACKING IN COURAGE.

The Borden Government is deficient in courage in more ways than one. It would make Canadians show the white feather, by proposing to hire the Mother Country to do our fighting. It hasn't the courage to resist the demands of the Nationalists in this regard nor the courage to resist the "big interests" by doing the right thing. It proposes legislation, not in the public interest, and blames the Senate because that body seconds the Liberal opposition in Parliament in fighting for the protection of the interests of the people. The government sought to make aid to agriculture and good roads the medium of bribing the Provinces in the distribution of the funds. Neither the Senate nor the Opposition opposed the principle of giving aid, but only the lack of principle in the mode of distribution. By refusing the reasonable amendments of the Senate, the Government, by its majority, killed the bills it blames the Senate for killing. Now we have a new charge that last session the Senate killed the bill providing for the appointment of a permanent tariff commission. This is not true. The Senate passed the bill with an amendment widening the scope of the commission. But the Government itself killed the bill by refusing to accept the amendment, acting thus in the interests of the big corporations which had financed the Government party in the general elections. If the Borden Government was less anxious to pass legislation designed to help its hold on power and more anxious to legislate in the interests of the public it would not find the Senate a stumbling block, but a help.

NOT RESIGNING.

After Chateauguay some of the Tories said Sir Wilfrid Laurier would resign, and after South Bruce the Globe says Mr. Borden wil resign. Our opinion is that the two leaders have arranged a saw-off, and will stay on the job.—Toronto Star.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

Those loyal Englishmen who worked so hard to get rid of a political party that had a Frenchman at its head, will rub their funnybones this week when they read that one Louis Cousineau, of Hull, is to succeed C. H. Parmalee as King's Printer at Ottawa. —Renfrew Mercury.

THE PERIL OF THE LONE GIRL.

Making a living in a wilderness amid prowling wolves is an unpleasant business, for one must be continually on one's guard. It is not so perilous, however, as is the career of an unattached young woman in a great city who lacks friends on whom she can safely rely, particularly if she has no assured income and must frequently trust herself among men and women unknown to her in the hope of earning money for her support.—St. Thomas Journal.

THE CHIEF BENEFIT.

Our local contemporary wants to know what would become of a Dreadnought plant in Canada if Canada did not keep it supplied with orders for Dreadnoughts. It was the idea of the Canadian navy advocates that such a plant would be the nucleus of a great steel shipbuilding industry in Canada, making ships of commerce instead of war. This was the prospect held out by Mr. Borden in his Canadian navy speech at Halifax in October, 1909.—London Advertiser.

CHNESE CAN'T BEAT US.

Hon. George Eulas Foster tells us that while he was in China he saw the Chinese Parliament increase its sessional indemnity without consulting the people. We have all heard that "for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the heathen Chinee is peculiar," bu we are also quite sure that the Chinamen cannot reach the present outfit at Ottawa anything about doing things without consulting the people, least of all such a trifling matter as a salary grab.—Halifax Echo.

HANDS OFF THE TITLE.

The conference of Provincial Premiers has urged upon the Dominion that the title of "Lieutenant Governor" be changed to "Governor." A rose by any other name would smell as sweet we suppose, but we have not noticed any public clamour for the change.

Is a Lieutenant Governor a "Governor?" We have a suspicion that he is only a figure-head, and so long as he is not directly elected by the people we do not want him to be anything else.

The idea for the change probably comes from the United States, but there it must be remembered the Governor of a State has powers in his own bailiwick similar to those of the federal President.

Why mimic the institutions of the United States if we are not prepared to go the whole length?

Besides "Lieutenant Governor" is a bigger mouthful and seems to fit in better with the gold lace, knee breeches, and buckles which are part of these gentlemen's perquisites. We "view with alarm" the proposal to rob these Provincial dignitaries of ten letters. Why, some day some unromantic person will want to deprive them of their white stockings!—Ottawa Free Press.

WILL MR. BORDEN MAKE GOOD?

The Montreal Mail, Conservative though it be, is insistent that a protest should be entered against the return of Mr. Morris, Conservative member-elect for Chateauguay. Answering the objection of The Huntingdon Gleaner, that it is useless to enter a protest, as it would not likely be brought to trial before a dissolution of parliament takes place, it says:

Speaking at Halifax on August 20, 1907, Mr. Borden promised:

"More effective provisions to punish bribery and fraud at elections; . . . to expedite the hearings of election petitions and to prevent collusive arrangements for the withdrawal or compromise thereof, to provide for a thorough investigation of corrupt practices, and, if necessary, to appoint an independent prosecuting officer charged with that duty; to simplify the procedure therefor and to enforce the laws so amended.

We, therefore, pass The Gleaner's question along to the Prime Minister. Incidentally, and to emphasize the quotation and hammer in the promise we may remark that this declaration faces a page of a pamphlet out of which looks Mr. Borden's face (in portraiture), and underneath the picture is a neat fac-simile of that gentleman's signature. Practically speaking, the "presents" aforementioned are "signed, and sealed"—but unfortunately, not "delivered."

Since coming into power, Mr. Borden has done nothing to make good this promise. The Contraverted Elections Act has not been strengthened in any particular. No independent prosecuting officer has been appointed, while the obstructions placed in the way of bringing the celebrated Macdonald election case to trial have becomes a public scandal. Nor is this all. The writs for bye-elections have been deliberately juggled for the sole purpose of giving an unfair advantage to the party in power. Manifestly, The Mail will be disappointed if it expects Mr. Borden to assist in bringing the Chateauguay election petition to trial.—Brantford Expositor.

SOME GOOD RECIPES

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's Celebrated Pound-Cake.

Take one pound of butter and the peel of one lemon chopped fine and work it to a creamy consistency. Then add one pound of sugar and work these together for ten minutes. Add nine yolks of eggs and the juice of five lemons. Work these all together for ten minutes more, then mix in a quarter of a pound of sultanas, a quarter of a pound of dried and well-washed currants, a quarter of a pound of cherries cut up into little pieces and a quarter of a pound of mixed peel cut up into shreds. Whip the nine whites of eggs until quite stiff, with a pinch of salt, and then mix them into the other ingredients, with one pound of flour, a quarter of a pound of rice-flour, and one ounce of baking powder, mixing the flour and whites of eggs by degrees. Have a cake-tin buttered and papered, put the mixture into it and bake in a very moderate oven for about two and a half hours. If these cakes are turned out and the paper left on them, they will keep for months, especially if put in an air-tight cake-box.

What about the cook who prepares the meals in your home.

Is she using an enamel lined Up-to-date Sanitary Gas Range?

Food is best prepared with gas. The food values, the life giving essences of food are retained by this system. When you roast a piece of beef under a gas flame you harden the albumen on the surface of the meat and keep the juices inside. This insures Nutritious Food.

"The cup that cheers" is the cup of tea or coffee that is prepared on a gas range from fresh boiled water.

Present the lady of your home with an up-to-date gas range and thus insure clean and sanitary meals for yourself and family.

WHERE TO DINE

In the hustle and bustle of the present age, even in a community the size of Peterborough, every minute counts in the transaction of business and business men are saving time when time is valuable. Peterborough is well equipped for looking after the wants of the busy man and the Munro House, especially, is the centre where the majority of them dine. The Munro House is convenient, it is largely patronized by the farmers of this district and the business man can meet many of his customers at the same time as he is having his noon-day meal. You will enjoy every meal you have at the Munro House:

Breakfast—6.30 to 9 o'clock.
Dinner—12 to 2.
Supper—5.30 to 7.30.

LOOK AFTER CHILDREN AT HOME

Editor, Examiner:

Sir,—For some time past there have been letters and articles in the Peterborough press hinting vaguely at the spread of immorality and the social evil in Peterborough. These articles give various causes for the conditions they describe—the non-observance of the curfew law, not enough police inspection of the outskirts of the City, a certain institution on Brock Street—all of these have been mentioned, but, to my mind, not one of these writers has touched the heart of the trouble. The cause in nearly every case of wrong-doing by young people is in the home.

If parents did not allow their young daughters to roam the streets at night there would not be so many go wrong. You mothers who go to mothers' meetings, and women's councils, do you know what your own children are doing? Some parents consider their offspring as Cæsar's wife, above suspicion, and they go cheerfully to work to look after other people's children. Charity is not the only thing that should begin at home. Mothers can do more to better conditions in the City by staying at home and looking after their own children than they can by attending meetings, where the object is to look after somebody else's family. Keep your young girls at home and make it a point to find where your boys are spending their time.—Yours, etc., SANITY.

Enthusiastic Meeting Of The Poultry Men

The Poultry Association had a record attendance at its monthly meeting held last night. It certainly must have been very gratifying to the officers to have such a turn out of the members. President Holmes called the meeting to order at 8:15, and it did not adjourn until 11 p.m. After general routine the chairman of the different committees were called on for their reports. It was plainly to be seen that the committees had not lost any time in getting down to work. Some of the reports were lengthy but all were of a very encouraging nature. If enthusiasm and hard work are a forerunner of success, then we have no hesitancy in saying that this association will see its banner show in January, 1914.

There were also several good birds on exhibition last night. Messrs. Edwards and Abbott showed some very fine specimens of white and black leghorns, also a barred rock pullet, which the judge pronounced very fair specimens. After discusing the different merits of the birds on exhibition, the meeting adjourned to meet next Wednesday, Nov. 12th, at 8 p.m.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

Nov. 9, 1913.

(Copyright, 1912, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D. D.)

Golden Text—It is good not to eat flesh nor to drink wine nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth. Rom. xiv:21.

(1.) Verses 7-8—In how many ways do we each influence others?

(2.) What is implied in "living unto the Lord" or in "dying unto the Lord?"

(3.) What should be the dominating or deciding motive which determines our conduct to our fellows?

(4.) Verse 9—What prompted Christ to die for us?

(5.) What is God's ideal of a man as the finished product of Christ's death?

(6.) Verse 10—Where do you draw the line between forming a correct opinion of another's conduct and refraining, as Paul here means, from judging him?

(7.) There are some things that men do which are clearly right, others as clearly wrong, while still other things that some think right and others think wrong. What should be our attitude to such things both in ourselves and in others?

(8.) Suppose there is something we do which we think right, but which grieves many good people and which we could give up without injury. What ought we to do and why?

(9.) Verses 11-12—What bearing does the fact that we must all stand before the judgment seat of Christ have upon our judging our brother?

(10.) When will every man have to give an account unto God for his doings?

(11.) Will the wicked as well as the just bow the knee and confess unto God? Why?

(12.) Verse 13—What evil does a suspicious person do to himself and others?

(13.) If professed Christians do anything contrary to the high standard which sinners have for them what is the result?

(14) If some person is led to do wrong by our example, are we as guilty for leading him astray as if we had done it by our precept? Why?

(15.) When a good man drinks and smokes, to what extent is he responsible for the terrible evils which these habits are to others, even if he thinks they are no injury to him personally?

(16.) Verse 14—What human overt act is there which, as the case may be, is always right or always wrong under all circumstances?

(18.) If a man does a thing in all good conscience, but the tendency of the thing is evil, what is his responsibility to God and the community?

(19.) May a man do some things innocently in secret, which may be wicked to do publicly?

(20.) Verses 15-16—It is a fact that the liquor traffic is a grievous curse to mankind as a whole. What, therefore, is the responsibility of those who drink in moderation without any injury to themselves?

(21.) Verse 17—Why should you affirm or deny that a moderate drinker can have "peace and joy in the Holy Ghost?"

(22.) Verses 18-21—What should be the governing principle in every man's actions?

DID CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH?

Look Mother! If tongue is Coated Give "California Syrup of Figs" to Clean the Bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Counterfeits are being sold here. Don't be fooled!

"THEY WANT THE EARTH"

By RUTH CAMERON

"And just think, she only came yesterday and she wants to go out this afternoon."

From the speaker's indignant tone and from the manner in which this charge was received by the group of housewives to whom it was made, you would have thought she was telling of some perfectly outrageous happening.

As a matter of fact, she was simply informing the other women that the maid who came to work for her on Wednesday expected to go out on Thursday, that being her regular day off.

They want the earth, these girls!" she continued, after her announcement had received its due tribute of amazed and indignant comment. "Just think! She had been taking a month's rest and yet she wanted to work one day and have the next off! I didn't let her have it but she was quite ugly about it. I declare, I don't know what we are coming to!"

Now do you think this girl had justice on her side or not?

Suppose a girl went to work on Friday in a shop or office or factory, where Saturdy afternoon off was the rule. Would her employers expect her to work that particular Saturday afternoon because she had just come to work? Of course they wouldn't.

We often wonder why girls prefer starvation wages in a shop, office or factory, to a comfortable wage as houseworker. Is not this one of the reasons? That is, in the business world they receive businesslike treatment, while in the home they are at the mercy of an unbusiness-like and often unreasonable mistress.

I have just received a letter on this same general subject. Of course I do not think there are many mistresses who are so absolutely unfeeling as to act as this woman did, but I think her conduct was more or less typical of the unreasonableness of a large class of mistresses.

Besides, we read about the mistress side of the case so much more often that I am always ready to print the maid's.

"I am in a strange country, trying to make my honest living which the world owes everyone that seeks it," writes my letter friend. "I am a milliner by trade, but find it impossible to make a living on it, having no home. So I am doing housework, and have been in one place between three and four years. Now I have a gentleman friend that I keep steady company with, and the lady won't allow me to entertain him in our only parlour, the kitchen, so that means I have to meet him on the street corners, which I don't think looks very well. I have seen so much about young girls walking the streets, but what are you going to do in a case like this? If I wanted to lead a single life I certainly would go in the convent, as it is of the faith I profess. While my friend knows I am a good, honest girl, he don't approve of having to meet me on the stret corner, or walking the streets, and we can't afford to take in the theatre a couple of nights a week for the simple reason of keeping off the streets. Now I am thinking of making a change. The only fault I have with my position is I can't entertain him one or two nights a week in our only parlour, the kitchen. Do you blame me? I feel if I am good enough to do their work, and trustworthy, that I ought to have the little privilege of having my friend one or two nights a week in our only parlour, the kitchen. I don't blame girls for working for starvation wages, rather than do housework, in the land of the free, and the home of the brave."

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Took Poison In Mistake

John McLaren, of Lindsay, Had a Narrow Escape

LINDSAY, Nov. 7.—To take a dose of sulphate of copper in mistake for a cough mixture, was the unfortunate experience of Mr. John McLaren, of Lindsay, representative for the John's Tea Company, and but for the presence of mind of his cousin, Mr. W. Armstrong, who gave the young man a strong antidote, a fatality might have occurred.

It appears that Mr. McLaren, who boards with Mr. and Mrs. Selby, on Peel street, has been suffering from a cold for some days past, and has been in the habit of taking a home-made cough mixture after every meal. After partaking of a hearty supper he went to his room to get the medicine, but in the dusk swallowed a large quantity of sulphate of copper. McLaren knew immediately that he had partaken of the wrong bottle and informed his room-mate. Armstrong, who was surprised and startled to see that McLaren had swallowed a large dose of deadly poison. Armstrong hurried to the kitchen and mixed up a dose of antidote, which he gave to the unfortunate victim, and which had the desired effect of making him vomit.

A little later McLaren recovered, although to-day he is still suffering from the deadly effects of the poison.

It appears that Armstrong dabbles considerably in amateur photography, which accounts for the sulphate of copper being in the house.

Don't Paste "Charity" Stamps On Letters

New Postal Regulations Absolutely Forbid Use of Stamps on the Address Side of Any Mail

POST OFFICE WARNING

Don't paste a "Christmas" or "charity" stamp on the address side of your Christmas letters or packages will not be forwarded to their destination. They will not even leave Peterborough, but instead will either be returned to the sender or else consigned to the dead letter division. Canadian postal regulations absolutely forbid the use of the stamps on the address side of any mail. However, they can be pasted on the back of the letters or packages, and will go through to their destinations all right, with the proviso, however, that the stickers do not resemble postage stamps in colour, general form or design. They also must bear no numerals or any other indications of value.

SATURDAY RECITAL

An excellent programme is prepared for the Recital to be given in the Hall of the J. M. Greene Music Co. Ltd., To-morrow afternoon at 3.30. A feature will be "Killarney" by one of the world's greatest Artists, on the New Edison Disc Phonograph. Free to all. You are invited.

Noted Men Are Coming

Many Well Known Missionary Workers Will be Here for the Big Campaign

In connection with the Laymen's Missionary Campaign now under way in Peterborough, practically all the pulpits of the Protestant churches in the City will be occupied by missionary speakers on Sunday. Some of the most noted missionary workers in Canada will be in the City for the day. While the work is sometimes criticised, it is claimed by those connected with it that the criticism is directed generally by people who have not studied the great results that have been achieved in the missionary cause, and who only need to be shown the real facts to become its warm supporters.

The banquet next Thursday evening promises to be by far the largest event of the kind ever held in Peterborough. 1,000 tickets have been issued. In order that there may be plenty of accommodation, various churches are contributing chairs. Among the speakers at the banquet will be Judge Hodgins of the Court of Appeal, Toronto, and Dr. J. Y. Ferguson, of Formosa.

To-night the general committee, composed of the representatives of all the Protestant churches in the City, will meet in the Y.M.C.A. to hear reports from committees and complete further arrangements.

20 Furnaces Are Closed

Special Wire to The Examiner.

MONTREAL, Nov. 7.—Since the first of October about 20 blast furnaces throughout the country have been closed on account of poor business and additional curtailment is under way. This is the first severe reduction in the output of iron that has occurred this year, and reflects the depressed state of the steel industry.

FOUR KILLED IN AN AUTO COLLISION

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 7.—Four persons were killed and seven injured early this morning when a large touring car filled with passengers collided with a small runabout and overturned, crushing the victims to death. The passengers of the smaller car were unhurt.

Street In Need Of Repair

Merchants Complain of Bad Condition of George Street, Near Charlotte Street

A number of merchants in the vicinity of George and Charlotte Streets are complaining of the bad condition of the roadway in front of their premises. Excavations were recently made in the road, as a result of which, the surface presents a very uneven appearance. Pools of stagnant water in large quanaities are evident and the merchants in question claim that the conditions generally constitute a detriment to business.

Some one has suggested a remedy in the form of a few loads of gravel, which would alleviate the condition until spring, when that portion of the road will be given over to the paving contractors for permanent repairs.

The Children's Hour At The Public Library

This new departure in Library work will be started on Tuesday next, Nov. 11th, at 4:15 p.m. All children between the ages of seven and ten are eligible to be present on that occasion. The object of the Children's Hour is to interest and instruct the young. The meeting next Tuesday will be more or less of a preliminary character in the way of telling the children just what they may expect to hear and learn during the hour. It has not yet been fully decided as to how often the meetings will be held, but it is hoped that when the scheme is fully launched and in good working order a regular schedule will be adopted.

Wm. F. McCoombs Is Married

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 7.—in the presence of several members of the English aristocracy, as well as leaders of the United States millionaires here, William F. McCoombs, of New York, Democratic National Chairman of the United States, was married to Miss Dorothy Williams, of Washington, in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church.

CANAL NOTES

The No. 1 drill was brought up from below Trent Bridge last Thursday and is going to work deepening the harbour. The No. 7 is cleaning up above Humphries Bar and towards the lake. This is the final cleaning up of this part of the river. The Manita came down on Friday with the H. Q. & R. Co's large scow which the government dredge has been using up there for the past month.

The Islinda has been bringing up the dump cars, dinkies and shovel, which went to Healey Falls early in the season for the power plant, and the same are being loaded here for Welland, where the contractors have a large contract.—Hastings Star.

Preparations For Big Bazaar

The St. George's Bazaar is still increasing from point of view of patronage. The Examiner is informed this morning that a party from the Royal household at Ottawa will be visiting the City during the week the bazaar wil be held and that they have signified their intention of attending the bazaar.

From the patronage viewpoint it is certain that no bazaar ever held in Peterborough was so largely favoured. It is thought that local people will rise to the great occasion, for it is not likely to occur again.

The Examiner was hoping that it would be in a position to publish the names of the chief persons connected with various stalls, but was unable to get a complete list.

DEATH OF FORMER PETERBOROUGH LADY

Mrs. Georgina Smith, Wife of Peterborough Ex-Mayor, Passed Away in Winnipeg

The death of one of Winnipeg's oldest residents, in the person of Mrs. Georgina Margaret Smith, aged 66 years, wife of Mr. Henry H. Smith, formex commissioner of Indian lands, occurred last Saturday morning at her home, 491 River Avenue. Mrs. Smith has been a resident in Winnipeg for thirty years, coming from Ontario in 1883. Born in Peterborough in 1847, she spent the early years of her life in that place. It was there that Henry Smith, then but a young man, met her. Afterward they were married. They both came west to Winnipeg where, later, he was made commissioner of Indian lands.

Mrs. Smith was perhaps the best known Sunday School worker in Winnipeg. She is survived by her husband and one son, Dr. Harvey Smith of Winnipeg. The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the residence, 491 River Avenue, to St. John's Cemetery. Service was conducted at the house by Rev. Dr. Gordon, of the Brandon Baptist College, and Archdeacon Fortin, who is an old friend of the family, officiated at the cemetery.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Mrs. Smith will be well remembered by many in Peterborough as wife of Mr. H. H. Smith, who practiced law here for about 1870 to 1884, when on his appointment as Dominion Lands Commissioner he took residence with Mrs. Smith in Winnipeg; and was Mayor of Peterborough for 1881 to 1883. Mrs. Smith's maiden name was Miss McAlpine, her mother being a sister of the late Hon. Robert Hamilton and of the late Mrs. (Judge) Dennistoun and she, herself, a cousin of Messrs. R. H. and Thomas Forty. During her residence in Peterborough Mrs. Smith was a member of St. Luke's congregation and took a very deep interest in the promotion of the work of the Church. Mrs. Smith held a high position in social life, where her qualities of mind and character made her warmly appreciated. The intelligence of her death, while creating deep regret, will bring back many pleasant recollections of association with her during her life in Peterborough.

MRS. H. H. SMITH; AN APPRECIATION

(From the Winnipeg Free Press)

In the death of Mrs. H. H. Smith, Winnipeg loses one of its rarest and bravest spirits. For many years, fighting a battle with serious ill-health and keeping death at bay, Mrs. Smith lived a life of singular service in the community. A close and diligent student of the Bible, especially of the text, her Sunday Bible classes and week-evening Bible readings for young women were for years a factor in the religious life of the City. These she continued as long as failing health would permit. Her interests in the intellectual and aesthetic side of life were equally great. For she was a woman who loved life and who put her best of noble endowment into it, bearing its ills without grumbling, and enjoying its good with that beautiful spiritual zest belonging to acute minds and strong sympahies. One of the founders and a president of both the Musical Club and the Art Club, Mrs. Smith never missed the meetings as long as she was able to attend. Within later and even more fragile years, she helped to found a literary club for young ladies and prepared papers for it. She had many friends among the young and liked to have bright, intellectual young people about her.

When it was the fashion to condemn Browning, Mrs. Smith began to read his poetry, finding in many poems that strong meat which was pabulum to suit her taste. She was also a reader of Wordsworth and of the early Victorian poets, and was among the first in this City to welcome the great religious poem of a later poet—"The Hound of Heaven."

Over a year ago, Mrs. Smith was asked and consented to be the president of a woman's club organized for the study of social science. Her interest in sociology began some years ago by private reading, and at the first meeting she spoke of the importance of women having intelligent conceptions of social conditions, of cause and effect, and of remedy—if they were to take up the rsponsibility of the suffrage. This was the last meeting Mrs. Smith ever attended, but she kept in touch with the studies and investigations of the club until a day came when the spirit was wearied out with intense and unceasing physical suffering. Her influence was always an uplift; and the genuine sympathy of a large circle will go out to those whom she loved and who loved her.

A MODERN MIRACLE

He Had Eczema 25 Years and Doctors Said "No Cure."

Yet Zam-Buk has Worked Complete Cure.

This is the experience of a man of high reputation, widely known in Montreal, and whose case can readily be investigated. Mr. T. M. Marsh, the gentleman referred to, lives at 101 Delorimier Avenue, Montreal, and has lived there for years. For twenty-five years he has had eczema on his hands and wrists. The disease, first started in red blotches, which itched, and when scratched became painful. Bad sores followed, which discharged, and the discharge spread the disease until his hands were one raw, painful mass of sores. This state of affairs continued for twenty-five years!

In that time four eminent medical men tried to cure him, and each gave up the case as hopeless. Naturally, Mr. Marsh tried remedies of all kinds, but he, also, at last gave it up. For two years he had to wear gloves day and night so terrible was the pain and itching when the air got to the sores.

Then came Zam-Buk! He tried it, just as he had tried hundreds of remedies before. But he soon found out that Zam-Buk was different. Within a few weeks there were distinct signs of benefit, and a little perserverance with this great herbal balm resulted in what he had given up all hope of—a complete cure! And the cure was no temporary cure. It was permanent. He was cured nearly four years ago. Interviewed the other day, Mr. Mash said: "The cure which Zam-Buk worked has been absolutely permanent. From the day that I was cured to the present moment I have had no trace of eczema, and I feel sure it will never return."

If you suffer from any skin trouble, cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it with one cent stamp to pay return postage, to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. We will forward you by return a free trial box of Zam-Buk. All druggists and stores sell this famous remedy, 50c box, or three for $1.25. Refuse harmful substitutes.

Mr. Willis Chipman is Anxious to Close His Account With the City

THE "WHITE ELEPHANT"

Willis Chipman, of Toronto, is still hopeful of collecting the balance of his account from the City of Peterborough. He has forwarded a communication to the City Council with the request that the balance of the Romaine street sewer account, amounting to $[illegible] be paid. Mr. Chipman, who is a consulting engineer, was employed by the city in connection with the construction of the Romaine street sewer and pumping station.

The sewer since its completion has given considerable trouble, and for some reason or other the city has been reluctant to liquidate the full amount of Mr. Chipman's claim. Alderman Gordon, chairman of the Legal Committee, has suggested that the claim be turned over to the Legal Department, who will investigate its validity.

Mr. Chipman in his letter to the city states that if the city's finances will not permit payment being made this year, the firm would be willing to accept a note or debenture for the amount with interest at five per cent. The matter has been referred to the Board of Works.

The City Council, of London, Ont., have been empowered to secure the services of Mr. Chipman in connection with the installation of the proposed $400,000 storm-sewer project.

TENDERS WILL BE CALLED AT ONCE FOR SNOW REMOVAL

Board of Works Will Prepare for Winter's Supply of the Beautiful

OTHER MATTERS HANDLED

When Wednesday night passed with the lights out at the City Hall it looked as if the "Willing Workers" had encountered a week of inactivity, although, at that, there was a Council meeting on Monday evening. But last night they were doing business in the same old stand.

Ald. Butler conducted the proceedings with Mayor Bradburn and Aldermen Gillespie, McIntyre and Johnston present.

City Engineer Parsons was authorized to advertise for tenders for the removal of snow and slush from the sidewalks during the approaching winter. The Board of Works is thus anticipating the designs of the weather man, and he will have to get in his work during the next ten days if he intends to inconvenience the citizens.

Plows Out Early.

While he had no particular complaint to make, Mayor Bradburn suggested that the men who man the snowplows this winter should be out on the streets early. There were a few cases reported last season that indicated a touch of tardiness.

Ald. Johnston—It would be a wise idea to let the contracts for the various districts to men residing in them and not having a man living in East City removing the snow in the west or south wards.

Ald. McIntyre—"If they don't get out early enough what can we do?

Mayor Bradburn—"A certain penalty may be imposed—say a fine.

Ald. Johnston asked if the removal of snow from the newly-paved streets would have to be carried out to a greater extent than formerly, but the Mayor and City Engineer considered that no extra work would be entailed in this regard.

Duties of Citizens.

Ald. Johnston suggested that something might be considered in regard to citizens assisting in the work of snow removal. After the plow has passed along a sidewalk some of the snow falls back on the walk. He suggested that citizens should shovel this out and thus keep the cleared passage wider than it has been in the past. The Board took no action in this direction.

Hunter Street Curb Again.

Mr. Wm. Madill wrote in regard to the curb on the south side of Hunter Street, just west of George street. He would hold the City responsible for any damage sustained through water flowing through the gratings in the sidewalk resulting from the low curb.

Mayor Bradburn—They should put in glass prisms where the gratings are and make them water tight."

Ald. Johnston—"Have they a right to light conveniences through the sidewalk?"

Mayor Bradburn—"I don't know, but the City should protect itself."

Ald. Johnston stated that he remembered when the concrete walk was laid around that corner and it was kept low to coincide with the low door step leading into the store. It makes it all the worse, he said, that the City should be threatened now when the sidewalk level had been made for the convenience of the premises.

It was moved by Ald. Gillespie, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that the City Clerk write Mr. Madill and the Toronto Savings and Loan Company notifying them to replace the present gratings with glass prisms, or fill them entirely, the work to be done and under the supervision of the City Engineer, otherwise the City will fill them in.

Ald. Johnston, referring to the digging of drains in the vicinity of the Hydro cable suggested that the men be again warned to be careful in the work and not injure them. It was not due to the care of some of the workmen that the cable had escaped injury near the corner of George and Dalhousie Streets. He intimated that it had narrowly escaped damage.

The contract for cement terminated on October 1st, and Mr. Parsons stated that the R. Hicks & Co. refused to supply any more at the special price unless a car load was purchased. Only a small quantity was required for the work yet to be done.

City Clerk Armstrong remarked that the clause specifying the time of the contract had been left in the specifications for a number of years.

Mayor Bradburn said there was no necessity of buying a car load and Mr. Parsons was instructed to secure the required amount at whatever price he could obtain it.

TO HOLD A DEBATE.

The Ladies' Literary Society of St Peter's T.A.S. will hold a debate this season on the subject, "Resolved That Home Training in Domestic Science is Preferable to School Training."

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

TWO NEW FORWARDS FOR NOTTINGHAM FOREST

New Acquisitions Show Splendid Form on Initial Appearance---A Lamentable Fatality--A Uniform Ball--English Cricket Players For South Africa.

There is every reason to suppose that Nottingham Forest have made good bargains in the transfers which they have secured of two forwards. Bell is certainly an acquisition, and Yates showed signs of development. The latter, a sturdily-built youth of 21, who has been scoring many goals for the Central Alliance Club, Gresley Rovers, made his first appearance against Blackpool, and, though he did not fill the expectations his record had led many to form, he shaped very fairly. Coming straight from junior football, he found the play and the players much too fast for him, and when he did get an opportunity, though onside, he could do nothing with it. Still, he passed out nicely to his wings, and he seems built for the game.

A Lamentable Fatality.

The sad death of Dietlof S. Mare, the utility man of the "Springboks'" team of 1906-7, as the result of a motor car accident, will be deeply regretted in this country.

He was a serviceable player, who had not the best of luck when in this country, and his worst experience was at Hampden Park, where he got a couple of fingers broken in the Scottish match. That interfered with his football for some time.

He had been chosen for the British tour as a half-back, but he was really played as a forward, and, if lacking in height—he was 5 ft. 9 in. and looked rather less—he was powerfully built, weighing nearly 13½ stone.

Mare was only 28 years of age, and a tough man to tackle, as a Welsh forward — was it not at Newport? — found out to his cost when he fouled him on a line-out.

A Uniform Ball.

A considerable amount of discussion is taking place in respect to the various sizes of balls used in playing Rugby football. This variation exists notwithstanding the fact that the rules of the game stipulate clearly the size and weight.

It is very probable, so far as the Northern Union is concerned, that the committee will in the near future raise the question, and that a uniform ball will be insisted upon for all matches controlled by the Union.

CRICKET.

English Players for South Africa.

With the exception of Barnes, who is sailing by the intermediate boat, the Braemar Castle, the members of the M.C.C. team for South Africa left Southampton on Saturday last by the Union-Castle liner, R. M. S. Saxon.

The team is as follows:—J. W. H. T. Douglas (Essex) (captain), M. C. Bird (Surrey), Hon. L. H. Tennyson (Hampshire), D. C. Robinson (Gloucestershire), Rhodes (Yorkshire), Hobbs (Surrey), Mead (Hants), J. W. Hearne (Middlesex), A. E. Relf (Sussex), Woolley (Kent), Booth (Yorkshire), Barnes (Staffordshire) and Strudwick (Surrey).

Prior to sailing the team were entertained to lunch, Mr. Douglas, the captain, in the course of a short speech, regretted that only 13 men were being taken, but he had permission to ask the South African Cricket Association to allow him to call upon any English cricketer engaged out there. It is understood that Robert Relf, who is travelling by the same boat for Johannesburg, will be first choice if necessary. We may add that the South African Cricket Association are paying all the expenses.

FOOTBALL

Benedicts Vs. Bachelors.

To-morrow afternoon will be seen on the Exhibition grounds, one of the best football games of the season between the Benedicts and Bachelors and the losers are to pay for a banquet at Coleman's.

Both teams have been out for the last two weeks getting in the best of condition for the game and also for the banquet. Manager Smith will finish his teams training with a five mile run to-night, while Captain Hotston concluded his training last night with a ten mile walk.

The players of both teams are requested to be on the ground at 2.15 p.m. to be ready to kick off at 2.30 sharp. Mr. A. Day has been agreed on as referee, and with him on the job the game will be well handled, as he is one of the best football referees in Peterborough. The teams will line up as follows:

Benedicts		Bachelors
	Goal
Ridley		Packwood
	Backs
Gribb		Pullen
Bishop		Perry
	HalfBacks
Mason		Wilson
Harris		Gamble
Milburn		Knight
	Forwards
Curtis		Edwards
Morsity		Hotston (capt.)
Pargett (capt.)		Butters
French		Bartley
Boycott		Davey
H. Smith		T. B. Moffett

BASEBALL

BRANTFORD, Nov. 6.—Brantford may be without a Canadian League team here next year. Developments in the Canadian League recently are such that there may be a big change before the season of 1914 opens. An offer has been made to President Nelson of $3,500 for the franchise, which it is proposed to transfer to Youngstown, Ohio. Jimmy Murphy, the Toronto lacrosse magnate, is behind the deal, and the Brantford president is disposed to let go, as the game has not proved a paying proposition here.

Just what effect the long world's tour will have on the members of the Giants and White Sox in the next campaign will be watched with interest. It is argued that ball players who do not rest during the off season but continue to play ball, suffer a severe setback and are not able to give their teams their best service during the regular season.

If either Giants or Sox prove a failure in the next race it is sure to be blamed on the world's tour. The work of a ball player during six or seven months of a season is decidedly strenuous, and there is no doubt that he benefits himself by resting during the winter months. To remain in constant action cannot but have a detrimental effect on his playing ability. This is one reason why Manager Griffith of the Nationals would not allow any of his players to join the party, Schaefer excepted, because he is no longer considered a regular player.

While there are several high-class players on the two teams, neither is as strong as the average first division team in either big league, yet these teams ought to be able to give the foreigners an excellent idea of how baseball is played.

There is no doubt that Callahan is jeopardising his team's future by taking "Reb" Russell on this long trip. The young lefthander did the bulk of the work for the sox in the last campaign and is absolutely in need of a rest. Even if he is pitched only occasionally on the present trip he will have to keep himself in condition to do that and constant training does not help an athlete, and particularly does not help a pitcher who was on the verge of being overworked during the regular season.

SHYLOCKS.

Old Shylock was a grouchy guy
Who held he price of flesh on high
And didn't care a single cent
For maid or matron, boy or gent,
And though at last he came to grief
He still upheld the price of beef.
But if old Shylock lived to-day
And saw the cold and cruel way
McFarland, Gibbons, Leaches, Cross
And Ritchie, who is lightweight boss,
Will fight about an ounce or two
Old Shylock, with a feling blue,
Would wipe his eye and heave a sigh,
And say: "I am a bush league guy!"

NEW SERIAL WILL BEGIN

Don't Miss Opening Instalments of "The Affair Next Door"

"That Affair Next Door," the best detective story that Anna Katharine Gren has ever written, and one of the best serials the Examiner has ever published, wil commence in to-morrow's issue. No one who enjoys a cleverly written mystery yarn can afford to miss this entrancing novel, which has not a dull moment in any of its chapters. There will be a generous instalment in to-morow's issue. Don't fail to get hold of a copy.

MRS. ALICE STEBBINS WELLS IS COMING

First Police Woman of California to Lecture in Peterborough

The Local Women's Council are arranging for an open meeting to which the general public will be invited to hear an address by Mrs. Alice Stobbins Wells, who was the first police woman in California. The results she achieved lead to a general adoption of the idea of appointing women on the police forces of the large cities. Mrs. Wells addressed the Canadian Club in Toronto some time ago. She is one of the women of the present day whose accomplishments have attracted wide attention, and the Local Council feel that her visit to Peterborough will interest a large number of citizens. Further notice of her visit will be given in a few days.

"POLICY LOANS" WAS SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

At Meeting of Life Underwriters at Noon To-day

A paper on 'Policy Loans' was the feature of the regular monthly meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association which was held at noon to-day in the White House. There was a good attendance of members present for dinner, which was heartily enjoyed. At its conclusion a business meeting was opened by the president, Mr. W. Gordon Hall.

Mr. W. A. Haslem, who attended the annual meeting of the Dominion Association held recently in Ottawa, gave a report of the business transacted at the meeting. Mr. Haslem then read an interesting paper on "Policy Loans." The next meeting of the association will be held on the first Monday in December, and a number of interesting features are being prepared.

Succumbs to Injuries

Former Roseneath Man Dies in the West

Word was received in the City today of the death of Archie Burrison. Deceased, who formerly resided in Roseneath, was seriously injured a few days ago in a gasoline explosion near Elbow, Saskatchewan. He was well-known in Peterborough. Mrs. John Burrison, mother of the deceased, left for the west, upon receipt of the intelligence respecting the accident. She will accompany the remains to Roseneath, where interment will take place. Burrison was operating a gasoline engine in connection with a threshing outfit, when the explosion occurred.

Wife Denounces Crown Attorney In Trial At Whitby

Dramatic Scene When Mrs. Gamble Was Forced From Court Room

Special Wire to The Examiner.

WHITBY, ONT., Nov. 7. — Overwrought by the long strain in listening to the evidence against her husband, Mrs. Gamble, wife of the accused Toronto labour man, suddenly broke into a tirade against Crown Prosecutor Creswicke and had to be forcibly ejected from the court room this afternoon. Crown Attorney Creswicke was addressing the jury at the time. Mrs. Gamble fought like a mad person when attempts were made to remove her from the court. Shrieking hysterically she was finaly ejected, though it took four husky men to do it. Mingled pathetically with her cries were those of her little child crying with her. He was unable to understand all, but knew that something serious w ashapening. Fifteen minutes later while Judge Britton was summing up the case, Mrs. Gamble broke from those trying to restrain her and got as far as the corridor before she was overcome. Her husband is charged with saturating ropes with sulphphuric acid to injure lives of bridge workers.

TO-DAY'S POLICE COURT NEWS

Herbert Londry, a local young man who is on the prohibited list, was charged in Police Court this morning with being drunk. He pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs.

In the witness box Londry was cross-examined by Chief Thompson and finally implicated two other young fellows, who he swore supplied him with liquor. He said that on Sunday last he met William Hamilton, a friend of his, who asked him to go for a drive. They went, and in the course of their tour around the City, Hamilton produced a flask of whiskey which they proceeded to consume.

"Did you have any liquor the day before that?" asked Chief Thompson.

"I might have had a glass or two," replied Londry.

"Where did you get that?"

"A fellow by the name of Callahan gave it to me. I met him in a pool room and gave him 25 cents. He got me a 25 cent flask of whiskey.

"Did Callahan know you were on the blacklist?"

"Yes, I think he knew it at the time. He had asked me to go in and have a drink with him several times but I told him I couldn't because I was on the list.

Londry told the Chief of Police that he did not think Hamilton knew he was on the prohibited list.

The result of Londry's testimony will likely be that the other two young men will have to answer to a charge of supplying him with liquor. If they are convicted the lowest fine that can be imposed is $25.

James Baron, who hails from Toronto, landed in the City a few days ago with $10. He got drunk Wednesday night, was arrested and had to pay a fine. He imbibed too freely again last night and when he appeared in Court this morning he had no money to pay his fine. He will spend the next ten days improving the interior of "Castle Nesbitt."

Samuel Donovan claimed $7.50 for wages from Mr. Geo. Doig. Mr. Doig admitted that he owed Donovan $5.40, so an order on him to Donovan was made out for that amount.

Appealed To Judge

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—"Can't you do something, Judge? Isn't there anything you can do to save my daughter from that woman? She will take her again and wil drag her down to her level."

The woman who made this appeal leaned across Judge Choquet's desk in the Juvenile Court this morning, her body shaking with sobs, her voice thrilled with the emotion that possessed her.

And those who heard her story understood her sobs, and knew that there was real reason for her appeal. Few stories are more moving than that which she told.

Last April her daughter was arrested when a disorderly house on St. Lawrence boulevard was raided. The girl, being a juvenile, was brought before the court. The mother stated that her husband was living with the woman who ran the house in which her daughter was found. The girl was sent to the Good Shepherd home for two years.

According to the mother this woman is visiting the girl frequently, and is maintaining her hold on her. She enters the home on the pretence that she is the girl's cousin and is interested in her welfare, says the mother. Yet had it not been for her the girl would never have got into trouble.

"She was a good girl, such a good girl, until this woman got hold of her," said the grief-stricken woman. "And then this woman came and is spoiling her life. Do you think that she will be good when she comes out if that woman is allowed to see her often. She will be far worse than when she went in."

"And that is not all," continued this mother. "I have two other children in another institution in this city. I am poor, and since my husband left me four years ago I have not been able to support them. "I have just learned that this woman is visiting these two little ones, a boy and a girl, in his other home, and enters on the pretenc ethat she is their mother. She will do with them what she did with the others. I know only too well the effect of her influence. Can't there be anything that can be done to put a stop to this."

Judge Choquet, when he heard the story, said he was sorry, but that was out of his jurisdiction. "If these institutions allow this you must complain to the Attorney-General," he said. "After the girls pass through this court I cannot do anything. You will have to take the matter up at Quebec."

THE RING

"What's in a name?"

Well, for instance, just bill some of our mitt mixing entertainers under their correct appellations and you will really be surprised.

How does this sound?

Geary Steffans vs. Louis Wallach.

Or this—

Fred Thomas vs. Willie Breslin.

Give this the up and down:

Joseph Carrora vs. Jose Rievera.

Frankly speaking, you wouldn't go for to see a bunch of unknown dubs like them, would you? No, of course not!

But at the same time you wouldn't mind witnessing a few rounds of performing by Willie Ritchie and Leach Cross or Freddie Welsh and Jack Britton or looking over Johnnie Dundee and Joe Rivers.

Oh! that's different. No, it isn't, either. They are one and the same. Ritchie is Steffans, Cross is Wallach, Welsh is Thomas, Britton is Breslin, Dundee is Carrora, and Rivers is Rievera.

And that is not all. There are others—many others.

Probably one of the best known of these was Joseph Youngs, who chose the handle of Tommy Ryan to carry into the ring with him because it was more in harmony with his business.

Kid McCoy, a pupil of Ryan at one time, and who later doublecrossed him, was always married under his own name of Norman Selby, a son of the Rev. W. Selby.

During the meetings of the board of supervision in San Francisco a member is dignifiedly addressed as Mr. John Terget, but earlier in life he was hooking and jabbing as Young Mitchell, one of the best middleweights of his day.

You would think a body crazy that would introduce Philadelphia Jack O'Brien to you as Mr. Joseph F. Hagan, yet that would be necessary if you would be properly introduced.

And remember Tommy Burns, who double-crossed the title (?) from the talkative O'Brien only to lose it to a certain party in far away Australia? His parents gave him the name of Noah Brusso.

That reminds us of old Bill Lang, one of Tommy's victims. Remember Bill? He was sent over here touted as the greatest boxer in the world—and he never missed a punch while in this country. He always signed his letters home to Australia "William Lanfranchi."

Then there was Hugo Kelly, an Irish name of a pure-blooded son of Italy, who was none other than Ugo Micheli in the land of spaghetti. That was one on Ireland, and, lucky for Ugo, he was a good fighter.

Do you suppose Jim Flynn would have possessed as much stamina if he had to carry around with him the jaw-dislocationer — Andrew Chiariglion?

Neither would the hard-hitting Sailor Burke have received as many interviews if he had sent a card bearing his correct name—Charles Prasser—in to the sporting editors.

The most picturesque fighter of recent years, the late lamented Stanley Ketchel (When will there be another like him?), was not permitted by the sporting writers to use his Polish name. In the city hall in Conway, Mo., his untimely death is recorded under the name of Stanislaus Kiecal.

Joe Thomas, who fought "Steve" two grand battles, one of which—the 33-round contest at Colma—is considered the greatest fight ever witnessed in the west, was in private life, Joe Daly.

Also that good, dusky boy — the Dixie Kid—was not from Dixie, but from Missouri, and he had a name, and that was Aaron Brown.

Before Young Corbett ever dreamed that he would one day be a champion he was called Willie Rothwell by his Denver pals. Charley Neary, the lightweights, was Charles Nehrung. Fighting Dick Hyland, the old San Francisco battler, who is still in the game, was known in his boyhood as William Uren. Frankie Conley, that very good bantam that gave Coulon a terrific tustle for a title a few years back, has the high-browed Italian appellation of Francisco Conte. Young Josephs, an excellent European boxer, who is about through, is Harry Aschel to his folks in London.

The old-timers are not the only ones to use aliases. Here are a few every-day fighters that we all know and their truthful patronymics: Meet Mr. Ernest Cutler Price of Indianapolis. Who? Oh, to be sure, Mr. Price and Jack Dillon are one and the same. Know Paddy Lavin as Patrick Sarsfield, and [illegible] introduced Wildcat Ferns, after the welter title, as Clarence McCubbins we shall be making no mistake.

When Eddie Campi, the black-haired little 'Frisco newsboy, went to school the teacher wrote his name as Edward De Campus. K. O. Brown's "honest-to-Gawd" handle is Valentine Braun. And Jack and Charley White, the clever Chicago lightweights, left their family name of Auchowitz back in Liverpool, England, where they were born. Harry Lewis is not a brother of Willie Lewis, as he was born Henry Besterman. George K. O. Brown has the Spartan tag of George Contas.

When Kid Williams, that great little bantam, was a boy in Denmark he was known as Jonathan Gutenko. George Chip, the new sensation, has chipped the Chip from Chipulonis; as did Tony Ross, barber, Antony Rossilano.

Big Charley Miller, the heavyweight comedian who can speak nine languages and eat soup at the same time, has a good old Roumanian name that is as big and funny as he is—Josephe Costlemagna.

Oh! there's a lot in names.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG.

CANADIAN PACIFIC

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 26th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arirving Winnipeg at 8.25 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Observation Compartment Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg, but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

Full particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

WAS BADLY FRIGHTENED MAN

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—"Your troubles are not at an end, for we intend to do away with you. Our friends were prosecuted by you once before, but will not be so again. Before three days are over you will die, you were not killed the first time, but there will be no mistake the next. Get away from the city and hide yourself where you think we can not get you, otherwise you are to be killed." (Signed), "Friends of the prosecuted."

Emil Guyot, of St. Hubert Street, was a much frightened man this morning, as he showed the above letter to Chief Charpenter, and raised his coat sleeve to show two bullet wounds which were inflicted on him by some unknown person who fired at him from the darkness, and winged him twice as he was walking along Fleurimont Street, two weeks ago.

Guyot, who is a Belgium, was taken to the General Hospital, and no trace of his assailants was found by the police.

He has no idea who is responsible for the threat, and has asked for protection.

MRS. BEEMER "NOT GUILTY" IS THE JURY'S VERDICT

Woodstock Poisoning Case Terminated This Afternoon Before Justice Kelly

THE JUDGE'S REMARKS

Special to the "Examiner."

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 7.—Shortly after noon, to-day, the jury in the case of Mrs. Grace Beemer, charged with poisoning her husband, filed out with the case in its hands. After hearing the argument of he lawyers, this morning, Mr. Justice Kelly charged the jury and his remarks were distinctly favourable to the prisoner. He pointed out that Beemer had been in Town, where the poison could be bought, on several occasions, and it was an easy matter for him to conceal poison in his clothing. His lordship intimated it was a rather strange thing that John Mason, the farm-hand, did not tell his story about the poison in an egg cup before the Coroner's Jury.

In his address to the Jury Crown Prosecutor Meredith described Mrs. Beemer, the prisoner, as being a cute as a fox. He said her thirty-two lawsuits had developed her skill. He said it was not necessary to show a motive in the case, but perhaps Mrs. Beemer thought there was more money than there was in the estate.

(Flash, 1.45 p.m.—Jury returns a verdict of not guilty.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. T. W. Gladman, of Exeter, is the guest of Mrs. P. A. Kerr, 536 Downie street.

Miss Mary Wainright returned to her home in London after having spent the past six weeks with relatives in the City.

Mr. William Cerse, manager of the Boston Cafe, arrived back from Toronto last night, where he has been spending a few days on business.

Mr. Ira Lullam of Toronto is in the City to-day to attend the funeral of his uncle, Mr. Errington, which will take place at half-past two this afternoon.

Miss Frances Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Scott, and Mr. Russell Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hill, of Toronto, and formerly of Barrie, were quietly wedded by Rev. Wm. Hipkin last Saturday night and left on the Cobalt for a trip north. They will reside in Toronto.—Barrie Examiner.

Want Protest In South Bruce

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., Nov. 7.—W. Weichell, Geo. Clare, members for North and South Waterloo respectively, who are in the Capital, are anxious to have Conservatives enter a protest in South Bruce. They are both keenly disappointed about the result of the contest in which they both took an active part, and would like to have another chance to convince their German compatriots that they should vote for a contribution policy. The impressions prevailing here, however, is that the Conservatives are talking of entering a protest in South Bruce in the hope of making the Liberals drop the proposed protest in Chateauguay.

Cabinet Is Still Sitting

Examiner Special:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—As an evidence of the seriousness of the Mexican situation Secretary of State Bryan came out of an all morning Cabinet conference to-day and intimated that there was nothing for publication and that the Cabinet would continue to sit without taking luncheon hour.

Innis And Girl May Be Married

His Honour Judge Huycke was to have passed sentence upon Garnet Innis this afternoon who was found guilty a week ago on the charge of procuring drugs for criminal purposes. There was a delay at the opening of court and it is understood that an arrangement had been arrived at whereby Innis and the little girl he had met in the course of his delivery rounds are to be married this afternoon.

In this event it is expected that no sentence will be passed upon him.

TWO MEN ARE POISONED

Special to The Examiner:

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 7:—Frank M. Smith, aged 65, and Charles Moncrdt, aged 70, were found dead in the suit of rooms owned by Smith, this morning. There were indications of poisoning, and it is thought they were done to death for their money, as both were in the habit of carrying much cash about with them. Investigations are proceeding.

TRY TO SETTLE THE DIFFERENCES

Special to the Examiner.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—Strenuous efforts are being made to settle the difference in South Lanark betwen Dr. Hanna, the convention nominee, and Col. Balderson, Indepedent Conservative, who has announced his determination to run. The writ for the bye-election will be issued in the near future and in the meantime efforts to settle the family row will be continued.

WILL SETTLE BIG STRIKE BY ARBITRATION

Examiner Special:

INDIANAPOLIS, NOV. 7.—After a long conference, the Railway Company and strikers have agreed to leave the questions at issue to arbitration. The troops will be sent home to-night without being used.

NO ATTEMPT TO RUN CARS

Examiner Special:

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 7.—There was no attempt to run the cars this morning up to eleven o'clock, although the city was full of soldiers to protect the strike-breaking carmen. Governor Ralston has for some reason stayed his hand, and has not yet declared martial law. In the meantime business throughout the city is paralyzed for lack of means of transportation.

MONTHLY STATEMENT

OTTAWA, Nov. 7. — The monthly statement of revenue and expenditure issued to-day by the Department of Finance, shows a total revenue for the first seven months of the fiscal year of a hundred and one million. This is an increase of approximately five million as compared with the corresponding period last year. The increase has been largely in post office, excise and railway revenue. The Customs colections showed only a small gain.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

In Juvenile court this morning a 15-year-old girl from Tweed, who has come under the eyes of the police for indiscreet conduct, was allowed to go on suspended sentence, provided she goes home to Tweed where her parents live.

Stock Markets

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—There was nothing doing in the last hour. Some of the room-traders tried to see stocks down, pleading that the close would be as weak as that of Thursday. The bearish efforts achieved very little success. Not only were the dealings professional but they were confined to comparative few stores, and many of the usually active issues contributed nothing whatever to the day's business. Some observers thought the market was inclined to go up but that natural tendency was held in check.

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

To-morrow will present a continuation of the trading market. The backing and filling is to be expected on account of the uncertainties. The Mexican situation and steel conditions are being made more prominent. We again say, we have good reasons for believing that the best kind of buying is taking place on all reactions in the market. Banking interests of high repute and with the best facilities for looking ahead are quietly advising connections to buy sound securities and forget the pessimism that is so prominent at present. Southern Pacific, St. Paul, B. & O., P.P., N.P., G.Q., and high grade Coppers are recomended when anything specific is given. The Boston bear element seems to be the most active division of the professionals now.

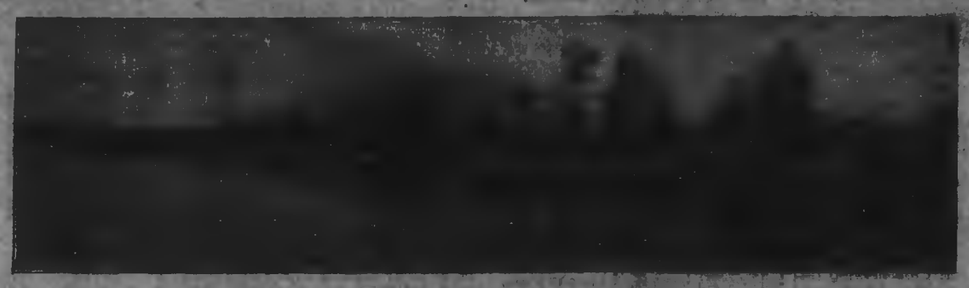
ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER



A VIEW OF THE ROAD-BED OF OLD COBOURG RAILWAY—Do you know this narrow road-bed? It extends from Harwood to Tick Island. Recalls the old summer time. Does it not? Rice Lake lovers will even [illegible] along the narrow strip.

A DECEASED CANADIAN RAILWAY

An Intimate and Interesting Account of the Old Peterboro'-Cobourg Railway by John M. Copeland in the November Issue of McLean's Magazine—Amusing Incident of the Sheriff and How He and His Car Were Dropped Off.

When the Arctic navigator, Sir John Franklin, with canoe crews of voyageurs and Indians, eastbound after exploring the Great Lakes pitched wigwams in the summer of 1839 at the confluence of stream and lake, where the nucleus of present Cobourg, Canada, was taking root, little did this adventurous sailor think that from a point where they camped a railroad would thirteen years later bisect the unbroken forest. Yet, it is so, and the whirligig of time has likewise, recorded the obituary of that railway—has witnessed the effacement of the name of those early laid steel ribbons from the timetables of a young country which to-day hungers and lobbies for more and more tracks and trams.

Cobourg and thereabouts is ancient territory as settlements go nowadays. In 1796 the district was surveyed and a United Empire Loyalist—Eluid Nickerson—took out the first patent in 1802 during the reign of King George II., but in spite of its monarchical predilections, the locality has long been of interest to our cousins south of Lake Ontario and a few years after the time of construction of Cobourg and Peterborough Railway, of which I speak, several iron masters and capitalists from Pittsburg acquired the property. This pioneer Upper Canada line was mooted in 1851 by local promoters; it took definite form in 1852, and on 7th February, 1853, Lady Mayoress, Mrs. S. E. Mackechnie, officiated in the ceremony of turning the first sod amidst tremendous public enthusiasm.

Engines Burned Wood.

Close in the wake of this propitious beginning construction advanced and under the supervision of Engineer Ira Spaulding and Contractor Zimmerman, the line pushed through valley and glade fifteen miles to Rice Lake's sloping, fertile shore at Harwood, while feathered and furry prowlers of the virgin woods were piqued with curiosity by th strange sights and sounds. The following year saw the railroad extended as far as Peterborough. Antique locomotives with impossible superstructures coughed and squeaked along this primitive highway, meanwhile eating a mighty hole in the wood pile, as coal and oil burners were not contrived. Though crudely equipped with iron and some wooden rails, the road was nevertheless a startling and welcome innovation at that period for abbreviating space. The building of the Grand Trunk Railway had only commenced at Riviere du Loup, P.Q., and saddle horse and coach were shank's mares only substitutes. Picture, if you can, a journey inside a two-teamed springless stage, tediously winding westward past bear haunt, swamp, and river; for instance, over the historic, old military road from Kingston! It must have been a hunter's paradise.

Bridge Proved Costly.

The bridging of Rice Lake was a costly engineering undertaking, proving a burden from which the management never recovered and the structure became notorious later on. The alternate rigours of winter, and spring reaction, upset calculations as well as the bridge's equilibrium. Those piles which had no foundation in fact—in the lake bottom, to be more exact—dangled from the upper work, an encumbrance instead of a support, and many of the bolts disappeared, some claim by design of wrongly disposed persons. One autumn night after a south-bound train from Peterborough had passed over, the shivering spans succumbed to a gale and disappeared. To-day they remain the abode of lunge, bass, and other denizens of the waters.

From Harwood some distance off shore to Tick Island a filing had been made and the bridge trestles were projected two miles across the westerly loop of the lake to where Hiawatha Indian settlement still harbours the fishing and rice-gathering sons and daughters of sires long since passed to the happy hunting grounds. You may see them any summer day vieing with "Alderville" redskins from near Roseneath, in [illegible] wielding the paddle, as of yore when their forbears fought fiercely all round that favoured camping place.

Ashburnham Station.

When ice heaved the bridge floor, four-horse sleighs transported passengers inland between Harwood, the Indian village, and the depot at Ashburnham, seven miles north. To take charge of this old station, which afterwards became a canoe factory, Donald Sutherland was the first appointed, and Mr. Roebuck became the Cobourg representative. William Von Ingen, now Collector of His Majesty's Customs at Woodstock, Ont., collected tickets, covering the run of about twenty-five miles, which cost one dollar per capita and entitled the holder to the usual privilges save the compartment sleeper, electric fans, and curling iron.

Dropping the Sheriff.

It is recounted that one forenoon long ago the sheriff unexpectedly boarded a north-bound "C. & P." train on which the superintendent was also travelling. Although the latter was not a mind reader he had a presentiment that the sheriff's presence might not augur well for his particular department. Everything was placid on the lake itself until the train approached the height of land at Summit, nine miles up from Cobourg, when the brakes controlling the rear car in which the court official sat, in tranquil state, were locked and the coupling pin withdrawn. A retrograde movement quickly followed and the sheriff was powerless to stem the progress of his unwilling hurry. As though the Evil One was after him, down grade rolled the flustered occupant of the flying carriage to where it started. Nothing daunted, the sheriff procured a team and drove fifteen miles back to Harwood, but found on arrival that everything not nailed down, including attachable railway equipment, etc., had forsaken Northumberland, and was transferred across the bridge to the next county.

Visit of Prince of Wales.

Early in the day of 7th September, 1860, a "special" moved over the "C. & P." conveying Edward, Prince of Wales, and suite from Cobourg to Harwood en route to Peterborough. As the old bridge was considered unsafe for this precious young patron and entourage, they were much interested in being ferried across Rice Lake to the Mississauga Indian settlement near the mouth of the winding Otonabee River, from which point Royalty and retinue were driven to Peterborough.

This railway's legitimate traffic—forest products and lumber—was hauled for several years from the interior to docks at Cobourg, thence by steamer to various lake ports. Time wrought changes, and debt became the most formidable obstacle to progress. During a spell of depression under the regime of the first manager, John Fowler, a financial coup d'etat was arranged with the Midland, Port Perry, Lindsay & Beaverton Railway, and in 1857 Lieut.-Col. D'Arcy E. Boulton, a Cobourg aristocrat, rented the property, battling valiantly for a time against odds in an endeavour to rehabilitate its prestige.

Freighted Iron.

After the Civil War the road came under the control of the Pennsylvania iron triumvirate mentioned, Messrs. Chambliss, Schoenburg and Fitzhugh from Virginia, who changed the title to Cobourg, Peterborough & Marmora Railway and Mining Company, utilizing their new possession for handling iron ore from Blairton, Ont., mines across Rice Lake via Harwood and Cobourg to the Cleveland, Ohio, smelters and mills.

During the summer of 1874 the Viceregal couple, Lord and Lady Dufferin, participated in an eleven hour outing from Cobourg via C. P. & M. R. & M. Co., Harwood, Rice Lake, steamer, and Hastings, and extracts from the Countess' description of their ore mine inspection and experinces, as set down in Her Ladyship's diary at the time, read as follows:

"I did not expect to care the least about it, as we had seen so many untidy, stoney, barren places called mines, but this one was really an interesting sight. We found ourselves at the top of an enormous hole or cavern, 140 feet deep, large in proportion, perfectly open and light as day. The men looked like imps as they worked below, and it was the sort of thing one sees represented, in miniature, in a fairy play. The sides were walls of iron; but, alas, coal is found only in the States. . . .

"When we returned to the steamer, we found a barge tied to its side covered in with green—a floating arbour—in which lunch was laid; and very glad we were of it, as we had breakfasted at 7.30 a.m., and it was now 2 p.m. The managers of the mines, the steamers, etc., are Americans, and we were their guests. Colonel Chambliss and General Fitzhugh, with their wives (two sisters), were our hosts. They lived in the hotel at which we stayed, and are charming Southerners."

The old Parliament of Upper Canada incorporated the earlier organization. In 1869 an Act was passed legalizing the amalgamation of the railway and mining companies. In 1887 the Ontario Legislature and Federal Parliament were appealed to respecting the sale of the company's bonds. Several rearrangements of its name and financial status subsequently occurred and at one time the Municipality of Cobourg became a guarantor in further reorganization, but much protracted litigation was the precursor of dissolution. The Act of 1893 amalgamated the Cobourg-Harwood division with the Grand Trunk Railway. Presently operation of the miniature system ceased altogether, and thus did a budding nation, in a constructive age, behold a once famous railway rust into oblivion.

WOMAN ACQUITTED

Mrs. Beemer Adjudged Not Guilty of Poisoning

NO MOTIVE WAS ADDUCED

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 8. — Mrs. Grace Beemer, seated in the prisoners' dock, her head bowed and tears in her eyes, did not change her attitude in the least when the jury yesterday afternoon acquitted her of the charge of having murdered her husband. A few in the audience clapped their hands and attempted to start a demonstration, but officers put down the attempt with a firm hand.

Justice Kelly, in discharging the prisoner, said that in view of all the circumstances there was no fault to be found with the verdict. On the evidence it might have been possible to bring in another verdict, but in his opinion the jury had exercised their right satisfactorily to all parties.

Mrs. Beemer was led out of the dock by the deputy sheriff, and she walked alone to the sheriff's office, where she immediately picked up her five-weeks-old baby.

In an interview afterwards, Mrs. Beemer said: "My one great desire is to find seclusion that has been denied me for so long. It was an awful ordeal to pass through, but I felt sure from the beginning of the trial that the jury would pronounce me innocent. I am going back to the farm at Drumbo for a rest. I am so happy that I cannot talk about it. It was an awful stain to be thrust upon my character and reputation in the neighboring settlement, but I am going to try like a faithful and honest woman to live the whole thing down."

T. W. McMullen, summing up for the defence, showed that no arrest was made at the close of the inquest. Although John Mason had been a witness he did not tell his sensational story about seeing the prisoner with a poison bottle at this inquiry; he did not tell the police, he did not tell the crown attorney, he did not tell any person until some weeks later, when he told the story to Dr. Woolger in his office at Ayr.

This, in Mr. McMullen's opinion, was remarkable. The defence counsel attempted to set up the idea that suicide had been the cause of death, by pointing to statements made shortly before his death by the deceased to friends.

Mr. McMullen argued that there was absolutely no evidence regarding any motive for murder on the part of Mrs. Beemer. Neither was there any evidence showing that Mrs. Beemer had purchased any strychnine since 1911, when strychnine was purchased to kill crows which were bothering the corn.

Mr. Meredith, in summing up for the crown, laid stress on the fact that all the medicine given to Beemer was given by his wife, and that it was following these doses of medicine that the severe pains occurred which finally resulted in Beemer's death. Mr. Meredith sought to discredit the plea of the defence that Beemer's death was due to suicide, by showing that Beemer at all times expressed a desire to get better.

Mr. Meredith contended that it was not necessary to show any motive in the case. It was impossible to look into the hearts of men and women. In the Beemer case, he said, it was hard to find a motive. Perhaps Mrs. Beemer had thought that there was more money in the estate than there was. Perhaps she, being a young woman, was tired of the man, who was many years her senior. Perhaps she thought she could do better without him.

The case went to the jury at 12.10, after Justice Kelly had summed up.

NINE HORSES BURNED.

Incendiary Fire Destroys Appleby College Buildings.

OAKVILLE, Nov. 8.—A fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, destroyed the barn and gymnasium of Appleby College last night. Nine valuable saddle ponies and horses, owned by pupils of the college, were burned.

The local fire brigade, which has been kept busy of late, owing to the frequency of mysterious fires, responded quickly to an alarm which was sent in about ten o'clock, and succeeded in saving the adjoining buildings after a hard fight. The loss will amount to about $35,000, exclusive of the horses and ponies, which were high-bred animals.

OLIVE OIL AS FOOD

One of the most sensible things inaugurated of late is the taking of olive oil as food and medicine. Physicians have advised such uses of the oil, but it has only been of recent date that it has become a "fad." It has been proved in many cases to be not only a corrective of the liver, but a food for the system as well, and is of great benefit for weak stomach and bowels. The dose is usually a teaspoonful of oil to be taken half an hour before breakfast and half an hour after supper. The oil may be freely used with vegetables and on salads, as it is harmless and beneficial. Its use may be continued for years, and in assisting the liver to do its work (it is in most cases mildly cathartic), the complexion is cleared of the ugly brown spots and leathery yellow appearance due to torpidity of the liver. The taste is not unpleasant, although a liking for it has, in most instances, to be acquired. But very few effective medicines are really finely flavoured, although any unpleasant taste can be disguised. Many physicians strongly recommend its uses, both internal and external. It is excellent to use, after the bath, and many delicate persons—especially children — are greatly benefitted by being massaged with it. The best quality of oil can be procured at McDermid & Jury's Drug Store in 25 and 50c. bottles.

GETTING TO DETAILS.

Church Union Committee Will Meet In Toronto on Dec. 11.

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—Toronto will next month be the centre of interest for the Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists as an important conference of the joint committee on church union will be held on Dec. 11.

The church union committee appointed by the Presbyterian General Assembly will meet in the Confederation Life board room on Dec. 10.

Hon. Thomas Crawford is taking an active interest in the church union movement and is a member of the Methodist committee. He said yesterday that the Methodists and Congregationalists had now reached a point where they could begin to talk details.

It was learned from an authoritative source that the leaders of the union movement in the Presbyterian Church propose drafting a bill to be passed by the Dominion Parliament, authorising the proceedings for organic union, and which will avert such litigation as succeeded the union in Scotland and caused trouble over the ownership of the church manse and other properties.

The bill will provide adequately for Presbyterian congregations which are not ready for union. It was pointed out that the maximum opposition to organic union, as shown by the referendum, was only eighteen per cent. of the total membership. Since then many notable additions have been made to the ranks of those favoring union. As the opposition vote of eighteen per cent. was scattered over the whole membership it is computed that the number of congregations having an actual majority of members opposed to union will be very small.

May Protest South Bruce.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8. — Although it was stated the other day that the Conservatives of South Bruce had decided against protesting the election of Reuben Truax, it is said in high circles here that the election will be fought out in the courts.

BOOK I.

MISS BUTTERWORTH'S WINDOW.

I.

A Discovery.

I am not an inquisitive woman, but when, in the middle of a certain warm night in September, I heard a carriage draw up at the adjoining house and stop, I could not resist the temptation of leaving my bed and taking a peep through the curtains of my window.

First: because the house was empty, or supposed to be so, the family still being (as I had every reason to believe, in Europe; and secondly: because, not being inquisitive, I often miss in my lonely and single life much that it would be both interesting and profitable for me to know.

Luckily I made no such mistake this evening. I rose and looked out, and though I was far from realizing it at the time, took, by so doing, my first step in a course of inquiry which has ended——

But it is too soon to speak of the end. Rather let me tell you what I saw when I parted the curtains of my window in Gramercy Park, on the night of September 17, 1895.

Not much at first glance, only a common hack drawn up at the neighbouring curb-stone. The lamp which is supposed to light our part of the block is some rods away on the opposite side of the street, so that I obtained but a shadowy glimpse of a young man and woman standing below me on the pavement. I could see however, that the woman—and not the man—was putting money into the driver's hand. The next moment they were on the stoop of this long-closed house, and the coach rolled off.

It was dark, as I have said, and I did not recognize the young people,—at lease their figures were not familiar to me; but when, in another instant, I heard the click of a night-key, and saw them, after a rather tedious fumbling at the lock, disappear from the stoop. I took it for granted that the gentleman was Mr. Van Burnam's eldest son Franklin, and the lady some relative of the family; though why this, its most punctilious member, should bring a guest at so late an hour into a house devoid of everything necessary to make the least exacting visitor comfortable, was a mystery that I retired to bed to meditate upon.

I did not succeed in solving it, however, and after some ten minutes had elapsed, I was settling myself again to sleep when I was re-aroused by a fresh sound from the quarter mentioned. The door I had so lately heard shut, opened again, and though I had to rush for it, I succeeded in getting to my window in time to catch a glimpse of the departing figure of the young man hurrying away towards Broadway. The young woman was not with him, and as I realized that he had left her behind him in the great, empty house, without apparent light and certainly without any companion, I began to question if this was like Franklin Van Burnam. Was it not more in keeping with the recklessness of his more easy-natured and less reliable brother, Howard, who, some two or three years back, had married a young wife of no very satisfactory antecedents, and who, as I had heard, had been ostracized by the family in consequence?

Whichever of the two it was, he had certainly shown but little consideration for his companion, and thus thinking, I fell off to sleep just as the clock struck the half hour after midnight.

Next morning as soon as modesty would permit me to approach the window, I surveyed the neighbouring house minutely. Not a blind was open, nor a shutter displaced. As I am an early riser, this did not disturb me at the time, but when after breakfast I looked again and still failed to detect any evidences of life in the great barren front beside me, I began to feel uneasy. But I did nothing till noon, when going into my rear garden and observing that the back windows of the Van Burnam house were as closely shuttered as the front, I became so anxious that I stopped the next policeman I saw going by, and telling him my suspicions, urged him to ring the bell.

No answer followed the summons.

"There is no one here," said he.

"Ring again!" I begged.

And he rang again but with no better result.

"Don't you see that the house is shut up?" he grumbled. "We have had orders to watch the place, but none to take the watch off."

"There is a young woman inside," I insisted. "The more I think over last night's occurrence, the more I am convinced that the matter should be looked into."

He shrugged his houlders and was moving away when we both observed a common-looking woman standing in front looking at us. She had a bundle in her hand, and her face, unnaturally ruddy though it was, had a scared look which was all the more remarkable from the fact that it was one of those wooden-like countenances which under ordinary circumstances are capable of but little expression. She was not a stranger to me; that is, I had seen her before in or about the house in which we were at that moment so interested; and not stopping to put any curb on my excitement, I rushed down to the pavement and accosted her.

"Who are you?" I asked. "Do you work for the Van Burnams, and do you know who the lady was who came here last night?"

The poor woman, either startled by my sudden address or by my manner which may have been a little sharp, gave a quick bound backward, and was only deterred by the near presence of the policeman from attempting flight. As it was, she stood her ground, though the fiery flush, which made her face so noticeable, deepened till her cheeks and brow were scarlet.

"I am the scrub-woman," she protested. "I have come to open the windows and air the house,"—ignoring my last question.

"Is the family coming home?" the policeman asked.

"I don't know; I think so," was her weak reply.

"Have you the keys?" I now demanded, seeing her fumbling in her pocket.

She did not answer; a sly look displaced the anxious one she had hitherto displayed, and she turned away.

'I don't see what business it is of the neighbours," she muttered, throwing me a dissatisfied scowl over her shoulder.

"If you've got the keys, we will go in and see that things are all right," said the policeman, stopping her with a light touch.

She trembled; I saw that she trembled, and naturally became excited. Something was wrong in the Van Burnam mansion, and I was going to be present at its discovery. But her next words cut my hopes short.

"I have no objection to your going in," she said to the policeman, "but I will not give up my keys, to her. What right has she in our house any way." And I thought I heard her murmur something about a meddlesome old maid.

The look which I received from the policeman convinced me that my ears had not played me false.

"The lady's right," he declared; and pushing my me quite disrespectfully, he led the way to the basement door, into which he and the so-called cleaner presently disappeared.

I waited in front. I felt it to be my duty to do so. The various passers-by stopped an instant to stare at me before proceeding on their way, but I did not flinch from my post. Not till I heard that the young woman whom I had seen enter these doors at midnight was well, and that her delay in opening the windows was entirely due to fashionable laziness, would I feel justified in returning to my own home and its affairs. But it took patience and some courage to remain there. Several minutes elapsed before I perceived the shutters in the third story open, and a still longer time before a window on the second floor flew up and the policeman looked out, only to meet my inquiring gaze and rapidly disappear again.

Meantime three or four persons had stopped on the walk near me, the nucleus of a crowd which would not be long in collecting, and I was beginning to feel I was paying dearly for my virtuous resolution, when the front door burst violently open and we caught sight of the trembling form and shocked face of the scrub-woman.

"She's dead!" she cried. "she's dead! Murder!" and would have said more had not the policeman pulled her back, with a growl which sounded very much like a suppressed oath.

He would have shut the door upon me had I not been quicker than lightning. At it was, I got in before it slammed, and happily too; for just at that moment the house-cleaner, who had grown paler every instant, fell in a heap in the entry, and the policeman, who was not the man I would want about me in trouble, seemed somewhat embarrassed by this new emergency, and left me lift the poor thing up and drag her further into the hall.

She had fainted, and should have had something done for her, but anxious though I always am to be of help where help is needed, I had no sooner got within range of the parlour door with my burden, than I beheld a sight so terrifying that I involuntarily let the poor woman slip from my arms to the floor.

In the darkness of a dim corner (for the room had no light save that which came through the doorway where I stood) lay the form of a woman under a fallen piece of furniture. Her skirts and distended arms alone were visible; but no one who saw the rigid outlines of her limbs could doubt for a moment that she was dead.

At a sight so dreadful, and, in spite of all my apprehensions, so unexpected, I felt a sensation of sickness which in another moment might have ended in my fainting also, if I had not realized that it would never do for me to lose my wits in the presence of a man who had none too many of his own. So I shook off my momentary weakness, and turning to the policeman, who was hesitating between the unconscious figure of the woman outside the door and the dead form of the one within, I cried sharply:

"Come, man, to business! The woman inside there is dead, but this one is living. Fetch me a pitcher of water from below if you can, and then go for whatever assistance you need. I'll wait here and bring this woman to. She is a strong one, and it won't take long."

"You'll stay here along with that—" he began. But I stopped him with a look of disdain.

"Of course I will stay here; why not? Is there anything in the dead to be afraid of? Save me from the living, and I undertake to save myself from the dead."

But his face had grown very suspicious.

"You go for the water," he cried. "And see here! Just call out for some one to telephone to Police Headquarters for the Coroner and the detective. I don't quit this room till one or the other comes."

Smiling at a caution so very ill-timed, but abiding by my invariable rule of never arguing with a man unless I see some way of getting the better of him, I did what he bade me, though I hated dreadfully to leave the spot and its woful mystery, even for a short time as was required.

"Run up to the second story," he called out, as I passed by the prostrate figure of the cleaner. "Tell them what you want from the window, or we will have the whole street in here."

So I ran upstairs,—I had always wished to visit this house, but had never been encouraged to do so by the Misses Van Burnam,—and making my way into the front room, the door of which stood wide open, I rushed to the window and hailed the crowd, which by this time extended far out beyond the curb-stone.

"An officer!" I called out, "a police officer! An accident has occurred and the man in charge here wants the Coroner and a detective from Police Headquarters."

"Who's hurt?" "Is it a man?" "Is it a woman?" shouted up one or two; and "Let us in!" shouted others; but the sight of a boy rushing off to meet an advancing policeman satisfied me that help would soon be forthcoming, so I drew in my head and looked about me for the next necessity—water.

I was in a lady's bed-chamber, probably that of the eldest Miss Van Burnam; but it was a bed-chamber which had not been occupied for some months, and naturaly it lacked the very articles which would have been of asistance to me in the present emergency. No eau de Cologne on the bureau, no camphor on the mantelshelf. But there was water in the pipes (something I had hardly hoped for), and a mug on the washstand: so I filled the mug and ran with it to the door, stumbling, as I did so, over some small object which I presently perceived to be a little round pin cushion. Picking it up, for I hate anything like disorder, I placed it on a table near by, and continued on my way.

The woman was still lying at the foot of the stairs. I dashed the water in her face and she immediately came to.

Sitting up, she was about to open her lips when she checked herself; a fact which struck me as odd,

LIFE'S STRUGGLE WITH ILLNESS

Mrs. Stewart Tells How She Suffered from 16 to 45 years old—How Finally Cured.

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea which always meant a lay-off from work for two to four days from the time I was 16 years old.

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies but I did not use them then as my faith in patent medicines was limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live and that has been my home for the last 13 years.

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old and about this time I saw my physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot tell you or any one the relief it gave me in the first three months. It put me right where I need not lay off every month and during the last 13 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blest with excellent health for a woman of my age and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it.

"Since the Change of Life is over I have been a maternity nurse and being wholly self-supporting I cannot over estimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing since I was 52 years old. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after childbirth."—Miss EVELYN ADELIA STEWART, Euphemia, Ohio.

"THAT AFFAIR NEXT DOOR"

By Anna Katharine Green

though I did not allow my surprise to become apparent.

Meanwhile I stole a glance into the parlour. The officer was standing where I had left him, looking down on the prostrate figure before him.

There was no sign of feeling in his heavy countenance and he had not opened a shutter, nor, so far as I could see, disarranged an object in the room.

The mysterious character of the whole affair fascinated me in spite of myself, and leaving the now fully aroused woman in the hall, I was half-way across the parlour floor when the latter stopped me with a shrill cry:

"Don't leave me! I have never seen anything before so horrible. The poor dear! The poor dear! Why don't he take those dreadful things off her?"

She alluded not only to the piece of furniture which had fallen upon the prostrate woman, and which can best be described as a cabinet with closets below and shelves above, but to the various articles of bric-a-brac which had tumbled from the shelves and which now lay in broken pieces about her.

"He will do so; they will do so very soon," I replied. "He is waiting for some one with more authority than himself; for the Coroner, if you know what that means."

"But what if she's alive! Those things will crush her. Let us take them off. I'll help. I'm not too weak to help."

"Do you know who this person is?" I asked, for her voice had more feeling in it than I thought natural to the occasion, dreadful as it was.

"I?" she repeated, her weak eyelids quivering for a moment as she tried to sustain my scrutiny. "How should I know? I came in with the policeman and haven't been any nearer than I now be. What makes you think I know anything about her? I'm only the scrub-woman and don't even know the names of the family."

"I thought you seemed so very anxious," I explained, suspicious of her suspiciousness, which was of so sly and emphatic a character that it changed her whole bearing from one of fear to one of cunning in a moment.

"And who wouldn't feel the like of that for a poor creature lying crushed under a heap of broken crockery!"

Crockery! those Japanese vases worth hundreds of dollars! that ormulu clock and those Dresden figures which must have been more than a couple of centuries old!

"It's a poor sense of duty that keeps a man standing dumb and star ing like that, when with a lift of his hand he could show us the like of her pretty face, and if it's dead she be or alive."

As this burst of indignation was natural enough and not altogether uncalled for from the standpoint of humanity, I gave the woman a nod of approval, and wished I were a man myself that I might lift the heavy cabinet or whatever it was that lay upon the poor creature before us. But not being a man, and not judging it wise to irritate the one representative of that sex then present, I made no remark, but only took a few steps farther into the room, followed, as it afterwards appeared, by the scrub-woman.

The Van Burnam parlours are separated by an open arch. It was to the right of this arch and in the corner opposite the doorway that the dead woman lay. Using my eyes, now that I was somewhat accustomed to the semi-darkness enveloping us, I noticed two or three facts which had hitherto escaped me. One was, that she lay on her back with her feet pointing towards the hall door, and another, that nowhere in the room, save in her immediate vicinity were there to be seen any signs of struggle or disorder. All was as set and proper as in my own parlour when it has been undisturbed for any length of time by guests; and though I could not see far into the rooms beyond, they were to all appearances in an equally orderly condition. Meanwhile the cleaner was trying to account for the overturned cabinet.

"Poor dear! poor dear! she must have pulled it over on herself! But however did she get into the house? And what was she doing in this great empty place?"

The policeman, to whom these remarks had evidently been adressed, growled out some unintelligible reply and in her perplexity the woman turned towards me.

(To be continued)

Do you Believe

in going straight to the weak spot in treating disease? If so, you will never use anything but Peps for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and throat and lung troubles. Listen why!

Peps are tiny tablets, which contain rich medicinal ingredients, so prepared that they turn into vapour in the mouth, and are breathed down to the throat, the breathing tubes and lungs direct.

Cough mixtures go—not to the lungs and chest at all, but to the stomach. There is absolutely no direct connection between stomach and lungs.

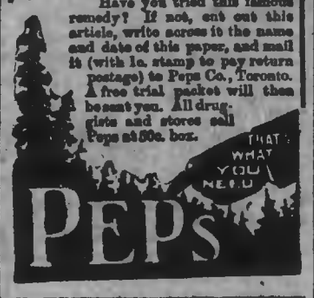
When you have a bad cold, your digestion is weakened. You lose appetite, and if a man, your usual smoke does not "taste good." In other words, your digestive system is looking town. All cough mixtures make this condition worse.

Don't ruin your stomach to heal your lungs. Take a remedy that goes right to the spot—Peps.

Surprising how they end coughs, catarrh, bronchitis, sore-throat, "clergyman's throat," asthma, and all lung troubles. Contain no poison, and are best for children.

Dr. Gordon Stables says:—"If you wish to cure and end a cough, if you desire to loosen rankling phlegm, and clear the throat and the breathing tubes, use Peps. The pine fumes and balsamic fumes, so beneficial in throat and lung trouble, which are liberated when a Pep is put into the mouth, also serve another good purpose. They are strongly germicidal, and germs of disease in the mouth, on the palate, in the throat, and in the breathing tubes, are at once destroyed by their action."

Have you tried this famous remedy? If not, cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Peps Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. box.



Piles

To many thousands of people the mere mention of "Piles" suggests Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The memory of the keen distress and suffering caused by the itching, stinging, burning sensations is almost blotted out when one recalls the quick relief obtained by the application of this wonderfully soothing, healing ointment.

SUFFERED 14 YEARS
Doctor Decided on Operation, But Dr. Chase's Ointment Cured Him

Mr. Charles Beauvais, a respected citizen of St. John's, Que., writes:—"For 14 years I have suffered from chronic piles or hemorrhoids, and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a well-known physician, who could not help me, and my doctor decided on an operation as the only means of relief. However, I resolved to try Dr. Chase's Ointment first. The first box brought me great relief, and by the time I had used three boxes I was completely cured. This is why it gives me such great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to everybody suffering from hemorrhoids as a preparation of the greatest value."

Ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is about the only actual cure for every form of piles. 60c. a box.

FAITH IN DOMINION

Quiet Years Mere Breathing Spells Says Big Railroad Man

Speaking at Cochrane, Mr. A. W. Smithers, chairman of the Grand Trunk Railway Board, declared his belief in Canada's future greatness and prosperity in the following words: "The spirit that animates you all to go forward and conquer will lead to a continuance of prosperity in Canada and if we have a little quieter year or two I do not think we should look upon it with any fear, but rather as a good omen that it will give us time to take breath to make the next big stride forward. I believe in the main Canada is sound, because as long as her immigrants come in, and as long as new land is broken up every year, that is the real source, the real standard of the wealth of Canada; and as long as that goes on I think the prosperity of Canada—although it may ebb and flow slightly—I do not think there is any considerable setback to be apprehended, but that she will go on and show continued progress as she has done in the past."

CANNOT LOSE CLOTHES

Looking Device Designed to Frustrate Hotel Thieves

Necessity is the mother of invention and the inventor of the look for wearing apparel shown in the accompanying illustration, was probably prompted by an unfortunate experience in a restaurant of some busy city. He probably discovered that some persons keep themselves supplied with hats, umbrellas and coats by picking out the best at hand when they are ready to leave such a public place as a restaurant. If they make their getaway, all right, but if detected, it is a very simple matter to ask pardon and say mistake.

This device, which has been recently patented in this country by a Canadian, consists of a bar with a removable head and a small chain and a key for locking the two parts together. If it is desired to relieve oneself of hat and coat, the garments are secured on the bar and the chain passed through an opening in the wall hook and they can then be left with perfect safety so far as stealing the garments is concerned. This bar is adapted to hold hat, coat and umbrella or cane.

Evening

From the upland slopes I see the cows file by,
Lowing, great-chested, down the homeward trail.
By dusky fields and meadows shining pale
With moon-tipped dandelions; flickering high
A peevish night-hawk in the western sky
Beats up into the lucent solitudes,
Or drops with girding wing; the stilly woods
Grow dark and deep, and gloom mysteriously,
Cool night winds creep and whisper in mine ear;
The homely cricket gossips at my feet;
From far off pools and wastes of reed I hear
With ebb and change the chanting frogs break sweet
In full Pandean chorus; one by one
Shine out the sparge and the great night comes on.

A DECALOGUE FOR GIRLS.

Advice to girls in relation to matrimony is plentiful, whether it is ever acted upon or not. Here are some more "don'ts," very sensible ones, formulated by a clergyman:

"Don't marry a man about whom you know nothing. If you do, the bliss of your ignorance is apt to be painfully dispelled.

"Don't forget that married happiness depends more on what your husband is than what he has.

"Don't depend a minute on any reforming influence you will have on your husband after marriage. It woud likely be no greater than it is now, if as great.

"Don't marry a man whose clothes are better than his habits. His clothes he will wear out; his habits never; yes, they are apt to wear him out.

"Don't marry principally for a home. If you do you will likely live all your maried life in a house instead of a home.

"Don't marry a young man who as a son or a brother, is faithless or would doubtless be true to his nature.

"Don't engage yourself to one whose business or social life could not stand the light of investigation. Neither could his matrimonial career stand the test. Demand a clean record, physically, mentally and morally.

"Don't become engaged, much less marry, before you are 21. Most domestic shipwrecks are due to immature choosing.

"Don't be in a hurry. There's plenty of time, and it's a long way ahead, with turning places few and wide apart. Until you see the coast clear —wait."

INDIGNANT MOTHER.

A country vicar is telling of an incident that happened in his Church the other Sunday. During a sermon a baby began to cry, and its mother immediately picked it up and began to carry it toward the door.

"Stop!" the Vicar exclaimed. "Don't go away. The baby is not disturbing me."

The mother continued her way to the door with the very audible remark:

"Oh, 'e aint, ain't 'e? But you're a-disturbin' of 'em!"

A SIBERIAN EXILE

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Leo Bassin, a young Russian Jew, living at 98 Clarence street, is a Londoner who has had the unpleasant and unenviable distinction of being confined two years in a Russian prison as a "politischer," and afterwards spending two years as an exile in Siberia.

Mr. Bassin, who lived in the City of Dwenski, is a graduate of the Ostrovski Conservatory of Music. His native city was Rezcta. Years ago he became interested in the Social Democratic party, and, it was on account of his Socialistic sympathies and his membership in Socialist organizations that he was arrested and thrust into a Russian prison.

Sent to Siberia.

His brother, Mr. Wilhelm Bassin, also living in this city, secured able lawyers for him in St. Petersburg, but, despite their efforts, he was sentenced to a long term in Siberia.

He was regarded as a dangerous prisoner, and was closely guarded in Siberia, but managed to disguise himself as a soldier and return to Russia with a military party, later making his escape to America. He arrived in London early in the present year, his brother having come here some months previous.

In a Siberia dungeon he was confined for the greater part of his two years' servitude, and spent the first six months in chains.

Flogged Several Times.

He knows what the Russian "knout" feels like, and suffered severe floggings on not a few occasions, and bears the marks to this day. Political prisoners are not usually obliged to work for fear that they may effect their escape, but their lot is in no way an easy one. Mr. Bassin, along with his fellow "politichers," was obliged to subsist on nothing more sub tantial than bread and water. Frequently water was denied them, and only dark, course bread was their portion at meal time that came none too regularly. Sometimes, by way of discipline, they received neither bread nor water.

"It's like being in Paradise to live in London after Russia," said young Bassin to a reporter.

Besides Mr. Bassin, there are several other Russian Jews in London who have been political exiles and prisoners in Siberia because of their political sympathies and their race, so hated and persecuted by the Russian Christians and the Russian authorities.

EXAMINER

THE BEST TIME FOR WORK IS MORNING?

Doctor Troemer, of Hamburg, Germany, through an interesting publication entitled "Das Problem des Schlafs," has started a discussion concerning the time when man does his best work.

Both Troemner and Weygandt have shown that the mind, under the influence of sleep, does not recover its capacity for every kind of work uniformly. Weygandt produced in himself by hard work throughout the day a condition of great mental weariness and bodily fatigue, so that at the hour when he went to bed he was unable to perform the simplest tasks without great difficulty. Before going to sleep he endeavoured to add up a column of figures and to commit to memory some lines of poetry in a given time, but failed to do so. After half an hour's sleep he was roused and set to perform the tasks given. He now added up the column of figures with perfect ease, but experienced the same difficulty in learning the poetry by heart as before sleep.

When do you think your brain works best? When is thought rich in association, ideas rapid, conversation easy, and perception keenest? Few of us could claim this in early morning. The breakfast table group is not usually very sparkling or lively. More are agreed that evening time or night time is more productive in creative work that involves the summoning of ideas or the marshalling of thought. Fancy plays more freely from tea-time onward. The best conversations, as most people will admit, are heard after dinner, and are of a different stamp from luncheon conversations. Anecdote telling, and a quicker play of imagination, that give a brilliancy to dinner conversations, are hardly possible at breakfast.

The reason of this must be some change that we are not conscious of that steals over us gradually as the day progresses. We are certainly more emotional after mid-day than before, and sentiment wanes under the morning sun. We are much like little mechanical machines early in the day. The pure intellect and reason are in their fullest vigour. We can add and subtract better. Plans appear easier. Difficulties seem less. As the hours pass, pure intellect and reason grow tired and emotion rises and broadens out the fields of consciousness, making it dimmer and less efficient; and with emotion comes a greater flow of abstract ideas and suggestions.

Vastly interesting things resulted from further experiments conducted along the same lines. The power for simple mathematical calculations, involving little strain upon the memory, was recovered after a few minutes' sleep to regain its full vigour.

Dr. Troemner states that the capacity for learning by heart is at its best early in the morning, and decreases steadily throughout the day. This scientist deplores the habit of making children learn work by heart at night time in preparation for the next day's school, which, he points out, is very harmful, because the exhausted memory has to be stimulated unduly to retain its impressions at that time.

ANNOYING DANDRUFF

Will Make Canada a Bald-Headed Nation if Not Checked

M. Pasteur, the great French Physician of Paris, once said: "I believe we shall one day rid the world of all diseases caused by germs."

Dandruff is caused by germs, a fact accepted by all physicians.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in two weeks or money back.

It will stop itching scalp, falling hair and make the hair grow thick and abundant.

It puts life and lustre into the hair and prevents it from turning grey.

It is the hair dressing par excellence, daintily perfumed and free from grease and stickiness. It is the favourite with women of taste and culture who know the social value of fascinating hair.

Comes in large 50-cent bottle at the Warne Drug Co. and leading druggists and toilet goods counters everywhere. "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every package.

THE NEED OF VOCATIONAL COUNSEL.

One of the most important steps a young man takes in life is the choice of a vocation. The wise selection of the business, profession, trade, or occupation to which a young man's life is to be devoted and the development of efficiency in his chosen field are matters of the deepest interest to him and to the public.

These vital problems should be solved in a careful, scientific way, with due regard to each person's aptitudes, abilities, ambitions, resources and limitations, and the relations of these elements to the conditions of success in different industries.

If a young man takes up a line of work to which he is adapted, he will achieve far greater success than if he drifts into an industry for which he is not fitted. An occupation out of harmony with the worker's aptitudes and capacities means inefficiency, unl enthusiastic, and perhaps distasteful labour, and low pay; while an occupation in harmony with the nature of the young man means enthusiasm, love of work, and high economic values — superior product, efficient service, and good pay. If a young man chooses his vocation so that his best abilities will be united with his daily work, he has laid foundations of success and happiness. But if his best abilities and enthusiasms are separated from his daily work or do not find in it fair scope and opportunity for exercise and development, if his occupation is merely a means of making a living, and the work he loves to do is sidetracked into the evening hours, or pushed out of his life altogether, he will be only a fraction of the man he ought to be. Efficiency and success are largely dependent on adaptation.

Parents guide their boys to some extent through school, then drop them into this complex world to sink or swim as the case may be. Yet there is no part of life where the need for guidance is more emphatic than in the transition from school to work—the choice of a vocation, adequate preparation for it, and the attainment of efficiency and success. The building of a career is quite as difficult a problem as the building of a house, yet few ever sit down with pencil and paper to plan a working career and deal with the life problem scientifically, as they would deal with the problem of building a house, taking the advice of an architect to help them.

Boys generally drift into some line of work by chance, or uninformed selection, and the high percentage on inefficiency and change experienced by many employers in their working force, and the cost it entails in employment expense, waste of training, and low-grade service, are largely due to the haphazard way in which young men drift into employments, with little or no regard to adaptability, and without adequate preparation or any definite aim or well-considered plan to ensure success.

No person may decide for another what occupation he should choose, but it is possible to help him so to approach the problem that he should come to wise conclusions for himself.

The Vocational Talks planned by the Young Men's Christian Association no doubt will be largely attended by the boys and young men of the city.

Mr. Hainsworth, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., has had considerable experience in vocational work, and parents are invited to consult him regarding this phase of the work. Young men are especially invited to talk their problems over with him.

Notes Of Fashion

PARIS, Nov. 6.—America is rapidly adopting the unsually full blouse that France introduced this summer. It is not as trim and trig as the usual garment worn above the waist by American women, but it is in keeping with the fashions of the day, which spell looseness and not restriction. It was necessary for those who are artistic to invent some kind of bodice that did not make the bust and shoulders look smaller than the waist.

The shirt waist cut on slim lines, without tucks or fullness, and drawn into the skirt belt, was not in keeping with the coat or the skirt or the silhouette of woman. It was necessary that something would be done quickly if our skirts were to have tunics and gathers across the back and trouser belts with buckles at the waist line, and so the big loose blouse leapt into fashion.

To-day they have twice as much material in them as the old bodice, and they go exceedingly well with the new kind of skirt. There is no way to alter the shirt waists that you have They must be worn out or put away until the fashion changes. The best thing is to wear them for the fashion for the large one does not preclude the use of the narrow one, and especially under a coat.

Waists of Chiffon.

There is a strong return to blouses of thick chiffon, not the kind that is put into evening gowns, but a weave that was once known as chiffon cloth. These are outlined and are made unusually full; the material is gathered to a shallow shoulder yoke and often the sleeves are gathered into the fronts only about an inch from the neck line.

You know, all the new sleeves have a trick of running up to the collar bone and sometimes down to the waist, and because of this tendency to monopolize the whole waist, we pay serious attention to them.

Of course, the chiffon blouse is fastened down the front. All the new blouse are, but there is no frill as there was in olden days to cascade its way from chin to waist. There are paste pearl buttons to mark the fastening and usually a wide hemstitched hem. There are rolling collars to these blouses, but not turnover cuffs. The sleeves are finished with a tight straight cuff and is edged all around with a frilling of lace or net or chiffon.

Ther are other smart blouses made of figured white crepe de chine in extra heavy Chinese quality that are gathered to an irregular yoke with pearl shaped sleeves that run to the waist and finished with a loose hanging point over the hand. There is a collar that is almost a cape; it is edged like the sleeves with a two inch band of thick white satin; the buttons are as large as half dollars and are also made of the satin. These immense buttons frequent the majority of blouses and they are even used on shirt waists of white cotton net.

Yokes on Waists.

It seems impossible for the designers to make a blouse without a yoke. It may be shallow or deep, crooked or straight, but there it is. It gives a chance to flatten the shoulder and yet provide the necessary amount of fullnes for the back and front, which fashion now demands.

The yoke is always cut to a V in front and finished with some kind of rolling collar. If the material is thin enough to stand an elaborate touch, the turn-over collar is omitted and a Somney fichu of net and lace is substituted.

If you are making pain white muslin waists for every day wear, or China silk ones, for that matter, use the yoke in some fashion. You will not have difficulty in making such a blouse because you did it often before when this same kind of shirt waist was in fashion.

LOVE OF GOSSIP.

One of the chief characteristics of the human race is inquisitiveness—not so much about things and places and ideas as about each other. Every proper person is a born gossip, and the accomplished scandalmonger is always welcome—providing, of course, his scandal is about others.

You can test this at any time by considering who are the people you like best to meet, and who are always surrounded by the greatest number of idle acquaintances. Invariably you must be forced to the conclusion they are those who have made a business of acquiring information about others and retailing their knowledge in various dressings. This love of gossip is further revealed in the kind of books which claim the widest appreciation. You will find that these books are not poetry, drama, science, or philosophy. They are novels, memoirs, diaries, intimate histories, recollections, letters—all of them essential gossip (and sometimes scandal) appealing by their power to attract the gossiping sense which exists in all of us.—Bernard Lintot, in T.P.'s Weekly, London.

SHREDDED WHEAT

It is the real "staff of life," being made in Canada from the whole wheat grain, steam-cooked, shredded and baked under conditions that insure its absolute purity and cleanliness. More nourishing than meat or eggs, costs less and is much more easily digested. Supplies the warmth and strength that are needed for the chilly days.

Always heat the Biscuit in oven to restore crispness. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with hot milk or cream will supply all the energy needed for a half day's work. Try toasted Triscuit, the Shredded Wheat wafer, for luncheon, with butter, cheese or marmalade.

CONSERVATION OF THE FAMILY'S STOCKINGS

It is safe to say that no other household task consumes more time than does the darning basket. Piled high with all sorts and conditions of hosiery it calls forth many a weary sigh from the busy wife and mother. Especially if there ar many little ones the work sometimes assumes gigantic proportions. Darning is not laborious, but it does use up many precious hours. It is one of the things that cannot be hurried and be done satisfactorily.

Why not eliminate as much of it as possible? It may be said, for the encouragement of the housewife, that more attention is being given the stocking problem to-day than ever before and many practical ways are being devised to aid in its solution, says the "Pictorial Review."

Not the least emphatic suggestion that can be mentioned in this matter of conserving the family stockings concerns the proper washing of them. Frequent changes will do away with the necessity for excessive rubbing, and the hard wear such treatment entails. The time spent in giving the hosiery daily attention is not to be compared with that which would be required were they worn for days at a time. Stockings should never be boiled nor come in contact with the rest of the washing. If they do an unsightly linty appearance will be the result. Several rinsing waters are necessary to entirely free them from all soapy taint. Ironing is neither essential nor advisable. To shake and smooth out the stockings is quite enough. Another important point—before hosiery is worn for the first time it should be washed.

The helpful devices now on the market for counteracting undue wear of stockings are many and inexpensive. There are toe protectors for those persons who cannot preserve this portion of the stocking whole for any length of time. They are shaped exactly like the stocking proper and fit snugly over the fore part of the foot. They may be had in both lisle and silk, the costlier material being specially adapted to sensitive feet.

Even more attention has been given the preservation of the stocking top than either the toe or heel. Often long "runs" have their origin in the wrong kind of hose supporters.

It is quite possible nowadays to buy improved fasteners by which the stocking is held free from harm.

Even with all possible aids and protectors stockings have a mysterious way of developing holes, especially if the wearers are active boys and girls. Eternal vigilance is necessary if you would materially reduce the cost of this expensive item. Pin holes should not be allowed to assume generous proportions, for the familiar proverb, "A stitch in time saves nine" was never so applicable as in this connection.

Children's stockings may even require patching at the knees occasionally, for which purpose discarded stockings may be utilized. To give a smooth finish underneath, the patch should be held flat by cat-stitching. This will, at the same time, lessen the chances of the edges of the patch pulling away from the stockings.

As to darning, one good method of reducing the size of very big holes is by first running a thread of darning cotton around the gap and drawing it up slightly, but not enough to produce a "puckery" effect. Then the darning should proceed as usual. Some women prefer to substitute the crochet needle for the darning needle filling up the rents with darning cotton as usual but making use of the crochet stitch instead of the regular darning stitch. If this method is employed, you can work back and forth or around the hole.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

When baking, the scissors are useful; a snip and the biscuit dough is quickly apportioned; a quick cut and the drop cookie falls into place on the baking tin.

Nothing will clean and sweeten a sink better than a strong solution of soda, and the refrigerator likewise should frequently be washed with this.

If you are arranging short-stemmed flowers, throw into the water a number of ordinary bottle corks. These will buoy up the flowers, keeping them in position.

To clean brass that has been exposed to the weather, make a paste of salt and common vinegar; rub the brass with the mixture and leave for 10 minutes. Then clean in the usual way.

Even when there is cream in the coffee, the stains can be removed from the most delicate silk or woollen fabric by brushing the spots with pure glycerine and rinsing in lukewarm water.

Never close up a finger with court plaster. It involves the possibility of pus and long inflammation. Wash the cut with warm water and turpentine should be applied. Then bandage with linen cloths.

Scissors are indispensable to the preparation of vegetables. You can trim the brown edges off lettuce or cut up vegetables for salad, and for mincing parsley they are more satisfactory than a kife.

That Style of Your Figure? Impossible!

Many women who are unsatisfied with their figures in the mode could have it otherwise by a slight application of their own ingenuity. Unfortunately this is nothing like the case. Many a woman has made up her mind after much thought and consideration that a certain style would be becoming to her, only to find after she had purchased the material and had it made up that it was not at all what she had expected. This result is entirely unnecessary. Before buying, before cutting, only 10 cents in stamps, or coin, will bring you a generous sample of Cuticura Powder (talc), Ointment and Resolvent (pills). Depot, Malden, Mass., U.S.A. Cuticura Powder (talc) gives positive results, while imitating the aspect of endearing.

NECKWEAR OF NET

White net is extensively employed to fashion many of the loveliest collars and fichus worn at present, and many of the most expensive designs can be copied at home by the needleworker.

Purchase a quantity of white net and a pattern for a well-fitting turndown collar, and place the latter over the net folded double. If the edge of the collar is straight lay it along the fold and cut out the material. Neatly join the outer edges, turn the collar and bind the neck with a bias strip of net. In each corner, if you care to take the trouble embroider a spray of small flowers or a single daisy, and border the collar with a narrow pleated frill of shadow lace or net. To the collar join two pleated frills of net four inches wide, which extend down the front to the base of the V-shaped neck line.

Fichus of net are deep sailor collars with rounded corners with the ends extending to the waist belt in front. These are cut from a single thickness of net and are bordered with pleated frills of lace of the same material.

The finely dotted or embroidered nets and pointe d'esprit are also used for this purpose, and are even prettier than the plain net.

Dainty jabots are fashioned of pleated net arranged in two or three tiers and edged with lace or embroidered scallops.

Net is inexpensive and neckwear of this material is a becoming addition to any frock.

From the Diary of a Grandmother: Being a few extracts from the diary of a grandmother who visits her daughter and her four grandchildren for the first time.

III.

Grandmother discovers something about the cost of bringing up a modern child.

By RUTH CAMERON

"When I went down to lunch this noon, I found Janet and her mother having a heated argument—yes, children and their parents argue nowadays—about some green silk stockings. It seems that a certain very bright green is 'the thing' at school this year, and no school girl looks right unless she has touches of it all over her. Janet wears enormous green hair-ribbons and a green bow on the front of her checked dress. Now she wants her mother to buy her a pair of green silk stockings. Her mother objected on the ground of their loud appearance, and Janet silenced her by citing several of 'the nicest girls" who wore them. Then her mother objected on the ground of expense. 'But I can get a good pair at F—'s for only a dollar,' was Janet's answer to that.

"I wondered when I first came why in spite of Richard's excellent salary Margaret always seems to be worrying about bills I begin to understand now. Janet has several pairs of silk stockings, and even little Ruth has a pair or two for dancing school. Janet always wears silk petticoats with her dress-up clothes and I heard her scolding the other day because her mother thought a common petticoat was good enough for school wear.

"When Margaret was a girl I think we dressed her about as well as any girl in town, and she never had a silk petticoat until she had her trousseau. When she was eighteen, her aunt gave her her first pair of silk stockings, and I remember how excited she was about them. My own first silk stockings were my wedding pair. Times certainly have changed. No wonder Richard fumes over his bills. Janet's and Ruth's hair-ribbons, alone, cost a dollar and a quarter a set, and Ruth has lost one of hers twice since I have been here.

"Margaret says she is glad the baby is a boy because his clothes will not cost so much. It seems a queer reason for wanting a son, and yet in the light of all I've learned I can quite understand it.

"But even boys are not particularly inexpensive in these times. A day or two ago, Richard asked his father for eight dollars for a football suit. His mother was afraid of his getting hurt, but his father was so amused and pleased at the idea of the little shaver belonging to an eleven that he gave him the money without a protest, although I had heard him blaming Margaret the day before because the house bills were so high. Imagine it! Eight dollars smack out for a football suit! When my boys were young their football suits were homemade and eight dollars was the price of a good store suit.

The children have ample pocket money but they are always asking for money for extras. Now it's a class pin, again it's a dollar to contribute toward a present for Richard's teacher, who is going to get married; and again, it's two or three dollars for dues for Janet's sorority. Yes, diary, they have these in high schools nowadays. I know we used to think they were sacred to college life.

"I ventured to say something to Margaret about all this expense and she seemed quite indignant and asked me if I wanted my grandchildren to be cut off from other 'nice children' because they couldn't have things like them. Of course I said no, but I can't help wondering if there are no 'nice' girls and boys whose fathers can't afford all these things. If parents with a small income try to keep up this pace it is no wonder there are now so many nervous breakdowns."

Have Patience, Child!

Small girl, at a football match, scans the scene with eagerness; then in disappointed tones: "Mother, I don't see any cripples!"

"Of course not yet, my dear; the game is young. What did you expect?"

"Well, where are the half-backs, centre-halves, right and left halves, and full backs who were to play?"

The Charm of Comely Skin

Stuart's New Calcium Sulphide Treatment Quickly Vanishes All Skin Eruptions and Restores Colour to the Face.

You don't want to wait forever and a day to get rid of your pimples or other skin eruptions. You want to get rid of them right now. Next week you may want to go somewhere where you wouldn't like to have to take the pimples along.

"Everybody Likes My Complexion Since Stuart's Calcium Wafers Quickly Cleared It of Eruptions."

You can get rid of them just in time by taking Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

These wonderful little workers have cured bad boils in three days, and some cases of skin diseases in a week.

Remember this, too, that most pimple treatments reek with poison. And they are miserably slow besides.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers have not a particle of poison in them. They are free from mercury, biting drugs or venomous opiates. This is absolutely guaranteed. They cannot do any harm, but they always do good—good that you can see in the mirror before your own eyes a few days after.

Don't be any longer humiliated by having a splotchy face. Don't have strangers stare at you, or allow your friends to be ashamed of you because of your face.

Your blood makes you what you are. The men and women who forge ahead are those with pure blood and pure faces.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers will make you happy because your face will be a welcome sight not only to yourself when you look into the glass, but to everybody else who knows you and talks to you.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers are sold by all first class druggists at 50 cents a box. They are very pleasant to the taste and the results are truly remarkable.

HOW TO USE BEEF HEARTS

HOW TO USE BEEF HEARTS.

The housekeeper who is accustomed to use only the well-known cuts of meat will be surprised to find how many really savory dishes can be made from the less familiar ones. In many cases they will be found to be more nutritious than the better known cuts. And since there is less demand for them, they are always cheaper.

Even in households where the housekeeper prides herself on her economical cooking, beef hearts and calves' hearts appear very seldom on the dinner table. And yet, calves' hearts make a thoroughly enjoyable repast at a very small price.

"You will need two hearts for a dish of moderate size," writes that culinary expert, Marion Harland. "Wash them thoroughly, leaving in salt and water for an hour to draw out the blood. Run a slender, keen knife from the large end of each heart straight to the centre, turning it around several times to make a central hole for the forcemeat stuffing.

"Make the stuffing of cracker crumbs highly seasoned with onion juice, salt and pepper, thyme and marjoram. Moisten with melted butter, or use hot water and a little fat pork or bacon finely chopped. Sew the opening together, and thrust in several lardoons of salt pork. Dredge with salt, pepper and flour. Fry one sliced onion in dripping in a frying pan. Put in the heart and brown it lightly all over. Pour in stock to cover it—barely—add a bay leaf, two slices of carrot and one teaspoonful salt. Cover the pan and cook in a moderate oven about two hours, or until very tender.

"When done remove the strings, put the hearts upon a hot dish, and thicken the gravy with browned flour. Add the lemon juice and other seasoning if needed. Strain over the hearts. Garnish with Parisian potatoes alternately with small tomatoes, pared and baked. Pour melted butter and minced parsley over tomatoes and potatoes." The tomatoes could, of course, be omitted when they are scarce and expensive.

BUSTLE EFFECTS COMING IN.

Among the newest style features brought out in high-class gowns are bustle effects, these designs being modifications of Premet's ideas, which were launched at the Paris openings in August.

The Dry Goods Economist says: "In working it out the skirts, in some cases, are made very snug-fitting below the knees. This accentuates the distended effect of the short tunics, or panters, that are draped or puffed up in the back. These sometimes bouffant arrangements have a very soft effect, produced by placing the fullness well toward each side of the back, in this way leaving the centre in straight, loose folds. When the side sections of a short panier or tunic are gathered from the waist line to the edge the gathers thus formed fall crosswise of the silk and toward the back. And by placing the fullness in this position a curved figure line is produced, instead of the extremely flat back which has prevailed through several successive seasons."

WOMEN CURED AT HOME

Women's disorders always yield from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild, but effective, action of Orange Lily. Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied or local treatment, and acts directly on the womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts. In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy, I will send a 35-cent box, enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address. MRS. FRANCES E. "That woman can do anything with figures."

"What is she? A bookkeeper?"

"Naw. She's a dressmaker."

Poor Pa!

Father: "You must know, sir, that my daughter will get nothing from me until my death!"

Suitor: "Oh, that's all right! I have enough to live on for two or three years!"

She Knew.

"I shouldn't think golf is much exercise."

"Isn't it! Why, it makes the boys so strong in the arms you can hardly breathe!"

Accepted.

Her Father: "Have you a family tree?"

Her Lover: "No, but I have ten thousand acres of pine timber in Wisconsin."

Her Father: "Great! Have a drink, a good cigar, and take the girl!"

Why He Turned Pale.

Wife: "Wretch! Show me that letter!"

Husband: "What letter?"

Wife: "The one in your hand. It's from a woman. I can see by the writing, and you turned pale when you saw it."

Husband: "Yes. Here it is. It's your dressmaker's bill."

CONFESSION.

Ticket Collector (after heated argument)—Well, you'll have to pay for him; he isn't under three.

Mother—No, but if he hadn't got a new suit on he'd be under the seat.—Punch (London).

The Waiter's Price.

It was at a banquet, where a notable gathering of politicians had assembled. A certain aspiring young barrister was among the number, and as he spied an influential judge at the far end, he called the head waiter, slipped half-a-crown into his hand, and whispered: "Put me next to Judge Spink at the table."

Upon being seated, however, he found he was at the other end of the room from the judge.

He called the head waiter to explain.

"Well, sir," replied the official, "the fact is that the judge gave me five bob to put you as far from him as possible."

The Way Lots Do It.

A famous clergyman tells of a lay preachers' conference in which a veteran described his method of sermon preparation.

"I take my text," he said, "and divide my sermon into three parts. In the first part I tell 'em what I'm going to tell 'em. In the second part — well, I tell 'em. In the third part I tell 'em what I've told 'em."

The Only One.

Father's Dilemma.

"How's the family?" a fond parent was asked.

"Well, my children are at a difficult age now."

"Different? Why, they're all passed the measles and teething stage, have they not?"

"Long ago. But you don't know a father's troubles. My children are at the age where if I use slang my wife says I'm setting a bad example; and if I speak correctly, the kids think I'm a back number. Which would you do?"

The Chauffeur to the Rescue.

When the young physician's motor car reached the scene of the accident there was nothing to do; all the victims had been so slightly hurt that they were able to walk home. The young doctor was keenly disappointed, but his chauffeur spoke up cheeringly: "Never mind, doctor. I'll run down some business on the way home."

Revenge.

"You believe in mustard plasters, doctor?"

M. D.: "Rather! I always order them for patients who call me out in the middle of the night when there's nothing the matter with 'em."

More Noise.

"I'm going to start an anti-noise association," said the man who is always promoting something.

"How will you go about it?"

"Well, the first thing is to get the public interested. I have already engaged half a dozen speakers and a brass band."

His Record.

Fay: "The Widow Dashaway's husband didn't leave her much when he died, did he?"

Ray: "No, but he left her very often when he was alive."

How the Stairs Ran.

An old German was in the witness box the other day and a lawyer was cross-examining him as to the position of the door, window, and so forth in a house, where a crime had been committed.

"And now, sir," went on the lawyer, "kindly describe to the court just how the stairs run in that house?"

The old man looked dazed and scratched his head for a few minutes. "How the stairs run?" he repeated.

"Yes, if you please, how the stairs run?" said the lawyer.

"Vell," ventured the witness, slowly, "vin I am oop-stairs they run down, and ven I am down-stairs they run oop."

What Stunted Emerson.

Emerson's period of literary production might have been considerably longer had he followed the light-breakfast regime advocated by The Lancet. In one of Mr. H. J. Warner's letters to his wife he writes: "We are all human and we all need cheering cups—but no pie at breakfast! It was pie at breakfast that broke down Emerson prematurely; no human being, however well, can live long and keep his mind unclouded on pie at breakfast. Emerson lost his mind—or memory—at a much earlier period than he would have been likely to lose it owing to the vicious habit of pie at breakfast."—London Chronicle.

His Real Trouble.

Tommy (on a visit): "No, I thank you."

Tommy's Aunt: "You seem to be suffering from loss of appetite."

Domestic Economy.

Father was of an economical turn of mind, and hated extravagance with all his heart. He had since the earliest days tried to instil ideas of a similar nature into the brain of his small son, aged eight.

His grief was terrible to see when one day he came upon the budding economist stuffing himself with a slice of bread generously covered with a layer of butter which was surmounted by a young mountain of jam.

"My boy," said he, sadly, tho severely, "surely you do not realize what you are doing; yet you ought, by now, to comprehend the wicked extravagance of eating butter and jam together!"

"Why, I'm being most economical, father!" replied the young hopeful. "Don't you see that I'm making the same slice of bread do for both?"

Not Guilty.

A Massachusetts minister was making his first visit to Kentucky several years ago. He had to spend the night in a small mountain town where feuds and moonshine stills abounded. Engaging in conversation with one of the natives, he said: "My friend, this is a very bibulous state, I hear."

Casting his eye over the room, he fixed it on Private Murphy as his first victim. "Private Murphy," he asked, "why should a soldier be ready to die for his country?"

Exchange No Robbery

Young Robinson had been kept somewhat late at the office on Saturday, and so, without wasting valuable time getting a meal, he bought some currant buns at a bakery and set out for the football match immediately.

He was much distressed to find that the first bun he tackled contained a fly, and his annoyance was increased, no doubt, by the fact that the home side suffered a heavy defeat.

On his way back from the match, therefore, he returned to the bakery and made an indignant complaint, demanding another bun in place of the inhabited one.

"I'm sorry, sir," said the saleswoman, with a bewitching smile, "but that, I am afraid, is impossible. However, if you care to return the fly, we shall be only too glad to exchange it for a currant."

Petty Commerce.

Trade was bad, very bad; and Mr. Buggins, the chief grocer of the district, found his takings becoming smaller every day. All his old customers seemed to be leaving the neighborhood, and no new ones arriving. Even old Mrs. Robinson, whom the firm of Buggins had supplied with the necessaries of life for many years, had not been near the shop for weeks.

One morning, however, she again entered the door; and Mr. Buggins, delighted, hastened to attend to her in person.

"And what may I get for you today?" he inquired.

"A ha'pennworth o' soap," came the reply.

Mr. Buggins' face was wonderfully expressive of outraged feelings; so was his answer.

"A ha'pennyworth of soap?" he retorted. "Certainly. I suppose you'll be washing the canary this afternoon?"

Clearly Unjust.

Ever since they came to school that morning two of the boys had been persistently naughty. At last, therefore, the teacher, now thoroly exasperated, turned to them angrily, and said that they must stay in during playtime until each had written his name one thousand times.

Playtime duly came, and, as the rest of the class rose and hastened from the room to enjoy a spell of freedom, the two miscreants settled down to their irksome imposition.

Five minutes later the teacher returned to see how they were getting on, and found a heated argument in progress.

"Come, come!" she asked, "What's the matter now?"

Whereupon one of the boys burst into tears.

Internal Evidence.

At a certain college custom ordains that at examination time each of the candidates shall write the following pledge at the bottom of his papers:

"I hereby declare, on my honor, that I have neither given nor received assistance during the examination."

Now, recently it so happened that a young fellow, after handing in one of the papers, suddenly remembered that in his haste he had omitted to write the oath. On the following day, therefore, he sought out one of the examiners, and told him that he had forgotten to put the required phrase in his paper.

The man looked at him over the top of his glasses and dryly remarked: "Quite unnecessary. Your paper in itself is sufficient evidence. I've just been correcting it!"

Stone Blind.

Proudly he walked up to his betrothed, and drew from his pocket a small morocco case. Opening it, he took out a ring—a single diamond — and placerd it on her tapering finger.

She looked at it.

"It's very small!" she said, and paused. Then, "And not very brilliant, either!"

Poor fellow! His smile vanished; but, quickly recovering himself, he laughed, and said:

"Ah, sweetheart, but love is blind!"

Raising her limpid eyes to his, she said:

"Yes, dear; but not stone blind!"

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HER CHRYSANTHEMUMS

"They've rented the house next door!"

Sue's voice was tragic as she made the announcement. Her mother looked up from the knitting which was her constant occupation when household tasks were done.

"You could not expect Mr. Stephans to refuse to rent just on your account," she reminded gently. "You have had the pleasure of your flowers through the spring and the better part of the summer. You should be grateful for that."

"But think of those glorious chrysanthemums," sobbed Sue. "Now I shan't have one, and I'll have to sit on my own side of the fence and listen to some old cat brag about her beautiful chrysanthemums. Her chrysanthemums! As though I had not broken my back almost tending them!"

"That was understood when Mr. Stephans permitted you to use the lot," reminded Mrs. Bailey.

"But why did he have to go and rent it?" asked Sue illogically. "I've half a mind to pull them all up."

She darted from the house, never heeding her mother's call, but once in the yard of the house next door her courage failed her and her hands slowly unclosed from around the first stalk she grasped.

"I can't do it, you beauties," she whispered tearfully, "and I'll tend you down to the very last minute. I won't desert until their old moving van backs up to the door and I have to."

There was a world of tragedy in that have. The Baileys lived in a tiny cottage, but small as it was it filled the lot and though the toy-like garden in front glowed with colour, Sue cast longing eyes on the house next door.

There were great beds in the adjoining lot ready to be planted, filled only with the dried stalks of last year's plants. Stephans, the owner, halted one day and leaned over the fence.

"Why don't you do a little gardening over there?" he asked with a nod in the direction of the unused beds. "I don't know as I can rent the place this year and if I don't you can have it all to yourself. If I do it may help to have the flowers. I'll pay for the seeds and send a man around to get things in shape for you."

Sue wanted to hug him for the suggestion, but instead she thanked him demurely, and when Stephans came the next time the flowers were already making headway.

All the early summer Sue had delighted in working in the garden and the olive of her skin had given place to a tan that the other girls envied. Now the flowers were to be taken from her and she would have to stand idly by while strange hands worked among her pets.

So bitter was she against the intruders that she decided that good-looking George Lorrimer was a very common sort of person. She paid no attention to his courteous salute when she passed the house once or twice, and he could not know that from behind the closed blinds Sue was watching his futile efforts at gardening.

Her little clenched hands beat upon the window ledge as she saw the plants drooping for the want of water and at last she could stand it no longer.

One night she climbed over the fence and adjusted on a stick a note asking that more water be put upon the plants. A couple of days later she made a second nocturnal visit to say that the plants were being watered too freely.

Lorrimer seemed a willing pupil and after that discovery was made he came to look every morning for the helpful little notes as he tended the plants. Every day he found some fresh hint as to the care of the flowers, and though at first he had tended the plants merely because his mother liked them and was too much of an invalid to look after them herself he came to be a real enthusiast and Sue began to regard him with greater approval.

Her first notes had been solely in the interests of her own beloved flowers. Now she wrote them to encourage the love of flowers and never had propagandist a more willing convert.

Then the chrysanthemums bloomed and one morning Sue found a dozen on her side of the fence. There was no note or card, just a double handful of blooms tied with a bit of vine and laid on the rail to which the pickets were nailed.

Lorrimer, sitting in the breakfast room over his coffee and newspaper, saw her hurl them with all her might into the yard. His face clouded, but presently the black look disappeared.

"Miss Bailey has returned the flowers—without thanks," he said to his mother. "I imagine that she believed the gift an effort to start a flirtation."

"It seems too bad that she cannot have some of her own flowers," was the snifling answer.

"I'll manage that," was the confident reply, and that afternoon when Sue went to work in her tiny garden there were more flowers on the rail, but this time they bore a card.

She was still puzzling over the latter when Lorrimer came up.

"I hope that these meet a more pleasant reception than those of this morning," he said as he bared his head.

"I don't understand this," exclaimed Sue with a puzzled frown. "What does it mean? 'For Teacher?'"

"The teacher of the Correspondence School of Floriculture," explained Lorrimer. "I know who the teacher is, for more than once I have seen her leave her lesson for the following day."

"I had to do something. I couldn't stand by and see you kill the flowers," explained the girl.

"But why not have given oral instructions?" he questioned.

"Because I hate you," was the frank reply. "You took my garden from me. This was all mine before you came."

"And that is my offence?" he asked gently. "Will you permit me to redeem myself by offering it back?"

"I couldn't take it away from you," denied Sue.

"Then why not share it?" asked Lorrimer. "We will work it on shares and divide the spoils."

Her face lighted up at the thought of working in the garden again and Lorrimer smiled, too, for he had paved the way to offering her a larger interest in his life; a half of everything. For like other pupils Lorrimer had fallen in love with his teacher and through the chrysanthemums hoped to work up to orange blossoms.

PARALYSED AND COULD NOT WALK

"Fruit-a-tives" Completely Restored New Brunswick Merchant To Health.

MR. ALVA PHILLIPS

BRISTOL, N. B., JULY 25th, 1911.
"I am unable to say enough in favor of "Fruit-a-tives" as it saved my life and restored me to health, when I had given up all hope and when the doctors had failed to do anything more for me. I had a stroke of Paralysis in March, 1910, and this left me unable to walk or help myself, and the Constipation of the bowels was terrible. Nothing did me any good and I was wretched in every way. Finally, I took "Fruit-a-tives" for the Constipation, and it not only cured me of that trouble but gradually this fruit medicine toned up the nerves and actually cured the paralysis. Under the use of "Fruit-a-tives", I grew stronger and stronger until all the palsy and weakness left me. I am now well again and attend my store every day and all day."

THE WESTERN SPIRIT

This Philosopher Ready to Prove There is no Blood in a Stone

The following letter to an eastern loan company from a Saskatchewan client, was published in a leading financial publication. It speaks for itself:

"Dear Sirs:—In reply to your letter, I must say that I can not pay you the interest on your mortgage this year.

"You seem to think you can make me pay this as you state in your letter that you will not allow it to remain. How shall I pay when I have not got it? You can make extension till next year or not just as you please, there are millions of acres of unoccupied land out here. And what good is it to us farmers anyway, we only get a poor living from it, and if you are not satisfied with the way I am running your property out here come and run it yourself. You threatened before to foreclose; why did not you? I am getting tired of waiting for it.

"I would advise you to wait till next year as you will get at least one more year's interest.

"Why is it that you fellows that produce nothing and do nothing useful own everthing, and we that produce everything own nothing?

"You seemed to think that my last letter was too short, perhaps this will suit you better.

Yours, etc.,

"P.S.—You can answer this letter or not as you please."

BATH FOR EYEGLASSES

Good Results Follow a Good Soap and Water Wash

Do you ever give your eyeglasses a bath? If not, give them a surprise and see how you like the result.

Dampness and dust form a gummy combination on the eyelashes, and the wearer of glasses or spectacles will find his vision, apparently, much improved by giving them a thorough washing daily with soap and warm water, followed by drying and polishing with tissue paper. The gummy substance which collects on the lenses cannot be removed by a mere rubbing with chamois or tissue paper.

An oculist, who knows the importance of well-washed lenses, carries in his pocket a vial of alcohol. It takes but a moment to moisten the corner of a handkerchief and remove the combination of dust and moisture from his glasses. Another has the case of his glasses interlined with a folded bit of soft tissue, such as is used for copying letters in offices. This is so soft that it is easily folded into the small space of the receptacle case. No dust collects on this as it does on the velvet lining, and the tissue interlining is renewed every day or two.

HOW TO GROW FAT.

As every woman knows fat is only a matter of emponpoint. That is to say, the fatter you are the more embonpoint you possess. As the possession of anything from embonpoint to a bale of hay is considered nine points of the law, and is therefore a desirable thing in these hard-pressed times of high living, our advice is to get fat as soon as possible, unless of course, you are engaged in getting thin.

Fat people have other advantages over the attenuated species. They make a larger hit with the tailor, the butcher, the grocer, the restaurant man, the Fat Men' sclubs, the guess-your-weight man, and the public in general. Popular tradition has put a smile on their lips and good nature in their bosoms. The cherubims are pictured as being fat. The best comedians are fat. Half of our living ex-Presidents are fat.

If you want to get fat three things are essential—state of mind, diet, and sleep.

The proper state of mind is the optimistic one. We do not mean to imply that all optimistic people are fat, but we do maintain that if it weren't for laughter and good cheer, there wouldn't be a 17½ collar in the world.

This frame of mind must be maintained at all costs. You must not not only lasso laughter, but corral and brand her as your own. Avoid the morbid. Keep away from street car conductors, chess players, subway guards, trombone performers, and artists. Associate with gunmen, waiters, hat boys, printers, hospital attendants, and bomb throwers. They have that bonhomie which makes for embonpoint.

As for your diet, the first, last and only rule is stick to it. Eat as if you meant it. Let nothing daunt you, nothing disturb you. Appetite has nothing to do with it. Neither has time, cost, business, or the protests of the cook. Eat!

If at the end of a month you find you haven't gained an ounce, then you were probably destined to be thin.

IF HEADACHY, DIZZY, BILIOUS, "CASCARETS"

Your Liver is Full of Bile; Bowels Clogged, Stomach Sour, Tongue Coated, Breath Bad

Get a 10-cent box now.

You're bilious! You have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean, stomach sweet, and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good, and never gripe or sicken.

Trouble for Tommy.

Christie MacDonald believes strongly in the value of a sense of humour and tells a story to illustrate its power to lighten even the worst adversity.

"They were two newly-arrived emigrants, and, having wandered far from the paths of civilization, had fallen into the hands of a dusky savage chief. The day after their capture their captor ordered them to go and gatherf ruit.

"In due time the first returned, bearing a plentiful supply of grapes.

"'What bringest thou?' asked the chief.

"'Grapes, guv-nor.'

"'Then swallow them whole.'

"A peal of discordant laughter greeted this order, and the chief frowned.

"'Why do you laugh?' he growled.

"'Sorry, guv-nor,' apologized the prisoner, wiping his streaming eyes, and striving to smother his convulsive chuckles. 'I was just thinking of my poor old pal, Tommy. He's bringing cocoanuts!'"

Eczema Is Only Skin Deep

Proven by D.D.D.

A few skin troubles originate in the blood. But very few. Dr. Evans, Ex-Commissioner of Health and a famous writer on medical subjects, says:

"We shall begin to make headway with skin disease when we learn two things; first that skin disease does not come from impure blood; second, that so-called blood purifiers have no such action."

Get busy then and clear up your skin. Stop that itching and burning.

Drive out those pimples.

Make up your mind to start now and give yourself a smooth, velvet complexion.

You can do it with the aid of the wonderful D. D. D. prescription—a cooling, refreshing lotion — not a salve or grease—it soothes your tender skin, opens the pores, drives out the old impurities and gives you a skin like a baby, smooth and clear.

DR. WALLACE DEAD

Grand Old Man of Science Passes Away in London

ALMOST OUTDID DARWIN

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The death occurred yesterday of Alfred Russel Wallace, O.M., LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.S., one of the leading British scientists, in his 91st year. He published many works of world-wide reputation on the theory of natural selection, the geographical distribution of animals and other branches of science. He was a great authority on the land question and was a strong advocate of land nationalization. He traveled in every part of the world in pursuit of his studies.

Dr. Wallace was born at Usk, Monmouthshire, on Jan. 8, 1823, and was of Scottish descent on his father's side. He was educated at Hertford Grammar School. His first work was published sixty years ago, under the title "Travels on the Amazon and Rio Negro." His subsequent works include: "The Malay Archipelago" (1869); "Contributions to the Theory of Natural Selection" (1871); "The Geographical Distribution of Animals" (1876); "Miracles and Modern Spiritualism" (1881); "Land Nationalization" (1882); "Man's Place in the Universe" (1903).

While in the East Indies in February, 1858, there suddenly flashed upon his mind the idea of "the survival of the fittest." He drafted the theory and posted it to Charles Darwin, who, on receiving it in England at once recognized his own theory in the manuscript essay sent by the young and almost unknown naturalist in the tropics, then a stranger to him. Darwin wrote Sir Charles Lyell on the same day saying that he never saw a more striking coincidence. "If Wallace had my M.S. sketch written out in 1842 he could not have made a better short abstract! Even his terms now stand as the head of my chapters."

Regarding his book "Contributions to the Theory of Natural Selection" it has been said that next to Darwin's "Origin of Species," no single work has done so much to promote clear understanding of natural selection and confidence in its truth. Wallace differed from Darwin on certain points, one difference being that he contended that man has not, like the other animals, been produced by the unaided operation of natural selection, but that other forces have also been in operation.

MAKING MONEY!

Merchants of Mexico City Manufacture It With Rubber Stamps.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 8. — Silver was the most elusive thing in the capital yesterday. The price of foreign exchange stiffened and a few merchants resorted to the plan of issuing vouchers in the place of silver when making change. At some of the city banks the bank notes of certain state banks were refused. This caused a slight panic among the holders of such paper.

The credit slips issued by the mercantile houses have no legal standing and in many cases were refused. In cases where they were declined the business houses were forced to hand back the bank notes to would-be patrons without having made a sale.

These slips are written on various sorts of paper on which appears in ink or pencil "Good for ———" with the amount due specified. Below this usually the merchants stamped the slip with the ordinary rubber stamp bearing the firm names, in numerous instances these slips passed as currency, not only at the houses putting them out, but in neighboring stores friendly to the store of issue. As yet the public has placed no premium on paper money.

Potato Crop Spoiled.

BANGOR, Me., Nov. 8.—Losses totalling from $500,000 to $1,000,000 are estimated to have been caused to the potato growers of Maine by rains and frost. In consequence, the supply, it is said, will be smaller, and the price much higher than was expected early in the season.

Three weeks of rain in October, followed by freezing weather, delayed the harvesting of the crop. Fields turned into swamps by the rain were frozen over by a cold wave, so that digging by the usual methods was impossible. Throughout Eastern and Northern Maine thousands of acres of potatoes still remain in the ground.

THE HALF-SPEED MAN AND WOMAN

What it Means When You Feel "All Out of Sorts"

You know what it means to feel "all out of sorts." Most people have felt this way at some time. Nerves out of order, irritable, languid, depressed. An aching head, a fagged brain, appetite bad and digestion weak. With some people this condition comes and goes; with others it is chronic; they can't shake it off. It interferes with business, spoils recreation and robs life of all its joys. These men and women are only able to live and work at "half speed."

Half speed people have lost that abundant natural vitality which enables others to go "full-speed-ahead" through life. Their energy and nerve power have evaporated—they cannot work long without breaking down. The trouble is nerve weakness and is caused by poor, watery blood. You can begin to improve your condition to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make rich, red blood once more pulsate through your veins, and your nerves thrill with fresh vigour. Here is convincing evidence that new strength and full health can be had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mr. Newton Mayhew, North Tyron, P. E. I., says: "I am a farmer and naturally have to work very hard. The result was that I found myself very much run down. My blood became thin and watery, and my muscles flabby. I took doctors treatment but it did not help me and I grew so weak that I could scarcely work at all. As I found the medical treatment was not helping me I decided to try Dr. Williams', Pink Pills, and in these I found the medicine I needed, as in a short time I was restored to my old health and vigour. I shall always recommend these pills to all sufferers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers, or will be mailed, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Husband Is Shot.

IPSWICH, Mass., Nov. 8.—Crying hysterically that she had killed her husband, Mrs. John E. Hayes rushed into the Ipswich police station last night. She said that Hayes was struck by a bullet from a revolver which he was handing her to shoot a rat.

The officers went to Hayes' home and found the man dead on the floor with a bullet through the heart and then took Mrs. Hayes back to the police station, where she was locked up for the night.

PRESENT DAY HATS AND STYLES IN HAIR DRESSING CAUSE LOSS OF HAIR

We Cannot Change the Styles, but We Can Check Falling Hair

Up to the time we began to civilize him a bald headed Indian was a thing unknown. Wearing nothing on his head except the covering furnished by nature and being a stranger to the use of a hair brush, especially the public one, the scalp and hair had plenty of ventilation, much sunlight and, hence, a condition favourable to a luxuriant growth of hair existed at all times.

It was the adoption of air and light excluding head gears and artificial head decorations generally, together with the occasional use of a community hair brush, which gave the dandruff germ its opportunity. Since this parasite has multiplied to an alarming degree until now there is hardly a person who is not troubled more or less with dandruff and falling hair.

Many, to be sure, have passed the worrying stage. Having become chronically bald they realize that nothing is capable of producing natural hair for them. Let these be a warning to all who are experiencing the significant annoyance of dandruff and falling hair.

Dandruff, which is due to a germ, and falling hair can both be overcome by the regular use of Newbro's Herpicide.

This wonderful scalp remedy frees the scalp of all dandruff and stops the hair from coming out. The destruction of the germ permits the hair to grow naturally and luxuriantly as nature intends.

Herpicide makes the hair bright, snappy, light and fluffy.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Send 10c in stamps or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

JURORS DISAGREE

Deadlock Occurs in the Trial of Stead M. Gamble

TEN ARE FOR ACQUITTAL

WHITBY, Ont., Nov. 8.—For five hours yesterday afternoon those interested in the case of Stead M. Gamble, of Toronto, financial secretary of the Structural Iron Workers' Union, waited impatiently while the jury wrangled and argued in an attempt to reach an agreement. At 12.40 Mr. Justice Britton concluded his charge, and without waiting for dinner the jury filed into the jury room. As the afternoon wore on hope of a unanimous verdict being reached was abandoned. At 5.40 the jury again appeared.

"What is your verdict?" asked the court.

"We have not been able to agree, your lordship," replied the foreman.

"Is there no hope of an agreement?" the judge asked.

"None whatever."

Judge Britton thereupon dismissed the jury. It is understood that two jurors held out for conviction and ten for acquittal.

Gamble's counsel, Mr. H. H. Dewart, K.C., Toronto, has arranged for bail until such time as the case shall again be called, which at the earliest will not be until next spring. In the meantime it does not seem likely that any new facts can be brought to bear upon either side. Gamble was charged with damaging a rope that was to have been used in connection with bridge construction work. A strike was in progress at the time.

Mr. A. E. H. Creswicke, K.C., who prosecuted as crown counsel in conjunction with Col. J. E. Farewell, K.C., county crown attorney, in addressing the jury yesterday morning was the unintentional cause of a sudden hysterical outburst on the part of Mrs. Gamble.

"Can Gamble's story be believed?" asked Mr. Creswicke. "If he is guilty would he not deny the crime in order to save his skin, if I may use this phrase?"

"Oh, don't let him talk like that!" exclaimed Mrs. Gamble, repeating over and over the same words, her voice rising until it became a scream.

Friends tried to soother her, Mr. Dewart and her pastor attempted to reason with her, but still the flood of tears and the hysterical wail kept on, "don't let him talk like that."

Persuasion proving to be of no avail, Mrs. Gamble had to be removed from the room, this being done as gently as possible. Even when outside she continued her cries and the court was disturbed more than once until she could be taken to a sufficient distance. Her little son, who was with her, cried too, in sympathy with his mother. After some time a physician succeeded in quieting the woman with a narcotic. She rested fairly well in the afternoon and had recovered from her hysteria.

TO RESIST DESPOTISM.

Chinese Republicans Urge Struggle For Their Rights.

PEKIN, Nov. 8.—As neither House of the Chinese Parliament is able to form a quorum, the leaders of the other parties are endeavoring to persuade the Government to return their credentials to the less hostile members of the Democratic party, all of whom, about 300, had been expelled from Parliament by Presidential proclamation. The party was formerly led by Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first provisional President of China, now in exile.

The Speaker of the Assembly, Tang Hua Lang, has requested the remaining members of Parliament to stay in Pekin and strive for the maintenance of the Parliamentary institutions, as he states that the termination of these will mean the ending of the Chinese republic.

It was reliably reported yesterday that the Chinese military leaders had been urging, President Yuan Shi Kai for months to assume control, arguing that Government with a Parliament in China was impossible.

Nanaimo Rioters May Get Bail.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—Chief Justice Hunter yesterday intimated that the 127 defendants who are in jail awaiting trial on charges connected with the riots in Nanaimo and Ladysmith, should be allowed out on bail.

So far as he could see, said his lordship, the evidence against the accused was such as would warrant him in releasing them, but he would take up the cases individually before giving a final decision on any of them. The probability is that bail will be granted.

Dominion Federation of Women.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8. — Application will be made to Parliament next session for an act to incorporate the National Council of Women of Canada for the purpose of uniting in a Dominion federation all societies and associations of women interested in philanthropy, religion, education, literature, art and social reform, for the betterment of conditions pertaining to the family and the state.

Car Strikers Go Back.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8. — The strike of the employes of the Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. was settled late yesterday through the efforts of Governor Samuel M. Ralston. The employes on their demand for arbitration, but nothing is said about recognition of the union in the terms of settlement.

Cannot Exclude Hindus.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—A rule nisi was obtained by J. S. Baird, barrister, yesterday before Chief Justice Hunter, returnable next week, for thirty-eight Hindus who are at present under an order of deportation at Victoria. Mr. Baird claimed that the order-in-council, providing that such Hindus must have $200 before being allowed to land, was ultra vires.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts Before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste, or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to moral activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Bad Weather on Superior.

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 8.—A high wind, accompanied by rain turning to hail and ending with snow, broke over the Twin Cities and Lake Superior during the day, but calmed down at night while the temperature dropped.

The steamer Sarontic, of the Northern Navigation fleet, started out but turned back at Thunder Cape on account of the high seas, while her wireless reports told that the C.P.R. steamer Alberta was lying anchored at Whitefish Bay.

A severe thunderstorm at Tobermorey, near the Soo, was reported by wireless.

Ended Life With Rifle.

SACKVILLE, N.B., Nov. 8.—R. D. Polly of Upper Cape shot and killed himself with a rifle in his home on Thursday night.

THE MARKETS

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 7.—The steady American wheat cables and the strength in Winnipeg caused renewed covering by shorts at the opening and values were ¼d higher. Following the opening there was a further advance of ¼d to ½d, with speculative support on the firmer Manitoba offers, strength in spot and our Argentine advice. Russian offers are still firm with actual shipments disappointing and reports from India are very bullish with Indian wheat held above an export parity. World's shipments other than America are expected to be moderate. At 1.30 the market was firm and ¾d to ⅞d higher with May leading the advance.

Corn opened ¼d higher and further advanced ¼d to ⅝d. The firmer American cables and a better spot demand, effect of liberal Argentine shipments. Argentine offerings for shipment are firmer and arrivals at the ports in Argentine are in a bad condition, being a very low grade and the result of an urgent demand. At 1.30 the market was firm and ⅝d to ¾d higher than yesterday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Strength of foreign markets helped wheat bulls today and the close, the easy, was at a net advance of 1-4c to 1-2c. Prospects of unsettled weather put backbone into the corn market, which closed strong at a net gain of 1-2c to 3-4c. Good commission house buying lifted oats 1-2c to 1-4c. Provisions finished steady to 7 1-2c lower on liberal selling.

RESCUED IN TIME.

Chicago Girl Bound and Gagged In Midst of Flames.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Gertrude Hanson, a 16-year-old servant, employed in the home of Otto Johnson, was found bound and gagged amid burning rubbish in the basement of the house yesterday. She was unconscious, but detectives expressed the opinion that she had been attacked and that the perpetrator had taken desperate measures in an attempt to conceal his crime.

Miss Hanson's clothing had been saturated with kerosene and papers and other rubbish nearby set on fire. The smoke attracted neighbors, who rescued the girl before the flames reached her.

Herring Disease Causes Alarm.

QUEBEC, Nov. 8.—Capt. Samuel Cote of the schooner Maria Anne, who has arrived here from Gaspe, gives out alarming news about the herring family that must in time spread to other fish. The disease rots the entrails of the herring, and the captain says there are thousands of barrels of this year's catch lying rotting on the Gaspe beach and north shore.

TOOK SEVERE COLD.

A bad cough accompanied by that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat is most aggravating.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is rich in the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, and for this reason it will stop that tickling in the throat which causes that dry hard cough that keeps you awake at night.

Mr. Sanford Roode, Antrim, N.S., writes:—"Last fall I took a severe cold which left me with a terrible hard cough and a nasty tickling sensation in my throat. I tried many cough medicines, but they did not help me so I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had used half of it the cough had left me, and the next one made a complete cure, and I will recommend it as the best cough medicine on the market."

See that you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Do not accept any imitation. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price, 25 and 50c., and manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FLOOR WENT DOWN.

Audience at Guelph Concert Had Narrow Escape From Tragedy.

GUELPH, Nov. 8.—With the new trades and labor hall in McDonald street packed to the doors last night, on the occasion of the annual concert of the Iron Moulders' Union, and with President William Parker about to open the program, the floor at the rear of the hall sank six inches, with a noise that could be heard all over the hall.

There was confusion at once, and someone yelled fire, whereupon a grand rush was made for the door, but Alf. King and R. S. Cull had presence of mind enough to block the way and called out for everyone to stop, an order that was obeyed. The crowd was then allowed to file out one by one, and not a single person was injured.

The hall had been opened a week before and was considered perfectly safe. If the floor had gone through, the drop would have been about fourteen feet, and doubtless a terrible loss of life would have resulted.

The concert, thus interrupted, will be held in the City Hall same night next week.

John Lowe Dead.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—John Lowe, ex-Deputy Minister of Agriculture, died here last night in his 90th year. He was born at Warrington, Eng., in 1824. From 1850 to 1870 he was senior editor and proprietor of The Montreal Gazette, in the latter year entering the Dominion public service as census officer and later as assistant and Deputy Minister of Agriculture. He retired in 1895.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

SENTENCE WAS SUSPENDED; INNIS ALLOWED TO GO FREE

Was Married to the Girl in the Case Yesterday Afternoon and Was Afterwards Allowed to Go by Judge Huycke.

HIS HONOUR'S REMARKS

Garnet Innis, convicted of administering drugs to a young girl for a criminal purpose, was allowed to go on suspended sentence by Judge Huycke yesterday afternoon. His Honour's action followed the marriage of Innis to the girl in the case, which took place earlier in the afternoon at St. Luke's Rectory, with Rev. F. J. Sawers officiating. Both parties were willing that the ceremony should take place and the arrangements were made over the telephone, Chief of Police Thompson and Gaoler Nesbitt accompanying the couple in a cab to the Rectory.

On his return to the gaol Innis was brought before Judge Huycke and Crown Attorney Wood asked for the sentence of the court.

His Honour pointed out to the prisoner the serious nature of the charge against him. He showed Innis that it was possible to have made the charge one that might result in a life sentence. He had considered the case carefully and had come to the conclusion that it would be the best thing under the circumstances for Innis, the girl and their unborn child to allow the prisoner to go on suspended sentence. He urged upon Innis to treat his wife well and said that if he did so nothing more would be heard of the charge.

S. A. Adjutant Has Returned

From Toronto Where Matters of Local Interest Were Discussed

Adjutant McElhenny has returned from Toronto, where he, together with a number of officers connected with the local Salvation Army Corps, waited upon Commissioner Lamb in respect to the Peterborough Band's proposed trip to England. While nothing definite has been arrived at regarding the matter, there is every reason to believe that the trip will materialize. Commissioner Lamb, who accompanied General Booth to Winnipeg, promised to write to Adjutant McElhenny upon their arrival in the Western metropolis. The proposed trip is in connection with the International Congress which is held once in every ten years.

Facts to Interest.

It is interesting to learn that the Salvation Army holds approximately 32,000 open-air meetings every week, with an approximate attendance of two million persons. These meetings are conducted in 33 languages. It may be the village green, or the front of a fashionable watering place, a slum street, or a roaring thoroughfare. It may be under a feathery palm in Ceylon or beside an Indian well. The soldiery may be clad in furs, and standing back to the wind, as in the Canadian territory in winter, or the meetings may be amongst the bamboo huts of a Japanese village, before a hotel in an Australian township, or among the wig-wams of the Alaska Indians.

FUR MONTH

This month is the most important fur month to the fore-handed woman because any day may be severely cold and warm garments must be in readiness.

The question of furs for the winter is not a difficult one to the woman who can, without thought of price, go out and buy what happens to strike her fancy. If she regrets her purchase later on she can buy something else.

To the thrifty woman, however, there are problems of quality, style, price, and durability to be considered more carefully in buying fur garments than in buying almost any other articles of wear. Then, too, there is the possibility of making over slightly worn pieces, or of combining some new fur with the old.

All of these points need careful thought. Many hints and suggestions may easily be obtained by a visit to Barrie's, Limited, opposite the Examiner. More than likely, the most satisfactory solution of your problem will be found there. 2d-108

TWO SHIFTS OF MEN ARE NOW ENGAGED

In Construction of New Five Storey Building at the Corner of George and Simcoe Streets

A MODERN STRUCTURE

Building operations on the Turnbull site at the corner of George and Simcoe Streets were temporarily suspended to-day, owing to the unfavourable weather. The contractors, Mr. William Langford & Son, are rushing the work as rapidly as is consistent with good construction. It is proposed to erect a modern, new, five-storey building. The structure will be unlike any other building at present in Peterborough.

A night and day shift of men are employed in the construction of the foundation for the building. The excavation is about seventeen feet in depth and will provide for a commodious basement ten feet high, which will be used for business purposes.

Sproat and Ralph, a prominent firm of Toronto architects, are supplying the plans and specfications for the new building. Mr. Langford, Sr., stated this morning that the building would be similar in design to that of the Robert Simpson Company of Toronto. The first two stories will have considerable glass, giving fine window displays on George and Simcoe Streets. The entire building will be of steel construction.

The work at night is carried on by means of a number of powerful arc lights. Solid cement piers are being sunk at a depth sufficient to withstand the weight of a ten-storey building.

MEMORY CURE FOR BLACKLISTER

Cornelius J. Ryan, more familiarly known in Police Court circles as "Con." Ryan, appeared in Police Court to-day, charged with being drunk while on the prohibited list. "Con." admitted he had been "hitting the can," and was therefore guilty of the charge.

In the witness box Ryan gave an exhibition of question-dodging that nettled even the Chief, whose chief sustenance between meals is grinding facts out of blacklisters and others. When he was asked if such a thing hoppened he replied that he "did not see it," or "didn't hear it," "or "it might have been," and even at that he contradicted the other two winesses in the case so noticeably that the Magistrate prescribed the memory cure for him, and he will spend the next seven days in the County Gaol.

Ryan said he visited the house of another blacklister last night, and while there some man (whose name he didn't know) came in. Before his entry there was no liquor in evidence. After his departure there was a whole pint flask available. It was a puzzle to Ryan where it came from. He didn't buy it, nor his friend did not have it when he called; nor did he see the other man bring it. He din't know where it came from, but eventually his instinct told him there was a bottle in the vicinity, and soon he and his friend were engaged in consuming its contents.

Ryan was remanded for a week, and his friend was fined $20 for being drunk while on the blacklist.

ROYAL CONCERT CO.

Mr. Albert Bentley of Toronto, advance agent and manager for the Royal Concert Co., is in the City, making arrangements for the appearance of his Company in this City on the evening of Tuesday, November 18th, at the Grand Opera House. The talented artists composing this Company have already made a name for themselves among the lovers of high class entertainment. The talent consists of Alfred Hubbard, concert tenor; Mabel Farrance, reader and elocutionist; Eddie Pigott, comic singer and impersonator; Henrietta Walmsley, contralto; and Margaret Campbell, violin, virtuoso-pianist. The repertoire is varied and versatile and of a high-class order. Watch their coming. Mr. Bentley is registered at the Oriental.

IS OF INTEREST TO CANADIANS

March of 3000 Hindus into the Transvaal as a Protest Against Immigration Act Causes Much Discussion.

WANT FAIR TREATMENT

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., Nov. 8. — The march of Emir Ghandi and three thousand Hindu followers into the Transvaal as a protest against the South African Immigration Act, is regarded here as particularly interesting to Canada in view of the operation of the Dominion of Canada's immigration act against Hindus desiring to get into British Columbia. Ghandhi and his men are all under arrest and by his raid he has practically put it up to the British Empire to show its capacity to protect its subjects be they white, black or brown, and procure for them equitable treatment in all parts of the Empire. Ghandi was an Indian of high caste, who organized a Hindu ambulance corps during the South African war and served as its leader with distinction and credit. He has many friends here. The Government may take some action to-day.

No Decision In Ladies' Debate

A unique feature of the first debate of the season under the auspices of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. was the fact that it was declared a draw. The subject was, "Resolved that Household Science as learned in the home, is preferable to that taught in the schools.' Misses K. McCarthy and K. Plunkett upheld the affirmative, and Misses Ethel Hayes and Kathleen O'Brien advanced the plea for the training afforded by the schools. There were only two judges, Messrs. Dennis Larkin and Jos. Begley, and their conference resulted in a deadlock. Rev. Dean McColl was asked to declare the winner but declined, and the debate was declared a draw.

The young ladies acquitted themselves most creditably. The affirmative had probably a shade on points, but this was balanced by a slight advantage gained by the negative side for delivery. The debate was interesting throughout and Mr. Begley on behalf of the judges and Rev. Dean McColl congratulated the young ladies upon the matter, form and delivery of their speeches.

During the evening there was a piano duet by Misses Alma Levasseur and Ollie Tangney, and Miss Helen Warmington sang very acceptably. Mrs. Alf. Lehane presided.

BROKE HIS ARM

Fred Soward, a pupil of the Collegiate Institute, had his left arm broken as the result of an unusual accident in the Y.M.C.A. gymnaium yesterday afternoon. The youngster was engaged with other boys in exercising on the vaulting horse. As he finished a vault his feet slipped and he put his hands down on the floor to save himself, the shock snapping his left arm between the wrist and elbow. Dr. Moir reduced the fracture.

AVIATOR'S BODY HANGING IN TREE

Bird-man Missing Since October 13th Has Been Discovered in Long Island Woods by a Party of Hunters.

ENTANGLED IN WRECKAGE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Word has been received here that the body of A. J. Jewell, the aviator missing since October 13th, is hanging in a tree in a large stretch of dense woods on Long Island, where he had evidently fallen during a flight. The hunters who discovered the body could not release it as it was entangled in the wreckage of an aeroplane. Relatives have gone to bring the body home. Jewell leaves a wife and five children.

PERFORMANCE REPEATED

Big Audience Saw "The Land of Golden Dreams" Last Night

Before an enthusiastic audience that filled every part of the Grand Opera House, "The Land of Golden Dreams," was successfully repeated last night. The self-confidence gained in the first night's performance by those taking part was evidenced in the smoothness and snap with which the production was put on last evening. The different musical numbers and specialties were warmly received and a number of the soloists received bouquets, the presentation of which was greeted with applause. "The Land of Golden Dreams" is a big undertaking, splendidly handled, and those who had not seen it should not miss the final performance this evening.

Miss Sundberg presided at the piano and assisted greatly in the success of the occasion.

THE C. G. E. CO. CLOSED EARLY ON THURSDAY

When the C.G.E. whistle blew at five o'clock on Thursday afternoon, the people of the south end began to wonder whether early closing had ben decided upon. It is reported that the stop logs were put in the Nassau dam in order to run more water into the canal to float a stranded craft. As a result the power was turned off in the Nassau power house. Hence the whistle's roar at the early hour.

REV. MR. McCONACHIE IS INDUCTED

At a special meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery at Centreville yesterday, Rev. Mr. McConachie was inducted in the pastorate of Centreville and Stewart's Memorial.

MUSKRAT SOUGHT POLICE PROTECTION

Last night a lone and wandering muskrat, in spite of the fact that it is protected by the law at this season, took refuge in the Police Station. How far it came to secure the protecting shelter of the walls of the station can only be surmised, but the fact that once there, he wished to remain, was amply demonstrated by the ferocity it displayed, when Sergeant Adams comenced operations this morning to have it ejected from his locker, where it spent the night.

It was late last night the livestock of the station was added to by the amount of one muskrat. When it strolled into the station, P. C. Read rounded it up and put it in Sergeant Adam's locker, where it remained till this morning. After the regular Police Court session, Sergeant Adams picked the animal up by the tail and dropped it into a bag. By this means it was conveyed to the river, where its liberty was restored.

CAR WAS ON THE RIGHT SIDE

Regarding the automobile accident which occurred on Hunter Street on Thursday evening, it is stated that the lady driving the car was on the right side of the road, but in what proved to be a successful effort to avoid running the child down, the car was swerved to the left side of the road. The eye-witnesses who reported that the car was on the wrong side of the road when the four-year-old child of Mr. Wm. Huffman was knocked down, evidently got their impression from the position the car was in after it was brought to a standstill. The car was proceeding west along the right side of Hunter Street, when the girl in question stepped off the sidewalk directly in front of the approaching car. To avoid running down the child, the driver of the car swerved sharply to the left and brought the machine to a standstill opposite St. John's Church. The front wheel of the car grazed the child, inflicting a number of minor injuries.

EIGHTEEN MONTHS OLD CHILD IS BURNED TO DEATH

Terrible Accident North of Minden When Two Small Children are Left Alone in the Home During Mother's Absence.

PLAYED WITH FIRE

Examiner Special:

Special to The Examiner:

MINDEN, Ont., Nov. 8.—A sad fatality occurred on Thursday evening at Hall's Lake, Stanhope Township, about 20 miles north of this village, when the 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tice Barry, Jr., was burned to death.

The mother left the little one with its three-year-old brother, while she went with a message to a neighbouring house. Returning in about ten minutes she was horror stricken to find the child on the doorstep burned to death. So far as can be learned the little boy gave her a piece of burning firewood from the fire in the stove and the little one set fire to her clothing, and in great agony ran to the door where she was found, having breathed the flames and smoke. She was badly burned about the neck and face.

Coroner O. A. Pogue, of Minden, was summoned but deemed it not necessary to hold an inquest, the circumstances being purely accidental.

PETERBORO' BOY WINS BIG RACE

Cadet Morris First in Inter-collegiate Harriers' Race

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Nov. 8. — Cadet F. W. Morris, of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and son of Mr. W. R. Morris of Peterborough, won the Intercollegiate Harriers' Race here today from representatives of the different Canadian Colleges.

EGGS 50C BEFORE XMAS SAYS FARMER

That eggs would be 50c. a dozen by Christmas was the statement of a farmer on the market this morning. Local cold storage houses, he said, were selling few, if any eggs, just for the reason that their supplies were decidedly short as compared with conditions a year ago now. Prices during the past summer were too high to invite heavy purchasing by the storage men, and just now the farmers who are asking 35c. a dozen find comparatively no opposition.

One woman to-day stated that strictly fresh eggs were selling at 40c. a dozen, and that the 35c. variety represented their worth in regard to freshness. The farmer who made the statement was a buyer this morning and was looking over the offerings. He stated that he had bought several crates in anticipation of business possibilities before the new turn comes.

Poultry Plentiful.

There was a generous supply of poultry this mornig. Ducks and geese were more abundant than ever, and chickens were plentiful. The feathers have been flying in the country during the past few days, judging by the display, and the heads of many an awkward goose and sprightly chicken have fallen.

The quotations for turkeys and geese depended upon their avoirdupois. Some of the former were down to $1.75 and they ranged from that to $2.50 and $3.00.

Geese were from $1.25 to $1.50 and were fairly numerous. Ducks were 50 and 60 cents apiece, and chickens were about the same price or $1.00 a pair.

Butter was steady at 30c.

On the outside market the farmers were doing their best to get $1.15 a bag for potatoes, and apparently some of them were successful.

Pork and lamb were unchanged in price.

SHOULD SHORTEN SNOW PLOUGH ROUTES

Dear Sir,—I see our civic authorities are preparing for snow-ploughing tenders. Now, is it not time that some better system was inaugurated in this City than has prevailed in past winters? The routes as laid out in the past have been much too long. It is simply a physical impossibility for a man to drive a horse attached to a heavy plough the distance required by the routes and do a half decent job. The poor horse not only has to pull to the last pound of its strength, but is compelled to walk on the unyielding pavement, and at times his condition is such, after a hard day's work, that a police court case would result were he employed in ordinary labour. Make the routes much shorter, and compel the contractors to do better work. Suppose it does cost more—it is for the benefit of the citizens generally. Give the taxpayer something for the money he is compelled to disgorge, much of which does not benefit him either directly or indirectly.

Yours,
SNOW PLOUGH.

FREIGHT SHEDS NEARING COMPLETION

The new C.P.R. freight sheds are nearing completion. The building, which is 248 x 50, is situated at the eastern terminus of Charlotte street. In the spring an additional two hundred feet will be constructed at the south end. Workmen are at present engaged in laying a hardwood floor. The building will be completed in time for the Christmas trade.

DEDICATION FESTIVAL CONTINUES

At St. John's to-morrow the dedication festival will be continued. Special sermons will be preached by Rev. W. F. Fitzgerald, M.A., of Kingston. Mr. Fitzgerald is an Irishman by birth and training, and has the gifts of his race. His lecture on "Ireland and the Irish" has ben given in hundreds of places and he is one of the best known clergy of the Church of England in Eastern Ontario. He is also Grand Chaplain of the Orange Order, and as such took an active part in the sessions of Grand Lodge in this City last spring. Mr. Fitzgerald will preach both morning and evening.

Owing to the dedication festival the subject of Missions will be dealt with at St. John's on a subsequent occasion.

KETCHECUM CLUB HAS HAD GOOD LUCK

Mr. Fred L. Roy returned last night after a few days' hunting with the Ketchecum Hunt Club, and reports that the members were having an enjoyable and successful outing in the north. The party had succeded in bagging a deer each hunting day up to the day he left camp, and Mr. Roy himself killed a fine buck. Every one is in good health, the weather has been splendid and the hunt one of the best in the history of the club.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The World for Christ—Christ for the World.

Sunday, November 9th, begins the Week of Prayer in the Y.W.C.A., and throughout the week our services will particularly deal with the work in foreign fields, when so many difficulties and such great needs are met with by our workers — difficulties which we, in a Christian country, cannot realize or fully appreciate. The liberty, beauty, comfort and joy proclaimed by Christianity is our birth right. Let us guard it carefully as the greatest treasure we possess and let us by our prayers ask the Giver of Eternal Life to so bless and encourage His servants among His children in soul bondage that the result of the coming year's Harvest may indeed be most bountiful.

We take this opportunity of inviting and urging as many as possible to join us at these services. Sunday vesper service at five o'clock in the "Green Room" at which Mrs. Kendry will speak and Miss Dawson will contribute the vocal selection.

The "Loyalty Club" is one of the most interesting clubs in the Y.W.C.A., and great interest is being taken by the girls in study of the various poets. If there are strange girls from the Homeland who have not joined us we hope they will come to the office on Simcoe street and meet us, any day. They are always welcome.

"He is in 'Who's Who,' I believe?"
"Yes, but he is much more prominent in 'Here's How!'"

SATURDAY, NOV. 8, 1913

EXPLANATORY.

The Editor of the Daily Mail, Montreal, in a letter to the Examiner, complains that "in your issue of November 5th a Montreal special despatch states that the Daily Mail is "supposed to have the backing of Hon. Robert Rogers." The Mail denies this and adds that "Mr. Rogers has nothing more to do with the Daily Mail than the editor of the Examiner." We are glad to publish his explanation. The Mail's indignant repudation of Mr. Rogers' connection with it, is justified by facts, as it would be much more justified on other grounds if such a connection existed.

SHYLOCK'S WAY.

One of the standard witticisms at the expense of a policeman is that his highest usefulness is developed in the arrest of the smal l boy. It seems that the spirit of this threadbare "joke" is followed by the authorities. In Toronto, a man who has been only seven months in Canada—and the hub of Canada, at that, Toronto—was brought up under the Truancy Act, and fined $100 and costs, or thirty days in gaol, for neglecting to send his fourteen-year-old girl to school. He will likely take the thirty days in jail, in which event he will get the only regular meals he has had in seven months. For that time he has been in a country whose ways are strange to him, and could not get work at his trade, that of a painter. He had a good excuse for not sending his daughter to schol. He could get no employment, the mother had to go out charing, and the daughter was kept at home to look after the house. The punishment imposed may be technically justified, but is it justice after all? No doubt in Toronto there are thousands of cases where the Truancy Act is broken, as there are scores, if not hundreds, of cases of the same kind in Peterborough. The real point of the matter is that the majesty of the law swoops down on some poor unfortunate devil, and overlooks the well-fed and prosperous law-breakers with influence and pull. Law and common sense should be what they are not always—running mates.' In the case of the Toronto man, instead of making a good citizen of a justifiable offender against the Truancy Act, they have made, perhaps, a criminal, and left a child deprived of even his inefficient protection, that may mean her downfall. A little discrimination might have been used. Justice should not have been converted into a Shylock, demanding the pound of flesh. If every breach of the Truancy Act in Peterborough were visted with a $100 fine, and the fines were paid, we should soon have a fund big enough to build a City school in Apsley.

DOMINION HOUSE.

Mr. Borden has now a chance to do something truly imperial — to put in an offset to his anti-imperial contribution naval policy. Lord Grey's Dominion House idea means the concentration of the offices of the British dominions beyond the seas under one roof, in London, the heart of the empire—the commercial and political centre of the world. The object of this concentration, which is beneficent centralisation, is thus summarised:

The establishment on the Aldwych site of the Dominion House would enable—

The Governments of the self-governing Dominions and, of their various States and Provinces, to concentrate on one central site their offices, now widely distributed in different parts of London.

The attention of the home consumer to be effectively and impressively focussed on the products of the Dominion Over-sea.

The manufacturers of the United ingdom to ascertain and to meet the requirements of Greater Britain.

At the present the fifteen offices of the various agencies of the Dominions and Provinces are widely scattered throughout London. The object of these agencies is to promote the transaction of the business of Dominions and the Provinces. Their present location and mean housing do not permit of either economical or effective administration of these interests. There can be no effective advertising of the resources of the Do minions. The comparatively humble nature of these offices does not create a good impression of the resources and importance of the various units of the Empire overseas, as would be done by the agencies being housed in one grand structure on the most central and conspicuous site in London. Lord Grey has secured an option on an ideal site, and it is for the Dominions to contribute to this great scheme of commercial and sentimental Imperial federation, which would have none of the difficulties and disadvantages of political imperial federation. Canada led the Empire in the idea of confederation and it should be a leader in this great movement. Australia, which has led the Dominions in establishing a national navy, has taken steps to fall in with Lord. Grey's great plan, and it is "up to" Premier Borden to show that Canada is not lacking in imperial imagination, imperial impulse and imperial spirit of cooperation. Canada has got the money to do its share in building and usaintaining the proposed great central officec. She has the greatest interest in virtue of the possession of the greatest resources, and in this regard needs not fear any competition implied in the display of the resources of the Dominions, in one great centre in the heart of the busiest and wealthiest mart in the world, on a site passed by the greatest concourse of London's teeming millions of any place in the great city. Lord Grey has been a true friend to Canada, but with all he has done to advertise our resources and promote their development, he will have done nothing greater than the establishment of a Dominion House, if he succeeds in his truly grand imperial and empire-building enterprise. He has contributed his full share, he has done his duty. It is for the Dominions to co-operate.

"HOT SPRINGS" CONSOLATION.

"Immediately after South Bruce, we learn that Mr. Borden left for Hot Springs, Va. The same authority informs us that Judue McCall left for Hot Springs immediately after the frost in New York last Tuesday. Sir Wilfrid Laurier sought consolation in Hot Springs in the fatal fall of 1911. There must be balm in Gilead, and its address seems to be Hot Springs, Virginia.—Montreal Herald.

A MODERN MODIFICATION OF THE IDEA OF HELL

Frederick Dixon Discusses What Christian Science Teaches Regarding Subject of World-wide Speculation

Heaven and hell are states of mind. Jesus of Nazareth made that perfectly clear in the famous passage in which He said, "The Kingdom of God is within you." Orthodox theology in latter years has thrown over hell as a material underworld, but with curiotes illogic has endeavoured to cling to heaven. It is obvious that it is impossible to repudiate a material hell and to cling to a material heaven. Theology, however, has gone even further than this, for it has thrown overboard a personal devil while insisting on the personality of God.

Now, the Bible is quite clear in its reference to hell. The terms it uses are, in the Old Tisetment, Sheol, and in the New Testament, Gehenna or Hades, with the exception of one instance; when the word used is Tartarus. The Hebrew word Sheol simply means the grave or the pit. It is really the equivalent of the Greek word Hades. It was the place to which the departed went, whether the just or the unjust.

"Its four compartments were reserved for the martyrs; secondly, for the righteous who were not martyrs; thirdly, for the sinners who had been prosperous on earth; and fourthly, for the sinners who had been unprosperous. The eschatology of the whole teaching was primitive and crude in the highest degree. Connected with it was someb elief in resurrection on the day of judgment. The souls of those in the first two compartments, according to the Pharisaic teaching, would rise at the day of judgment, and having received new bodies, would be admitted into heaven. There seems to have been no hope for the last two classes, and the souls of the third class were even to be slain on the day of judgment. There does not seem to have been any idea of eternal punishment. This picture of Sheol led to the establishment of necromancy. The necromancers claimed to be able to bring the shades to earth, and they plied their trade undoubtedly by a species of mental suggestion worked on those who came to them for the purpose.

There is no material difference between the Sheol of the Old Testament and the Hades of the New, with the exception that when the idea of punishment is introduced, the word commonly used is Gehenna. The entrance to Sheol was situated at the bottom of the sea, at the roots of the mountains, and through it was the way to the pit, just as Paradise consisted of seven heavens suspended over the plain which constituted the earth. The word Paradise itself is a Persian word signifying a garden.

Mediæval theology, of course, improved on this. The Hebrew had been satisfied with dividing Sheol into compartments and in the pictures of Fra Angelo anybody may see the process of torment going on amidst the flames. The "Divine Comedy" accepted an even broader view. Besides the ovens and fires, there were ice-floes and rivers.

Everybody knows that the Bible is an Eastern book, and that, in the words of a great orthodox scholar, an Oriental cannot open his mouth without emitting a metaphor. The rabbinical teachers themselves taught by means of metaphor. This was perfectly plainly recognized in the primitive Christian church, with the result that when Celsus, the Epicurean, made his famous attack on the church of the second century, and denounced its materialism as quite equal to that of the pagan gods and goddesses, the reply of Origen took the form of differentiating between the direct animalism of pagan Rome and the mythological character of Eastern thought. Origen's reply amounted to this. The brutalities which you attribute to the Christian deity are things not to be taken literally. When the Hebrew talked of Jehovah sending men to seize the Promised Land, to attack the fenced cities, and to dash out the brains of children, all He meant was that the Jew was to find a Promised Land, was to storm the citadels of sin, and was to dash to pieces his own personal sensual cravings. This was the explanation of a father of the church in the third century, and it explains something of what Jesus of Nazareth meant in speaking in the East to an Eastern audience.

When Jesus said that the thief should be with Him in Paradise, He did not mean in any garden in one of the seven heavens, or in any place among the clouds. He meant simply that ther epentance of the man was bringing about that change of thought which is the kingdom of God within you. The most famous of his references is, however, that to Dives and Lazarus. He described the state of two men. He did not imply that there was any virtue in being a beggar and covered with sores, or any virtue in being rich and dressed in purple and fine linen. He simply said that the two men died. The one awakened from what Jesus himself called the sleep of death in Hades, the other in Abraham's bosom. Now it is necessary to understand exactly what these terms mean. At an Eastern feast the guests lay on couches in a circle. The principal guest reclined so that his head came towards the host's bosom. He was said to have has head in the host's bosom, just as to-day we should say that he sat at the host's right hand. Jesus, then, speaking metaphorically to a people accustomed to metaphors, simply said that Lazarus passed through the belief of death, found himself lying in Abraham's bosom, that is to say, his sufferings in this world had probably burned away enough of his sensuality to enable him to realize enough of divine harmony to be described as sitting at the right hand of Abraham.

The importance of the phrase "burned away" must be gathered from the condition of Dives. Dives woke, according to the ordinary translation, in hell in torment, but according to the true translation, in Hades on the touchstone. It is an important fact that the text does not say he woke up in Gehenna, which would have been torment, but in Hades on the touchstone. Now Jesus throughout His ministry used the symbol of the refiner's fire. The refiner took the dress, burned it in the fire, and then applied the mass to the touchstone to test the value of the gold in it.

Jesus, speaking in a metaphor, said that Dives, passing through the sleep of death, was testing, in the life beyond the grave, the value of all those ecstasies of the material senses which he had experienced on earth, and finding out how much truth, how much gold, there was in them. "Sin," Mrs. Eddy writes, on page 196 of Science and Health, "makes its own hell, and goodness its own heaven. Surely this is the exact teaching of the Bible, when the Bible is properly understood.

No one to-day believes in a hell of flames and sulphur and of icebergs, yet nobody can renounce this picture without renouncing a picture of heaven of trees and glades. If the hell brought about by sin is a condition of mind, the heaven brought about by righteousness is a condition of mind. "Hell," Mrs. Eddy writes on page 588 of Science and Health, "is mortal belief; error; lust; remorse; hatred; revenge; sin; sickness; death; suffering and self-destruction; self-imposed agony; effects of sin; that which 'worketh abomination or maketh a lie'"; whilst on page 587, she defines heaven as "Harmony; the reign of Spirit; government by divine Principle; spirituality; bliss; the atmosphere of Soul." This is the teaching of Christian Science, and it is also the teaching of the Bible.—From the Christian Science Monitor.

How Many Women Keep Young

"A woman may be old at 18 and young at 80," says Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates, prominent Chicago clubwoman. "Years don't matter. Didn't Ninon de L'Enclos have a proposal at 90?"

The youth of our women is more lasting than it was a generation ago, because we are becoming acquainted with simple physiological laws. When the first aging marks appear — wrinkles, baggy cheeks, neck and chin—we realise that the cause is a loosening of the skin and softening of the tissue underneath. We know the cause must be removed. Instead of laying on pastes we send to the drug store for an ounce of saxolite and a half pint of witch hazel, mix them and bathe face, neck and hands in the solution. We know this tightens the skin, solidifies the tissue, induces a healthy circulation. We treat causes rather than effects. We use reason—and stay young.

"PORT NELSON" SAFE.

Reports of Disaster to Dredge Are Proven Incorrect.

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—Following a hurried trip to Ottawa, where he held a lengthy consultation with Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, Lieut.-Col. J. B. Miller, manager of the Polson's Iron Works, yesterday made a further denial of the reports that the dredge Port Nelson, which the company built for the Dominion Government for use in the development of Port Nelson's harbor, had broken her back because of being beached on a "hump" at her winter quarters.

"We have had word from Mr. McLachlan, Government engineer in charge of the harbor works, Capt. Freakly, marine superintendent of the Railways Department, and from Capt. H. B. Saunders, American representative of the Salvage Association of London, Eng., who took the dredge to the Hudson Bay," said Col. Miller, "and they all declared that she is intact and safe. In fact, we received a despatch on Wednesday from Capt. Saunders declaring that the boat was in the same condition as when she left here, and that steam was 'up' as a test for days after she had settled down on her bed for the winter."

"The berth was 'hand-picked' in every sense of the term by the engineers, and all boulders, etc., which would be liable to cause damage were removed. In order to take further precautions, Capt. Saunders waited for the October fall tide, which is three feet higher than any ordinary tide. This left her high and dry. Not content with this, and in order to reduce the chances of destruction to a minimum, the captain ballasted her down with tons of weight. She now lies two hundred feet above low-water line."

Tax Collector Working Overtime

In An Effort to Handle the Produce of a 25 Mill Tax Rate

One week from to-day should see the city's bank account fattened by at least one hundred thousand dollars. This is the amount that Mr. W. J. Green, City Tax Collector expects to pass through his fingers before the end of next week. The city's tax bill which is paid in two instalments, represents the sum of $272,456.29. The first payment is due on August the first, and the final payment is due on November the fifteenth. No discount is allowed for prompt payment. Delinquent taxpayers are assessed five per cent. after the dates mentioned. The tax rate is 25 mills.

The second payment which the Tax Collector hopes to garner in before the close of another week amounts to approximately $122,000. About one-sixth of this amount has already been paid in. "Come early and avoid the rush," is the Tax Collector's slogan, to which might be added the injunction—"don't forget to bring your tax bills." The office is open from nine in the morning until five in the afternoon.

NOT ON THE CHARTS.

Canada's New Sandbar Nearly Wrecked Liner Serrana.

MONTREAL, Nov. 8. — Captain Maskell of the Direct liner Serrana, just in from the West Indies, reports having narrowly escaped running foul of Canada's new sand island, thirty miles northeast of Sable Island, during a heavy fog. Sounds were taken, showing only twenty fathoms of water where the charts called for sixty.

Astounded at this discovery, Captain Maskell steered further to the eastward, examined his compasses, worked back on his charts, but was unable to figure out the phenomena. Being sure that he had followed the prescribed course clear of Sable Island.

Continued soundings were taken, showing only thirty-five fathoms where the ocean should have been unfathomable, or nearly so. Considerable relief came to the captain and crew when the coast of Cape Breton Island was sighted. However, it was not until he reached Montreal and read of the discovery of the new island that the mystery of the discrepancies in soundings was cleared up.

MINISTERS YIELDING.

"Votes For Women" May Appear on British Liberal Program.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Decided efforts are being made to induce the British Government to come to an agreement with the suffragists, whereby a measure for the enfranchisement of women can be made a section of the official program of the Liberal party now in power.

Some of the suffragist leaders admit that this movement has obtained considerable headway, and a significant feature of the conferences, which have been held, is the presence at them of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Pethick-Lawrence, who left the fold of the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant organisation, at the request of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, and who took with them their paper, "Votes for Women."

It is known that the Government will consider only a compromise based on an unqualified repudiation of the Women's Social and Political Union, and all of its militant methods.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 8.—E. C. Tribune, a prominent citizen of Athens, together with L. Livingstone and H. Hawkins, narrowly escaped being drowned in Charleston Lake. They were crossing from the main shore to Tribute Island in a heavy sea, with material in two skiffs, lashed together. The boats swamped and with difficulty the men kept afloat until they attracted the attention of persons on shore, who put out to the rescue. All three were more or less exhausted and greatly chilled from a long stay in the water.

Tried Hanging In Vain.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 8.—Ernest Clark, of Ridgeway, a prisoner at the jail, made a second attempt at suicide. Clark tried to hang himself from the bars of his cell, using his shirt. Before life was extinct he was cut down, and he has since quite recovered. He will be taken to Welland to-day for sentence on a charge of holding up the ticket agent at Ridgeway.

Made Police Chief.

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 8.—William Davis, for one year chief of the Lethbridge police force, and previous to that for a period of twenty-five years a member of the Toronto police department, was appointed yesterday to succeed the late Daniel Tidsbury as deputy chief of the Edmonton police department.

Robbed of Twelve Thousand

AUSTIN, Minn., Nov. 8. — The safe of the State Bank at Waltham, about twelve miles north of here, was blown open by robbers early yesterday and more than $12,000 taken. The bandits are supposed to have entered the town in an automobile and escaped by the same means.

To Curb Corporations.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—Major Sam Sharpe, M.P., will introduce next session a bill to compel companies to file with the Government annual returns of their business. He will also seek to regulate the capital of companies to prevent stock watering.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Plasford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her, and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

READING AND ITS PLEASURES

(BY F. M. DELA FOSSE)

BIOGRAPHY—PART THREE

FAMOUS WOMEN.

In dealing with the lives of eminent women one is faced by the unpleasant fact that the material at one's command is far from being as complete as it might be. There have been women famous for intelect, famous in war and in peace ever since the world began, and it is a regrettable thing that there has been no such movement towards embalming their deeds in print as there has been towards the preservation of the recorded deeds of men. Even at the best, such records would have been meagre, and for one all-sufficient reason. Although it is many centuries since she was looked upon as a mere chattel, it is only within the last sixty or seventy years that woman has emerged from a condition bordering on domestic servitude to one of comparative independence. Better educational facilities have provided her with a wider outlook on life and she is now enabled to pass through the gateway to many a field of endeavour which in the not distant past seemed absolutely impossible or attainment. If in certain cases she has seemed to overstep the mark and invade avenues beyond her prerogative to enter it must be remembered that she has arrived fully equipped for the journey and strong in the determination to prove her ability to take part in the forefront of life's battle.

Shakespeare has told us that "woman's fitness comes by fits," and Tennyson that "woman is the lesser man," and now we have Sir Almroth Wright, the famous English physician, asserting, in a book just published, that woman, by reason of mental, moral, and physical inferiority, is unsuited to engage in competition with man in any field of labour. But on the other hand, Confucius, one of the wisest of men, hails woman as "the masterpiece," and Herder, the German philosopher, almost deifies her under the epithet of "the crown of Creation," so it is easily seen that even the greatest minds have their points of divergence on certain subjects. Casting entirely aside their contradictory statements, let us glance along our own shelves, and we shall find within the circumscribed limits of the library ample proof to show that at all times and under all conditions women have evinced their fitness to cope with the interminable problems of life and have been instrumental in raising humanity to higher grades of usefulness and morality. In the short space of time since her emancipation, she has shown in arts, letters, sociological questions, and even in the wider spheres of endeavour engendered by missionary enterprise and travel an aptitude in thought and action far transcending that of many a man in possession of the right to vote.

It is impossible to give more than a brief sketch of a few of the matters in which women have interested themselves and rendered their names illustrious. Enough can, however, be adduced to show that in many ways outside of domestic life woman has proved herself a worthy helpmeet of man.

About one hundred and fifty years ago Hannah More and her sisters, hampered by public prejudice and working under the greatest difficulties, started schools fo the instruction of the daughters of laborers in the vicinity of Bristol. Their efforts for the higher education of the members of their own sex found full fruition in later days though the determined agitation of such men as Frederic Maurice and Charles Kingsley. Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, about the same period, during her stay in Turkey, learned of the practice of inoculation as a preventive of smallpox. In order to test its efficacy she caused her son to be inoculated and on her return to England strove earnestly for the introduction of the practice by English physicians. She may very rightly therefore be hailed as the person who led Jenner to develop the idea and produce the treatment now known as vaccination.

The Sunday School movement started by Robert Raikes of Gloucester, owes its great success to the unbounded enthusiasm with which it has been carried on by the women of England ever since its inception, and high in the roll of honour as one of its earliest and most devoted supporters must be placed the name of Sarah Trimmer of Brentford, known in her day as the most popular writer of books for children. Amelia Opeveking, a German, was the founder of Protestant sisterhoods; Florence Nightingale and Mary A. Livermore, the forerunners of a vast army of noble women to whose leader ministrations in countless sick-rooms, on corpse-strewn battle-fields and in many a hospital mankind is indebted for the alleviation of incalculable suffering. Frances Wilard, in the cause of temperance, worked wonders, and to her is due the formation of the World's C. T. U., which to-day has branches in fifty countries with a membership of over half a million. We find women toiling in the far-off mission fields, braving the most loathsome and dreadful of diseases in leper-haunted Molokai or facing the dangers of desert and forest as lightheartedly and recklessly as the most courageous of men. We see Rosa Bonheur, in art, triumphing over all competitors and causing Landseer himself to dolefully exclaim: "It's pretty hard to be beaten by a woman;" and lastly we see Madame Curie, the discoverer of radium, honoured as one of the foremost scientists of the century. It is impossible to go further into details of what women have accomplished and are still acomplishing in these days of startling enlightenment. For further information the reader may be referred to the library shelves where he will meet a diverse and wonderful company of great philosophers, great philanthropists, great teachers, actresses, singers, political schemers, beauties, warriors, and travellers by flood and field. Their lives are of enthralling interest and many of them of a character to supply a wholesome lesson for all.

Big Institutions Buy Carefully

After the most exhaustive tests of all kinds of floor polishes many of the largest institutions in Canada have selected Ronuk Floor Polish for their floors.

Because—

1. It is sanitary. Ronuk Floor Polish is an effective germicide, and sinks into the pores of the wood in a way that seals up all germ harbours and forms a beautiful polished surface, so smooth that dust can find no lodgment on it.

2. Ronuk Floor Polish is economical—a matter of importance to big institutions. It costs less to cover a given area—and, because its surface is hard and durable, costs less to maintain.

WHY THE PRICE OF MILK WAS NOT RAISED

Reasons Given by Member of Local Milkmen's Association for the Maintenance of 7c. a Quart as Price for Milk

BUT IT WILL GO HIGHER

That the price of milk will be raised to 11 or 12 cents within the next five years, was the opinion of one of the members of the Peterborough Milkmen's Association, expressed to the Examiner last night. He gave as his reason that the expansion and increasing population of the City was coming to demand that the milk be handled on a larger scale. Since he had entered the milk business, the price had been raised from 4c. to 7c. a quart. This was on account of the higher price of feed and still more due to the increased amount of money invested. The consumers and laws had come to demand more expensive sanitary methods of handling the milk—that it be aerated and delivered in bottles—all of which, of course, has to be added to the price of the milk.

At the safe time, he thought it was generally felt among the milkmen, that no raise in the price of the commodity was needed at the present time. The recent move to boost the price to 8c. a quart was not suggested nor favoured by those milk men who owned their own cows, and sold their own milk. It was the "middlemen"—the milk vendor who buys his milk from the farmer at 3 1-2c. or 4c. a quart, and retails it at 7 cents a quart, that was agitating for the raise in price. There was no particular existing condition that demanded a raise, but there has been a feeling among the middlemen for some time that the price ought to be boosted to 8c. a quart, and once that was accomplished it would remain unchanged, and never be dropped a fraction of a cent, even in the seasons of over supply.

Of the 25 milk men who deliver to Peterborough people, half of them were 'middlemen," but the move to make 8c. a quart the price of milk, had been blocked by those who had their own milk supply. The suggested raise would not, he thought, have benefitted those who desired it, for as soon as the higher price was established, the farmers supplying the milk would raise the wholesale price.

In defending his theory that the price would be raised 4c. or 5c. in the next few years, he remarked concerning one local concern that had bought out five or six local milkmen and was now handling three or four times the quantity of milk that the average milkman sells. The milk is pasteurized, and delivered in germproof bottles—and for this the consumer pays a cent per quart more. This was an example of the inevitable trend of the milk trade to become consolidated, as the City grows larger. The scientific methods, better service and the unavoidable increase in the trade movement to monopolize the milk business, combined with the higher price of feed and eqipment—is sure to result in having the milk figures raised, and add to the high cost of living.

STEAD GAMBLE IS ON TRIAL

Peterborough Witnesses Testify Against Ironworkers' Financial Agent.

WHITBY, Nov. 7.—Doing wilful damage to a rope is the technical charge on which S. M. Gamble, Toronto, financial agent of the Ironworkers' Union, went on trial here. Behind this simple accusation, however, is the broad charge that Gamble by an act of terrorism songht to intimidate men who were taking the position of strikers in the C.P.R. bridge construction gang near here last June.

While work was in progress on a C.P.R. bridge at Cherrywood, under the direction of the Hamilton Bridge Company, Claude E. Riley, a foreman, discovered that one of the ropes had been saturated with sulphuric acid, which had eaten into the material to such an extent that the weight of the works would have instantly caused it to break.

Joseph Deshayes, in charge of part of the work, had been appointed by Gamble. "He wanted me to quit the job and go out on strike with the other union men, but I refused. He said he would meet me on some other job," declared witness.

Deshayes is at present employed as foreman in connection with the construction of a new C.P.R. bridge at Peterborough.

A Reduction.

Charles L. Sinnixon, a London advertising expert, was praising in New York the change that has come over the advertisement.

"In advertising as in other things," he said, "it has been found that honesty pays, and to-day, throughout the world, the successful advertiser is modest and conservative in his statements.

"Advertising is no longer mistrusted. Things are no longer as they were in Phatt's day.

"'You know Phatt, our 400-pound bookkeeper?' said one man in the street to another.

"'Yes, what of him?'

"'Well, he saw an ad. in the paper, 'Fat folks reduced; five dollars,' and answered it.'

"'Did he get any reply?'

"'Oh, yes; it was just as advertised.'

"'That's good. How much was he reduced?'

"'Why, just as the advertisement said—five dollars.'"

SEASONABLE DONT'S FOR SHEEPMEN

Don't fail to dip your flock before the weather gets too cold; it certainly doesn't pay to allow ticks and lice to suck the very life of the sheep away when it can be prevented for a trifle.

Don't be satisfied with anything but a good pure bred sire to head your flock. The extra expense is very little in comparison with what the returns should be.

Don't sell your present lamb crop until you have considered well the question of finishing them. I believe the man who feeds his lamb crop judiciously until midwinter or perhaps later will reap excellent returns for food and labor.

Don't keep any toothless ewes over as breeders, but cull them out and select some of your best ewe lambs to take their places.

Don't let the flock have free access to either straw or hay stacks. It fills the fleece with chaff and renders it unmarketable.

Court of Revision.

The Court of Revision met on Friday afternoon and disposed of a number of assessment appeals, including the following:

Mr. Wm. Rudkins, 185 King Street, claimed to be wrongly assessed for income. The application was allowed and assessment for income struck off.

J. J. Clancy said that he should be assessed for 686 Concession Street, instead of J. Trusley. The appeal was allowed. The appellant will be assessed as a Separate school supporter.

T. H. Girven claimed to be wrongly rated for schools. The change was made as requested.

Overcharged on land and wrongly rated for schools, was the matter compained of by the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Company. The change was made as requested. The company to be assessed as Public school supporters.

The assessment was reduced on the Overend estate and the property of B. F. Ackerman and Son.

PETERBORO' LADY CONTESTS WILL

Of the Late Father Brophy—Mr. D. O'Connell Appears for Applicant

SISTER OF DECEASED

KINGSTON, Nov. 8.—Judge Price has granted an application to preserve the property of the late Father Brophy while the question in dispute is being settled. The validity of the will is being attacked by Mrs. Catherine Mahoney, of Ottawa, formerly of Peterborough, a sister of the deceased. D. O'Connell, of Peterborough, made the application, appearing for Mrs. Mahoney, and E. T. Malone, K.C., of Toronto, appeared for the trustees, the General Trust Company, of Toronto. The estate is valued at $177,000, and out of this the sister has been willed but a few thousand dollars. She attacks the will on the ground that when her brother drew up the will he was not of sound mind.

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist.

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is acid in the stomach, usually due to, or aggravated by, food fermentation. Acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.—F. J. G.

Can You Tell If a Fabric is really Wool?

The simplest test is to boil a sample in a strong solution of the caustic soda one obtains from a drug store.

The strong alkali dissolves the wool and if there is any cotton, it is left untouched.

So that if one were to boil a pair of our Scotch Blankets in this solution, not a shred would remain, because they are of all wool throughout.

Their size is 66 by 80 inches, a pair weighs 7 pounds, and they are finished singly with a blue border.

The all-wool texture is really beautiful, and of course, long wearing and warm. The price is $5.75 a pair.

Peterborough Owes The Lift Locks Thousands Of Dollars For Wide-spread Publicity

The Christmas Number of the Railroad and Current Mechanics' Magazine, Shows Two Views of It With Two Pages of Matter.

CITY'S DEBT PILING UP

As an advertising and publicity medium for Peterborough, the Lift Lock has performed a service that deserves the gratitude and admiration of every public-minded citizen.

Engineering magazines have dealt with the technical side of its operations, newspapers all the country have referred to it at some time or other and how many visitors have on returning to their homes told the local reporters that they enjoyed the unique experience of a trip over the celebrated Lift Lock.

The silent old grey pile over on the sheltered side on Armour's Hill, has put Peterborough on magazine and newspaer pages in which money could not purchase advertising space for the City.

The latest evidence of this valuable service is found in the Christmas number of the Railroad and Current Mechanics' Magazine, published by the Frank A. Munsey Company, Two pages are devoted to the Lift Lock, of which two fine double column reproductions are used, one being a side and the other a front view of the structure.

There is only one hydraulic lift-lock on any canal in North America, and that is also the largest in the world. It is on the Trent Canal, at Peterborough, Canada. This lift-lock was built to overcome the fall in the waters of the river Otonabee between Nassau, about four miles north of Peterborough, and Little Lake, opposite the town.

The difference in elevation between the two points in seventy-seven feet, there being that much fall in the river in the distance indicated. Above Nassau and up to Lakefield, between which points the fall in the river is quite sharp, the river is made over into several stretches of still water with locks of the ordinary type.

Boat Floats in Chamber.

Between Nasasu and Little Lake sixty-five feet is taken care of by the lift-lock, and the remaining twelve feet is overcome by the ordinary type of lock placed at the debouchement of the canal into the lake.

The movement of the hydraulic lift-lock is based on a principle long known and well established in the sciences of hydraulics and hydrostatics; hydraulics relating to water in motion, hydrostatics to water at rest.

If one takes a four-inch cube of iron and drops it into a pail filled with water, the cube of iron will sink and displace exactly as much water as the equivalent of the bulk of the iron.

If the iron were hammered or spun into some form of vessel or dish that would float, then the piece of iron in its new form would displace water exactly equivalent to its weight. So that anything that sinks displaces its bulk of water any those that float displaces its weight of water. This is the principle of displacement in marine terms.

The application of this principle in the lift-lock is realized in the filling of the chambers with water or with a boat and water. Fill one chamber with water to the depth of eight feet, in the other chamber place a barge and water to the same depth, and the load in both chambers will be exactly the same. The lockages may be effected, therefore, with one barge or boat in a chamber, or with several barges or boats in each chamber, or with the chambers containing water only. Calculation made of the cubical area of a chamber shows that the load of water is about thirteen hundred tons.

A huge ram or piston raises this enormous load.

The special function of the Peterborough lock are: first, to overcome the elevation; second, the time in which this duty is to be performed; third, the capacity for a given number of lockages or maximum quantity of tons handled, avoiding a congested traffic.

The operation of the lock requires three men—a lockmaster and two assistants or gatemen; the services of the latter are required, one at the upper and one at the lower gate, to open and close them, to inflate or deflate the seal tubes between the ends of the chambers and the reaches, and also to operate the capstans. It is also necessary for the gatemen to take charge of vessels entering the locks when within two hundred feet of either side.

The lockmaster has the principal levers before him, and by means of an interlocking system regulates all the working of the locks.

Three Minutes to Raise Boat.

This interlocking system is so arranged that the lockmaster must set his levers in the proper order. With these set, neither he nor his gatemen can make a mistake by using their levers at the wrong time.

The actual time required to raise a chamber through the whole elevation is about three minutes.

NEEDS ANOTHER SUPERINTENDENT

Next General Conference of Methodist Church May Appoint New One

That the Methodist Church in Canada needs another general superintendent, and that a third one will be appointed at the next quadrennial session of the General Conference, is stated by followers of John Wesley, who apparently speak with some show of authority. Provision for more than one superintendent was made in the constitution when the various Methodist bodies in Canada united thirty years ago.

Claiming that the growth of the West made it necessary, the last general conference appointed Rev. Dr. Chown superintendent for the western portion of Canada, while Rev. Dr. Carman continued superintendent for the East. Both have equal powers, though the name of Dr. Carman is given precedence on Church documents on the ground of seniority.

With the western superintendent residing in Vancouver, and with Rev. Dr. Carman eleven years past the allotted span of life it is now thought by some of the Methodists that another general superintendent is needed and the name of Rev. S. P. Rose, D.D., formerly pastor of the Sherbourne Street Methodist Church, Toronto, and now of Montreal, is mentioned for the position.

Rev. Dr. Rose is looked upon as an advanced theologian, and has the judicial mind of his brother, the late Justice Rose.

ILLS OF CHILDHOOD

Every mother should be able to recognize the symptoms of the little ailments that attack her children. She should also be in a position to treat them promptly. To do this she should keep a supply of Baby's Own Tablets in the house at all times. The Tablets never fail to be of help to little ones. Mothers who are anxious for the welfare of her little ones will receive free for the asking a valuable little book on the care of infants and young children. Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. G. L. NO GERMAN PERIL SAYS DR. HORNING

In An Admirable Address He Points Out the Impossibility of England and Germany Locking Horns.

HISTORY OF THE COUNTRIES

"We are having peril after peril—emergency after emergency swimming into our ken and then out over the distant horizon. The war between Germany and England will never take place," said Dr. Horning, Professor of Modern Languages in Victoria University in the course of an admirable address on "England and Germany, Their Present Attitude to Each Other," before a large audience in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute last night.

During his lecture Dr. Horning convinced the audience of the value of hsi first hand information, and of the soundness of the reasons he advanced to show that the war between England and Germany will never eventuate.

To open the programme of the evening, the choir of the George Street Methodist Church rendered the Recessional, in excellent style, in which Mr. James Browne and Mrs. J. H. Renwick took solos. Mr. J. H. Renwick accompanied them on the piano. An excellent solo was also rendered by Mr. John Marsh.

After the address a note of thanks was tendered the speaker of the evening, on the motion of His Honour Judge Huycke and Mr. S. R. Armstrong.

In opening his address Dr. Horning referred to the great amount of space devoted to the question of the relationship between England and Germany. A great deal of what the papers said was true, and a great deal was not true. The German papers published exactly the same sort of articles on the subject as the English newspapers. The English papers were saying that Germany was just waiting for an opportunity to pounce upon her.

The lecturer did not intend to bring out the bad points of the two nations in his address, but rather their good qualities. The adjectives continental peoples used to describe the English were "greedy," "avaricious," "untrustworthy," and they had some reason for that.

That was true of the 18 and 19th centuries. Both Germany and England had good qualities and they should be working for one certain definite object. The Empire of England had been a matter of stages of growth. Up to Queen Elizabeth's time the Englishmen had been concerned with home affairs and were consequently much in advance of the other nations. From the battle of Crecy until the year 1904, England's chief enemy was France whom she loves so well at the present moment. But she fought side by side with Germany—Protestant Germany—during that time and it was to be remembered that except for the timely arrival of Blucher and his German forces at the battle of Waterloo, Wellington might have been defeated instead of coming off victorious.

There was therefore an historical reason for the friendship of Germany and England, but none for the friendship now existing with France. The problem of the British Empire to-day was the development of the lands over which she held sway, and the solution was not to be found in a few years.

The common people of Germany and Russia were building along the constitutional lines of England. The hate of the upper classes in these nations made them hope for the constitutional freedom of England. In 1870 England was without a rival on the sea. Her flag floated on every sea—her merchants were in every port. It was then she realized that she had been lagging behind in educational matters, and the merchants provided funds from their own pockets to found new colleges of learning for the common man.

Turning to the history of Germany, the lecturer said that part of the Empire had been the battle ground of the centuries. The religious wars carried off seventy per cent. of the men and ninety per cent of the stock. The German people made a fine beginning but they had been trampled under foot again and again. They were showing their real greatness to-day.

Dr. Horning described the progress of Prussia from the time of Frederick the Great until Germany became a first-rate Power, afterwards defeating the French. When Wellington lead his forces against Napoleon the Germans were his first and best aid.

To the infinite credit of Germany it could be said that she had sheathed the sword after the close of her war with France in 1871.

"I believe there is no greater friend of the peace of Europe to-day than the Emperor of Germany," said Dr. Horning.

Germany was an industrial nation. England's excuse for supporting a huge navy was that it was necessary to protect her trade—ensure the exports of her manufactures and the imports of her food stuffs. If that excuse was valid for England it was valid for Germany.

Germany was a nation of 66 million people and was growing at the rate of a million a year. Soon there would be a necessity for emigration. Germany was born a hundred years too late to acquire colonies, and consequently had no dominions to which to send their people. The lecturer suggested that the rich Congo territory district, now under the rule of Belgium, or part of misgoverned Brazil or of Portugal's possessions in Africa be turned over to Germany for colonization.

"In the meantime," said Dr. Horning. "We are having peril after peril—emergency after emergency swimming into our ken and then out over the distant horizon. The war between Germany and England will never take place."

Two great Protestant nations—related in language and in kin would not come to blows. Within the next few years he looked for such an advance in the ethics of finance that the real mercantile world would refuse to lend money for purposes of war—when those asked to provide the funds would say, "No. We need all the money we can get together for our legitimate business."

The final reason for his conclusion that Germany and England would never lock horns in war was that the common man was waking up, and that the highest authorities in church and state were at present fostering a movement in all the British Empire and Germany, for the gaining of a condition of friendliness between the two nations, and universal peace. The speaker hoped to see the parliament of the world, the federation of man.

The enormous, colossal tax for the upkeep of the nations' armament was becoming too great to be borne.

"Trip Through Labrador"

The Boy's Department of the Young Men's Christian Association was crowded to the doors last evening and Rev. Dr. Marsh received an enthusiastic welcome from the boys who listened to his interesting and instructive lecture on his trip to the Labrador Coast. During the entire lecture, which lasted for one hour, the boys listened attentively to what Dr Marsh had to say, regarding the Eskimo's life and hardships which he endures. One of the important features of the lecture was a description of the work of Rev. Dr. Grenfell and his Hospital Ship.

Every Friday night a special programme is arranged for the Boys' Department, and thus far four illustrated lectures have been delivered.

Religious Work Department.

The work under this department of the Association is progressing rapidly and the largest Bible class of the season was conducted this morning by Mr. G. L. Galley, the Boys' Secretary. The boys are studying the Life of Christ. The enrollment this morning was 35.

Big Programme For The Laymen's Banquet To Be Held Next Week

At a meeting of the general committee, representing the different Protestant churches of Peterborough, which is in charge of the Laymen's Missionary Campaign, now under way in Peterborough, held last evening in the Y.M.C.A., reports were received concerning the arrangements for the big conference and banquet to be held next Thursday in the city. Owing to the fact that there appears to be some misapprehension in the minds of some of the public it was felt that it should be made clear that the banquet is not being held with any idea of making money or of simply having a good time. The purpose underlying it is much more serious and important as will be made clear on that occasion. The tickets will merely cover the cost of the caterer's expense and the holding of the banquet will enable people to go direct to the hall from their work.

Reports from outside points indicated that there will probably be an attendance of from 150 to 200 delegates from outside the city. Tentative reports received from city churches were to the effect that already between 600 and 700 tickets have been disposed of. Mark Street Church has placed 55 among its men, and has asked for 25 more tickets. George Street has disposed of 80, St. Andrew's 75, St. John's 75, and the other churches in proportion. St. Paul's Church has asked 111 men in its congregation to take part in the canvass to be held the first week in December and expects most of these to attend the banquet on Thursday.

It is evident that the banquet is going to be the most important event of the kind ever held in Peterborough, and one of the most important ever held in the Province. The speakers for the banquet will be Hon. Justice Hodgins, Judge of the Court of Appeals, Toronto; Rev. J. Y. Ferguson, of Formosa, and Rev. J. H. Arnup, Assistant Secretary of Foreign Missions for the Methodist Church, Toronto.

Morning and afternoon conferences on Thursday will be held in the Murray Street Baptist Church for which programmes are now being distributed. At the morning session the principal speakers will be Mr. J. Cuthbertson, Superintendent Japan Branch International Police Association, who will speak on "The Reason for the Appeal," and Rev. Walter Daniel, Toronto, who will discuss "The Development of a Missionary Atmosphere."

The speakers at the afternoon session will be J. H. Arnup, H. C. Priest, General Secretary for Canada of the Missionary Educational Movement; Dr. J. Y. Ferguson, Robt. Laird, Secretary Finance Board of the Presbyterian Church; Rev. Walter Daniel and D. M. Rose, Secretary of the Anglican Church Laymen's Missionary Movement.

In every city there are a certain number of people who have never studied the wonderful results that have been accomplished through missionary work and who are utterly unacquainted with the great possibilities of the movement at the present moment, and who therefore are prone to criticise what they do not understand. These criticisms are not resented because they are understood. It is hoped, however, that all who really desire information will attend the meetings and find out for themselves the reasons which are leading to the holding of these great conferences and their world wide significance.

NATURE AND HISTORY MADE THEM FRIENDS

At a dinner given in his honour in London by United States Ambassador Page, Hon James Bryce, formerly British Ambassador at Washington, thus referred to Anglo-American relations:

"My other message is to assure yu that the friendship you entertain for the people of the United States is reciprocated by them far more universally and far more heartily than ever before. There is a friendship of Governments and a friendship of nations. The former may shift with the shifting of material interests or be affected by the relations of each power with other powers. But the latter rests on solid and permanent foundations. With our two peoples it is based on a community of speech, of literature, of institutions, of beliefs, of traditions from the past, of ideals for the future. In all these things the British and American peoples are closer than any two other peoples can be. Nature and history have meant them to be friends.

'Next year we are planning to celebrate the completion of a century of unbroken peace between Britain and the United States. For our two peoples the celebration has a special significance. But it is much to be desired that other peoples should be associated with it, and that both by our example and by our world-wide influence we may together try to reduce the apprehensions that trouble the rest of other nations, and endeavour to draw more and more of them into a general league of peace."

Mr Bryce in the course of his speech expressed the belief that the Panama question would be solved in a manner satisfactory to both countries. That belief, he said, was based on his conviction of the high rectitude and elevated sense of honour and international justice possessed by President Wilson.

CANADIAN LEAGUE IS A FACTOR

BRANTFORD, Nov. 7.—A radical change in the make up of the Canadian League is foreshadowed, it would seem, by the offer made to President T. J. Nelson of the Brantford Club of $3,500 for the local franchise, the intention being to move it away from this City. Jimmy Murphy, the Toronto lacrosse manager, is behind the deal, but appearances would indicate that there is an organization behind Murphy's move. President Nelson is in Toronto to-day discussing the proposition.

There is nothing definitely settled and the franchise may remain here, but wide changes are forcasted. In the first place, President Nelson will not sell for the amount offered and in the second place he will retain a half-share in the club if any deal is put through.

The Federal League is bucking the majors, having this year decided to place teams in many major league cities, while the plans for next year are very wide. Those behind the Federal League have expressed the intention of further invading the cities of the International League and placing teams therein. It is to meet this move, it is thought, that the offers are made by International League inerests for four or five franchises in the Canadian League, these being Brantford, Peterborough, St. Thomas, Guelph and Berlin. The intention seems to be to place teams in Buffalo, Rochester, Erie and Youngstown, Ohio, or possibly with the latter two changed to other International League cities. The Class A and the Class B, as the teams would then be, would join in fighting the entrance of the Federal League teams into this territory. Only three present cities in the Canadian League would remain in, those being Hamilton, Ottawa and London, with Toronto as the fourth city.

"The price of the Brantford franchise in the Canadian League is $5,000," stated President T. J. Nelson of the local club this morning, when asked what price would be taken. As to whether there would be any deal made or not he could not say, though he hopes to know by to-morrow. He was of the impression, however, that the move is to fight the Federal League in various cities, and for that reason thought the deal was a very likely one. At the same time there will be no sale for less than the amount stated, and even then the President will insist on retaining a half interest in the franchise.

LOCAL MAN IN LUCRATIVE ENTERPRISE

Expressing great satisfaction over his belief that he is now practically a millionaire, Mr. William Gray, of London, was to-day telling Toronto friends much about his marvellous quicksilver mine, which he claims to be one of the most wonderful in the world. Mr. is here on his way home from California, and left for London this evening.

Has $2,400,000 Worth.

Mr. Gray says that, whereas he expected the ore to assay at three-eighths of one per cent., Hays & Co., the assayers, show it to contain 2.72 per cent. of quicksilver, or 54.9 pounds to the ton. The mine is in King's County, California, and on the Hays' report Mr. Gray considers that they have in sight no less than $2,400,000 worth of quicksilver.

Development was delayed for some time by legal difficulties, but all these have been settled. Mr. Gray expects to get on with serious work.

Th Lucky Man.

Associated with him in the enterprise are Mr. Forbes of Heapeler, Mr. Rathburn, of Deseronto; Mr. Shirley, of Galt; Mr. McGregor of Galt; Mr. Palmer of Galt; Mr. McClary of London; Mr. Darch, of London; Mr. T. E. Bradburn of Peterborough; Mr. Love of Toronto; Mr. Weir of Dresden, and Mr. Gey, of London, who is president of the company.

Attempts have been made to persuade the Company to sell out, but the leading spirits say they are convinced that they can do better for themselves by working the mine.

$500,000 CONTRACT FOR THE C. G. E. CO.

The Canadian General Electric Company has secured a big contract from the Canadian Northern Railway for the complete equipment for the electrification of the C.N.R. tunnel under Mount Royal, Montreal. Mr. Frederick Nicholls of Toronto, stated to an Examiner reported to-day, that the contract, which had been made about ten days ago, amounted to over half a million dollars. The material is for locomotives, sub-stations, lighting, and all the other electrical work connected with the immense project. The city and tunnel end of the C.N.R. will eliminate steam locomotives, and Montreal will be entered by electric power.

FUNERAL OF WM. ERRINGTON

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labour Council was held on Wednesday evening last, the President in the chair, and a good representation of members present. Routine business was transacted and plans discussed to make the meetings interesting during the winter months. A letter was read from Secretary Hammacott, who is on the sick list, tendering his resignation, but the Council would not accept this at present, hoping that the secretary will soon be all right again.

As a result of the receipt of a letter from J. H. Burnham, M.P., the President appointed a committee, to be strengthened by a representative from each of the locals, to discuss topics of importance, so as to present an interesting business agenda at a meeting to whic will be invited the local Dominion House representative.

Names to be submitted for Aldermanic and Mayoralty honours next January were mentioned, but action was deferred to the next meeting.

THE SCOTTISH OFFICIAL.

A returned holiday-maker in the Old Land from England has been duly impressed by the dourness and pawkiness of the Scottish railway "offeecial." A tourist on the pier at Oban, in the West Highlands, saw a porter carrying his suitcase and kitbag. He shouted to the man: "Hie, porter, that is my baggage."

"I dinna ken if it's yer baggage or no yer baggage," replied the porter, "but it's gaun on the boat ony wey."

Speaking generally, the Scottish temperament as modified by railway work, seems to resent vehemently anything like cross-questioning or doubt. On a night journey from the Highlands to Manchester, a sleepy traveller wakened up to show his ticket, asked whether he had to change at Wigan or Carlisle. "Wuggan," was the answer. "Are you sure?" said the traveller, thoughtlessly. This produced an extraordinary effect on the porter. His expression became ferocious, and in tones of concentrated fury he replied, "Wad I tell ye a lee!"

NEAR TRAGEDY IN LINDSAY

LINDSAY, Nov. 7.—The suffocating cries of little Jack McFadden, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. George McFadden, Lindsay street north, undoubtedly saved the members of the family from death through aphyxiation on Thursday morning.

The family retired early on Wednesday evening with the coal stove prepared for the night, but in some manner a lower compartment in the stove opened sufficiently to allow gas to escape.

Early Thursday morning little Jack McFadden commenced to cry, and his efforts aroused others in the family. They attempted to rise, but were too weak to do so. There was a strong smell of gas in the house, which was rapidly smothering the inmates. Several of the family finally managed to rouse themselves sufficiently to get downstairs, when a door was thrown open. Dr. McAlpine was speedily summoned, and found the members of the family still under the effects of theg as. Several of them were seized with violent spells of vomiting. Mrs. McFadden's condition being the most serious. She was very ill all day Friday, but to-day her condition has been greatly improved.

The physician states that their escape from asphyxiation was a very narrow one.

FOUND WANDERING IN STREET

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—Footsore and weary, nearly dead from starvation, but with Spanish money in his possession equalling $192, Jose Theodoro Zaning, was found early this morning by the police of No. 6 station, wandering in the city streets. He was taken to the Municipal Assistance Bureau, where, with the aid of an interpreter, he told a pitiful story of his wanderings—a stranger who could not speak English, and who was unaccustomed to the ways of the country, he found himself in.

He said that he left Lugs, Spain, for Liverpool on his way to Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, and dropped off at Montreal instead of taking the boat to South America. He had on his 1,100 pesos, or $192, which he could not change, as he was afraid to show his money to anyone.

HUSBAND CAN NOT BE BLAMED

LACROSSE, WIS., Nov. 6.—"Some of the homes I have seen almost justify the husband in running away from them," declared Mrs. Catharine L. Van Wycke of Milwaukee, president of the State Conference on Charities and Corrections, in concluding to-day her annual report before the convention.

"The wife who does not know her job," she said, "must take her share of the blame for the many cases of wife desertion."

To teach woman her work, she advocated compulsory domestic courses in the public schools.

Mrs. Van Wyck argued strongly for a federal fugitive husband law similar in operation to the Mann White Slave Law. She would have the National Government pursue the runaway husband and send him to the Federal Penitentiary. As an accompanying remedy she urged legislation wiping out if possible the practice of tramps riding on trains and she said that in practically every tramp was to be found a runaway husband.

SIMPLE RULES.

The season is changing.

Do you realize it? Are you prepared for it?

An oldtime physician once said, "Begin the winter right, before it starts, and you'll be pretty apt to keep right till summer comes again." There is more in that than may at first appear.

Beginning right means preparing in time!

Don't wait till you have caught a first cold before you put on your warmer underwear!

Don't wait till your feet have been soaked in the first rain, with the probable cold and rheumatic twinges afterward, before you buy and put on your strong winter shoes!

Don't leave the small but necessary repairs to the basement furnace until after the first cold snap!

Dont forget that exercising briskly in cold or even damp air is usually harmless, but that sitting in a cold or damp house in wet clothes, is very likely to be followed by any one of a number of winter ills.

Keep the house well ventilated even in the stormiest weather, always remembering that the sleeping apartment should be the airiest in the house.

Keep as great a variety of food on the table as you can all winter long, not forgetting that nutritious food makes heat.

If a contagious disease is making headway in your neighbourhood, keep yourself and the children out of overheated, stuffy places where large numbers of people congregate.

In short, begin the winter with the doctrine of prevention, and the question of cure will very largely take care of itself.

Tough Luck.

Two hard citizens were standing in a secluded spot talking confidentially. One of them suddenly sneaked away while the other stood on guard. Soon the first one was seen to emerge from a window and join his pal.

"Did youse git anyt'ing?" whispered the one in waiting.

"Naw, de guy what lives in dere is a lawyer," growled the other.

"Dat's hard luck," said his pal, "Did youse lose anything?"

HIS "WIVES" JOIN FORCES

OTTAWA, Nov. 7—When the alarm clock rang in their room at the Minto Hotel this morning, the two "wives" of Albert Lovett Turner, held at Montreal on a bigamy charge quickly arose and dressed for their meeting with their erstwhile husband shortly after noon to-day. Turner is due to arrive this afternoon from Montreal and both were determined to met him at the station, where he will get a fresh idea of their feelings toward him now.

Occupying the same room and sleeping in the same bed, Emma Moore of England, and Anna Lefebyre of Montreal, who, claiming Turner as husband, have joined together in friendship and mutual aid, to send the man, whom they allege has wronged them both, to jail, for the crime of bigamy. The two wives, with their marriage certificates to back up their claims, will appear to condemn him.

First Wife's Story.

A reporter was permitted to talk to the two wives at the Minto Hotel, where they are stopping. The first Mrs. Turner, who was Miss Emma Moore, is fifty-one years of age. She produced a regular-appearing marriage certificate, which showed that she was married to Albert Lovett Turner in England in 1902.

"My husband came to Canada in 1904," said the first Mrs. Turner, "and I followed three years later, only to find that he was not waiting for me. I never saw him after until about three weeks ago, when I learned that he was married to my little friend here," pointing to the second and much younger Mrs. Turner, "I told her that she was wedded to my husband. We investigated and the result you will know.

Will Aid the Fight.

Miss Anna Lefebyre, the second wife, is a strong contrast to the other. She is petite and seemingly afraid at what had happened.

"I thought he loved me," she said, "and we were married secretly in Ottawa, three years ago this summer. For a while I was very happy, and he was very kind to me, but last year he became neglectful. I thank Heaven for sending me this woman, who was so good to tell me about that man. I want to see him punished for the wrong that he has done us both."

Both women have been stopping at the Minto for the past three days, and notwithstanding a great difference in temperament have apparently grown very fond of each other. Turner will come up in police court to-morrow.

TALE OF THE SEA

PORTLAND, MAINE, Nov. 7.— The death of the cook, and the probable loss of their captain, Vincent Nelson, and three of their mates, form part of a tale of the sea brought here last night by the survivors of the crew of the Gloucester fisherman Annie M. Parker. The fact that their abandonment of the stranded schooner near Nantucket and the loss of life was unnecessary was not known to the crew until word reached them that the schooner was in port at New Bedford, practically undamaged.

The British steamer Astrakhan, bound from New York for France, sighted the Parker on Monday, drifting along with all sails set. Boarding the schooner, the officers of the steamer learned that she had evidently been abandoned in haste.

The schooner was not leaking and appeared to be in perfect condition, except for the loss of one jib that was carried away possibly after the vessel was abandoned. Salt fish, valued at about $8,000, filled the hold.

SWIMS SEVEN MILES

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—With his feet and hands manacled, a nineteen-year-old youth named Henry Elionsky, swam from the Battery to Bay Ridge the other afternoon, pulling a boat in which were his brother Morris and six other men. The boat weighed 350 pounds and, with the occupants, Elionsky dragged behind him a total weight of nearly 1,300 pounds. The feat was one of great difficulty and the water was 45 degrees above zero, making the performance still more uninviting.

Elionsky started from the Battery at 12.55 and succeeded in landing at Bay Ridge at 4 o'clock. The distance was considerably over seven miles.

The Ever-Present Gillette

Wherever you see men buying razors, in drug, jewelry or hardware stores—wherever you see men shaving, in club or Pullman or home—there you will inevitably find the Gillette Safety Razor purchased and used.

It has won the approval, almost the affection, of busy men whose time it saves—of thrifty men whose cash it saves—of particular men who value a clean, smooth face—of average men who never could shave comfortably with any other razor.

That's why over six million men use the Gillette, and why you can buy Gillette Safety Razors and Blades at practically every good Hardware, Jewelry and Drug Store in this town.

Standard Gillette Sets cost $5.00—Pocket Editions $5.00 to $6.00—Combination Sets $6.50 up. 6 double-edged blades, 50c.—12 Blades (24 shaving edges), in nickel-plated box, $1.00.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Burnley Club Has Been On A Recruiting Errand Two Players Have Departed

Full Results Are Not Known Yet---Chelsea Have Signed a Young Forward--Liverpool Have Two First-class Goal-keepers--See Late Issue of the Examiner for To-day's British Football Results.

Nottingham Forest seem to have secured a forward who will do them some good in J. Bell of Plymouth Argyle. Bell, who is a native of Nottingham, joined Plymouth Argyle in May, 1912, from Reading, for whom he had played the previous three months as an amateur whilst completing two years service in the Royal Engineers. He got a position in the Argle team just prior to the Cupties, playing against Preston North End and Manchester United, and he scored in every remaining Southern League game to the end of the season.

Lancashire Transfers.

The air at Burnley has been filled with transfers and rumours of transfers. It has leaked out that the officials of the club had been in Scotland on a recruiting errand, but whether they will succeed in their object is not known yet. But two Burnley players have departed. Picken, the old Manchester United, Plymouth Argle, Bolton Wanderers' forward, after two seasons at Turf Moor has been transferred to Bristol City, and Riley, of the Reserve, has gone to Third Lanark. Riley came into prominence last season, and was regarded as likely to develop into a good left-wing, but though he has not been seen at his best recently, his admirers are confident that he will do better across the Border than he has done in England.

Preston North End are hoping that their latest recruit, Alfred Toward, will do a good deal towards curing the weakness of their forwards in the vital point of goal-getting.

They were influenced in securing his transfer from Oldham Athletic by Toward's ability to fill the centre-halfback as well as the centre-forward position, for they had no tried understudy to M'Call.

Chelsea have signed a young forward named H. Allott. He is an outside-right, and has previously played for the Silverwood Colliery Club, near Rotherham.

Although Brentford are doing excellently as a Second Division Southern League Club so far as results go, the officials are worried by the fact that in their two home matches they have only drawn £187.

Interesting Figures.

It is always a pleasure to look up the nationalities of the various players found assisting in senior English football season after season. A careful scrutiny of the teams placed on the field by the Senior Division representatives brings out the following "nationality" figures:

	Eng.	Scot.	Welsh.	Irish
Aston V.	10	—	1	—
Blackburn R.	10	1	2	—
Bolton W.	8	1	2	—
Bradford C.	7	4	—	—
Burnley	8	3	—	—
Chelsea	8	3	—	—
Derby C.	10	1	—	—
Everton	8	2	—	—
Liverpool	3	6	1	1
Manchester C.	7	2	2	1
Manchester U.	7	2	1	1
Middlesborough	5	6	—	—
Newcastle U.	3	7	—	1
Oldham A.	9	2	—	—
Preston N. E.	10	1	—	—
Sheffield U.	10	—	—	1
Sheffield W.	7	4	—	—
Sunderland	8	—	—	—

Total	153	53	7	5

Not Yet.

A well-known English First Division Club has made a tempting offer for Templeton, the Hibs' clever left back, but the offer has been refused. Templeton is too much thought of at Easter Road to be allowed to go meantime.

Will Cunningham Leave?

It is said that a well-known Lancashire First Division Club are after Andrew Cunningham of Kilmarnock, and may make overtures at an early date. The big Killie forward was wanted by more than one Scottish Club, but the Rugby Park directors would not consider any offers.

A Veteran's Benefit.

Alex. Raisbeck, the old Liverpool player, is due a benefit from Partick Thistle at the New Year, when there is a likelihood of a team of English internationalists being brought down to oppose Partick Thistles. Raisbeck deserves well of his club.

Will McLean Return?

Sheffield Wednesday are now the team they were last season. What is wrong? The explanation is very simple. They need M'Lean. Burkinshaw is a clever and improving player, but he is not a M'Lean. The Scot—no matter how much is being said and written to the contrary—is badly missed. And it is scarcely to be wondered at. Burkinshaw is undoubtedly a good player, but M'Lean is a genius. With Davie at centre forward, Wednesday's front rank worked for all the world like a perfectly-regulated automatic machine. He fed the wings judiciously, and there was that perfect understanding which makes for and obtained success. This season that success is not being attained. There is a noticeable looseness and raggedness about the work of the front rank, and goals have been very, very few and far between.

A rumour is going the rounds that M'Lean will shortly be seen in the blue-and-white again. The supporters have not yet lost hope of seeing the redoutable "Mac" once more in the position he filled so successfully, and his return would be most heartily welcomed.

Liverpool are in the happy position of having two first-class goalkepers at their service. Elispa Scott—who made a sensational debut in the league team last season at Newcastle—had to turn out for the first time this year in the premier eleven against Bolton. The Anfield Club have signed a promising recruit in Hall, who has played for Garston Gas Works. He showed much ability at outside-right in the Lancashire Cup tie against Oldham Athletic.

A Promising Tynesider.

Thomas Lowes, the Newcastle Reserves forward, who was called up for service against Chelsea owing to the injury sustained by John King at Bolton the previous week, is a most promising development of Tyneside football, whose only handicap is lack of weight. Lowes possesses all the other attributes of a good inside forward. He exercises a good command over the ball, is speedy and can shoot. In reserve matches he has scored an abundance of goals, and though last season he only made one appearance in the League team, in 1911-12 he was called upon on thirteen occasions and scored four goals.

BASEBALL

Hamilton Spectator: The annual meeting of the National Association of Minor Leagues will be held in Columbus, Ohio, next week. James J. McCafferty will represent the Hamilton Club, and will do some work in the interests of the Canadan League, having President Fitzgerald, Sam Steveley, George O'Neil, W. H. Denham and Tom Nelson associated with him. The extent to which the Canadian League circuit can take in some important and desired cities across the border will be decided at this meeting, and some interesting announcements as to the formation of the League Circuit can be looked for upon the return of the League delegates.

London Free Press: With the proposition to sell out his franchise, President Tom J. Nelson of the Brantford Red Sox, is in a quandary in deciding who to sell to, as the citizens of Brantford will undoubtedly make a similar offer.

However, the idea is not a passing notion on the part of the Toronto party, as Mr. Murphy, like many others interested in the welfare of the Canadian Lagues, sees that there is money to be made out of the proposition, and in doing so raise the plane of the League's standing in the eyes of organized ball. The addition of Youngstown, Ohio, would give the new organization three American cities with large populations, making the League a class B organization beyond a doubt and at the same time making it possible to play ball seven days a week in four cities, thereby increasing their drawing capacity and its money-making qualities.

Brantford and Berlin and Guelph has been tugging along with a losing proposition almost yearly, and with an increased salary limit almost an assured fact next year, with class B ball, success in these cities would be lessened.

There is remedy for this in a movement which would provide class D baseball with Brantford, Berlin and Guelph in a new league along with Woodstock, Stratford and St. Catharines. A new organization can be started the moment the new Canadian-American league materializes, and the cities mentioned would undoubtedly be a big success in a League where about $1000 salary limit would be adopted.

It sems incredable to find cities of less than one-third the population trying to keep up with big cities like Hamilton, Ottawa and London when they have the chance to get fair amounts for their present franchises in the Canadian League.

SOMETHING ABOUT MRS. A. S. WELLS

Police Woman of Los Angeles to Give Address Here

Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, who is to lecture here, is a trained civic and reform worker.

After deliverying many addresses on "The Scientific Study of Crime," and realizing how much easier it is to talk about things than to do them, Mrs. Wells applied for appointment as a regular police officer.

Her appointment, which was the first of its kind, was brought about entirely by her own efforts, and was the first of its kind, but it has met with both national and international response. For three years she has held a position on the regular police force of her own city, Los Angeles, Cal., and throughout this time has been constantly appealed to from all parts of the United States, Canada, and even Europe, for advice and direction.

In the last year Mrs. Wells has delivered addresses in 50 cities and which have been followed by remarkable results. She has especially pleaded for the better understanding of the police department, and what it should chiefly stand for—the prevention of crime.

PHONOGRAPH IS DEVELOPING AT REMARKABLE RATE

The present generation is unconsciously witnessing the development of the phonograph. In few fields is man's remarkable inventive faculreaching out so extensively as in this. The public has scarcely become accustomed to one improvement when another, more nearly approaching perfection is proclaimed.

The latest dictum is that the horn must go. Surely this marks the beginning of a new epoch in the evolution of the phonograph. Shades of the old bell-shaped horns, and those that maligned the morning glory. When these replaced the plane, conelike horns horns of the first machines, there was at least added a touch of decoration. Then came the cabinet idea used extensively by several of the leading manufacturers. These were hornless and they paved the way to the general adoption of the cabinet type. One company retained the horns with their cylinder records, but they are now using both discs and cylinder on machines, from which the old familliar horn has been removed.

This is really only an external improvement. There have been many others which have a greater effect upon the actual reproduction of the music, and are thereby more consequential, but this short article is not intended to give the details of the progress that has been made in the improvement of the phonograph.

Viewing the salesman's side of the business it has been stated that the imperfections of the first machines created a prejudice among music lovers that has proved a serious obstacle selling campaigns. You remember the rasping, metallic sounds of those old-timers. There was something inherently tawdry about the music. Your neighbour's sense of music was less refined, possibly, than yours, and his summer night concerts with a "Mayflower" machine still haunt your memory. But the inventors have been most prolific and a wonderful advancement has been made. In spite of that, however, there are many who associate the music of the first machines with the present phonographs, and are not fair enough to give the latter a hearing. This is one of the obstacles that have been gradually overcome within recent years.

The most recent improvements *make phonographic music very de*lightful. There is no gainsaying that fact. And with the accomplishments achieved in the past there is every reason to expect continued advancemen in the future.

Thus, it is given to the people of to-day to observe the evolution of this form of music production. Listening to one of the best of the machines of the latest type, and remembering that but a few years ago the phonograph was scarcely above the level of a noise-maker, one may well marvel at the energy, inventive abilities and progressiveness necessary to produce the present-day instrument.

LONDON'S DULLEST JOB.

The dullest job in London may become an absorbing occupation in time. There is a clerk at the law courts whose sole duty is to take papers, one by one, from a pile on the left side of his table, bang a stamp down on them and place them in the same order on his right. He has been doing this job for about 35 years and recently confessed that it has become such a part of his nature that, if the supply of documents dried up he would have a nervous breakdown. Fortunately the block of litigation at the courts will prevent such a catastrophe for some time.—London Standard.

ST. ANDREW'S BEAT RIDLEY

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—In their Little Big Four game to-day, St. Andrew's surprised Harry Griffith's crack Ridley team by beating the St. Catherines' fourteen by 15 to 9. Ridley led at 8-5 at half time.

In the Junior Intercollegiate series to-day, Varsity Thirds defeated the Ontario Agricultural Society by 16 to 8, leading at half time by 10 to 6.

GENTLE ART OF LURING SERVANTS IS WIDESPREAD

The gentle art practiced by women of luring good servants by dangling higher wages before their eyes is apparently not confined only to Peterborough.

They do it in New York according to one of the papers. This extract from a recent article fits local conditions like a glove:

"Many women, on hearing that a neighbour has a good servant, will proceed to lure the 'treasure' away by an offer of higher wages. It was contended that this practice was a distinctly vicious one and violative of both sound morals and sound economics, to say nothing of courtesy and friendship."

One woman said she had a right to get any servant she could by paying any wages she pleased—that this was exactly what business men constantly did without exciting reproach, and that to adopt the contrary policy would be a cruel injustice to the maids, in that it would deprive them of practically all opportunity for improving their condition and increasing their earnings.

This last argument has, or seems to have, considerable weight, for wages are rarely raised except where competition for the worker's services is free, and yet there must be some foundation or excuse for the indignation which most women undoubtedly feel when a neighbour, by taking away her servant, inflicts upon her the cruel inconveniences which the loss of a good servant usually causes. And is it not true that the luring is commonly done secretly, and that the bereaved mistress rarely has presented to her the alternative to her loss of paying a higher wage? And about the business men? That some of them sometimes do this thing is true, but where friendship has existed between them does not the doing tend to make the temperature of that friendship perceptibly lower?

A Peterborough lady was heard a few days ago enumerating a long list of her friends who were unable to get maids and in some cases they had been robbed of "treasures."

And does your daughter dance the tango?" we ask. "Does she?" repeats the proud mother. "Lily has been warned ten times and arrested twice!"

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

The market looked this morning at the opening as if it was trying to make a record for dullness. Trading was very light and price changes were unimportant. Business was professional. Next week may see some rallying in the stock market. The Mexican uncertainty, however, operated for the evening up of accounts. The trading position may be maintained provided preference is given to the long side of the standard rails on reactions.

Evidence comes to our attention again that there is accumulating aid by pools as well as by large interests. Is seems to us that pools would not buy unless they were encouraged by the money prospects, advices being necessary on this point from banking interests. The under tone of the market as a whole was good and scale down buying orders are noted in different parts of the list. There is accumulation of such stocks at U.P., S. P., G.Q., B. & O., Erie, A.C.P. and Rdg. in various methods, according to the different stocks.

The floating supply is largely in the hands of investors and large interests in this country, for the European element sold out long ago to protect holdings at home. When the trade reaction abroad extends sufficiently it wil be found that the idle money abroad will seek the best field, and that is America.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN A. BARRIE.

There died at the family residence, 1125 Fraser Avenue, Edmonton, Friday morning, Mrs. Georgina Barrie, wife of John A. Barrie, of the North End Realty Company, aged 34 years and nine months. Deceased leaves a husband and two children, a boy and girl of 9 and 8 years respectively, also four sisters and two brothers. Mrs. C. Johnson, 418 Sixth Street, Mrs. J. Ray, 37 Morris Street, in this City, Mrs. Charles Olson and Mrs. F. Dickson, of Perth Amboy, New Jersey; and Peter C. and Carl Nessen, of Maxwell, California. Deceased had been a resident of this city for the past seventeen years. Death came peacefully after a lingering illness for the past year, at the beginning of which she was taken by her husband to California, and later to Arizona, seeking a climate which should be beneficial. Not finding the change giving the desired results, Mrs. Barrie failing rapidly, she returned with the family to this City July last, where she has continued to decline until the end came. Funeral services will be conducted at the family residence at 2 p.m., Sunday, by Rev. Dr. McQueen of First Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. J. E. Ducloe of Erskine Presbyterian Church. Interment at Edmonton cemetery, 18th street.

Mr. John A. Barrie is a son of Mrs. John Barrie, 260 Westcott Street, and his many friends here will learn with deep regret of the passing of his wife, and join in extending him their sincere sympathy in his bereavement.

READING, ENG., Nov. 8.—As expected by the Liberals, polling in bye-election here seems to indicate a probable victory for Col. Wilson, Unionist.

WILL LECTURE ON MAGNETITE ARC LAMP

On Wednesday night, Nov. 12th, at 9 o'clock, in the rooms of the Technical Society, Bank of Commerce Building, Mr. L. W. Burpee, consulting engineer of the Canadian General Electric Company, Toronto, and who is an expert on electric lighting systems, will give an illustrated lecture on the subject, "The Magnetite Arc Lamp," its construction, advantage and operation. The Magnetite Arc Lamp is a new type of lamp now being installed in the streets of Peterborough. The lecture will be free to all.

After the lecture there will be a social hour, during which there will be an entertainment and light luncheon.

On the same evening also students will be accepted for the classes in commercial engineering, mathematics, and design. These classes will be taught by expert engineers and mathematicians. These engineers are graduates of the leading technical schools of the United States and Canada and are actively engaged in engineering work. These classes are a continuation of those held for some four months last year. They are free to all members of the Technical Society, and are so arranged that a continuous attendance is not at all necessary. The work carried on in these classes will not conflict with any other instruction being given at present in the City, but to prevent misunderstandings arising, it is stated that the Technical Society was the first to give actual engineering instruction by experts in the evenings in Peterborough, and that it is to carry on this work on an entirely independent basis for some time in the future.

MOTHER WANTS INFORMATION

Editor of The Examiner,—

Sir,—In the interview of the Board of Education by a deputation of the Woman's Council, The Examiner reports that Mrs. Rollins said, "In the matter of educating their children along certain lines parents were incredibly cupable, resulting in the numerous deplorable child tragedies."

Will Mrs. Rollins be so good as to state what these "certain lines" are? Does Mrs. Rollins here refer to the subject known as sex hygiene?

A Mother.

NO CHANGE IN THE MEXICAN SITUATION

Examiner Special:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—There is little change in the Mexican situation to-day so far as the press can understand. President Wilson seems to be again playing a waiting game.

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

At the Executive Committee meeting of the Women's Council in the Public Library yesterday afternoon, reports were presented from the two deputations who waited on the Board of Education last Tuesday night, urging "Mothers' Meetings," and "Medical inspection in connection with the schools of the City.

Mrs. J. C. Davidson, President of the Women's Council, presided at the meeting.

Both deputations reported that they had been courteously and favourably received, but that no action had been taken by the Board as yet. They were promised early consideration of the matters, however.

Miss Munro gave a very interesting address. She had been working for several years among the Ruthenians in Alberta, and her first-hand knowledge of the "stranger within our gates" was eagerly received by the ladies, all of whom were anxious to get more light on the social problems that are developing in the Dominion. Miss Munro told of the early marriages of the Ruthenians, and advanced reasons, showing that such a condition was advantageous rather than otherwise, to the welfare of the Ruthenians and the community. Her address was greatly appreciated.

At yesterday's meeting it was decided to invite Dr. Struthers of Toronto to lecture in his City. The purpose the citizens generally of the need of medical inspection in the City schools.

At the meeting a good deal of enthusiasm was exhibited over the work in hand and important developments are expected from their Associations before long.

EXTRADITION ARRANGED

CRIPPLED BY GALE

Ontario Suffered Severely From Sunday's Storm

SHIPPING IS HELD UP

TORONTO, Nov. 10. — Rain and snow in northern Ontario and districts north and south of the great lakes wrought havoc with the systems of communication yesterday to such an extent that even the usually light Sunday business could only be despatched with extreme difficulty.

The storm broke in the early morning hours, and soon the long-distance wires of the telephone companies were "out." North Bay, Owen Sound and Sarnia were the first western Ontario cities to feel the break, and calls for western Ontario districts were only accepted conditional upon communication being restored during the day. As the snow storm began to wage its fiercest around London, Ont., the wires began to go, and by three o'clock it was discovered that practically the whole of the northwestern district of Ontario was cut off. Then to make matters worse, the railway traffic was hampered.

The heavy gale accompanied by wet snow played havoc with telephone and railway telegraph lines. Connection was cut between Windsor and London and between Sarnia and London on long-distance lines, and the railways reported the greatest trouble west of London.

As the day wore on trouble was reported at St. Catharines, Niagara and Buffalo. Then the telephone wires broke down east of Toronto and no word could be obtained from Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston. North Bay, Cobalt and the Soo district also came within the depredatory influence of the storm.

The telegraph companies fared little better than the other companies. Messages were despatched with difficulty. Wet snow and rain materially hampered the work of the operators, and in some places the trunk lines were actually brought down, with the result that messages had to be sent by circuitous routes. Telegrams from Toronto to Buffalo and many points east were sent via Detroit. Towards midnight direct communication with the important eastern cities was obtained.

Gale on Lake Superior.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 10.—Lake Superior has been lashed by a fifty-mile gale for the past thirty-six hours. Steamers arriving at the Soo yesterday from Lake Superior ports are all heavily coated with ice. The Northern Navigation Co. steamer Saronic was sheathed with ice as she steamed into the canal approach on the Canadian side.

More than fifty steamers are lying at anchor between the Soo and Whitefish Point awaiting an abatement of the storm. Practically nothing that passed the Soo during the last thirty-six hours has gone past Whitefish Point.

One Boat In Trouble.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 10. — The most severe snow and wind storm of the present season prevailed over this section of the Great Lakes yesterday and shipping of all descriptions was forced to seek shelter at the nearest ports. Ample warning of a stiff gale had been given, however, and last night the only vessel reported in trouble in this district was the W. G. Pollock of Cleveland. She had been forced on the bank of the St. Clair flats canal.

The wind yesterday attained a velocity of forty-six to forty-eight miles an hour on shore. It was said that the velocity was greater on Lake Erie and that the blinding snowstorm made navigation practically impossible.

Pittsburg Isolated.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 10.—Crippling transportation facilities and prostrating wire communication over a wide area, an extraordinary snow, sleet and wind storm visited this section of the country yesterday and continued last night. During the day ten inches of snow fell, four inches more than ever fell during any November since 1886.

Georgetown Was Dark.

GEOGETOWN, Nov. 10.—For the first time since the Hydro-Electric system was introduced here, the service failed yesterday, and for several hours last evening the town was utterly dark, except for the light of lamps. All churches are dependent upon the Hydro power, and as a result such services as were held took place in semi-darkness.

TO COPY MILITANTS.

Socialists Will Fight For Release of James Larkin From Jail.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Socialists have adopted suffrage tactics and have decided to oppose all Liberal candidates and refuse them a hearing at public meetings until James Larkin, the leader of the striking Irish transport workers, who was recently sentenced to seven months, imprisonment at Dublin, is released.

The Rt. Hon. Charles Frederick Masterman, M.P. for Bethnal Green, the financial secretary to the Treasury, was the first victim. He was howled down Saturday when he attempted to speak at the Shoreditch tabernacle. A small party of men kept up a continual cry for the release of Larkin, but eventually the police were called to clear the church.

A demostration was held at Dublin by the strikers in celebration of the "success of the Socialists in keeping the Liberal candidate out in Reading."

Prince Nearly Killed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10. — A cable from Tetuan to The Tribune says:

Prince Alfonso, son of Princess Eulalia, who is here in command of the aerial fleet, had a narrow escape Friday at Texan. He rose in his biplane from the outskirts of the village, in an exploration flight over the positions of the Moroccan natives at Benisimara.

At an altitude of about 3,000 feet his motor suddenly stopped. He made a rapid volplane descent and succeeded in regaining control of the machine just as it touched ground. He was able to resume his flight before the natives, who had witnessed his descent, could arrive at the spot.

CABINET IS DIVIDED

Huerta's Supporters at Odds Over Attitude to U. S.

HAS A SUPPLY OF MONEY

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 10.—After a conference of several of the Cabinet Ministers with President Huerta yesterday morning it was persistently rumored that Huerta's attitude toward the United States has caused a split among his advisers which cannot be bridged, and the resignation of at least two of the Ministers is expected without delay.

Foreign Minister Moneno is considered likely to quite the Cabinet perhaps to-day.

It is believed that Gen. Blanquet, the Minister of War, also intends to resign.

Mexicans generally recognize now that the international situation has reached a climax and are ready for anything.

In Government circles nothing is spoken of except the demand of the United States for the elimination of Huerta and his friends from the Government of the republic.

President Huerta called an extraordinary meeting of the Cabinet at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. All the Ministers went to the National Palace and were still in session at 11 o'clock last night.

Mexico is suffering now from a money famine due to the Governmem decree stopping the redemption in specie of National Bank notes. Crowds besieged the banks in the capital all day yesterday demanding cash for notes.

Official despatches from Chihuahua report a big rebel defeat. Federal cavalry is reported to be pursuing the fleeing rebels, and constantly harrassing them, preventing the scattered army from reorganizing. The final rout of the insurrectos in that district is expected shortly.

Quick Action Expected.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Within forty-eight hours the United States will make a move which has for its purpose the forcible elimination of Gen. Huerta as head of the Mexican Government. He has been warned by Charge O'Shaughnessy and John Lind that the American Government intends taking this step.

While intervention is being discussed by officials here, and the army and navy continue war-like preparations, it is believed the step President Wilson proposes taking is the lifting of the embargo on the revolutionists obtaining arms and ammunition in the United States, and a recognition of them as a de facto government.

It is the expectation that the President will send a special message to Congress to-day or to-morrow, urging that the resolution of 1911, providing the embargo, be repealed. According to high authority, the President has begun the preparation of the message.

Administration circles were much perturbed yesterday by reports that Huerta had obtained money sufficient to run the Government of Mexico for a month from sources in Great Britain. The reports stated that the money was raised by the Pearson Syndicate of Financiers, of which Lord Cowdray, generally known as Sir Weetman Pearson, is the head.

John McFarlane Named.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 10. — John McFarlane, president of East Middlesex Conservative Association, was chosen candidate for the Legislature at the party convention Saturday in succession to the late George W. Neely, M.P.P. Six names went to the convention and McFarlane had 49 votes out of 96 on the first ballot.

ASTONISHED AT ATTACK.

Mr. Samuel Cannot Understand Roblin's Onslaught.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(C. A. P. Cable)—No one is more astonished than Rt. Hon. Herbert Samuel himself at the scathing attack that has been made upon him by Premier Roblin of Manitoba in consequence of certain remarks, alleged to be derogatory to the education policy of that province, which the British Postmaster-General made at Montreal during his recent visit.

What occurred, says Mr. Samuel, was that he was asked to give his impressions of the west, and in doing so he mentioned that he had been specially struck with the zeal of the people of those provinces for education, with the excellence of their schools, and with the fact that great universities had been founded on sound lines. He added that the only exception that he had observed was that in the Province of Manitoba a system of compulsory education had not yet been established, and that, as he had been informed, the result had been that a large proportion of children, especially of the foreign population of the city of Winnipeg, were receiving little or no schooling.

His (Mr. Samuel's) statement was based on information he had received from more than one educationist in Winnipeg, in which town, as well as in others, he had himself visited several elementary schools, and his remarks were endorsed by the principal of McGill.

What Mr. Roblin Said.

MINNEDOSA, Man., Nov. 10.—At a public meeting here, Sir Rodmond P. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, speaking on education, condemned "men traducing Manitoba."

Referring to Postmaster-General Samuel, he said: "When you see meddlesome, impudent, slanderous Samuel, who by accident holds a portfolio in a British Government, making false statements at the dictation of a small Grit coterie, who stuffed this jellybag of an Englishman to such an extent that he was willing to make a statement in the city of Montreal which he knew to be false, you will know how to treat him.

"I can assure Mr. Samuel if he ever visits Manitoba again he will be hauled before the bar of public opinion and made to swallow his falsehoods."

Ear In a Handkerchief.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—When Jos. Romaine was taken to the Western Hospital in the ambulance Friday he carried with him his right ear, wrapped in a pocket handkerchief.

Shortly after his admission to the institution when the doctors found that the loss of an ear was the only injury sustained in his fall from a scaffold, they sewed the member to its accustomed place at the side of Romaine's head, and they anticipate that the ear will be as good as ever. The ear was cut cleanly from the head when Romaine in his fall struck a guy wire.

Asquith Government Loses Important Bye-Election

URE'S MAJORITY IS REDUCED

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—In the Reading election, Captain Leslie Wilson (Unionist) received 5,144 votes; G. P. Gooch (Lib.), 4,013, and J. G. Butler (Socialist), 1,063. The Unionist majority over the Liberal was 1,131. This was the most momentous election in Reading's history, where the inhabitants are noted for taking their politics seriously. The vacancy was caused by the promotion of Sir Rufus Isaacs to the post of Lord Chief Justice. Although he was very popular in the constituency, he only secured his last return by a majority of 99. During the present election the Unionist candidate and supporters scrupulously refrained from any references to the Marconi matter and from other personalities, the election being fought by them solely over the home rule issue and the Insurance Act. The Liberal candidate, however, sought to defend the policy of the present administration at large, while neither side made scarcely any reference to the fiscal policy.

Excitement was intense in Reading when the poll was declared showing that Captain Wilson had a clear majority of 68 over both his opponents. He declared the verdict of Reading was particularly directed against the home rule bill. The defeated Liberal candidate said the result was due to wastage owing to the Government policy of social reform treading on the toes of individual members of the community.

Three other elections are still pending, namely, South Lanark, Keighley and the Wick Burghs. Since the last general elections the Unionists have won eleven seats from the Ministerialists, only Londonderry going to the Liberals.

Liberal Is Successful.

LINLITHGOW, Scotland, Nov. 10. —Mr. Pratt, the Liberal candidate for Linlithgowshire, was successful over his Unionist opponent, James Kidd, but by a greatly reduced majority, at the bye-election held here on Friday. The figures were: Mr. Pratt, Liberal, 5,815; James Kidd, Unionist, 5,094. Majority 521.

At the last election Alex. Ure, the Liberal, polled 5,835 votes against 3,765 received by James Kidd, the Unionist.

Mr. Ure vacated the seat a few weeks ago on his appointment as Lord President of the Scottish Court of Sessions, and it was difficult for the Liberals to find a candidate to replace him, but Mr. Pratt, who was a former bailie of Glasgow and practically unknown in the constituency, was selected to meet the Unionist, James Kidd, who had been before the electors for years.

Feared Attack By Suffragettes.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The militant suffragettes supported Captain Wilson in the Reading bye-election. Just before the polls closed a large squad of militants arrived. The town hall, where the counting took place, was strongly guarded by a double force of police, while the polling places were carefully watched throughout the day, as an attack on the ballot boxes was feared.

The Liberal candidate, Mr. Gooch, was formerly a member for Bath. He entered the constituency only on the eve of the contest.

THAW GETS SETBACK.

Governor Felker Grants Extradition to New York State.

CONCORD, N.H., Nov. 10.—Governor Felker yesterday honored the requisition of the State of New York for the extradition of Harry K. Thaw. The case is now transferred automatically to the federal courts, where a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of Thaw is pending.

The governor based his decision on the indictment returned against Thaw in New York County and which charged him with conspiracy to escape from the insane asylum at Matteawan, N.Y., to which he was committed following his trial for the killing of Stanford White.

Thaw's attorneys announced that they would file immediately an amendment to their petition for a writ of habeas corpus, application for which was made soon after Thaw was arrested in this state following his deportation from Canada. The original petition was based on the allegation that Thaw had been indicted for conspiracy by the Dutchess County grand jury, and it was suspended pending the governor's decision on the matter of extradition.

Tango Music at Any Price.

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—Danish King Christian's court marshal telegraphed to the Thalia Theatre here the other day for tango music, as the dance was to be introduced immediately in the Copenhagen court.

A reply was sent that no tango music has been published yet, and that the only way it could be obtained was to pay a high price for a manuscript copy.

Promptly came back the order. "Money no object. State price. Mail immediately."

The manager of the Thalia Theatre sent manuscript music and charged 1400 for it.

OLIVE OIL AS FOOD

One of the most sensible things inaugurated of late is the taking of olive oil as food and medicine. Physicians have advised such uses of the oil, but it has only been of recent date that it has become a "fad." It has been proved in many cases to be not only a corrective of the liver, but a food for the system as well, and is of great benefit for weak stomach and bowels. The dose is usually a teaspoonful of oil to be taken half an hour before breakfast and half an hour after supper. The oil may be freely used with vegetables and on salads, as it is harmless and beneficial. Its use may be continued for years, and in assisting the liver to do its work (it is in most cases mildly cathartic), the complexion is cleared of the ugly brown spots and leathery yellow appearance due to torpidity of the liver. The taste is not unpleasant, although a liking for it has, in most instances, to be acquired. But very few effective medicines are really finely flavoured, although any unpleasant taste can be disguised. Many physicians strongly recommend its uses, both internal and external. It is excellent to use, after the bath, and many delicate persons —especially children — are greatly benefitted by being massaged with it. The best quality of oil can be procured at McDermid & Jury's Drug Store in 25 and 50c. bottles.

Tragedy Involving Three Trappers In North Is Confirmed.

DRYDEN, Ont., Nov. 10. — Any hope that three trappers, missing since Oct. 22, were alive was dimipated Saturday afternoon when Provincial Constable Simpson of Kenora returned to Dryden from the scene of the tragedy. On arrival at Beaver Lake, on whose shore the unfortunate young men had fixed their camps, he found their upturned canoe in the centre of the lake half a mile from the shore. The lake was frozen over to a depth of four inches, so it was decided that no attempt to recover the bodies would be possible until next April.

The actual facts regarding the tragedy will never be known, but it is thought that the sad event occurred the day following their arrival at camp, and that while removing supplies across the lake their canoe upset, precipitating its occupants into the ice-cold water. The victims are: Hugh Nicholson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholson, farmers, and D. John Barker, both of Dryden, and Joseph J. Edgar, who came here a month ago with John Barker from Whitewater, Man. His parents reside at Drumhoney, Whitecross, County Armagh, Ireland.

Convicts as Axemen.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—G. M. Macdonell, a member of the royal commission, investigating Kingston Penitentiary, has made the suggestion that an experiment be made with three or four convicts under 20 years of age, by sending them to lumber camps for the winter. If the experiment is successful, fifty boys might be given this measure of liberty, under the auspices of the Reading Camp instructors. Dominion Parole Officer Archibald is considering the idea.

His Careless Getaway.

Among the Civil War veterans, Bull Run still forms a standing joke. Thus, at a Memorial Day banquet of the Cumberland Society, General Gates Thurston said:

"A veteran from a distance once presented himself at a reunion with a scar on his face.

"'Where did you get that scar?' they asked him.

"'At Bull Run,' he replied.

"'Impossible! You are in imposters. You never saw Bull Run!' they said.

"'Well, gents,' said the vesteran, 'I know it does sound queer for a feller to say he got wounded in the face at Bull Run; but ye see, it was like this—after I'd run six or seven miles, I got kinder careless, and looked back.'"

A WONDERFUL CURE OF AN ABSCESS BY

Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mr. A. W. Dryden, Amherst, N.S., writes:—"I am going to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for us. My son "Vance," when only nine months old, got an abscess on his cheek bone. I took him to a doctor in St. John, N.B., and he lanced it, and told me it would get well in a few days, and wanted me to keep it squeezed out. It did not seem to get any better, so my wife took him back. The Doctor told her to take him home and it would soon get better. It would gather and break, and it went on that way until he was over four years old.

"He lost four pieces of bone out of where it was lanced, and two pieces came from his mouth; he has lost all of his cheek bone, and his eye was drawn down. I took him to doctors in St. John, Moncton, and Amherst, and all wanted me to let him go under an operation. He was so small I told them that if he was going to die he might as well die as he was as to go there and be all cut to pieces, so I declined to have the operation done. I told them I was going to try Burdock Blood Bitters, as I had heard my mother talk so much about it. I got a bottle, and when it was about half gone noticed it was doing good, and before many days the sore stopped running, and healed up, and the abscess has never broken out again. This happened nearly six years ago, so you can see I have great faith in Burdock Blood Bitters, and I can say with all my heart that it is the best blood medicine in the world."

"That Affair Next Door"

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

But what could I say to her? I had my own private knowledge of the matter, but she was not one to confide in, so I stoically shook my head. Doubly disappointed, the poor thing shrank back, after looking first at the policeman and then at me in an odd, appealing way, difficult to understand. Then her eyes fell again on the dead girl at her feet, and being nearer now than before, she evidently saw something that startled her, for she sank on her knees with a little cry and began examining the girl's skirts.

"What are you looking at there?" growled the policeman. "Get up, can't you! No one but the Coroner has right to lay hand on anything here."

"I'm doing no harm," the woman protested, in an odd, shaking voice. I only wanted to see what the poor thing had on. Some blue stuff, isn't it?" she asked me.

"Blue serge," I answered; "store-made, but very good; must have come from Altman's or Stern's."

"I—I'm not used to sights like this," stammered the scrub-woman, stumbling awkwardly to her feet, and looking as if her few remaining wits had followed the rest on an endless vacation. "I—I think I shall have to go home." But she did not move.

"The poor dear's young, isn't she?" she presently insinuated, with an odd catch in her voice that gave to the question an air of hesitation and doubt.

"I think she is younger than either you or myself," I deigned to reply. "Her narrow pointed shoes show she has not reached the years of discretion."

"Yes, yes, so they do!" ejaculated the cleaner, eagerly—too eagerly for perfect ingenuousness. "That's why I said 'Poor dear!' and spoke of her pretty face. I am sorry for young folks when they get into trouble, ain't you? You and me might lie here and no one be much the worse for it, but a sweet lady like this——"

This was not very flattering to me, but I was prevented from rebuking her by a prolonged shout from the stoop without, as a rush was made against the front door, followed by a shrill peal of the bell.

"Man from Headquarters," stolidly announced the policeman. "Open the door, ma'am; or step back into the further hall if you want me to do it."

Such rudeness was uncalled for; but considering myself too important a witness to show feeling, I swallowed my indignation and proceeded with all my native dignity to the front door.

II.
QESTIONS.

As I did so, I could catch the murmur of the crowd outside as it seethed forward at the first intimation of the door being opened, but my attention was not so distracted by it, loud as it sounded after the quiet of he shut-up house, that I failed to notice that the door had not been locked by the gentleman leaving the night before, and that, consequently, only the night latch was on. With a turn of the knob it opened, showing me the mob of shouting boys and the forms of two gentlemen awaiting admittance on the door-step. I frowned at the mob and smiled on the gentlemen, one of whom was portly and easy-going in appearance, and the other spare, with a touch of severity in his aspect. But for some reason these gentlemen did not seem to appreciate the honour I had done them, for they both gave me a displeased glance, which was so odd and unsympathetic in its character that I bridled a little, though I soon returned to my natural manner. Did they realise at the first glance that I was destined to prove a thorn in the sides of every one connected with this matter, for days to come?

"Are you the woman who called from the window?" asked the larger of the two, whose business here I found it difficult at first to determine.

"I am," was my perfectly self-possessed reply. "I live next door and my presence here is due to the anxious interest I always take in my neighbours. I had reason to think that all all was not as it should be in this house, and I was right. Look in the parlour, sirs."

They were already as far as the threshold of that room and needed no further encouragement to enter. The heavier man went first and the other followed, and you may be sure I was not far behind. The sight meeting our eyes was ghastly enough, as you know, but these men were evidently accustomed to ghastly sights, for they showed but little emotion.

"I thought this house was empty," observed the second gentleman, who was evidently a doctor.

'So it was till last night," I put in; and was about to tell my story, when I felt my skirts jerked.

Turning, I found that this warning had come from the cleaner who stood close beside me.

"What do you want?" I asked, not understanding her and having nothing to conceal.

"I?" she fluttered, with a frightened air. "Nothing, ma'am, nothing."

"Then don't interupt me.' I harshly admonished her, annoyed at an interference that tended to throw suspicion upon my acndour. "This woman came here to scrub and clean," I now explained; "it was by means of the key she carried that we were enabled to get into the house. I never spoke to her till a half hour ago."

At which, with a display of subtlety I was far from expecting in one of her appearnce, she let her emotions take a fresh direction, and pointing towards the dead woman, she impetuously cried:

'But the poor child there! Ain't you going to take those things off of her? It's wicked to leave her under all that stuff. Suppose there was life in her!"

"Oh! there's no hope of that," muttered the doctor, lifting one of the hands, and letting it fall again.

"Still—" he cast a side look at his companion, who gave him a meaning nod—"it might be well enough to lift this cabinet sufficiently for me to lay my hand on her heart."

They accordingly did this; and the doctor, leaning down, placed his hand over the poor bruised breast.

"No life," he murmured. "She has been dead some hours. Do you think we had better release the head?" he went on, glancing up at the portly man at his side.

growing serious, made a slight protest with his finger, and turning to me, inquired, with sudden authority:

"Just what I said, sir. It was empty till about midnight, when two persons——" Again I felt my dress twitched, this time very cautiously. What did the woman want? Not daring to give her a look, for these men were only too ready to detect harm in everything I did, I gently drew my skirt away and took a step aside, going on as if no interruption had occurred. "Did I say persons? I should have said a man and a woman drove up to the house and entered. I saw them from my window."

"You did?" murmured my interlocutur, whom I had by this time decided to be a detective. "And this is the woman, I suppose?" he proceeded, pointing to the poor creature lying before us.

"Why, yes, of course. Who else can she be? I did not see the lady's face last night, but she was young and light on her feet, and ran up the stood gaily."

"And the man? Where is the man? I don't see him here."

"I am not surprised at that. He went very soon after he came, not ten minutes after, I should say. That is what alarmed me and caused me to have the house investigated. It did not seem natural or like any of the Van Burnams to leave a woman to spend the night in so large a house alone."

"You know the Van Burname?"

"Not well. But that don't signify. I know what report says of them: they are gentlemen."

But Mr. Van Burnam is in Europe."

"He has two sons."

"Living here?"

"No; the unmarried one spenda his nights at Long Branch, and the other is with his wife somewhere in Connecticut."

"How did the young couple you saw get in last night? Was there any one here to admit them?"

"No; the gentleman had a key."

"Ah, he had a key."

The tone in which this was said recurred to me afterwards, but at the moment I was much more impressed by a peculiar sound I heard behind me, something between a gasp and a click in the throat, which came I knew from the scrub-woman, and which, odd and contradictory as it may appear, struck me as an expression of satisfaction, though what there was in my admission to give satisfaction to this poor creature I could not conjecture. Moving so as to get a glimpse of her face, I went on with the grim self-possession natural to my character:

"And when he came out he walked briskly away. The carriage had not waited for him."

"Ah!" again muttered the gentleman, picking up one of the broken pieces of china which lay haphasard about the floor, while I studied the cleaner's face which, to my amazement, gave evidences of a confusion of emotions most unaccountable to me.

HELPLESS CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

Toronto Lady Took "Fruit-a-tives" And Cured Herself.

4 HOME PLACE, TORONTO, DEC. 15th, 1909

"I was a helpless cripple from Rheumatism for nearly a year. All down the right side, the pain was dreadful and I could not move for the agony. I was treated by two physicians without benefit. I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised and decided to try them. After taking one box, I was much better.

When I had taken three boxes, I could use my arm and the pain was almost gone.

After taking five boxes, I was entirely well again. The cure of my case by "Fruit-a-tives" was indeed splendid because all the doctors failed to even relieve me. "Fruit-a-tives" cured me."

MRS. LIZZIE BAXTER.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50—trial size, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Mr. Gryce may have noticed this too, for he immediately addressed her, though he continued to look at the broken piece of china in his hand.

"And how come you to be cleaning the house?" he asked. "It the family coming home?"

"They are, sir," she answered, hiding her emotion with great skill the moment she perceived attention directed to herself, and speaking with a sudden volubility that made us all stare. "They are expected any day. I didn't know it till yesterday—was it yesterday? No, the day before—when young Mr. Franklin—he is the oldest son, sir, and a very nice man, a very nice man—sent me word by letter that I was to get the house ready. It isn't the first time I have done it for them, sir, and as soon as I could get the basement key from the agent. I came here, and worked all yesterday, washing up the floors and dusting. I should have been at them again this morning if my husband hadn't been sick. But I had to go to the infirmary for medicine, and it was noon when I got here, and then I found this lady standing outside with a policeman, a very nice lady, a very nice lady indeed, sir, I pay my respects to her" — and she actually dropped me a curtsey like a peasant woman in a play—"and they took my key from me, and the policeman opens the door and he and me go upstairs and into all the rooms, and when we come to this one——"

She was getting so excited as to be hardly intelligible Stopping herself with a jerk, she fumbled nervously with her apron, while I asked myself how she could have been at work in this house the day before without my knowing it. Suddenly I remembered that I was ill in the morning and busy in the afternoon at the Orphan Asylum, and somewhat relieved at finding so excellent an excuse for my ignorance, I looked up to see if the detective had noticed anything odd in this woman's behaviour. Presumably he had, but having more experience than myself with the susceptibility of ignorant persons in the presence of danger and distress, he attached less importance to it than I did, for which I was secretly glad, without exactly knowing my reasons for being so.

"You will be wanted as a witness by the Coroner's jury," he now remarked to her, looking as if he were addressing the piece of china he was turning over in his hand. "Now, no nonsense!" he protested, as she commenced to tremble and plead. "You were the first one to see this dead woman, and you must be on hand to say so. As I cannot tell you when the inquest will be held, you had better stay around till the Coroner comes. He'll be here soon. You, and this other woman too."

By other woman he meant me, Miss Butterworth, of Colonial ancestry and no inconsiderable importance in the social world. But though I did not relish this careless association of myself with this poor scrub-woman, I was careful to show no displeasure, for I reasoned that as witnesses we were equal before the law, and that it was solely in this light he regarded us.

There was something in the manner of both these gentlemen which convinced me that while my presence was considered desirable in the house, it was not especially wanted in the room. I was therefore moving reluctantly away, when I felt a slight but peremptory touch on the arm, and, turning, saw the detective at my side, still studying his piece of china.

He was, as I have said, of portly build and benevolent aspect; a fatherly-looking man, and not at all the person one would be likely to associate with the police. Yet he could take the lead very naturally, and when he spoke, I felt bound to answer him.

"Will you be so good, madam, as to relate o'er again, what you saw from your window last night? I am likely to have charge of this matter, and would be pleased to hear all you may have to say concerning it."

"My name is Butterworth," I politely intimated.

"And my name is Gryce."

"A detective?"

"The same."

"You must think this matter very serious," I ventured.

"Death by violence is always serious."

"You must regard this death as something more than an accident, I mean."

His smile seemed to say: "You will not know to-day how I regard it."

"And you will not know to-day what I think of it either," was my inward rejoinder, but I said nothing aloud, for the man was seventy-five if he was a day, and I have been taught respect for age, and have practised the same for fifty years and more.

I must have shown whatw as passing in my mind, and he must have seen it reflected on the polished surface of the porcelain he was contemplating, for his lips showed the shadow of a smile sufficiently sarcastic for me to see that he was far from being as easy-natured as his countenance indicated.

"Come, come," said he, "there is the Coroner now. Say what you have to say, like the straightforward, honest woman you appear."

"I don't like compliments," I snapped out. Indeed, they have always been obnoxious to me. As if there was any merit in being honest and straightforward, or any distinction in being told so!

"I am Miss Butterworth, and not in the habit of being spoken to as if I were a simple countrywoman," I objected. "But I will repeat what I saw last night, as it is no secret, and the telling of it won't hurt me and may help you."

Accordingly I went over the whole story, and was much more loquacious than I had intended to be, his manner was so insinuating and his inquiries so pertinent. But one topic we both failed to broach, and that was the peculiar manner of the scrub-woman. Perhaps it had not struck him as peculiar and perhaps it should not have struck me so, but in the silence which was preserved on the subject I felt I had acquired an advantage over him, which might lead to consequences of no small importance. Would I have felt thus or congratulated myself quite so much upon my fancied superiority, if I had known he was the man who managed the Leavenworth case, and who in his early years had experienced that very wonderful adventure on the staircase of the Heart's Delight? Perhaps I would; for though I have had no adventures. I feel capable of them, and as for any peculiar acumen he may have shown in his long and eventful career, why that is a quality which others may share with him, as I hope to be able to prove before finishing these pages.

III.
Amelia Discovers Herself.

There is a small room at the extremity of the Van Burnam mansion. In this I took refuge after my interview with Mr. Gryce. As I picked out the chair which best suited me and settled myself for a comfortable communion with my own thoughts, I was astonished to find how much I was enjoying myself, notwithstanding the thousand and one duties awaiting me on the other side of the party-wall.

Even this very solitude was welcome, for it gave me an opportunity to consider matters. I had not known up to this very hour that I had any special gifts. My father, who was a shrewd man of the old New England type, said more times than I am years old (which was not saying it as often as some may think) that Araminta (the name I was christened by, and the name you will find in the Bible record, though I sign myself Amelia, and insist upon being addresed as Amelia, being, as I hope, a sensible woman and not the piece of antiquated sentimentality suggested by the former cognomen)—that Araminta would live to make her mark; though in what capacity he never informed me, being, as I have observed, a shrewd man, and thus not likely to thoughtlessly commit himself.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG.

CANADIAN PACIFIC

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has ben so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 26th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arirving Winnipeg at 8.25 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Observation Compartment Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg, but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

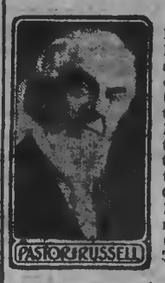
WINNING CHRIST LOSING ALL ELSE

The Prize of All Eternity God Is Now Offering.

FROM THE BIBLE STANDPOINT

What Winning Christ Means—It Signifies More Than a Reformation of Life and a Pursuit of Righteousness, More Than Merely Believing in Jesus as Our Saviour — It Is Preceded by a Devotion, or Consecration, of Our All to God—And God's Acceptance of Our Consecration—Then the Race Begins—Its Outcome Will Determine Whether or Not We Win Christ—St. Paul an Exemplar—Saints From Every Nation and Denomination Will Be Winners — Their Reward.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]



Brooklyn, N.Y., Nov. 9. — Pastor Russell gave two addresses here today. We report the one from the text, "Yea, doubtless, I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, * * * that I may win Christ." (Philippians 3:8) The speaker said:

Even saintly Christians seem but imperfectly to grasp the plain teachings of the New Testament respecting membership in the Body of Christ. Some assume that it is to be had on some basis of favoritism, and trust that they will be of the Elect. Others think that the Apostle is using figures of speech in an extreme fashion, and vaguely hope that they belong to the right Church and will attain whatever others get, as in the success of a party in which all the victors share the spoils.

No doubt the errors of the Dark Ages absorbed in childhood have been more or less responsible for these vagaries and for our general neglect of proper Bible study. It seems hard for the people of God to realize that the Wisdom from Above is the noblest science and the best instruction; and that it needs intelligent and systematic study as much as do earthly sciences. But we are learning, and, thank God! progress is being made in unsectarian Bible study classes, which are springing up all over the world.

What is ordinarily termed conversion is not what St. Paul refers to in our text as "winning Christ." The word conversion signifies "to turn about." It implies that a wrong course has been pursued, that the error of the way has been detected, and that a change to the proper one has been made. The wrong course is the sinful course, which brings injury and injustice on others. We never had a right to take that course; yet to some extent we are excusable; for we were born with downward tendencies, an inherited predisposition to sin.

We inherited these depraved appetites and tendencies from our forefathers under the general laws of heredity. A realization that sin always brings sorrow is a sufficient reason for a change of course. Conversion, therefore, is merely the operation of a sane mind in turning about from things recognized to be injurious. Every sensible person should be converted from sin to righteousness.

Conversion may have Christ connected with it, or it may not. Many are converted without any real knowledge of the Gospel of Christ. They merely knew that they were going in a wrong direction, and turned about to take the proper course. But this we can say, that only strong characters can successfully pursue a right course, and strong characters are in the minority. Whether strong or weak in character, great aid will surely be experienced by those who, at the time of their conversion, have a knowledge of Christ and an appreciation of his work and his teachings.

Nothing else gives such fortitude as the hope set before us in the Gospel, and the realisation that there is a future life provided through Christ for all mankind, and that our course in the present life will have much to do with the stripes, or punishments, we shall receive here or in the future life—necessary to fit us for Divine favor and everlasting life.

One might reform his life, and have a knowledge of Jesus and of the life to come secured through His death, and of the fact that "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap," and yet, with all that conversion, belief and reformation of life, he might not be a Christian at all, in the Bible sense of that term. We would not * * this discourage anybody from taking the reformatory steps already outlined. We would, on the contrary, encourage them so to do. These steps are necessary before anything further can expect to be attained.

As already stated, reformation and righteous living commend themselves to all intelligent minds as right and advantageous, beneficial to the individual himself as well as to the world of mankind. Let us discuss Christianity, not from the ordinary standpoint, which classes every civilized person as a Christian, but from the Bible standpoint, which assures us that if any man is a Christian he is a New Creature — "old things have passed away; all things have become new."

This does not mean that a Christian is living a reformed life merely; nor that he has attained the condition of absolute perfection, in which he is sinless in thought, word and act. It merely means that a Christian has entered a new life; he is a New Creature; old ambitions, hopes, projects and aims, however honorable and good, have passed away in the presence of new ambitions, new hopes, new aims. This is what the Apostle had in mind when saying "that I might win Christ."

To understand our text we must first appreciate the general outline of the Gospel—the Divine Plan of Love for human recovery from sin and death. That Plan was first of all declared to Abraham—that God would eventually bless all the families of the earth, and that the blessing would come through his posterity. In thee and in thy Seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed.—Galations 3:8, 16, 23.

Later on, God revealed that Abraham's Seed would constitute a special Kingdom class, which would rule all nations for their uplift. When Israel, by failing to keep the Law, failed to prove itself the holy nation fit for the Divine service, God revealed that He would send a special Messenger of the Covenant; and that through Him, as Prophet, Priest and King, the holy nation would be established; and later on it would be given the glory and honor, the rule of the world.

Our Lord Jesus at His First Advent began the work of selecting this Kingdom class. First of all, He laid the broad foundation by dying for the sins of the whole world. Then from amongst the redeemed ones He began to select the members of the Kingdom. And this has been the work of this entire Gospel Age. Everything else on earth has been secondary to this, the Divine purpose.

Soon the selective, or elective, work will be finished. Soon it will be determined who will be of the Kingdom class. God's determination will be manifested in the fact that the overcomers will all be sharers in the First or Chief Resurrection, to be priests unto God and unto Christ and to reign with Him on the earth.—Revelation 20:6.

All who will be of that select Kingdom class will be members of the foretold Seed of Abraham. Jesus was of Abrahamic stock through His miraculous birth; and after He had laid down His life sacrificially and was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, no more a man, but a New Creature of the Divine nature, He then was Abraham's Seed on the spirit plane. His Church, called to be of the Kingdom class, are to be Abraham's Seed on the same spirit plane.

We are not ignoring the fact that Abraham has an earthly seed as well, and that to it belong certain earthly promises. We are merely pointing out that the Scriptures clearly teach that the earthly seed cannot have its share in the work of blessing others until first the Heavenly Seed, the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, shall have been perfected in the First Resurrection. God showed the two seeds in the statement to Abraham, "I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven (the spiritual, the Church) and as the sand which is upon the seashore" (the earthly).—Genesis 22:17.

St. Paul tells us that this Seed of Abraham, Jesus and the Church, spirit-begotten, are unitedly the Church. Using a human body as an illustration, he speaks of the anointed Jesus as the Head, and of each one of the Church as a member of the Body of Christ. Thus we read, "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the promise." (Galatians 3:16, 29.) Thus we see that St. Paul was anxious to win a membership in the Body of Christ, the Church.

The Apostle, of course, was a member of the Church from the time of his begetting of the Holy Spirit. But there are two bodies of Christ, if we may so express the matter. One is the probationary Body of the present time; the other the actual Body of the future. All fully consecrated believers are members of the probationary Church, or Body of Christ, from the moment they receive the begetting of the Holy Spirit. Thenceforth they are to fight a good fight, to run a successful race, that they may win the glorious position which God has invited them to fill.

St. Paul, after years of Christian life and of growth in grace, in knowledge and in the Spirit of the Lord, was reviewing his own course, with a view to stimulating the Philippians, that they also might profit by his experiences. He points out that he had consecrated to the Lord every talent he possessed. Nor did he think that he had done some great thing; for he counted all that he had sacrificed as unworthy of mention, so great was his appreciation of the blessing which has come to the Gospel Church. It is the most wonderful offer that the Great Creator ever made; and we have every reason to believe that there never again will be any offer made to compare with it.

The invitation is not merely to joint-heirship with Christ in His Messianic Kingdom of a thousand years for the blessing and uplifting of humanity. It means, oh! so much more! The faithful ones will be made partakers of the Divine nature and glory, honor and immortality; and they shall be with their Lord, sharers in His glorification, next to the Father through all eternity.

Some will say, Ah, yes; the narrow way was for Jesus and the Apostles, but not for the remainder of the Church. God is not, expecting sacrifices from the Church, nor does He purpose to give them a share with Jesus and the Apostles in the Kingdom honors and glories.

We answer, Let us not be wiser than God. His Word declares that the Apostles were set forth as examples to the Church; and they exhort us to walk in the footsteps of Jesus and in their footsteps as they followed Him. They tell us that "we are all called in the one hope of our calling." And they assure us that it is possible for the poorest, and by nature the meanest, of all who accept the Divine invitation to make his calling and election sure.

To take any other view is to contradict all of the Bible; and to take the Bible is to contradict all the creeds and human theories, which long enough have made the Word of God meaningless to us all. It is high time that we allow God's Word to be heard, and that we take His Word at its full value.

I well know the objection that many have to the doctrine of Election. I know how opposed to it I was myself until I saw how different is the Bible Election from the Election which Brother Calvin taught. In the Bible Election God does the nominating, and each nominated person either makes his calling and election sure, or fails to do so. The responsibility lies with the individual favored with a knowledge of God's Truth, which knowledge constitutes a call.

Furthermore, the Bible Election works no injury to the non-elect. Quite the contrary. The Election of the Kingdom class, along the lines of character-development, obedience to God and self-sacrifice, is for the very purpose of qualifying these elect ones for the great work to which they are called. The elect Seed of Abraham is called for the purpose of blessing all the families of the earth.

In the light of this view of Election, how reasonable are the Bible presentations! And how trials, difficulties and sacrifices—to which the Church is subjected — are evidently necessary for our testing and development in the character-likeness of the Lord! and thus they are a preparation for a share with Him in His future work.

A knowledge of the Divine Plan is very valuable to all who seek to run the race. If we knew not the object of our trials and difficulties, how could we so well learn to endure them patiently! But if we know that God is thus giving us lessons to prepare us for His service in Messiah's Kingdom, how it changes the aspect of the entire matter!

As St. Paul declared, we may even come to the place where we shall rejoice in tribulation, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts, and because we realise that the developing of the fruits and graces of the Holy Spirit is a preparation: and that thus, as St. Peter says, "An entrance shall be ministered unto us abundantly into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour."

The Scriptures clearly show that two classes will fail to win the prize, even after having been begotten of the Holy Spirit. One of these classes the Scriptures liken to the sow who returns to her wallowing in the mire, losing the Spirit of the Lord, the Spirit of the Truth, and abandoning their consecration altogether. (2 Peter 2:22.) These will die the Second Death. Whether their number is large or small is not for us to judge. We may reasonably hope that such unfaithful characters do not predominate.

Then comes another class that the Scriptures declare will fail to get the Kingdom prize. Although members of the Body of Christ now in the present life, they will not be amongst the "more than conquerors" who will be members of the Body beyond the veil. These are represented as a "great company." How great their number is, in proportion to the number who win Christ, the Scriptures do not tell; therefore we may safely withhold judgment in the matter.

The Scriptures tell us that while these love the Truth, appreciate their Covenant of Sacrifice, yet they fail to complete the sacrifice they had agreed to make; and the hindrance is their lack of sufficient love for the Lord and His work. Their lack of zeal leads them to hold back from sacrifice, although they do not draw back to wilful sin, as do the other class. They hold back through fear of death, writes the Apostle: "Who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage," restrained from going on in the footsteps of Jesus and the Apostles to make their election sure.

The Scriptures represent that this class, held back by fear of the dying process, the sneers of the world, etc., will be counted unworthy of a place in the Body of Christ, the Royal Priesthood, but will be amongst the antitypical Levites, who will have a service to perform in conjunction with the Kingdom class. But the attainment of this honor will be only after a demonstration of full loyalty to God.

In conclusion, I exhort all who profess to be God's people to learn to esteem properly the value of this "pearl of great price" which God is now offering to us through Jesus. Only by the loss, the sacrifice, of all earthly things will this highest position on the Heavenly plane be attained; but, as St. Paul points out, it is cheap at the price; and all that we have to give for it is but as dross in comparison.

Kidneys Were The Cause.

Weak back is caused by weak kidneys, and on the first approach or evidence of kidney trouble Doan's Kidney Pills should be used, and serious trouble avoided.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak aching back, and prevent any further complications arising.

Mr. John Briggs, Whitewood, Sask., writes:—"I am sending you this testimonial out of pure gratitude, as I am not a believer in patent medicines, but I got so run down, that I became quite willing to give anything a trial. I paid a visit to our local druggist, and told him I was suffering intense agony with my back. He told me I had kidney trouble, and handed me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, saying it was the best thing he could possibly give me. I tried them, and the effect was certainly marvelous. They are worth $10.00 a box of anybody's money, and I would not be without a box by me. I certainly owe my present condition to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Allowed to Smoke.

The jury smoking cigarettes formed the unusual spectacle witnessed at a recent inquest at Clifton Lodge, Athboy, near Navan, Ireland, on the body of a Japanese servant, named Sanoti Komishi, who was found shot in the grounds surrounding the lodge. The inquiry was held in a harness room adjoining a coach-house, which had been used as a temporary mortuary, and the county inspector asked the coroner if he would permit the jurymen to smoke, as the atmosphere was unpleasant. The coroner consented, and the inspector handed round cigarettes to the jurymen, and also to the police.

Arab Stabbed Actor.

Stabbing an actor while a play was proceeding, an Arab created a scene at a Bhownagar, near Bombay, India, play-house on a recent evening. The actor was attacked outside the theatre. There was a great confusion and hue and cry among the actors and the audience. The offender was arrested and the injured man taken to the hospital.

"His wife is such a splendid manager!"

HOW often have you heard this said of some one of your lady friends?—one who seems to run her household more easily and smoothly than the average. She has the happy knack of buying well—of making a dollar do a full dollar's work. Yet—after all—it doesn't need a genius to become a skilful home manager. The clever housewife is the woman who never buys haphazard. She selects her food supplies. She doesn't merely ask for "some" ham or "some" bacon, for instance. She goes to the trouble of finding out one definite brand of goods of known reputation—and she sticks to that brand. The Swift Canadian Co., Limited, has solved the food-buying problem for practically millions of housewives all over the world.

Wee Willie Winkie Is New Vision in London Gallery

Mr. Arthur Rackham, the Artist of the Nursery, Displays His Drawings of "Mother Goose," "St. Ives" and Other Friends of Childhood.

EXHIBITION OF BLAKE'S PAINTINGS AT THE TATE

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, November 8.

THOSE of his friends and critics who thought that Mr. Arthur Rackham was wasting his natural talent in Wagnerian subjects will point to his exhibition at the Leicester Galleries as a complete justification of their opinions, which were formed on his inimitable drawings for "Rip Van Winkle," the "Ingoldsby Legends" and more or less similar themes. His genius finds fullest scope, not in imaginative flights, but in the fanciful and the grotesque, particularly as they appeal to children of all ages. He is the artist of the nursery, just as William Miller was its laureate. With rare insight and charm he illustrates the latter's:—

"Wee Willie Winkie runs through the town,
Upstairs and downstairs, in his night-gown,
Tirlin' at the window, cryin' at the lock,
'Are the weans in their beds, for it's noo ten o'clock?'"

Most of his water colors at the Leicester are pictorial comments and appreciations of "Mother Goose" and other nursery rhymes. "As I Was Going to St. Ives" shows Mr. Rackham's fancy in its happiest mood. He himself figures as the fortunate pilgrim to St. Ives—fortunate, that is, to have seen such an avalanche of cats and witches, and even more so in his ability to present his fantastic visions in this graphic fashion. Very sympathetically he enters into the joy of the squirrels and the brownies as they watch the fair maid who, on the first of May, perpetuates her beauty by washing in dew from the hawthorn tree—a legend which recalls Stevenson's lines:—

"And ye shall wash your linen and keep your body white
In rainfall at morning and dewfall at night."

The fun of "Hark! Hark! The Dogs Do Bark, the Beggars Are Coming to Town," is infectious. With the little lad in front you go piping down the street to the amusement of old and young. "Mother Goose," "There Was an Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," "Cook-a-Doodle-Doo" and "Jack Sprat and His Wife" also are genuinely humorous, and they reveal the artist's happy power of observation and rare technical skill.

The remarkably comprehensive exhibition of the works of William Blake organized by Mr. Charles Aitken at the Tate Gallery will [illegible] the question:—"Was Blake a genius or a madman with lucid moments?" Some will find the answer to both questions at this exhibition. The artist himself says:—"The nature of my work is visionary or imaginative." From his earliest days he saw visions, and he used to converse daily with the spirit of his dead brother Robert, just as Mr. W. T. Stead conversed with Julia. He believed he could assume the personality of departed souls.

Blake despised nature, the "vegetative world," as he called it. The things of the imagination alone were real. A spirit or a vision was to him not merely cloudy vapor. It was "organised and minutely articulated beyond all that the mortal and perishing nature can produce." He presents figures of gods and men and women of the most fantastic muscular development in painful attitudes at variance with all anatomical structure.

At his best, however, Blake produced wonderful figures, monumental in design, titanic and awesome in their appeal to the imagination. The winged "Creator," "Nebuchadnezzar," the "Satan" and the "Unidentified Subject of Dantesque Character" are among the most impressive conceptions in imaginative art.

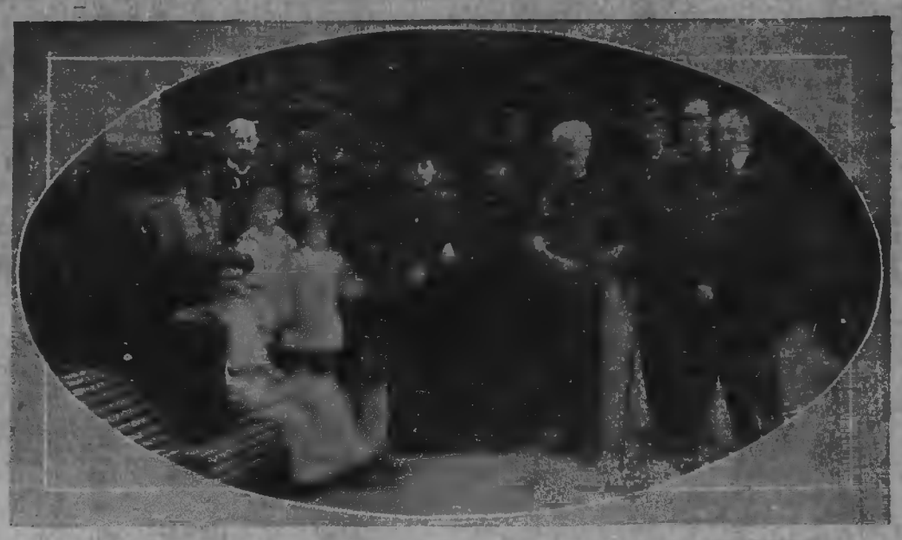
Blake expressed violent dislike for colorists and chiaroscurists. Rubens, Rembrandt, Correggio, Titian and Reynolds were to him "as the enemies of art." Yet a number of his most suggestive and beautiful works are remarkable for the qualities which he denounces. "The Spiritual Body of Pitt Guiding Behemoth," "The Spiritual Body of Nelson Guiding Leviathan," "The Flight Into Egypt" and "Christ Blessing Little Children," to name a few, are passionate or exquisite in color and chiaroscuro.

The exhibition is certainly a unique one, and affords an opportunity to study the works of one of the greatest figures in British art.

A majority of the members of the Old Dudley Art Society remain true to their ancient faiths, and no doubt they have many followers in their fidelity. Among those who have more or less broken with the society's traditions are Mr. Burleigh Bruhl, the president; Mr. W. C. Stacey and Mr. Eyres Simmons.

Mr. Bruhl makes a distinct advance. He has, so to speak, stepped out of the opaque dark of his former pictures into the clear daylight in "At Heybridge Basin" and "On Dyffryn Sands, Merioneth." Both are fresh and crisp, and temperament moves to vitality the factors that constitute the latter. The "Barbican, Plymouth," by Mr. Simmons, indicates a knowledge of craft and considerable appreciation of atmosphere to bring objects into artistic relation. Of Mr. Stacey's contributions, the best is the bright, broadly treated "Dinner on the Farm."

Queen Alexandra and Her Relatives



The group photograph shown herewith was taken recently at Bernstorff Castle by special command of Her Majesty. Reading from left to right, the figures are the Duke of Cumberland, Princess Victoria, Princess Olga of Cumberland, seated; Prince George of Greece, Princess George of Greece, in front of whom are standing their children, Prince Petros and Princess Eugenie of Greece; Prince Petros recently broke his arm and is seen carrying it in a sling; Queen Alexandra, the Empress Marie of Russia, the Duchess of Cumberland, Prince Valdemar of Denmark, his son, Prince Aage of Denmark, and Prince Antoine of Orleans.

Payment for Votes Already an Exact Science in China

Election of Yuan Shih-kai to the Presidency Attended by Amazing Circumstances, in Which Recalcitrants Are Bulldozed and Even Starved While Forced to Vote.

"BOODLE" ABUNDANT AND NONE OF IT WASTED

(Special Dispatch.)
Pekin, November 8.

THE recent election of Yuan Shih-kai to the Presidency of the Republic of China affords most interesting examples of what peculiar things can be done in a free and enlightened republic—as this newest and largest aspirant to republican honors is called by the "heroes" who founded it.

The election of a Chinese President compares in no particular with a similar event in America. There is no stumping the country, no touring round and whipping the citizens to a frenzie from the tail of a hundred mile an hour express; no sixteen speeches a morning by rival candidates; no popular upheaval; no "boose." But there is abundant "boodle." Payment for votes is reduced to a fine art, and the ostentatious display of force is reduced to a finer one. That is where the would-be President in China has the advantage if he happens to have been in power over the army.

The election which has just placed Yuan Shih-kai in the Presidential chair came ahead of the constitution which he swears to uphold. The committee which occupied the Temple of Heaven in its work of drafting a constitution was making remarkably slow progress when intimation was conveyed to them at the instance of the President that it would be well if they first of all drafted the section dealing with the election of the President and postponed the remainder for a later day. The hint permitted of no evasion. It came just as Yuan Shih-kai arrived on top of the rebels and after the "heroes" had placed the Sea of Japan between themselves and what they had previously euphemistically described as "the greatest Republic on earth."

Arranging the Term.

The members of the Constitution Committee were convinced upon reflection that it would be profitable to be wise in time, and forthwith the draft of the rules and regulations for making of Presidents in China was produced. One rule placed the term at six years; another prevented a President from seeking re-election, and a few others placed restraints which were aimed directly at Yuan Shih-kai, the members hoping they would eventually be adopted by Parliament, but paving the way for escape from culpability, if serious objection arose to them, by declaring that they were only the basis for consideration and that was all the committee was expected to prepare.

Very little time elapsed before the members of the committee began to hear gentle remonstrances from various military and police organizations. Some conveyed sinister threats, others a hint that if considerable freedom were not given the President, perhaps there would be no need of a constitution at all.

When the draught reached Parliament similar "demonstrations" were made, the military and police assuming a more dictatorial tone, demanding that wide scope be accorded to the President and that more than one term be provided for. Representation to the President by the indignant members of Parliament brought a rap over the knuckles for the "interfering military and police," but the man in the street was not so blind that he could not see the tongue in the official cheek.

Prevented from openly reminding the members of Parliament of their duty, the military and police adopted other means. Circulars were issued to individual members and were publicly distributed in front of Parliament House, warning recalcitrants of troubles in store if any nonsense was shown in moulding a section of the constitution of which they did not approve.

The campaign was not without its effect. Members known to be opponents of Yuan Shih-kai who had previously proved immune to the temptations of dollars became alarmed, and when the voting stage was reached they were prepared to let amendments defeating their own object go through without much question. Therefore the term of the President was set at five years, with the right of re-election for a second term, and provision for an exhaustive ballot was agreed to.

Taking the Ballot.

For the first ballot a three-fourths majority out of a two-thirds attendance of the members of the joint houses was required to elect a President, and if that ballot failed a second ballot on similar lines was to be held; a second failure to lead to the two candidates with the highest votes being put up to the vote, a bare majority to elect.

Although it was fairly certain that Yuan Shih-kai would be returned, a suspicion lurked in quarters that perhaps the majority would go against him when voting time came—the vote being secret—and again the military became active. The well known leaders of the opposition were once more warned, and on the day of the election the aggressive attitude of the military was not disguised.

Members of Parliament and the public in general found the locality of Parliament House occupied by mounted men, or infantry and policemen, with a large number of soldiers in mufti standing by to enforce reason if it did not display itself voluntarily. It is estimated that three thousand soldiers were on duty, and that many others had been placed throughout the city.

Early the rumor was allowed to spread that trouble was brewing, and members "felt in their bones" that if they kicked over the traces and did not elect Yuan Shih-kai the Parliament buildings would be assailed, the city would be the scene of fires and looting, and the soldiers would rush to the Presidential palace and declare Yuan Shih-kai Emperor. This, of course, may have been merely a figment of the imagination, but the belief was entertained by foreign residents as well as by Chinese that something untoward would happen if opponents of Yuan had the temerity not to elect him.

As members of Parliament approached the House they were accosted by elderly men who knelt on the road and begged them to "elect Yuan Shih-kai, so that China may have peace," and when some of them were asked who suggested that method of appeal they stated that they had been paid twenty cents each for the performance. As the members passed in through the gates and saw the formidable array of troops and the ominous looking self-appointed guardians of the interests of Yuan Shih-kai, most of them, no doubt, made up their minds that they had better pocket their prejudices and cast their votes as the men with the arms wished, but the result was not so speedily in favor of Yuan Shih-kai as was at first thought it would be.

Starving Them to Elect.

To the surprise of every one the first ballot resulted in the Provisional President being 30 votes behind the requisite number to elect him. The opening of the ballot boxes was awaited with tense interest, and when the result became known among the soldiers there was a restless movement that boded no good for the unhappy Parliamentarians confined in the building. Members who strolled about the grounds and who attempted to leave were peremptorily refused permission to do so. The gate was crowded by a large, noisy mob of soldiers, who threatened physical violence if any one left and so prevented a quorum.

The members who wished to escape were thus defeated, and sullenly they responded to the bell for the second ballot. It was now long past luncheon time and no food was to be obtained in the enclosure, nor could any be g[illegible]; in Parcels and packages suggested bombs to the guardians at the gates and they refused them admission. Anyway, they thought it better that the members should starve a little and so be brought to their senses.

By six o'clock in the evening the second ballot was counted, and once again Yuan Shih-kai failed to obtain the required votes. There was a murmur of astonishment among the visitors in the galleries, but the members in the Chamber regarded the result good naturedly, hungry as some of them were. The soldiers were less restrained in their feelings. They had had enough of the whole day wait and considered the second failure to elect as a deliberate slight of the provisional President. Certainly it was a blow at Yuan Shih-kai's prestige that he should be submitted to a third ballot to be elected.

The sight of a member near the gates aggravated the soldiers outside, and some very pertinent advice was given to those within hearing. The irritation broke into activity whenever an unhappy coolie happened to provoke a warrior or some other spectator ruffled a guardian's feathers. There were several short and sharp scuffles, and some unfortunates took away broken heads to remind them of the election.

Meantime the bell rang for the final ballot, and members determined to rush it through. By eight o'clock it was declared and amidst wild cheering the Speaker announced that Yuan Shih-kai had been elected President, with a vote of 507, Li Yuan Hung being the other nominee, with 179.

The "Bomb" Explodes.

As the Speaker read the result an enterprising photographer lighted a flash for a photograph and precipitated a panic. The members and the spectators, who were without warning of the intention of the photographer, broke for the doorways and windows. There was wild shouting, a fighting mob and a room full of smoke. Every one thought a bomb had been thrown and sudden death was about to be let loose upon them. It was an anti-climax, but the shock straightened out the nerves of the hungry members who had been shut within the grounds since eight in the morning. It was now eight at night, and the hullabaloo which followed realisation of the cause of the flash and the smoke was deafening. Echoes reached the railings where the troops still held guard, and, feeling it to be the sign that Yuan Shih-kai had been elected, cheered accordingly. But they had formulated a plan to find out if possible those who had voted for some other person and thus delayed the result. As the first man appeared at the gate to reach the street a rush was made at him and wild yells told him to raise his hat and cheer. The man happened to be a foreigner. "What for?" he demanded. "Because Yuan Shih-kai is President," they replied, and forthwith he swung his hat, despite the commands of officers that "he is a foreigner; leave him alone." The Chinese who came out were scrutinized carefully, and any hesitation to wave the headgear would have meant serious handling. As the crowd surged out the word went back that the mob was endeavoring to detect opponents of the President and consequently all were cheered, the hats catching hope.

Thus was Yuan Shih-kai elected.

FROM MILL TO COLLEGE

The accompanying portrait is that of Miss Annie Evans, an eighteen-year-old cardroom worker of Stalybridge, England, who has just won the Herbert Rhodes scholarship founded to help promising Stalybridge musicians and tenable at the Manchester Royal College of Music. Miss Evans worked until recently in a cotton mill and although she left home at half past five o'clock each morning, found time to devote a part of the day to her musical studies. She has a soprano voice and is a clever violinist.

FINDS CHECK FOR PHILIPPINE PLAGUE

Dr. E. L. Walker Makes Announcement as to Means to Fight Amoebic Dysentery.

EXPERIMENTED 3 YEARS

Declares That It Is Possible to Eradicate Disease from Any Well Kept Community in the Tropics.

(Special Dispatch.)
MANILA, November 8.

AFTER three years of experiment to determine the nature, prevention and cure of amoebic dysentery, Dr. E. L. walker, of the Bureau of Science of the government of the Philippine Islands, has just made public some important discoveries regarding the insidious tropical disease. His statement, printed in the Philippine Journal of Science, gives the history of many experiments in which information was gained by feeding various kinds of amoebae to volunteers.

In the problem of tropical sanitation there is at present no more serious consideration than that of amoebic dysentery, and effective measures to prevent spread of the disease have been sought for many years. Amoebae are to be found everywhere in the tropics, in the water, on soil, on plants and even in the air, and the ease with which the ailment is contracted, together with the difficulty of curing it, has made it a vital menace in tropical countries.

One of the results attained by Dr. Walker is the proof that only one species of amoeba is pathogenic and that it is possible to eradicate the disease from any well kept and sanitary community in the tropics. He has found effective treatments, most of them much more moderate and comfortable than those formerly practised, and through his work the ravages of the dysentery have been halted to a considerable extent.

In a statement made to your correspondent concerning his researches Dr. Walker said:—

"The knowledge obtained in our investigations divides the amoebae into three distinct classes and enables a specialist to diagnose with certainty the progress of the disease and the particular course of treatment applicable. It makes it unnecessary for those persons who are parasitized with the harmless entamoeba to undergo treatment and enables the physician to forestall with treatment attacks and relapses of the more serious quality of the disease.

"The precautions that must be taken to prevent infection of the virulent entamoeba must be generally known by all persons living in the tropics, since the pathogenic entamoebia can propagate only as a parasite in the intestines of man. It has been definitely established that every case of entamoebic dysentery must originate directly or indirectly from some other case of the same type and the steps to tramp out the disease must therefore be organized and general.

"We have made it clear that water or raw vegetables of themselves, or in consequence of the common amoebae in or upon them, cannot cause entamoebic dysentery. It is only when they are contaminated with faecal matter that they become passive carriers of the infection. There is a possibility, of course, of contamination of water or food in cases where sewage is allowed to enter into a water supply or where contaminated fertilizer is used to produce vegetables. The matter, therefore, rests largely with care and sanitation, and a great amount of the disease can be curbed in this way alone."

Now Build Ships Longitudinally

Lloyd's Register Shows Striking Departure in Construction on Isherwood System.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, November 8.

CONSIDERABLE prominence is given in the annual report of Lloyd's Shipping Register to "a remarkable increase in the amount of tonnage classed by the society in respect to vessels intended for carrying oil in bulk;" but there are other matters to which Lloyd's pays special attention, and as shipowners and shipbuilders look to Lloyd's for "a sign of the times" it is possible to form a fair indication of the things that count among the maze of new inventions.

From the point of view of the tonnage involved and the advantages offered to shipowners, irrespective of the nature of the propulsive power, comes that most striking departure in systems of ship construction known as the Isherwood system. Using the actual words of Lloyd's report, "the number of vessels built and building upon the Isherwood system of longitudinal framing has largely increased during the last twelve months. Up to the end of June, 1913, 116 such vessels, representing 552,845 tons, had been assigned the society's classification, and there are now in course of construction under the inspection of the society's surveyors eighty-five of these vessels, registering 451,344 tons—altogether a total of 1,004,189 tons."

Any rumors that Diesel internal combustion engines are unsatisfactory are entirely dispelled by the report, which, after referring to the satisfaction given by the boats in service from one foreign yard, state that "with further experience on those engines, increased economy has been effected, and the improvements have been such that they have also been applied to the older vessels. The confidence which has been obtained as a result of the successful working of the earlier vessels has led the builders to reduce the number of cylinders in the later designs from eight to six per shaft, and at the same time to make the cylinders of such larger dimensions that a considerably higher power will be developed upon each shaft."

The question of the rules dealing with the burning and carrying of oil fuel is also discussed. After pointing to the revision of the rules dealing with fuel the flash point of which does not fall below 150 deg. Fahr., the report points out that "the use of oil fuel with a flash point below 150 deg. Fahr. has not yet become sufficiently general to warrant detailed rules on the subject being formulated by the society. The committee, however, give careful consideration to proposed arrangements in any case in which it is desired to use low flash oil fuel, and they have in fact already approved several installations of this kind."

Lloyd's List to Become a Daily

Now Incorporated with Shipping and Mercantile Gazette, It Will Soon Appear Separately.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, November 8.

THE announcement that Lloyd's List is to have a separate existence as a daily newspaper next year is of interest from the fact that, with the exception of the London Gazette, it is the oldest newspaper in London.

It was started by the city coffee house keeper, Edward Lloyd, who gave his name to the great corporation of underwriters. Lloyd kept a coffee house in Tower street. But about 1692 he removed to Lombard street. To his house were attached the merchants engaged in ship broking, and in the course of time they made it their usual meeting place.

Lloyd was a man of business and enterprise, and he conceived the idea of issuing a newspaper devoted to shipping and commerce. The first number appeared in September, 1696, and was called Lloyd's News. It was a very modest production, consisting of a single sheet printed on both sides, the letterpress measuring only 10½ inches by 5½ inches. There was no regular day of publication, its appearance being regulated evidently by the supply of news, but this news would seem to have been forthcoming in abundance at times, for there were weeks when as many as three numbers were issued from the press.

But the newspaper had a brief career, and with the seventy-sixth number (issued on February 23, 1697) it ceased publication. In the final issue Lloyd had apparently given offence to the government by announcing that the Quakers had petitioned the House of Lords to be excused from all offices. According to the Protestant Mercury, Lloyd was "desired that the statement being groundless and a mistake, he doe retifie in his next."

This the coffee house keeper declined to do, but he promised not to publish any further numbers for a time.

The British Museum, in its great collection of newspapers, has but one copy of Lloyd's News, but in the Bodleian Library at Oxford there is almost a complete set of the entire issue, only the first six numbers being missing.

It was not till 1726 that the newspaper made its reappearance, and then with the title altered to Lloyd's List. Whether Lloyd himself was responsible for its publication it is impossible to say; but at any rate it was issued from "Lloyd's Coffee House."

It is this newspaper which still exists today as the official publication of Lloyd's although since 1836 it has been incorporated with the Shipping and Mercantile Gazette. It is issued daily, and gives the movements of ships in every part of the world and all the news which is likely to be of interest to merchants and the shipping community.

The Shipping and Mercantile Gazette is the property of Messrs. Spottiswoode & Co. (Ltd.), and Lloyd's arrangement with that firm for the issue of the Gazette and Lloyd's List as a joint newspaper will terminate in June next.

The List will then be issued as a daily morning paper, giving all the latest shipping intelligence and articles of special interest to those engaged in shipping, commerce and underwriting.

MUSICAL ATTRACTIONS OFFERED TO AMERICA

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, November 8.

MR. M. H. HANSON, the American concert manager who has been in Europe for some months, announced yesterday that he had some splendid musical attractions to offer for the season of 1914-15.

He will take Signor Ferruclo Busoni, the well known pianist, to America in the autumn of 1914, and the German violinist, Professor Willy Burmester, has signed for one hundred American concerts to begin about this time.

Signor Busoni will appear in joint recitals with his bosom friend, Signor Arrigo Serato, the Italian violinist, who will also be taken to America by Mr. Hanson.

Mr. Hanson will also present to the American public two American artists who have won success in Europe but are practically unknown in their own country. These are Mrs. Frank King Clark, of Lincoln, Neb., and the tenor Mr. Arthur Alexander, of Portland, Ore., who has for some time been organist of the American Church in Paris.

Mme. Alice Verlet, the coloratura soprano of the Théâtre de la Monnaie, at Brussels, and of the Opéra Comique, in Paris, will go to America for ten special engagements during February, 1914.

Frau Ottilie Metzger, who went to America last year for a special engagement with the New York Philharmonic, will again go to America in February, 1914, when she will appear ten times with the New York Philharmonic and in joint recitals with Frau Marie Rappold-Berger and Herr Franz Egenieff, the baritone now singing in Berlin.

SEAFARING LANGUAGE ON LAW LORD'S LIPS

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, November 8.

MR. JUSTICE PHILLIMORE, the new Law Lord, is a strong Judge, but prim and mild of speech.

It was when he was hearing an admiralty case that the contrast between his manner and the bearing of seafaring witnesses was not without its humorous aspects.

In one action tried before him, the defaulting vessel pleaded "compulsory pilotage," and her captain intimated in his evidence that he was aware that the pilot was taking a course which might lead to mishap.

"But surely," interposed Mr. Justice Phillimore, "you might have said to the pilot, 'You goose, you are steering a wrong course.'"

The suggestion of such dainty language on the bridge left the captain speechless. The only person who would have been more astonished would have been the pilot, if he had heard himself addressed by the captain in such drawing-room terms.

NO PITY FOR PRINCE WHO "HATES" PORRIDGE

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, November 8.

FROM time immemorial oatmeal has had a reputation of being good for the complexion. Whether it be due to oatmeal or not the complexions of the royal children, like that of their mother, Queen Mary, have always been admired and envied; but Scotch porridge has always formed the first course of their breakfast.

The Prince of Wales alone among the family hates it. One morning lately he "funked" it, and begged his mother to let him off "just this once." But the Queen replied promptly, "I want you to grow up tall and muscular."

The Prince, who is known to be very jealous of his sister Mary's inches, gulped it down.

Headquarters.

Judge:—"Do you have as much trouble finding your cuff and collar buttons as you used to?"

"No, I always find 'em in one place now."

"Indeed!"

"Yes; I go to the vacuum cleaner."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE TEST

All Rose's girl friends told her that she would have trouble when she became engaged to Rex Henrik.

"Before you came back from your visit," said one girl, "he flirted outrageously with every girl in the neighbourhood."

But Rose only smiled and said: "That's all right. I was not engaged to him then, you know."

At the death of his uncle Rex Henrik had become heir to a large farm in Munroe. He had settled down and astonished the friends of his youth by his skill in farming and his engagement to pretty Rose Brown.

Rose had one acquaintance who was far from friendly toward her. Helen Bray had always been jealous of her and did not try to cover nor conceal her feelings.

"I have a plan," she said suddenly one day to several girl friends, as they stood at her gate chatting. "I have a cousin who is three years older than I. She is a handsome brunette, and I guess with a good deal of coaxing I can induce her to come and make me a visit. If I can," she said determinedly, "Rose Brown wants to watch her beau. Iola Davenport will flirt with him in spite of her."

The girls watched and waited for the coming of Helen's cousin. She was very pretty in her white silk gown with a bunch of big red roses upon her bosom, but no one there made her more welcome, nor praised her beauty more than Rose Brown.

"You will spend the summer with us, of course?" asked Rose almost immediately after her introduction.

"That depends," laughed Iola Davenport lightly, "on how well I enjoy myself."

"I am sure we will all try to make your visit pleasant," returned Rose readily. "We want to make you feel that you would like always to stay with us here." She smiled sweetly as she spoke, while some of the others knowing what they did, wondered at the way in which Rose received her rival.

Always Rose planned every pleasure for her friend, Miss Davenport, who received them with her usual graciousness. Never before were there as many picnics and dances as were planned during that short summer, and Rose was as gay as her rival was gracious, and carelessly left Rex in the company of the charming Iola.

"It seemed strange that Rose can not see that Rex is actually becoming quite attentive to Iola Davenport," more than one of Rose's friends was heard to remark.

Iola Davenport soon saw the situation herself. "She either does not care or she feels sure of him," she thought, and as the short summer days fled swiftly, she still lingered among them.

"I might do worse than marry Rex," she said, amusingly, as she stood before her mirror admiring her own dark beauty in the reflection. "He has money enough, so they all say, but I could not and would not mope my life ont in misery here in this town. We will go to the city to live. I never was intended for a farmer's wife, anyway, and I don't intend to be—long!" she added decidedly, as she began to arrange her hair.

"I hope that I have not done wrong in placing them together so much," she said softly to herself. "I merely wanted to test Rex. I am afraid that I have lost him, for ever, and it seems as if my heart would break. I love him so, but I want all his love, or none of it, and that is why I did it."

Rex Henrik stood in the open door of his big farmhouse and looked away over the wide spreading fields, ripe with ready harvest; but his thoughts were not there.

"Confound it!" he muttered meaningly to himself. "I don't see what makes Rose avoid me so much and leave me to that Iola Davenport! I can not stand it any longer and I shall speak to her about it if she goes with us on the ride to-morrow. I like Iola well enough, but Rose is the only woman I want for a wife and she ought to know that I would like a little of her company occasionally." As he spoke he sighed and went off to his work with heavy heart.

This ride was a regular event with the young folks every summer when the first touches of autumn were in the air. The following day was favourably fair and they started off in great spirits with Rex Henrik driving his pair of big bay horses hitched to his buckboard and with Iola Davenport sitting chatting beside him. Rose Brown contented herself with a seat behind.

Rose kept the tears from showing in her eyes, but it was with an effort that she carried on an indifferent conversation and laughed as lightly as any one about her, while Rex, unknown to her, was mildly cross with the brunette beauty beside him for having usurped the place he intended for Rose. He hardly heard her constant chatter nor saw her gracious glances meant only for him.

At last they reached the end of their ride and were soon busy spreading out their lunch on the grass. After they had eaten all that lay before them they scattered and strolled about the woods and fields for an hour or so before the return homeward.

With heavy, aching and anxious heart Rose managed to slip silently away by herself and, sitting down upon a big, mossy log, beside the brook, she covered her face with her hands and cried softly to herself. She was startled suddenly by a step beside her and glancing up quickly she saw Rex standing before her, looking at her with the love light showing stronger than she had ever seen it before in his eyes.

She blushed confusedly as she rose to her feet and began to walk away. He stepped quickly forward and seized her almost rudely in his arms and drew her to him.

"Why have you wandered off here all alone?" he asked anxiously, as he looked down into her tearful eyes.

"Because ——" she stammered slowly, "I thought you wanted to have her all to yourself," she replied readily.

"Who?" he demanded decidedly.

"Iola Davenport," returned Rose. "I thought that you were tired of me and wanted only — her," she said, sobbingly.

"Do you think that I care for her—Iola Davenport?" demanded Rex almost desperately, and then, as she simply replied by bowing her head he went on, "I do not. You should be the first to know that, Rose," he said, seriously. "She has fairly forced her company upon me and I was waiting only—you—all the time, sweetheart."

"Oh, Rex!" murmured Rose, happily, "I was the one to blame all the time. I put her before me simply to try to test you, and I thought I had broken my own heart. But I love you now more than ever, for I know now that you are — all mine!" she said, seriously.

I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

WHEN TO PLOW

No rule can be laid down for plowing that will hold for all conditions or kinds of soil, but with very few exceptions fall plowing will be followed by better crops than spring plowing. The action of the frost in disintegrating the soil particles is favorable in producing available plant food. The compacting of the soil by freezing and thawing is likely to give better moisture conditions also, except on extremely wet soils. Fall plowing destroys many of the weeds starting from seeds germinated early in the fall, besides destroying the nests of many injurious insects. These factors all bear on the yield of the crop.

Quite as important a reason, perhaps, for getting all of the plowing possible done in the fall is the better distribution of the labor on the farm. The planting season is short and if seeding must be held back in the spring while plowing is done, late seeding results, and in the hurry plowing is likely to be poorly done. Late seeding on poor spring plowing means a small crop and smaller profits. Fall plowing, even as late as November 15, will save time in the spring, and is almost sure to result in better crops.

How Brown Learned How.

There is a man who makes shoes for children—and sells them to stores all over Canada

But he is only just learning how people buy.

It was this way: His wife—let us call her Mrs. Brown—'phoned to him and asked him to buy some underwear for little Brown.

Picture Brown now among the throng of mothers at the "Children's Underwear" counter. He asks for Underwear for a child of six. He looks it over helplessly. What on earth does he know about Children's Underwear? For lack of anything better to say he asks: "Is this good quality?" The answer is short and quite conclusive: "It's Blank's"—naming a well-advertised line. That short word says everything. Brown pays his money and goes home, quite satisfied with his purchase.

Now what bothers Brown—a manufacturer of shoes, is this: How would it affect the purchase of a child's shoes if the salesman said "They're Brown's"?

Nobody knows Brown's shoes. Brown doesn't advertise.

The name Brown signifies nothing when used in connection with children's shoes. The salesman must use all his persuasive wiles to induce people to buy them.

The point is—If the name Brown was as synonomous with Children's Shoes as "Blank's" is with Underwear, wouldn't Brown sell more shoes with less effort?

SOFT ROT OF POTATOES

A disease of the potatoe that is sometimes confused with the rot caused by blight is the bacterial soft rot of potatoes, known also as "black leg." Experiments have proved beyond doubt that the disease is caused by bacterial organisms, and also that these organisms are almost identical with those that produce soft rot in vegetables.

The most characteristic form of this disease is the soft rot of the tubers. Affected plants also show a darkening of the stems, both above and below the surface of the ground. At the same time the plants appear unthrifty and underseized. Instead of spreading out, the tops grow more compact and the leaves curl up, later becoming yellowish in color as the plant gradually dies. When the disease is making rapid progress the stem often topples over before the rest of the top is attacked.

While the disease is active the tissues show a soft, wet decay. As a rule, the seed tuber attached to an affected stem is entirely decayed. The young growing tubers are not usually infected so much by the disease following the stems as by coming in contact with the diseased seed tuber or by the bacteria entering them through the bites of insects or wounds made by cultivating. For this latter reason the disease may sometimes progress more rapidly in the tubers than in the tops.

TUBER INDICATIONS

On cutting open a partly diseased tuber, the healthly and diseased portions are easily distinguished, a dark line separating the two. When the skin is broken a white watery liquid can be pressed out. In later stages the whole tuber becomes a mass of dark grey pulp.

If a diseased potato is allowed to dry out, the soft part becomes corky. In this state the disease can remain dormant for a long time until placed again in a damp place. Thus the disease is carried over from one season to the next. When storing in the fall, great care should be exercised in sorting the potatoes. If some apparently sound ones are put in the cellar and conditions for the development of the disease become favorable, rot will set in and spread through the whole lot. The bacteria produce a substance called an enzime, which has the power of breaking down the tissue of a healthy potato and making an entrance for the bacteria.

The principal source of infection in a crop is from diseased seed. Therefore, only absolutely clean seed should be planted. As the bacteria do not readily enter healthy plants, care should be exercised in cultivating so as not to injure the tubers. Insects should be kept in check because of the wounds they make in the plants. It is known that the bacteria can live in the soil for three or four years; therefore, a rotation of crops should be followed. To ensure clean seed, the potatoes should be carefully sorted this fall and again next spring.

Nipigon Village Suffers $75,000 Loss by Fire.

NIPIGON, Ont., Nov. 10. — The business portion of this village, sixty miles east of Fort William, was totally destroyed yesterday by a fire, which started at 8 p.m. Saturday and continued until 12.30 yesterday afternoon.

The fire was discovered in a clothing store and swept west as far as the International Hotel, where it was checked. The business places burned include three stores, two restaurants, three barber shops, two pool-rooms, and two butcher shops. The total loss is approximately $75,000, partly covered by insurance.

The origin of the fire is unknown.

FORMER ATHLETE DEAD.

George Tracey of Halifax Is Killed By a Train.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 10.—George Tracey, 52 years old, a member of the firm of Cunard & Co., local coal dealers, was struck by a suburban train at Rockingham Saturday night and instantly killed. Accompanied by Miss Jean McCurdy, he was returning from Bedford. It is supposed that while attempting to cross the track he stumbled and was struck by the train. His body was badly mangled.

In 1886 Mr. Tracey won the amateur half-mile running championship of America at New York and in 1887 he again annexed the half-mile championship at Detroit. He was at one time a prominent amateur oarsman and football player. He was unmarried and leaves one sister residing in Chicago.

Hears He's Dead; Comes Home.

SHARON, Pa., Nov. 10.—The body of a man killed by a train here three weeks ago was identified by Mrs. W. McConnel as that of her husband and was interred in a Youngstown, Ohio, cemetery. Saturday while Mrs. McConnel and her children were at dinner, McConnel walked in. He said he had been in Ohio searching for work and returned home when he read his "death notice" in a newspaper. The identity of the man buried as McConnel has not been determined.

Hotel Porter Found Dead.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 10. — Donald McIntyre, hotel porter, was found dead here yesterday morning in the dressing-room of the new Dalhousie street theatre in course of construction. He had wandered in Saturday night to go to sleep. No inquest will be held, death being due to heart trouble.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

PROMISES REFORMS.

Hon. T. W. Crothers Has a Talk With Montreal Laborites.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10—Legislation to compel harbor commissions to abide by the Government fair wage schedule, legislation to prevent intimidation and molestation on the part of union men towards free labor and to impose a penalty on any employer who dismisses a man on account of his joining the union ranks, a close investigation into the complaints made with regard to extra work at the postoffice, a careful study of the alien labor, as to the possibility of improving it, a serious and immediate consideration of all the complaints and suggestions made by the labor organizations were the things promised by Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor to the delegates of the different labor unions assembled at the Labor Temple Friday evening.

The meeting was a free talk between the Minister and the union delegates, each one expressing his views on the present labor conditions, and offering his suggestions to improve the situation of workingmen. In the course of his speech the Minister made it clear that first of all the Government was determined to maintain order in this country and punish severely authors of disorders of a similar nature to those which occurred in Vancouver some months ago.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Ludwig III., the new King of Bavaria, who replaces the mad King Otto, took the oath yesterday in the throne room of the palace at Munich.

About $5,000 damage was done to the contents of the harbor board's freight shed, Toronto, by fire which broke out at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

W. A. Borah, a wealthy merchant, was found guilty of murdering his wife and their daughter, and sentenced to life imprisonment at Atoka, Okla.

Wm. Ayres, motorman, was instantly killed and twenty persons injured Saturday morning, when a trolley car crashed into a grocery store at Laketon, Pa.

Winnipeg, on behalf of the sister provinces, yesterday turned out en masse to a meeting to welcome Gen. Bramwell Booth, commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army.

The last rail on the extension of the Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto Railway, was laid Saturday, and a temporary passenger service will be commenced within two weeks.

A strong earthquake shock occurred at Messina, Sicily, last night. It was followed by two shocks of less severity. No damage was done, but the people are greatly alarmed.

A four-year-old girl, knocked down by an automobile in which Prince Friedrich Leopold of Prussia was driving at Potsdam, Germany, died after the prince had conveyed her to a hospital.

Suffragists made another demonstration at the service of St. Paul's, London, yesterday. At intervals they kept singing "God Save Annie Kenney and Sylvia Pankhurst" who are being persecuted for conscience sake."

Forty-two newspapers, commenting on the Bellis trial at Kiev, Russia, have been fined a total of 12,850 roubles, and 28 newspapers have been confiscated. Six editors have been imprisoned, and six are already awaiting trial.

Murdered at Own Door.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Nov. 10.—John B. Schoessel, aged 51, foreman of the machine shops at the Rock Island Government Arsenal, was murdered on the doorstep of his home in this city Saturday night while returning from practicing with a church choir, of which he was a member. He was accosted by three men at his gate and was stabbed through the heart. His assailants escaped. There is no known motive.

Suffers From Breakdown.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Earl Grey is suffering from nervous breakdown, and all engagements extending for a considerable period have been cancelled.

EAT CABBAGE, FISH SAUSAGE, NEW BREAD

No Indigestion, Gas, Sourness or Upset Stomach If You'll Take "Pape's Diapepsin"--Try This!

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favourite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realise in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

Too Smart For Thief.

BERLIN, Ont., Nov. 10.—Superintendent Atkinson, of the Dominion Express Co., is in the city investigating and endeavoring to locate a man who attempted to cash on Friday a money order for $35, bearing the number of one of the stolen money orders which were stolen at Hespeler some time ago, when two books were taken.

Miss Schwaltzer, the clerk to whom the order was presented for payment, quickly recognizing the stolen order by the number, called Agent A. J. Ross to the scene, but the man was not apprehended and he left without getting his money.

Lived In Six Reigns.

GUELPH, Nov. 10.—Mrs. John Mitchell died at her home on Queen street on Friday night, in her 100th year. She was a lifelong resident, and her memory was stored with events in the early history of Guelph and Wellington County. She lived under six British sovereigns. Several months ago, when a son of Mrs. Mitchell's died the strange event occurred of a man of 80 years being buried from his mother's residence.

If further evidence were required to prove that the Caucasion race is deteriorating one has only to mention the fact that African cannibals do not think white men are good to eat.

New York has seen twenty churches turned into theaters and garages. Now a theater is to be turned into a Bible students' tabernacle with Scriptural "movies." Is the tide turning?

It is said to cost $20,000 to make a new ballad popular. Then times have changed since the days of Stephen C. Foster. He could set the country singing with a capital of 10 cents invested in paper and ink.

The statement that Manuel will soon be returned to the throne of Portugal may be based on what is likely to happen if his new German wife should demand that he be restored. A Deutsch hausfrau can do quite a lot of things.

The free port of Hamburg has now passed London, with 25,000,000 tons of exports and imports in 1912. Nothing now remains ahead of the old Hanse-town but Antwerp, with 20,650,430 tons in 1911, and New York, with 27,222,903 tons in the fiscal year 1912.

NO MORE TURTLE SERUM WANTED

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—Dr. Friedman's "turtle" serum, which was heralded widely a few months ago, as a positive cure for tuberculosis, did not prove of any value in the tests that were made in this city. The German physician-discoverer, who was given an opportunity to demonstrate the value of his serum on some sufferers here, failed to produce results of value. Montreal physicians gave him a good test and every assistance in his experiments; Dr. Friedman had complained of the treatment that he received in New York, but the landed serum did not prove here the boon that it was said to be.

Dr. Adami, who watched the tests with great interest all the time Dr. Friedman was in Montreal, said: "The results were not satisfactory. In most cases there was no change at all. We gave him every opportunity to prove that his serum would cure the tubercular patient, or be of value in the cases, but there was no satisfactory result. It failed to cure." Some of the patients, he added, had died since they were experimented upon by the doctor, and in no case did the serum prove of any importance."

Dr. Harding, superintendent of the Royal Edward Institute, would not say what the results of the "cure" were. "I have not a word to say," he declared, when asked what were the results of the local test. "I am tired of the thing. It is dead."

He did not express any surprise when told that some German capitalists were in Berlin floating a large company for the manufacture and exploitation of Dr. Friedman's "turtle" serum and that arrangements were being made there for the sale of the serum in four different strengths and that physicians were to be supplied with detailed instructions for its use.

There were a couple of places in the United States, he said, where the treatment was being used, and the suffering one had to go to those institutions. It was not available for the regular practitioner. It was so tied up that it was not available for any general use.

"Is that according to medical ethics?" he was asked.

"It certainly is not," was the quick reply. "I know just how it resulted here, but I have nothing to say," he continued as the interview ended.

The Secret of Good Digestion

In perfect health, with regular and healthful action of the liver and kidneys, you need not know there is such a thing as digestion or indigestion. Unfortunately, however, modern life is artificial, and not many people avoid suffering more or less from troubles of this nature.

The great secret lies in keeping the liver and kidneys in health and vigour, for then the food is passed quickly along the alimentary canal, the nutritive portions being assimilated in the blood stream and the poisoned waste materials are passed out of the body.

When the liver and kidneys get wrong you will obtain relief most promptly and effectively by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If chronic indigestion is to be cured it must be by enlivening the action of these filtering and excretory organs. To persons who have thought only of the stomach as being the offending organ this may seem strange, but any competent physician will tell you this is correct.

ENLISTS CLERICAL AID.

Hamilton's Mayor Wants Ministers To Back Milk Strike.

HAMILTON, Nov. 10—Mayor John Allan, who inaugurated a milk boycott here when the dealers boosted the price to nine cents a quart, Saturday sent a circular letter to all city clergymen, asking them to join in the fight.

He asked that they take the matter up with their congregations and try and get them to join in an absolute boycott, which he is satisfied, would make the dealers back down within a month. His worship says that he already has the assurance of several of the ministers that they will do this.

The Hotelkeepers' Association has also called a meeting for the purpose of trying to make some arrangements to buy their supply of milk direct from the farmers.

Burned To Death.

BLENHEIM, Ont., Nov. 9.—Alex. Martin, P.M.R.R. employe, died early yesterday morning, as a result of his terrible experience when the P.M.R.R. coal hoist was destroyed early Friday morning. He was handling gasoline with a lighted lantern in his hand, with the result that an explosion followed, setting his clothes on fire. He managed to extinguish the fire on himself by rolling on some newly-plowed land nearby, but not before he was so terribly burned that flesh and finger nails fell from him. He is survived by a widow and grown-up family.

Two Charges of Murder.

FRAIL, WEAKLY CHILD

Made Strong by Vinol

So many cases like this are coming to our attention for the benefit of fathers and mothers of weak, sickly, ailing children in this vicinity we publish the following letter:

Mrs. J. P. Weatherford, Litchfield, Ill., says: "We have had an invalid child for the past nine years and until we began using Vinol, we sometimes thought there was little hope for him. He would have terrible coughing spells at night and they would leave him so exhausted. We tried everything, but to no avail. At last some one suggested that we try Vinol, and we noticed a change in him from the very first. The coughing spells ceased and he gained in strength right along. We would not be without it and would advise parents who have frail and weakly children to try Vinol."

This is because the child needed the strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic iron that Vinol contains. No oil, delicious taste. Children love it. We give back your money if Vinol does not benefit.

THE MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—An advance of 1⅛ to 1⅜ in the close at Buenos Ayres today gave a firm finish to wheat here, final figures being unchanged to a shade net higher. New crop movement caused selling that carried corn down ⅜ to ½. Big stocks lowered oats a shade to ⅛. Provisions, under lightness of demand, closed irregular, 2½c to 5c lower to 2½c up.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼ to ½ lower; corn, ⅜ to ½ higher.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8.—Trading on the local wheat market in options was light, and prices during the earlier hours were easy on an expected increase in the world's shipments and more reassuring advices regarding the crops in the Argentine. Later the Buenos Ayres market closed 1¼ to 1⅝ higher, causing shorts to cover over the week-end, hardening prices fractionally.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛ to ¼ lower and closed unchanged to ⅛ lower. Cash demand for all grades of wheat was good, except No. 1 northern, which was slow. Exporters say there is an improved inquiry for cash wheat, oats and barley. Cash wheat closed ⅛ to ¼ lower for contract grades. Cash oats closed unchanged to ⅛ lower. Cash flax closed unchanged on all grades.

Inspections on Friday were 1345 cars, against 1356 last year. In sight today, 1315 cars.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 8.—Business in all lines of grain over the cable today was quiet, owing to the fact that prices bid by foreign buyers were still out of line. The demand for oats for November shipment continues to be keen at a further advance of 3d, but exporters say it is impossible to work any business on account of the scarcity of ocean freight room from this port for the balance of the season. The local demand for oats is steady and further sales of round lots of number 2 C. W. were made at 33¼c.

The local trade in flour is fair, but the export demand was quiet. Millfeed is steady at the recent decline with a fair demand. Hay is fairly active and firm. Demand for butter is fair and the undertone to the market is strong. Receipts for the week were 4176 packages, as compared with 7032 for the same week last year. Cheese is fairly active with prices tending towards a higher level. Receipts for the week were 33,836 boxes, against 34,320 a year ago. Eggs active and firm.

Comb Sage Tea In Hair To Darken It

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Thick

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening grey, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

INDIAN DROWNED WHEN CANOE UPSET

Jack Muskrat, a Well Known Resident of Hiawatha, Loses His Life in Rice Lake on Thursday Night

CRIES FOR HELP HEARD

Jack Muskrat, a well known Indian resident of Hiawatha, was drowned in Rice Lake on Thursday night when his canoe was capsized. It is not known exactly how the tragedy occurred as Muskrat was alone in the canoe.

It seems that the unfortunate Indian had paddled across the lake on Thursday afternoon to Roseneath, and that night left to return home. There was a strong wind blowing but Muskrat, like all the Indians around the lake, was an expert paddler and anticipated no difficulty in making the passage. A little later a girl employed at a farm house heard a cry for help coming from the lake and informed her employer who hurriedly dressed and jumped into a canoe. He paddled out into the lake some distance but no more cries were heard and nothing could be seen. Next morning Muskrat's up-turned canoe was found floating in the lake.

The alarm was given and a search for the body was commenced. Up to Saturday night it had not been found.

Telephone communication with Hiawatha to-day is cut off as a result of the storm so that further information could not be obtained.

Muskrat was about twenty-five years of age and was unmarried. He was a brother-in-law of Fred Simpson, the well known runner.

CAPTURED A YOUNG EAGLE

Bird Will Be Turned Over to the Toronto Zoo

Mr. Silas Nichols was fishing around Little Bob channel below the power house the other day, and noticed a large bird sitting under a ledge of rock that was close beside. A few strokes brought the canoe within reach, and Nichols placed his paddle on him and held him down till he put a string to his feet, and tied him to the canoe. It proved to be a young eagle. Nearly every summer there is an eagle nest over on Big Island, and it is supposed that this one must have been injured or too weak to fly away when the family moved south. It was famishingly hungry, for when shortly after Nichols shot a hell diver and took it into the canoe, the young eagle pounced on to it, and nearly consumed the whole bird. The eagle will probably be sent to the Toronto Zoo.—Independent.

"Sanity" Is Endorsed

"On-looker" Says You Cannot be "Smart" and Stay at Home

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—"Sanity" thinks that the causes of the spread of immorality in Peterborough, as recntly hinted at in letters and articles do not touch the heart of the matter and bring us back one more parental duty in the home.

Does Sanity not know that the new Pankhurstian teaching is that mothers who instruct and amuse their children at home become narrow-minded, not fitted to take a broad outlook on the "wider affairs" of life. Therefore, domesticated women cannot hope to be taken into the "intellectual group." The popular fad of the day is to deal with such maters as immorality, white slave traffic, etc., from the platform or in deputations, instead of in a practical way.

Clergymen are in the habit of giving advice to parents, but who ever heard of them asking a woman known to keep her children off the streets what her method of doing it is? If this were done it would not only encourage women but would broaden the outlook of clergymen.

Until men pay the same deference to women honestly looking after their children as they do to the "platform" or deputation" women we are not likely to see any change in the present state of affairs.

So little notice is taken of these matters that even Sanity has evidently overlooked the complaint in one of the recent articles, that noise and rowdyism, as now carried on in some of the streets, is a constant menace to children who are not neglected in the home.

Onlooker.

WILL ADDRESS LOCAL CLUB

Mr. J. Joyce Broderick, English Vice-Consul at New York, to Speak Here on Nov. 19th

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR

The Canadian Club is most fortunate in securing for its next speaker Mr. J. Joyce Broderick, His Britannic Majesty's Vice-Consul at New York, and designate Consul to Amsterdam, Holland. Mr. Broderick is to speak in seven Canadian cities only before assuming his new position in Holland. The cities to be favoured to hear Mr. Broderick are Ottawa, Montreal, Kingston, Belleville, Hamilton, Toronto and Peterborough. His subject will be "The British Consular Service in its Relation to Canada." Mr. Broderick is from the Emerald Isle and will undoubtedly handle his subject with all the eloquence peculiar to the native born.

This is the first occasion in the history of the Canadian Club of Peterborough that the guest of the evening has been one direct, so to speak, from the Mother Country, and from the heart of the Empire. Holding the position that he does, his message will come as one who has the right to speak and with a first-hand knowledge of his text.

Mr. Broderick will be here on Wednesday evening, November 19th, and it is fully expected that there will be a very large turnout of the members to welcome the distinguished guest of the Club.

Dedication Festival At St. John's

Rev. W. F. Fitzgerald, of Kingston, Preached Eloquent Sermon

Rev. W. F. Fitzgerald of Kingston, was the special preacher in St. John's Church yesterday in connection with the Dedication Festival continued from the previous Sunday. The congregations present were greatly impressed by his sermons, which were marked by an Irish charm of thought, expression and delivery.

In the evening his subject was "The Awakening From Sleep," founded on the text, "Sleep on now. . . . Rise, let us be going." The preacher eloquently depicted the Saviour's gentleness and forbearance with the Disciples who had failed him, and the significance of the call to rise up for necessary action. Disciples now, without intending it ,often sank down imperceptibly to a condition of lethargy from which they needed to be aroused to activity, usefulness and lofty endeavour. The loss of opportunity could not be made up, but the past would be pardoned if the laggard would allow himself to be aroused and stimulated to necessary action.

The preacher referred to the exceptional opportunities before St. John's congregation, with their beautiful church, so splendidly equipped and situated in the very heart of this progressive City, with the history of which St. John's had had so intimate a connection. Let them arise and go forward to a higher life and a wider usefulness.

Mr. Fitzgerald is a Dublin man, a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, and has spent some fifteen years in Canada.

WILL MEET IN ST. ANDREW'S HALL

Technical Society on Wednesday Night Presents Illustrated Lecture

The Technical Society have secured St. Andrew's School Hall for their meeting on Wednesday night and will have the use of the church lantern. As a result the meeting will open at 8:30 and will be featured by an address by Mr. L. W. Burpee, consulting engineer of the Canadian General Electric Company, whose subject will be "The Magnetite Arc Lamp." This topic should be of interest not only to the members of the society, but also to the general public, for it is this light which will soon transform George street into a "White Way." The lecture will be illustrated and citizens will be made familiar with the details of the new form of street lighting.

MORRISON HAS GIVEN UP THE FIGHT

Admits That His Agents Acted Corruptly in the Bye-election in Macdonald, Man.

RESIGNS THE SEAT

WINNIPEG, MAN., Nov. 10.— The Macdonald election is void, and must be fought all over again. The Conservative member-elect, Alex. Morrison, handed in a long-writen statement at the opening of the trial this morning, in which he admitted that corrupt acts on the part of his agents during the campaign were not of a trivial nature, and he retired rather than press the matter to trial.

2 1-4 INCHES OF RAIN FELL YESTERDAY

Yesterday's rainfall was a copious one and should give the ground the most thorough soaking it has had for some time. Saturday's rainfall, while steady, was not very heavy, and only about one-quarter (.23) of an inch came down, but on Sunday Jupiter Pluvius settled down to business and opened his watering can to the extent of over two inches (2.02); or a total for the 24 hours of Sunday of two inches and a quarter. This total is rarely exceeded. The rainfall for November already is almost three inches. The year's total to date is 21 1-2 inches—much below the average. Any person having a barometer would have seen a very low reading of the glass yesterday, shortly before the wind veered around to the south. The one belonging to the local observer marked 28.14 inches.—W.P.

DEER WALKED OVER HIM WHILE ASLEEP

Some of his friends are relating a story about an incident in Mr. M. Tooleys deer hunting experience at Jack's Lake recently. He went out on the trail one morning when the sun was shining brightly and seated himself on a log to await the first creaking along the path he guarded that might indicate the approach of game. Some of the details of the yarn are missing, but it seems that the genial Michael was lulled to the land of golden dreams where deer are big and fast, but where every marksman's aim is unerring. He had got to a point in his dreams where he had downed a big buck, and as he closed in on it the big fellow made straight at him. Like Little Nemo, Mr. Tooley providentially awakened at this point, but he was out of the frying pan into the fire. A deer had literally walked over him, took him for part of the forest's decoration, as it were, and was unconcernedly departing along the pathway. Immediately there was action. Nimrod Tooley grabbed up his gun, which was loaded with buckshot, and banged both barrels in the direction of the vanishing form. He drew a heavy army revolver and fired five shots, then decided that to discharge the remaining four would be simply wasting good powder and lead. That's the way his friends tell the story. Mr. Tooley was so chagrined that he was almost deprived of speech. To think that in the quiet of the woods he went fast asleep, like the trainman at the switch. "I could not sleep all that night," is what a friend said Mr. Tooley had remarked. Such was his disappointment. "When fired both barrels, the deer simply sneezed at me," he said, and the echo of that sneeze still rings in his ears.

LOCAL MAN ARRESTED IN SASKATOON

Believed to Have Belonged to a Gang of Safe-blowers—Was Fully Armed

KNOWN TO LOCAL POLICE

SASKATOON, Sask., Nov. 10.—J. C. Scarth, Brookline, Ont., and Jas. Kelly of Peterborough, alleged to be two of the gang of five safe-blowers who have been operating throughout western Canada, were arrested here. Thy arrived in this City from Regina at 3.10 and were placed under arrest at 3.30 by Chief Detective Springer, of the local detective department. Scarth, when arrested, was about to lift a plant containing, among other things, enough nitro-glycerine to more than blow up every safe in Saskatoon. He was fully armed, having two .38 calibre and one .32 calibre revolvers. In addition, he carried five pounds of dynamite, partly cooked, 50 feet of fuse, 100 rounds of ammunition, caps, tape, candle and flashlight.

The police allege he practically admits having operated in Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, and Edmonton. The police also claim he admits being implicated in the blowing of safes in Regina, in the latter part of August. On Aug. 22 he was arrested on suspicion of being a member of the gang that perpetrated numerous robberies in Saskatoon, and also with the blowing up of the safe of the Modern Steam Laundry, here.

From lack of evidence he was let go. Immediately after he left the city a safe in Regina was blown and $500 taken. Three other members of the gang, well known to the police, are still at large.

Known in Peterborough.

The man, Kelly, referred to in the above despatch is well known to the local police. He formerly resided on Maria Street, East City, and to his schoolmates was known as 'Barney."

Chief of Police Thompson states that a Pinkerton man visited the City a few months ago in search of Kelly. On that occasion he was wanted in British Columbia, where it is said, he was concerned in a murder that was enacted on the Coast.

THE LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT

Was Exploited in the Local Pulpits Yesterday—Interesting Addresses

A TANGIBLE FACTOR

On Sunday the pulpits of a number of Protestant Churches in the City were occupied by representatives of the Laymen's Missionary Movement. Those who had the temerity to brave the elements in attend the services, caried away with them a clearer and more comprehensive conception of the movement that has for its object the evangelization of the world. The unpropitious weather constituted a tangible factor in respect to the attendance, but on the whole, the meetings were well attended.

The services, which were held in conection with the Laymen's Missionary Campaign that was launched in this City several weeks ago, were favoured with the presence of a number of prominent laymen from outside points. The addresses were particularly instructive and interesting. They served to set at rest any misapprehension that might exist in the public mind, as to the underlying motive of the campaign. Among the speakers were Messrs. W. J. Watson, D. M. Rose, J. H. Gundry, G. Ferguson, H. K. Caskey and Dr. Ralph Hooper, all of Toronto.

The campaign will reach its zenith on Thursday next, when a big conference will be held, comprising morning, afternoon and evening sessions. The evening session will include a banquet, to be held in the Market Hall.

RECITAL AT THE CONSERVATORY

An enjoyable recital was given at the Conservatory of Music Hall on Saturday afternoon by four piano pupils of Mr. Rupert Gliddon. The young musicians played their selections from memory in artistic style and their programme was thoroughly appreciated. The programme was as follows:

"Abend Glochen" — Reinike. Master Stanley McGee.
"Barcarolle" — Tchaikowski. Miss Helen Porter.
Berceuse in D. Flat—Chopin.
Transcription on Walther's prize song from "The Meister Singer." Wagner. Miss Evelyn Johnston.
"The Two Larks." A.La Bien Annee." Miss Gwen Smith.

MUSTARD IN BLOOM.

An unusual phenomenon was in evidence on Euclid avenue, East City, this morning, when in the midst of the driving snow storm a field of wild mustard was discovered to be in full bloom. The bright yellow flower looked decidedly out of place, with the ground covered with snow.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Examiner Special:

NEW MARKET GAME

There was an indignant farmer in the market this morning who was looking for a lady who, on Thursday last, bought from him a quarter of lamb. She wanted it delivered before noon, but the man could not agree to do this and he compromised the matter by allowing her to take part of the quarter home with her. She gave him her name and address and agreed to pay him when he delivered the rest of the meat.

In the afternoon he sought the address for several hours, but sought in vain. Nowhere in the nearby district could he find any trace of the party and it slowly dawned on him that he had been made the victim of a shrewd trick. A lookout was kept around the market this morning but no trace of the woman was found, and the farmer has concluded that he is out the price of his meat.—Kingston Standard.

HAD BEEN STEALING ON A LARGE SCALE

Walter Mahaffey and Chas. Johnston Arrested on Saturday, Accused of a Long List of Offences Against the Law.

GOODS RECOVERED

During the past few weeks Charles W. Johnson, and Walter Mahaffey, of Smith Township, as they admitted to-day in police court, have been visiting the hotel sheds of the city, and stealing everything they discovered in the rigs, that it was possible to away with. Johnson and Mahaffey, it is alleged also conducted night raids on the hen houses of the city, and conveyed the stolen fowl to their premises in Smith, about three miles from the city. There a varied stock of clothing, provisions, tools, paint, etc., was found by Detectives Newhall and Meagher, after the arrest of the two alleged thieves.

For some time complaints have been coming to the Police Station, from people who have had articles stolen from their outfits in the hotel sheds of the city, and the police have had these two men under surveillance. Saturday afternoon they entered the Munro House sheds, and proceeded to take whatever they found in the farmers' waggons there, but their operations were cut short by the arrival of P. C. Sills, who arrested them. Caught red-handed by P. C. Sills and Walter Kitney, who had been on watch at the Munro House, the two men admitted the theft of articles from the buggies.

In Police Court this morning Johnson and Mahaffey elected to be tried by the Magistrate. They pleaded "guilty" to stealing a raincoat, on Saturday, valued at $7, and a coat and hat valued at $2.50. To the charge of breaking into the chicken house of Mrs. Alex. Turner, and stealing 17 hens, however, Johnson pleaded "not guilty," and he will come up for trial on Tuesday, November 18th, before the Magistrate.

After the arrest of Mahaffey and Johnson, Detectives Meagher and Newhall went to the home of the two men in Smith, and searched the premises. They discovered over $100 of goods, which are thought to be stolen. Part of this has already been claimed by indignant victims of the two culprits, but a robe, some clothing, some tools marked "J. Cox," a number of hens and many other articles, have yet to be identified by those from whom they were stolen. It is expected that next Tuesday the two men will have to face a number of charges, additional to the ones on which they were brought before the Magistrate this morning. They are suspected too of breaking into a number of local residences and stores.

Johnson is a scavenger, and Mahaffey is supposed to have been in his employ. The former has a wife and family in Smith, while the latter is single and has no one depending on him for support. Both have Police Court records, Mahaffey having been convicted for breaking into East City stores, a few years ago, for which he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

Neither of the men were defended by counsel this morning, while Crown Attorney Wood conducted the prosecution.

The case at present before the court presents a curious parallel to the case of the Giles brothers, who were sentenced to a years' imprisonment some months ago, by His Honour Judge Huycke. In both cases the thefts were effected by two young men, using their home, a few miles from the city, as a hiding place for the goods. Both stole clothing, provisions, tools, etc., and both raided chicken coops and hotel yards.

The difference between the two is chiefly in the attitude of the prisoners. The Giles brothers denied most of the charges, while Mahaffey and Johnson admit their guilt in a number of cases.

The police would be glad to receive reports from people who have had goods taken, to see if it can be found among the booty of the two men awaiting trial.

The prisoners were offered their liberty for $200 bail each, of two $100 sureties, but up to the time of going to press no kind friends had come forward with the money and they are looking forward to spending the week in the County gaol.

WEEK-END RAIN WAS GENEROUS

Weather Man Opened Up Complete Batteries By Way of Gentle Reminder

SOME DAMAGE DONE

The Weather Man is just the average, inconsistent parent after all. You know the father who spares the rod until a peevish day rouses his ire because of some trifle and presto, there is a trimming for the son, that includes a few biffs for past offences which temporary good humour had condoned.

Old Probs has been the most indulgent of parents during the past fall and summer, and it began to look as if the haze of Indian summer would remain long with us. But the Willing Workers, puffed up with pride because of some accomplishment in the way of street paving, determined that they would beat the Weather Man to the rough weather and would get the snow plough details all straightened out. But Probs called their bluff and in his anger turned on all three faucets.

Said he—"First you shall have a dose of rain on Saturday, and particularly on the Sabbath. And against your wishes you will be prevented from going forth to worship. Then you shal be treated to wind and hail, and as a last tonch, we will send upon you sticky, wet snow with the necessary blasts to puff it into your eyes and inside your collars. It was my intention to continue the fine weather indefinitely, but your Board of Works were a little too wise in their own conceit."

Thousands of Tons.

Just imagine the long, pinched faces of the farmers on Sunday. Their wells were filled to overflowing, but the inclement weather kept them at home on the one day in the week on which they could assemble for public worship. If it had only waited until Wednesday or Thursday, the hired man might have had a holiday right in the middle of the ploughing season. And he surely would have welcomed it. Oh, yes. To fill the wells and creeks the farmers would have grudgingly given not one but two holidays, perhaps, but the Sunday rainfall obviated such a costly procedure.

The rain statistics for the week end are as follows:

On Saturday	.31 inches
Saturday night	.23 inches
On Sunday	2.02 inches
Grand total	2.56 inches
Total for Sunday's 24 hours	2 1-4 inches.

It will be seen that Jupiter Pluvius had developed a fine case of spleen by Sunday and really excelled himself last night. Sunday's rain per acre registered 300,000 tons. Thus a 100-acre farm received 30,000,000 tons of water, during the way. All of which was surely some splash.

November Rains Copious.

Already the rainfall for November amounts to almost three inches. Some one said the new moon had a watery appearance, and apparently that individual has had some experience at moon gazing.

Sunday night's hail storm about 8.45 o'clock was offered by way of variation, and the ice pellets pelted merrily upon the new pavement, which was was washed clean.

The Downie Street Creek was called upon yesterday to undergo a test, and it gave every satisfaction according to reports from the district. The neighbourhood will surely be lost without this bone of contention.

Several citizens who had long drives in the country on Sunday stated that the country was almost deluged. Farmers' wells were exceedingly shallow, for the downpour was the first generous visitation in many months.

Telephone Wires Down.

The wind as usual worked considerable inconvenience for the telephone companies. All the wires to Toronto were down this morning and in other directions they were practically as bad. The rural lines suffered in many parts.

Many Bouquets Were Prerented

"Land of Golden Dreams" Pleased Two Large Audiences

"The Land of Golden Dreams" was presented to two large audiences on Saturday, both performances going smoothly and to the satisfaction of every one concerned. At the evening performance two dozen bouquets were presented, nearly all of the principals being remembered. Financially the affair was a great success, the receipts being about $1,100.

MR. ALEX. GORDON A HEAVY BUYER

The supply of poultry at Saturday's market exceeded the demand to such an extent that many a dead duck and chicken would have been taken back to the country or their prices would have been sacrificed had it not been that Mr. Alex. Gordon bought up the surplus. It is not known just how many he secured but it is stated that the pile was a big one. The rain kept at home a large number of householders, who would otherwise have cleaned up the market and the circumstances were favourable for a big purchase. It is understood that Mr. Gordon shipped them to Toronto.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

MONDAY, NOV. 10, 1913

A GEM OF ORATORY.

Premier Roblin, whose style a Peterborough audience has tasted once or twice and found it "high," speaking the other night at Minnedosa, Manitoba, on education, thus referred to a "traducer of Manitoba." Referring to Postmaster General Samuel of Great Britain, Mr. Roblin said:

"When you see meddlesome, impudent, slanderous Samuels, who by accident holds a portfolio in a British Government, making false statements at the dictation of a small Grit coterie who stuffed this jellybag of an Englishman to such an extent that he was willing to make a statement in the city of Montreal, which he knew to be false, you will know how to treat him. I can assure Mr. Samuel if he ever visits Manitoba again he will be hauled before the bar of public opinion and made to swallow his falsehoods."

The system of education that produces a prime minister of a British dominion capable of using language like that in an address on education—that system as well as the orator needs a little overhauling. And this is the man Premier Borden recommended as worthy of being added to the roll of chivalry of Canada—titled Canadians. When Sir James Whitney, who can sympathize with strong langnage, compiles another school reader, he might include the above gem of oratory in the collection of utterances of Canadian statesmen to be memorized by young Canadians, needing a moral uplift.

CANADA'S BACK SEAT.

Responsible authorities in Great Britain are finding out by reason and common sense, what the best and sanest thought of Canada, by reason and common sense, plus the sentiment of self respect, has long since found out, that the policy of contribution in the matter of naval defence is an undesirable policy in the interests of Empire and humiliating to the dominion so contributing. Naval men of eminence like Admiral Henderson and Admiral Fremantle, approve Australia's way of a natoinal naval force, and Canada's way before Mr. Borden muddled matters, as the right course to pursue. Admiral Fremantle says:

"Surely this is an object lesson in the right course to adopt, and the enthusiasm in naval defence in the Commonwealth (Australia) is in strong contrast to the unforunate political difficulties in which Premier Borden has been involved in his endeavours to meet the Admiralty views."

Mr. Borden got into unfortunate political difficulties in an another way than by his endeavours to meet the "Admiralty view." He tried to and did meet the views of the Nationalists, the only enemies to naval defence in Canada, though by truckling to them, and by alliance with them, he has involved the whole of the Conservative party, as well as the country as a whole, in the ignoble isolation in which Canada finds herself among the self-governing Dominions. Canada, under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and in response to the unanimous mandate of parliament—both Liberal an Conservative—declared for and passed the Naval Law providing for a Canadian navy. Mr. Borden in response to the mandate of the Nationalists, the enemies of imperialism, killed the Canadian navy idea and took up contribution, not as a proper policy in relation to Canada and imperial interests, but as a political expedient, to hold power. In so doing he put Great Britain in the pauper class and humiliated Canada by hiring the Mother country to do our fighting. Australia took the same manly way as Canada, and held to it. There was no traitorous Nationalist party to buy the support of, no political emergency demanding the sacrifice of principle and self respect to the retention of office. New Zealand, whose entire territory is only one-third of that of Ontario, and one-thirteenth that of Canada, has declared for a navy of her own, as Auaralia has done. Canada, under Mr. Borden and his Nationalist allies, has humiliated Canada. Canada, with a population one-third greater than Australia and New Zealand combined, with greater natural resources than both combined; greater actual and potential wealth, cannot do, as Mr. Borden says, in twenty or twenty-five or fifty years, what Australia has already done, build a navy of her own. "Canada first"—in peace and in war—on land and on sea—is not the place in which Premier Borden would place us among the Dominions beyond the seas. Mr. Borden and the Nationalists have placed Canada in the back seat of the Imperial living room.

THE NEW RULE.

On the bilingual issue Sir James is timid enough to be silent and silent enough to be timid.

MR. ASQUITH AS LEADER.

"Mr. Asquith is now the acknowledged master of Parliamentary spech," says Mr. J. L. Garvin in the Observer. "In all matters of tactics he possesses in a degree rarely equalled that quality which Lord Rosebery once caled the rarest in cabinets—judgment. By comparison with him, Mr. Gladstone as a party leader in office was merely bad. The Prime Minister is one of the most dexterous party leaders there has been, and his precedents will long be looked up by governments in tight places. He has now to show whether he means to rank in the eyes of posterity among the greater statesman, not merely as a political manager hitherto joining suppleness and weight with similar art."

WHO PAYS THE DUTY.

An American milling company has bought 100,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, to be ground in a Buffalo mill; the duty is $10,000, at ten cents a bushel. Who pays the tax of $10,000? The milling company in the first place; then the bakers; then the consumers of bread. If there were a Government tax on the sale of houses, few would be found to defend it, nor would it be necessary to prove whether its removal would more greatly benefit the seller or the buyer. But taxes on imports seem to have a confusing and mystifying effect. If the taxes on wheat and flour be removed on both sides of the line, the benefit will be distributed among farmers, millers, bakers, and bread-eaters. It is not necessary to wrangle about the division of the benefit.—Toronto Star.

THE BILINGUAL DISPUTE.

It is absurd to charge the Liberals with having engineered and fostered the bilingual school dispute, as one of the Whitney Ministers has done. The Whitney Government got itslf into the present mess largely because it permitted itself to be frightened by a ghost set up by the extreme Orange leaders and their newspapers. Have Liberals ever had any control over the Orange lodges and Orange newspapers? Having fortified itself with Dutch courage the Whitney Government a few weeks ago tried to retrace its steps, but when the ghost again showed signs of life the Government once more took to its heels. Because the Liberals have sat on the fence and enjoyed the fun, the cowardly Government is now throwing stones at the innocent spectators.—Ottawa Free Press.

THE POOR MAN'S FIRE.

The other day a citizen bought and paid for two hundred pounds of hard coal at a fuel yard in this city, saw it put through the process of being weighed, got a bill for it, and pushed it home in a hand-cart. Before reaching his house he decided to get the coal weighed at a store, and found he had not received 200 lbs. of coal, but only 162 lbs.

This man tells us that he carried his complaint to the inspectors, and was assured that they would see that he either got the rest of the coal or got his money back.

Of course that is not the point at all. Thousands of poor people in Toronto are buying coal in small lots and paying high prices for it. When winter settles down on the city fires will be needed to keep life in the bodies of many a poor family, and fires will be hard to get. Coal costs money, but surely the poor man who pays for a hundred pounds of it should not get short weight! As a rule, those who purchase fuel by the single sack cannot weigh what they receive. They must take what they get, and so, it seems clear that the dealers must be held responsible if their clerks make errors that rob the poor of the heat that means life.

The officials ought to get busy. They should see to it that there is no short weighting of small purchasers of fuel—no contemptuous attitude on the part of clerks towards petty sales — no freezing of the poor in this city this winter.—Toronto Star.

THE FOOD PROBLEM.

Mr. G. L. Thomas, a Welsh homeowner, visiting the city, says that Canada's meats and fruits cost less in Wales than in Canada.

The same statement has been often made and has not been contradicted. The other day a Montreal paper instructed its English correspondent to price Canadian food products in the English market. On every article the English price was lower.

The Canadian consumer is plainly not getting a square deal. Nor is the Canadian farmer the gainer at the consumer's expense. Canadian ham, bacon, flour and other products are sold at two prices, one British, the other Canadian, but the farmer gets only one price for his hogs and his wheat. Between the Canadian producer and the Canadian consumer there are agencies which are able to intercept supplies and collect inordinate profits. The profits must be inordinate, because the lower range of prices at which the same commodities are sold in Great Britain are on a profit-yielding basis. It is notorious that the bulk of the canned food products made in this country is controlled by a combine, which fixes prices with despotic power. It can dictate to vegetable growers at one end, and wholesalers, retailers and consumers at theo ther. This combine was in the firing line two years ago, valiantly waving the flag and fighting against the reciprocity agreement, because it proposed to cut the duty on canned goods and give vegetable growers a market too big to be cornered.

Taxes on food are an obstruction between producer and consumer and are injurious to both. They increase the power of the profit-takers who come between the farmer and his customers. By all means let this artificial barrier be broken down in the interests of all—except "the interests."—London Advertiser.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

NOTTS COUNTY VANQUISHED LEICESTER FOSSE 2-0

Northampton Played a Tie on the Swindon Ground--Swindon Loses First Point---Blackburn Rovers Again Lead in the First Division, Defeating Everton 6-0.

Many surprises were registered in British football Saturday. Blackburn Rovers severely trounced Everton to the tune of 6 to 0 and regained their old position at the top of the first division table. Manchester United were downed by the "Villans" on the Villa ground. Sunderland followed up their marvellous victory of last Saturday by trimming Tottenham Hotspur on their own grounds. Bradford City are gradually creeping up the table and they still further increased their lead Saturday by besting West Bromwich Albion.

Notts Lead Second Division.

Leicestor Fosse proved to be easy for Notts County, the leaders of the second division, even though they had the advantage of playing at home. The surprise of the day was the decisive defeat of Woolwich Arsenal at the hands of Fulham, 6 to 1, looks more like a cricket score than football. The "Peacocks" held Huddersfield Town down to a tie game with one each. Notts Forest still ornament the bottom of the table, though they beat Grimsby Town, 4 to 1.

Swindon Lose a Point.

Northampton are the first team who have made Swindon hand over a point this season. The long run of successive victories for the "Town" boys is at last broken, and it was done on their own ground at that. Still they lead in the race for the Southern League honours, and are the only unbeaten team in the four divisions. Cardiff City surprised Southend United by turning the tables on them to the tune of 3 to 0. Cardiff are in the cellar division of the table.

Celtic Head Scottish League.

The positions of the first three teams at the head of the Scottish League remained unchanged after Saturday games, as Celtic, Hearts and Rangers gained decisions over Queen's Park, Hibernians, and Dumbarton. These results were fully expected, though Rangers must have had a hard fight, as the score was 3 to 2 in their favour. Falkirk put it all over Dundee to the tune of 4 to 0, as did Motherwell over Kilmarnock. The following are Saturday's results with the League standings up to date:

PRESS COMMENT ON THE PROPOSED CHANGES IN THE CANADIAN LEAGUE

(By Jinx.)

London Advertiser—Some interesting things are at present developing in connection with the Canadian League, and until the annual meeting of this organization is held in December, it is altogether probable that some wild rumours and stories will receive publication as to just what cities will be in this league when the season of 1914 rolls around. There will be some changes in the Canadian League as far as its geographical position is concerned. There is little doubt of that. Both Guelph and Berlin will be out of it next year beyond a doubt. But the recent stories that Youngstown, Ohio, and several other American cities will have Canadian League franchises appear on the surface to be mere wild rumours without any apparent foundation or credence.

A Ridiculous Story.

Probably one of the wildest stories that has developed is that one from Brantford, which states that the Canadian League will put teams in Buffalo, Rochester, Baltimore and a couple more American cities in order to fight the Federal League. This is the very worst kind of rot.

The idea of Canadian League franchises being placed in these cities, where already International and Federal League franchises are, is so ridiculous that it is hardly worth mentioning. Supposing they were, how could London, Hamilton and Ottawa hope to compete with teams such cities would demand? To say that the Canadian League intended securing franchises in New York, Chicago and San Francisco would be just as reasonable.

Brantford Franchise Will Not Be Transferred.

The only sensible suggestion made yet is to replace Guelph and Berlin with Erie and Niagara Falls, and this is all that will be done this year at least. The Brantford franchise may change hands, which is doubtful, but the club will not be transferred to any such place as Youngstown, Ohio. The Brantford Club would be a money-maker if a good team was placed in thit city, and those in touch with the situation there are fully aware of this.

The Canadian League is still a young organization. To read some of the amazing articles that have been published about it recently, one would get the impression that it was a National League in experience, and an American League in the class of ball it provides. It is a worthy aim to makt the Canadian League a Class B organization, but beyond that it cannot go. London cannot support any faster ball team than Class B, while Hamilton has not proved a paying proposition even with Class C ball. Ottawa is a doubtful quantity with a losing team, and the chances are that should the club there be a second-division one or anything less than a pennant-winning one, the owners would do nothing more than break even.

A Pity to Change Name.

With the entrance of Niagara Falls and Erie, it is likely the name of the league will have to be changed. It will not be a purely Canadian League then. Changing the name is rather an immaterial thing, but it is nevertheless regrettable. The name "Canadian" advertises Canada. The title "Canadian League" has stood for Canadian baseball despite the fact that it was mostly played by American players. To have to sink it into something less meaning and less attractive, seems to be a pity. It is to be hoped that an effort will be made to retain this name.

Leave Brantford Where It Is.

Another amusing article that has appeared in reference to the situation was that published in a local daily. Two tables were arranged showing a class B league and class D league. In the class B league the cities of Peterborough and St. Thomas were placed, while Brantford, a city of greater population, was placed in the class D. organization. Brantford is a better paying proposition than either Peterborongh or St. Thomas, and the Canadian League would lose a great deal should it have its franchise transferred. It is admirably located for the Canadian League, and the wisest move, if the franchise is sold, would be to leave the Telephone City franchise just where it is. Any other move would be nothing but a "bonehead" play.

Local Boy Won In Field Of 20 Men

Billy Morris First Home in the Inter-collegiate Harriers' Meet

MONTREAL, Nov. 8.— The University of Toronto team won the annual Intercollegiate cross country championships this morning with 29 points. Twenty runners representing four teams of five picked men each from the Universities of MacGill, Toronto, Queen's and the Royal Military College faced Professor McLeod, who acted as starter. The course covered a distance of about five and a half miles. Starting from the McGill gate the harriers made a circuit of the camp and then broke away through the college grounds to Milton Street and Fletcher's field, where they crossed the park and made for the mountain. For two miles they travelled the road to a given point and then turning followed the same course back to the camps, where they finished in front of the grandstand.

Campbell, the start of the Toronto team, who holds the 'Varsity record for mile and three miles, took the lead at the outset with Hendy and Dykes, both of Toronto, following close at his heels. McGill's representatives followed close behind the Toronto men, and it was evident almost from the outset that the competition lay between McGill and 'Varsity.

The first man to finish, however, was Morris of the R.M.C. team with the fair time of 30 minutes and 27 seconds. The next twelve to finish were: Dykes, Toronto; White, McGill; Gerrie, McGill; Cuff, Toronto; Hendy, Toronto; Campbell, Toronto; Hague, McGill; Kennedy, Toronto; Poole, Queen's; Cambridge, McGill; Morton, R.M.C.

The final result by points was: Toronto 29, McGill 41.

The teams were:

McGill: Gerrie; Gordon, Hague, Pickard, Cambridge.

Toronto: Campbell, Hendy, Dykes, Cluff, Kenendy.

R.M.C.— Morris, Morton, Greene, LeMeasurier and Tidewell.

Queen's: Poole, Gilbert, Johnson, O'Connor and Speers.

RUGBY

Willfrid Stratton played quarterback for 'Varsity Thirds on Saturday in their game with the O. A. C. team of Guelph and was one of the stars of the match. The Sunday World says: Smithson and Stratton of 'Varsity and Wilson of O.A.C. were easily the stars of the field.

Did you notice how much Peterborough boys were in the limelight in Saturday's sporting events? Bill Morris was first home in the big Intercollegiate Harriers' race at Montreal. Ross Craig scored two touchdowns and ripped the Argos' line to pieces playing for Tigers at Toronto, Pete Campbell ran eighty yards for a touchdown against Queen's. Frank Heffernan scored two tries for Torontos against Hamilton Rowing Clug. Harold Hill played a good game for Queen's against 'Varsity. Dick Sheehy, wearing 'Varsity colours, was always prominent in the same game, and Wilfred Stratton was the star of the 'Varsity III. O.A. C. match. A pretty good day's work for Peterborough's representatives.

CHINCHILLA OVERCOATS

They're popular again this season as they were last. Substitutes have begun to appear---so look out, for here and there you'll find Chinchilla advertised that is not Chinchilla at all. We have them in the widest variety of styles with shawl collars. If you know values, you'll say they're the greatest this season.

BASEBALL

Hamilton Spectator: Canadian league baseball fans are somewhat bewildered these days with the many rumours which are circulated in connection with the changes to be made in the circuit. Each day the feeling grows that something big is about to break and that the Canadian league next year will be of a class and size that has often been fancied by local followers of the game. Just how much of this is to be taken for gospel the writer is not prepared to say, but it must be admitted that if present plans go through, there is going to be a very important as well as radical change to the circuit before the 1914 campaign comes up. This is indicated by the despatches from Brantford, although in the writer's opinion the contemplated changes are not quite as big as intimated, although at that they will prove more than satisfactory. Nothing definite, however, will be ready for publication until the end of next week, when President Fitzgerald will have returned from the National association annual meting in Columbus, Ohio.

Ther is no doubt but that a circuit composed of Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto, London Buffalo, Erie, Youngstown or Niagara Falls and Rochester would look pretty good, but there is no authority for the report that such a circuit is contemplated. Rather would we be inclined to believe that the proposed circuit is Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Buffalo, Brantford, Peterborough and St. Thomas, with a possibility of Niagara Falls and Erie being placed. However, ther is more than one good possibility in the way of a tidy circuit and the outcome will depend entirely upon the extent to which the Federal league activities are viewed by the International league magnates.

Algol The Demon Star

On Wednesday the planet Mercury will appear stationary among the stars for a short time.

On Thursday the Moon will be at the full.

Jupiter is still to be seen as a very bright point of light in the south-west until 9 o'clock at night.

Saturn rises shortly after sundown and is visible about all night, passing our meridian overhead to the south at 1.30 in the morning.

Mars rises about 9 o'clock at night and passes our meridian at 4 o'clock in the morning. Mars is to-day about 76 million miles from us.

Venus is still a bright morning star about 2 hours ahead of the Sun.

Algol the Demon Star.

About half way between Cassiopeia and the Pleiades to the north-east at nine or ten o'clock at night a second magnitude star having three fainter stars forming a triangle with it, is the famous variable star Algol. The light of Algol varies from the second to the fourth magnitude in about 3⅓ hours and back again in the same time; after which it remains steadily brilliant for 2¾ days, when the same changes take place again. The variability of this star was first scientifically noted in 1670, but it appears to have been known before this as the "blinking demon." the "Astrologers" who imagined the stars to control or influence human destiny, regarded this star as the most "unfortunate" and "dangerous" star in all the heavens. Herschel thought this light change might be due to spots on its revolving surface. It was suggested later, however, that the bright star might have several darker bodies swinging about it and eclipsing when they crossed our line of sight between us and the star. A few years ago Vogel, the German astronomer, proved this theory by the use of the wonderful spectroscope. Algol, himself, is probably a million miles in diameter and the largest dull star that eclipses him is estimated to be about the size of our Sun. The distance between these bodies is calculated to be three million miles, but their united mass is less than our Sun. Algol is approaching our system at the rate of a mile a second but the star is so far from us it would take light over twenty years to traverse the space between.

WAR BY THE LABOURITES

LONDON, ENG., Nov. 10.—(Special cable).—Closely following the Liberal defeat at Reading comes this morning declaration of war by the Labourites against the Asquith government. The Daily Citizen, the official organ of the Labour party, says to-day: "Reading workingmen, like workingmen everywhere, have been sickened by the spectacle of the Liberal party playing lip service to democracy this side of St. George's Channel, and bludgeoning it in the streets and in the courts of Ireland. The British electorate will not tolerate a Democratic government that cringes to Carsonism and Murphyism and yet jails men for protesting against social horrors." This is taken by thinking Liberals to indicate plain hostility. It is directed, of course, as a result of the incarceration of Jim Larkin. Up till noon to-day, the home office has not answered the challenge by liberating Larkin, though some predict this will be done in the near future.

The January Kiss.

Senator Heyburn, discussing a political betrayal, said:

"The thing was as bad as the Judas kiss, or, rather, the January kiss, as it's more timely to say now."

"The January kiss?" stammered the puzzled reporter.

"Why, yes, the January kiss," said Senator Heyburn. "It's the kiss a wife gives her husband in January, you know, to see whether he's broken his New Year's resolution yet."

SHILOH quickly stops coughs, cures colds, and heals the throat and lungs. 25 cents.

Making Of Steel Bridges Similiar To That Which Crosses The Otonabee River

Visit to a Structural Steel Shop---Riveting Process is a Dangerous One, While the Handling of the Massive Steel Beams Need Great Care--Red Hot Rivets Bisect the Air Like Minature Meteors--Preliminary Erection

Many people have watched, with interest, the erection of the new C.P.R. bridge which crosses the Otonabee river, and have marvelled at the deft way in which these huge masses of steel are fitted together—neatly, and with a precision that is amazing to one unversed in the method of preparation these component steel sections receive before they are transformed into one conglomerate whole.

Consequently, as we need enlightenment on the matter, we must visit the workshop of the structural ironworker.

The Structural Shop.

Our first peep into the interior of this workship reveals a scene of chaos. Everywhere, littered about, are girders, angle irons, rivets and the hundred and one other essentials for structural work. Furnaces standing in groups and backing to each other are to be seen in various places. These furnaces are built of brick with iron grates. They are used for the heating of rivets, and are fed with crude oil fuel supplied from overhead tanks.

The Machinery.

One peculiar thing that strikes the onlooker is the scarcity of machinery, and the method of ranging what machines there are as close to the wall as possible. This is necessary, so that the middle of the shop may be kept clear for the handling of the huge steel sections, which go to the make-up of a completed fabric, with safety and despatch. The only machines used are ponderous affairs, consisting of large and small shears, with which to cut the iron, punches and drills for boring the holes, and about two score air hoists for hoisting the girders in position for working upon. Air is supplied to these hoists, also the 'bull' riveters and hand rivets, from compressed air tanks slung from the roof of the shop.

The Process.

The process of transforming sheet steel into girders and bridge sides is an intricate and tedious one. The laying out of the job is the first thing. This is done by a man who first places a wooden pattern, the requisite size and shape, upon a piece of sheet steel, then draws the outline in chalk, marking the rivet holes in the same manner, so that the man operating the shears can cut out the required section, and the boys armed with hammers and punches, can punch the indentations for the guidance of the machine puncher and driller, as the case may be.

The punching process is accomplished with the help of air hoists and three men, these latter the machine puncher himself and two helpers who operate the hoists. Drilling is only done when the punch is unable to be operated, in corners and other intricate places. The punching machine is operated by pressure of the foot on a lever.

The Riveters.

The riveting of the plates to form the girder is the most important step in construction work, for upon these small steel-headed cylinders rests the responsibility of much of the weight of a completed structure. The riveters are necessarily experts in this class of work. They are assisted by helpers and a boy rivet heater.

Dangerous Work.

The various patterns of steel bolted together, the riveters now get busy. The rivet boy stations himself at his furnace, and busies himself ascertaining as to whether the rivets are hot enough for the purpose. The man who is to catch the rivets holds a cone-shaped funel in his right hand, and in his left hand a pair of tongs.

Swish! Like the miniature meteor a red-hot rivet leaves the jaws of the tongs which the boy swingsthrough the air, and careers toward the man with the funnel. Clang! the rivet sounds as it lands safely in the funnel, which has been manoeuvred adroitly by the helper. All is haste now. Quickly the helper seizes the glowing rivet with his tongs, and pushes it into the hole ready for its reception. No time is to be wasted now if the rivet is to fulfil its purpose, for a cold rivet is no good.

Quickly the "bull" riveter is got into position along its overhead track, and the next moment the staccato rattle of the rivet being driven deadens all other sounds. When a baker's dozen of these riveters are rattling away at once, the place is a veritable bedlam.

Turning the Steel.

The moving or turning of one of these huge pieces of stel is a tedious and dangerous process. First, the weight is judged, then a number of hoists are got into position. These hoists are equipped with "dogs" with which to grip the steel and prevent it from sliding. The dogs in position, a man to each hoist mounts upon the bridge side, and at a given signal from the man in charge the escape valve chains are pulled simultaneously.

Gradually the huge mass of steel rises as the strain takes effect upon it, and when the charge man thinks it is high enough to clear the blocks, he gives the signal to turn it, or place it in whatsoever position is needed. Three hours are often consumed in this operation so slowly is the work done to ensure safety.

Preliminary Erection.

Every item of the one bridge contract completed, now comes the final test, the test which will prove whether the plans and specifications have been rigidly adhered to. The whole bridge must undergo a preliminary erection in the shops before it is deemed fit to take its place in the world.

Quickly the charge hands get their men to work carrying the different material which must form a part of the structure, and the construction begins. But the bridge cannot be built all at once, on account of the limited space in the shops; consequently, it is built in sections, the one being erected and pronounced O.K. before the next is commenced.

Should the various sections meet the requirements, the structure is taken apart, O.K.'d, then despatched to the scene of its permanent erection, as near perfect as mere man's ingenuity can make it.

Storm Does Great Havoc

Special to the Examiner.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—Telegraph and telephone communication from all points is badly interrupted this morning, and there are rumours of serious wrecks on the lakes, but nothing can be confirmed. From Buffalo the news filters through that there's a ship gone down off Point Pelee and another near Cleveland. The wireless stations have been unable to locate any vessels on Lake Erie, but it is believed by the mariners here that the captains of steamers on the lower lakes had ample time to get into shelter after storm warnings had been given. In the meantime, until telegraphic conection is re-opened with the Lake Erie ports, there is considerable anxiety here.

Italian Followed Local Woman

And Was Tried in This Morning's Police Court—Local Man Fined $25 for Supplying Liquor to Blacklister

In Police Court this morning Claire Callahan, a local young man, was charged with supplying liquor to a blacklister. Callahan pleaded guilty to the charge and the minimum fine of $25 was imposed by the Magistrate.

Callahan was one of the two young men involved in the evidence given by Herbert Landry, the young blacklister who was arrested for being drunk the other day.

Ernest St. Claire, an Italian, was charged with being drunk on Charlotte Street last Saturday. He pleaded guilty and was fined $2.

Another Italian, answering to the name of Dominico, was arrested by P. C. Reid for molesting a woman, on Hunter Street, on Saturday night. The man followed a local woman, Mrs. Hackett by name, from Long's Hotel on Hunter Street, to Reid's Ladies' Furnishing store, on George Street. He caught up with her several times and tapped her on the shoulder. She ran into Reid's store for protection, whereupon Dominico "beat it" down George Street. P. C. Reid got on his trail, however, and he was arrested. As Mrs. Hackett did not appear in the case this morning, the Italian was fined $2 for being drunk and allowed to go.

GUARDIAN OF THE COMMUNITY

That Should be Police Officer's Position, Says Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells

It is almost a year since Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, who is to lecture here, made her first visit to Toronto, when she dispelled the idea that arresting people was the sum and substance of a police officer's duty, and pointed out that an officer is or ought to be the guardian of the community.

The following is extract from one of the Toronto papers at the time:

"I fancy that Mrs. Wells, on her recent visit, has dispelled a good many illusions which some of us probably cherished. She is not large or vigourors, but a gentle little figure endowed with a sweet smile, a sweet voice, not loud or strong but clear and penetrating and altogether an appealing personality. . . . . I think the whole conception of the Police Department and its administration must be regarded with a new insight and appreciation by any one who heard this most gifted woman describe some of its general functions and uses."

REALISTIC PRESENTATION OF MURDER SCENE FROM OLIVER TWIST

LONDON, Nov. 10.—'Spare me! Spare me! as I have spared you!" she cried, but drunk and maddened, Bill Sikes gripped Nancy's soft, delicate throat with rude and brutal hands. He threw her to the floor, he caught her by the hair of the head, and with her long tresses he dragged her across the room, while she moaned and pleaded for her life.

From the wings the audience, watching Marks Bros. in "Oliver Twist" at the Grand on Wednesday night, heard her cries of anguish, and when Sikes came in again, his hand and arm were red with blood. Then inch by inch, for what semed an eternity of time, Nancy, with her hair all dishevelled, and red with blood driping from a wound in her breast, crawled back into the room, across the stage, and kissed the hand of the man she loved, of the man that had murdered her.

Too Much For Some.

The curtain fell, the lights came on, and the audience breathed once more. But there was a commotion in the balcony. Eight or ten women had fainted. The ushers ran to and fro, up and down, with glasses of water. Some of the ladies revived readily. One or two were carried utterly helpless down stairs. Four or five were assisted from various parts of the theatre by their escorts or the ushers. A great many, while not entirely overcome, were yet so affected that they were unable to remain for the conclusion of the performance. The realistic and highly impressionistic presentation of 'Oliver Twist" by the Marks Company had been too much for them.

Nervous Ones Warned.

Mr. Marks explained that similar occurrences elsewhere were not infrequent. He always warned his patrons who were nervous or high-strung to stay away from this particular play. The principals were H. Webb Chamberlain as Fagin, Chas. A. Taff as Sikes, Hazel Brown as Oliver Twist, and Marie LaTour as Nancy Sikes.

The services will begin about 7 o'clock and are open to the public. Any one interested in these services is cordially invited to join.

SLEEP-DISTURBING BLADDER WEAKNESS BACKACHE-RHEUMATISM. QUICKLY VANISH

Even Most Chronic Sufferers Find Relief From Few Doses of Croxone

Croxone soon relieves such conditions because it reaches the very roots of the disease. It soaks right into the stopped up, inactive kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the little filering cells and glands; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous urio acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism; heals the inflamed membranes of the bladder, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped up, lifeless kidneys so they can filter and sift all the poisons from the blood, and drive it out of the system.

So sure, so positive, so quick and lasting, are the results obtained from the use of Croxone, that three doses a day for a few days are often all that is required to end the worst backache, regulate the most annoying bladder disorders, and overcome the numerous other similar conditions.

Croxone is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results.

An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to refund the purchase price if Croxone fails to give desired results, regardless of how old you are, how long you have suffered, or what else has failed.

REV. MR. McCONOCHIE IS INDUCTED AT CENTREVILLE

Interesting Ceremony on Friday in Which New Pastor Was Inducted Into Centreville and Stewart Memorial Charges.

ADDRESS WAS MADE

The Presbytery of Peterborough convened in special session in Centreville Church at 2.30 o'clock p.m., Friday, Nov. 7th, 1913, and was duly constituted with prayer by Rev. H. J. Keith, M.A., B.D.

Sederunt-Rev. H. J. Keith, Minister of Knox Church, Peterborough, who, in the unavoidable absence of Rev. G. A. Brown, Moderator of the Presbytery, was appointed Moderator, pro tempore.

Rev. Robert Pogue, Minister of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough; Rev. I. W. Goodwill, B.A., Minister of the united pastoral charge of Keene and Westwood, Ministers.

Rev. Professor Arthur S. Morton, B.D., Professor of Church History in Knox College, Toronto, being present, was invited to sit and deliberate as a corresponding member of the Presbytery, and with them Messrs. Larmer, Steele, Armstrong and Harrison, Elders.

In the unavoidable absence of Rev. D. A. Thomson, Clerk of Presbytery, Mr. Robt. Harrison, Elder, was appointed Clerk, pro tempore.

The Presbytery forthwith proceeded, in due form, with the induction of Rev. A. H. McConachie into the Ministry and care of the United Pastoral charge of Centreville and Stewart Memorial churches, vacant, August of this year, by acceptance of a call to the previous pastor, Rev. D. A. McKenzie, B.A., to Churchill, in the Presbytery of Barrie. The Moderator presided, and being also Interim Moderator of the Session of Centreville and Stewart Memorial Churches, he narrated the steps taken in procuring the call to Rev. Mr. McConachie to the Ministry of these united congregations. Rev. T. W. Goodwill preached the induction sermon from Psalm 92, 12th to 15th verses, using Psalm selection 86 and Hymns 105 and 301 in the service of praise, led by Prof. Kenyon, Organist and Choir Leader in Knox Church, Peterborough. The Moderator then received from Rev. Mr. McConachie full and satisfactory answers to the questions in formula for induction of Ministers and engaging in solemn induction prayer he, in the name of the King and Head of His Church and by authority of the Presbytery, declared Rev. Mr. McConachie duly inducted into the Ministry and Pastoral care of these congregations.

The Moderator and members of the Presbytery then gave the right hand of fellowship to Mr. McConachie, welcoming him to membership in the Presbytery and citizenship in Canada.

Rev. R. Pogue then addressed the newly inducted Minister in clear, sympathetic manner, presenting the duties and responsibilities of the pastorate in a great and growing Church in this great Dominion. Mr. Harrison addressed the people of this excellent rural charge, after which the entire audience arose and sang Hymn No. 613, and this part of the induction services was concluded by the Moderator pronouncing the benediction. The office-bearers were then introduced to the Pastor. Rev. R. Pogue conducted Rev. Mr. McConachie, who was accompanied by Mrs. McConachie, to the vestibule of the Church, where, assisted by the office-bearers, he introduced the members and adherents present to Mrs. McConachie and to Mr. McConachie, as their Pastor.

At the conclusion of this important, solemn and impressive service, so dear to the memories and hearts of Presbyterians the wide world over, the office-bearers, at the behest of the Lady Managers, extended a hearty invitation, accompanied by tickets of free admission, to members of the Presbytery to the banquet spread so amply in the Sabbath School building directly across the street from the Church.

The invitation to this important function was gratefully accepted and it goes without saying that full justice was done to the abundance of the good things of this life—the excellence of quality, preparation and the exquisite service of which drew forth many expressions of unqualified appreciation from the hundreds of good judges present, and of their sincere thanks to the ladies for their kindly anticipation of the events of the outer man; and their perfect abandon of willingness in the valued services rendered by them in these and in other respects on this occasion.

On rising from the banquet the great congregation, whose numbers run well up beyond the line of the hundreds, led by the Moderator, reassembled in masses, in groups or in pairs—as heart sentiment directed—on the street; on the white, well-finished cement walks and Church front dias, or on the street margins of fresh, velvety grass leading into the country. It was twilight now; the moon near the full; a soft, south breeze blew.

Well, to the hour appointed for another change in the programme, (7.30 p.m.), they engaged in cheery conversation and reminiscences of similar occasions, in the days gone by, in company of many now fallen asleep in the neighbouring cemetery or gone west to establish new households.

At the hour appointed Rev. Mr. McConachie took the chair. Rev. Professor Morton was conducted by the Moderator of the Presbytery to the seat of honour. The Moderator and Revs. Pogue and Goodwill occupied seats on the platform. The pulpit—a movable one—disappeared for the occasion. Professor Kenyen, accompanied by Miss Meiklejohn of Campbellford, were conducted to seats of honour in the Choir which was filled to its utmost capacity by well-trained voices chosen from the membership of the congregation and supported by the organ under the skillful touch of a young lady.

The Chairman announced the opening number on the programme for this never-to-be-forgotten occasion, and the hundreds of voices present, in unison, engaged in singing 'Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." The audience was then entertained with rare excellence by Prof. Kenyon, in selections appealing to lovers of the loftiest ideals in sacred song, V.D. "Fear Ye Not, Oh Israel," etc., and being in fine voice, he responded most heartily to each call before the lights from the wholesouled, musical, well-trained and appreciative audience. Interspersed with the numbers by Prof. Kenyon, were many exquisite selections by Miss Meiklejohn, who, in that inimitable style and voice, and whole-souled abandon of manner, so peculiarly her own, so captivated the audience with her rendering of the favourite numbers from "Auld Scotia's" Past Masters in vocal son, that the encore calls from platform, choir and pews brought her again and again, bounding like a gentle fawn, before the lights, and with each succeeding response holding the rapt attention of the audience to their full conclusion.

Addresses were given by Revs Goodwill and Pogue, who delivered them in style and vein well calculated to relieve conditions, physical and mental—imagined by some to have been partially created and brought to notice through unfeigned appreciation and possession of the rich bounties of the banqueting hall. Legends of the "Live Irishman"—illustrative of many national characteristics, were pitted against similar legends from the lips of the sturdy, bronzed native of the Island of Samo—and all were carefully sandwiched between wholesome numbers by the Choir. The Moderator, Rev. H. J. Keith, gave an able resume of the short and happy acquaintance he has with Rev. Mr. McConachie, and of the good things, cheering, comforting, spiritual, which from fuller, happy experience during the terms of his interim Moderatorships of Session of Centreville and Stewart Memorial Churches, he predicted were in store for Mr. and Mrs. McConachie and their intersting young family at the hands of the warm-hearted, wise headed, willing farmers and their still more excellent wives, aided by the sons and daughters in the homes of his parishoners. The Moderator concluded his thoughtful, encouraging address by stating his well-grounded opinion, based on experience, that the Centreville and Stewart Memorial congregations formed one of the finest and noblest rural pastoral charges to be found within the bounds of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston, and earnestly congratulated Rev. Mr. McConachie and these two worthy congregations on the consummation of the marriage tie, wishing them many years of usefulness and happy progress together. Rev. Professor Morton then delivered a clear, concise, beautiful, historical statement of the time, circumstances and manner,—while pursuing a special course of studies in Church History in London, England—under which he was first made acquainted with the name, reputation and excellent work accomplished through the ministration of Rev. Mr. McConachie in the congregation then under his pastoral care in the town of Ayr, Scotland. Also of letters of brotherly good-will and of great need of the consecrated services of men of scholarly culture, well grounded in the faith of the pure Gospel of Jesus Christ and who are not afraid of the honest, hard work essential to the fuller supplying of vacant pastoral charges, and the more effective manning of the rapidly expanding Home and Foreign Mission fields of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Previous to this Prof. Morton and Mr. McConachie had not met personally Rev. Prof. Morton, at a moment's notice, had responded to a call to the Chair of Church History in Knox College, Toronto, but previous to his coming to Canada had visited Ayr, Scotland, in the hope of seing Mr. McConachie, only to find that he had gone on his 1912 holiday to Canada; and on his taking up professional duties in Knox College he found, to his surprise, that Mr. McConachie had just recently returned to Scotland. Correspondence was renewed between them and he learned that Mr. McConachie had received a call from Three Rivers, Presbytery of Quebec, which, after mature consideration, he had declined.

As the great need for additional workers of the right kind in the fields of the Church in Canada became more fully known to Professor Morton, his leters of invitation to Mr. McConachie to "Come over and help us" became more frequent and more forcibly urgent, and the replies indicated that conditions in the Canadian Church were occupying more and more of Mr. Conachie's prayerful attention. Thus autumn and winter passed and genial spring time brought Professor Morton the happy intelligence of Mr. McConachie's decision to submit his papers, through Professor Morton, to the Presbytery of Toronto for application to the Committee of General Assembly on Reception of Ministers from other churches. The papers were duly presented and Rev. Mr. McConachie again took passage for Canada, and appeared before the Committee of Assembly in Toronto, where he was in the unanimous and most hearty Christian manner received into the Ministry of our beloved Presbyterian Church in Canada. The call from Centreville and Stewart Memorial Churches to Rev. Mr. McConachie was characterized by the most complete and sympathetic unanimity, and appealing to all concerned, as in very truth it is—a call inspired and directed by the spirit of God—was by him accepted as such with Christ-like faith and trust. Accordingly, when the Presytery of Peterborough met in St. James' Square Church, Toronto, on the 15th of October, at a meeting of the Synod of Toronto and Kingstn, Mr. McConachie appeared in person for the first time there; the Court then examined, considered and agreed that the call is a regular Gospel call; at once placing it in the hands of Mr. McConachie for final consideration, and receiving his declaration of acceptance proceeded to make the arrangements for his induction as it has been consummated to-day. Mr. McConachie addressed the congregation in terms and spirit of kindly Christian hope and encouragement and, after prayer by the Moderator, and songs of praise to God, requested Rev. Professor Morton to conclude the exercises of the day with the Benediction.

At the request of Rev. H. J. Keith, this report of the induction is respectfully submitted for publication by Robert Harrison.

NO SUSPICION ON THE BOYS

Peterborough, Nov. 10, 1913.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Sir,—May I be allowed through your columns to inform the boys on the Chemong Road, that with respect to the accident which happened on Friday week last, no suspicion is felt that any of them had anything to do with it.

Thanking you in anticipation, I am Sir,

Yours truly,
Rich. J. Devey.

CANAL READY IN FEW MONTHS

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 10.—Secetary War Garrison arriving here from the inspection of the Panama to-day, said the work was proceeding satisfactorily and in a few months the canal would be opened for regular traffic.

BLACK EYE FOR TAMMANY

Special to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 10.—All hopes of Tammany for the apointment of Murphy as Collector of Customs of the Port of New York were dissipated this morning when the name of Third Assistant Secretary State Dudley Malone, was sent on to the Senate by President Wilson for appointment to that position.

LAKE LINER IS AGROUND

Examiner Special:

CALUMET, MICH., Nov. 10.—Captain Tucker's Eagle Harbour life-saving crew to-day made several futile attempts to reach a large lake liner, name unknown, which is aground and pounding to pieces during a fifty-mile gale on Manitou Island in Lake Superior. The terrific waves made rescue impossible. One hope is that the vessel may last till the gale abates.

VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY

Ritual Trial at Kieff Finished To-day

Special Cable to The Examiner.

KIEFF, Russia, Nov. 10.—Mendel Beilliss, the Jew who has been under trial here for weeks charged with murdering a boy for ritualistic purposes was acquitted to-day despite the president of the court who practically ordered the jury to convict the prisoner. There were serious demonstrations following the release of Beilliss and riots are likely to follow.

Troops with fixed bayonets and Cossacks with drawn sabres patrolled the streets to prevent anti-semetic outbreaks when the verdict was announced. There was a roar of protest from the crowd, but the people were cowed by the troops. The prisoner broke down completely. He was escorted by troops to his home where his wife and children awaited him. It is believed he will immediately emmigrate to America with his family.

LINERS DELAYED BY STORM

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—From Quebec to-day comes the word that the Steamer Royal George and other liners have been delayed two days by fierce gales off the Newfoundland coast. At Halifax there was much damage to shipping. Fort. Wiliam telegraphs that the wireless apparatus and telegraph lines are all down. The passenger steamers, Alberta and Assiniboia, are taking shelter in Thunder Bay.

TO HOLD "SHOWER"

The directors of the Peterborough Protestant Home intend holding a jam and linen shower at the Home on Wednesday afternoon, November 12, from 3 to 6 o'clock. The public is cordially invited, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance as the Home is greatly in need of house linen and all kinds of fruits and pickles for the winter will be served.

The Skin Troubles of Childhood

School Records Show Much Time Lost From Eczema.

Chafing and skin irritation, whether from changing temperature, rough winds, strong soap or the action of the clothing, naturally develop into eczema, spread over the body and defy ordinary treatments.

Most doctors do not give much attention to skin diseases, and, consequently, it is necessary for parents to select some treatment which has proven a cure for such ailments. If records of cures count for anything, then you can turn to Dr. Chase's Ointment with fullest assurance that in this you will have the means of controlling itching skin diseases.

By affording prompt relief from the terrible itching, Dr. Chase's Ointment puts an end to suffering, and removes the cause of scratching. As the fires of eczema die away the ointment sets up the process of healing, and brings about thorough and lasting cure. As a treatment for the skin troubles of children nothing has ever proved so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Ointment.

COAL CONTEST AT HICKS' COAL YARDS

Five Persons Estimate the Load of Coal Within Two Pounds of Its Actual Weight

The public inspection of the newest methods of handing coal and the interesting estimating contest which took place on Saturday afternoon at Robert Hicks' new coal elevator, corner of Bethune and Charlotte streets, developed into quite a sensational event. Notwithstanding the heavy downpour of rain all morning, and up to the hour announced for the demonstration to begin, crowds of men, women and even children, were gathered in and around the coal sheds and elevator.

At 3 o'clock the new elevator was set in motion, and an opportunity was afforded of witnessing the improved method of unloading coal from the cars, raising it by carriers into the elevator, the self-screening process, and the loading into delivery waggons by chutes from the elevator, by electric power and machinery. The process was a revelation to many, and produced a very favourable impression, especially on the minds of coal users who know the value of well screened coal.

By 3:30 o'clock, the hour anounced for the estimating contest, there was a bumper crowd. Blank estimating cards were passed round in the meantime, and everybody "got busy." Precisely at the minute an empty waggon was drawn up in front of one of the coal chutes, when Mr. Hicks asked all who desired to come forward and examine the waggon, so that everybody might be satisfied with the "squareness" of the test. The waggon was soon filled from the coal chute, less than three minutes being required to fill it. The crowd was allowed to view the load, after which the driver was instructed to proceed with it to the City Weigh Scales and bring back with him the market clerk's certificate of weight. The driver was also cautioned to allow no one to measure thedimensions of the waggon or coal. After about half an hour's impatient waiting, during which time the crowd was busy making their tickets, the driver, Bruce Fee, returned with his load bringing the following certificate from the market clerk:

"Weigh Bill 1309.
Peterborough, Nov. 8, 1913.
Mr. R. Hicks.
Weight of coal..... 5198 lbs.
Vehicle ..... 2350 lbs.

Net weight ..... 2848 lbs.
M. FISHER,
Market Clerk."

Mr. D. R. Fleming, bookkeeper for the Dickson Co., had been selected to collect the estimates and make the award. At 5 o'clock when all the tickets were in, Mr. Fleming made the following report to Mr. Hicks:

"The following are the nearest estimates of the contest:

Jacob Brown, 599 Homewood avenue, 2850 lbs.

F. W. Adlam, 515 Bolivar street, 2850 lbs.

Jas. Curtin, 640 Union street, 2850 lbs.

C. H. McGee, 590 Downie street, 2850 lbs.

Mr. Boddison, 575 Patterson street, 2850 lbs.

(signed) D. R. Fleming."

This statement showed that five citizens had each made precisely the same estimate, and that each had estimated withinly only two pounds of the actual weight of coal. Besides these, twenty-one others had estimated within fifty-two pounds of the weight, that is, from 2800 lbs. to 2900 lbs.

The result was at first somewhat of a problem to Mr. Hicks to know how to make his award. The condition of the contest was that "the three nearest to the actual weight would each receive a ton of coal"; but as five had estimated exactly alike, and within two pounds of the actual weight, he generously decided to give a ton of coal to each of the five lucky ones. In addition, Mr. Hicks also decided to give a special prize to Mrs. Kelleher, of 261 Romaine street, whose estimate was 2840 lbs., or within seven pounds of the actual weight, and the nearest estimate from any lady.

Mr. Hicks desires to thank the public for the live interest taken in this event, and requests each of the winners to call at his office on Charlotte street and state the kind of coal required.

City Hall Notes

Police Commissioners.

The Board of Police Commissioners will meet this afternoon at 4.30 o'clock. The Board will consider the advisability of providing a successor to P. C. Tucker, who recently resigned his position on the police force. A number of applications have been received.

A Joint Meeting.

On Tuesday evening a joint meeting of the Peterborough Water Commissioners and the Power committee of the City will be held. The meeting is for the purpose of deciding upon some definite arrangement, whereby the Water Commissioners will assume control of the City's Hydro-Electric scheme. The latter power is vested in the Water Commission by a special Act of Parliament, enacted in 1907.

SOME OTHER KIND OF TROUBLE

By RUTH CAMERON

A great trouble has come into the life of a friend of mine. Her husband, a man in the early prime of life, has had a stroke of paralysis and lies dumb and helpless on his bed.

My friend has never had any serious trouble before and she takes it very hard. When any one tries to comfort her she says, bitterly, "It's such a horrible thing to have happen. I know everyone must have some trouble in their lives, but it seems as if I could have borne some other kind of trouble better than this."

Some other kind of trouble is always easier to bear than the particular brand that falls to our lot.

Any other kind of pain is less painful than the variety with which we are suffering.

Of course we are sorry for our neighbour when he meets with a bereavement, but we are sure that no sorrow can possibly be as poignant as our own.

A certain woman lost a splendid son in the full prime of young manhood. It was a terrible blow to her and seemed to change her whole outlook on life. When she hears of a mother who has lost a baby or a young child she says, "Yes, that must hard, but it can't be like losing a full-grown son. When I lost John it wasn't only the loss of my child I had to bear, but the loss of my friend and the prop I hoped to lean on in my old age."

On the other hand, I have recently come into considerable contact with a woman who has just lost her baby, a beautiful little boy, barely two years old. Hoping to divert her for a moment or two from her own grief, I spoke of the first woman's loss and how bitterly she grieved over it. "Yes, that must have been terrible," said the young mother, her eyes filling. "I am sorry for her, but it cannot be so hard as losing a little baby. Babies are so dependent on you. You are doing something for them every moment of the day, and when they go away it means such a terrible emptiness. Besides, she had her child thirty years and I only had mine two."

So it ever goes, and somehow I am sure that if one could ask a mother who has had both experiences, which loss was the easier to bear, she would tell you "Neither."

No pain, no trouble, no grief is easy to bear. Then wish not for some other kind of trouble instead of your own, lest that be given you also, to teach you the lesson that the other man's trouble is as great as yours.

STORM IS UNABATED

Tales of Wrecks Coming In From Upper Great Lakes

SAILORS IN GRAVE PERIL

CALUMET, Mich., Nov. 11. — In the face of a 50-mile gale, shifting from northeast to northwest, on Lake Superior last night, fear is expressed for the safety of the crew, numbering 28 men, aboard a steamer stranded on Gull Rock, off Manitou Island, at the extreme end of Keweenaw Point. The life-saving crew at Eagle Harbor is trying to make a run for the wreck.

The life-savers, after a three hours' battle with the heavy seas, a stiff wind on shore, and a snowstorm, were baffled yesterday, principally because they were not equipped with a power boat.

The steamer was sighted Saturday afternoon by the steamer George B. Stephenson, shortly after it went on the reef. The Stephenson could see the crew aboard the craft, but could not reach the wreck, and gave up the attempt after a struggle of six hours.

According to the Stephenson, the bow of the stranded boat is high on the reef and the stern deep in water, putting out the fires under the boilers. This morning Capt. McCormick and his life-saving crew left on the tug Hebard, taking with them a power boat with which an effort will be made to reach the wreck.

Another Steamer Wrecked.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 11.—Down-bound steamers continue to arrive heavily iced from the fierce storm which is sweeping over the lakes. Nearly a hundred steamers are now scattered between the Soo and Whitefish, awaiting for weather conditions to permit them to proceed. Yesterday afternoon reports of steamers in trouble began to come in.

The Superior last evening reported a Tomlinson line steamer wrecked off Gross Cap Point. Later, the McDougall, which reached the Soo last night, confirmed the report. The captain says he heard distress signals from the steamer yesterday afternoon. He tried to get to her, but on account of the heavy seas and strong wind had to give it up. The wreck's identity has not been clearly established, but it is thought to be either the Hartwell or the James E. Davidson. The captain of the McDougall said he was almost sure it was the Davidson. The steamer is lying decks to the waves. The crew are still on board as far as could be learned.

Huronic Stranded?

CALUMET, Mich., Nov. 11. — According to reports which have reached here by wireless, three other steamers are stranded at different points on Lake Superior and three craft are missing. The passenger steamer Huronic of the Northern Navigation Co. is stranded on Whitefish Point, and two steamers are reported ashore at Isle Royale and Copper Harbor. The watchman at the Portage Lake United States Ship Canal reports that the steamer Simon Langell and two consorts left there up-bound and have not been heard from.

Ten boats are in shelter at the ship canal's harbor of refuge, and three more at Bete Gris. No more boats can get into the ship canal because of the heavy seas.

Acadian Also Aground.

ALPENA, Mich., Nov. 11. — The steamer Acadian, a steel freighter, owned by the Merchants' Mutual Line of Toronto, is hard aground on a reef in Thunder Bay, seven miles off this port. Captain Robert McIntyre and his crew are believed to be safe on board.

Although the Acadian struck the reef about four o'clock Sunday afternoon, her predicament was not discovered until late yesterday.

Caravel Breaks Loose.

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 11.—As one of the results of the severe wind and snowstorm which struck Erie Sunday night, the Santa Maria, a reproduction of Columbus' caravel of the same name, was torn from its moorings yesterday morning and carried on to a sandbar outside the harbor. Tugs worked all day trying to release the caravel, but gave it up last night, and it is feared it will be impossible to save her. The Santa Maria and the Pinta and Nina, sister caravels, were in winter quarters here en route to San Francisco through the Panama Canal.

To Ask Health Certificate.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 11.—Dr. James Bishop Thomas, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, announced yesterday that in the future he would require a health certificate from persons desiring him to conduct their wedding certificates.

"I have had it in mind for some time to make the announcement," said Dr. Thomas, upon being asked for information on the views that led him to this decision. "I was waiting for some of the ministers to unite with me in the requirement, but none has yet seemed quite ready, so I determined not to wait any longer. I think it will be but a short time before others will take the same stand."

London's Lord Mayor Installed.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Sir T. Vansittart Bowater was yesterday installed Lord Mayor of the City of London with all the solemnity and display that ancient custom demands. The usual formalities having been carried out at the Guild Hall, the new Lord Mayor, accompanied by his predecessor, the sheriffs, aldermen and councillors of the City of London, went in their old-time costumes to the Law Courts, where the oath was administered by the new Lord Chief Justice, Sir Rufus Isaacs, who belongs to a family for years prominent in business and civic affairs of the city.

NO SIGN OF CLASH

Britain and U.S. Are Best of Friends, Says Asquith

SPEAKS AT THE GUILD HALL

LONDON, Nov. 11. — The Guild Hall banquet last night was attended by the usual brilliant company, which included Cabinet Ministers, members of the diplomatic corps and peers of the realm, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Sir Rufus Isaacs, Lord Chief Justice, naval and military officers and many persons prominent in civic and political spheres.

Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, replying to the toast of the "Imperial Forces," said that next year Great Britain would have a force of 150,000 sailors and marines, the largest on record. He emphasized the part played by citizens of London in the navy, and proceeded to say that the distinguished gathering met under circumstances freer from danger to the peace of Europe than for many years. But, he added, there must be no relaxation of effort. The estimates for 1914 would show a substantial increase, and he declared that even in the region of the air the British navy need not fear comparison with that of any other country.

The Rt. Hon. Herbert Asquith, Prime Minister, was heartily cheered as he rose to reply to the toast of "His Majesty's Ministers."

After extended references to the Balkan, European and Chinese situation, Mr. Asquith, proceeding, dealt with Mexico. The rumor found credence in some quarters, he said, that at a moment when the United States were taking a line of their own in regard to Mexico, Great Britain had entered upon a new departure of policy deliberately opposed to that of the United States and calculated to thwart it. There was not a vestige of foundation for any such rumor.

It was the 21st of March before the present Administration of the United States had an opportunity of making any declaration of policy. When the British Government recognized Huerta as President ad interim of Mexico it did so because, having itself neither the will nor the power to intervene, it was bound to deal with whatever was for the time being the de facto government, and because there appeared no element except Huerta that offered any prospect of the restoration of stability and order.

That was on the 31st of March. Since that time there had been no change of policy by the British Government. Great Britain gladly assumed that the policy of the United States would have regard to the legitimate commercial interests of Mexico as well as their own. The exchange of views with the United States had been marked by perfect cordiality. Nothing would happen to disturb their common resolve to maintain a friendly and sympathetic understanding. None had done more to foster that spirit than Mr. Bryce. (Cheers.)

Air Cleared, Says Times.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Premier Asquith's references to Mexico at the Guild Hall give intense satisfaction to the London morning newspapers. The Times, in an editorial, says:—

"They will be read throughout the Empire with heartfelt satisfaction, and we are confident that this satisfaction will not be less deep or general across the Atlantic. The Premier's words effectively dispose of the stories of strained relations between the two countries, stories which were never even plausible."

To Discuss Safety at Sea.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The international conference for the greater security of life and property at sea opens here this week, and the merchant shipping advisory committee of the Board of Trade has been conducting an investigation into the question of better protection against fire on shipboard.

Burned By Lamp Upsetting.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Annie Murphy, of Almon street, widow, was terribly burned yesterday morning as a result of the overturning of a lamp. With her clothing a mass of flames Mrs. Murphy rushed into the street at an early hour. Assistance was immediately available, but little could be done to relieve her sufferings, and she was taken to the hospital in a very critical condition.

BEGGED FOR DEATH.

Three Trainmen Burned In Wreckage After Collision.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 11.—Conductor Moffatt of Sarnia Tunnel, Brakeman Halloran of London, and Brakeman Stapleton of Sarnia, were killed, and Brakeman Ryckman, Engineer Hall and Fireman Holding of London, were seriously injured in a collision on the Grand Trunk at Wanstead early yesterday morning. The three met death when a freight train ran into the caboose and engine returning to the city "dead." The accident occurred a few miles west of Wyoming close to the scene of the disastrous wreck of some years ago.

The crash occurred shortly after five o'clock yesterday morning and was the result of the storm, which has been raging since Sunday. The men in the caboose were asleep at the time. Their bodies were burned in the wreck.

A few minutes after the collision fire broke out in the caboose and the three Sarnia men were burned to death before they could be liberated.

The moans and screams of the men as they lay pinioned under the heavy beams and trucks could be heard for a distance, and as the fire reached them they begged piteously to be killed. One man kept calling for someone to strike him over the head with an axe or something else. The members of the crew who were following worked frantically, but they could do nothing and were forced to stand helpless and watch their comrades die.

CAUSES IMMORALITY.

"Problem Novel" Condemned In Purity League Report.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 11. — At a business session of the International Purity Congress yesterday the following officers were elected: President, B. S. Steadwell, Lacrosse, Wis.; vice-presidents, Dr. T. Albert Moore, Toronto; Judge Harry Olson, Chicago, and Dr. Emma E. Drake, Denver.

"The problem novel" is held as the chief cause of immorality in the U. S., according to the report of the vice committee, presented by Chairman J. Frank Chase of Boston.

"The practical effect is to commercialize and make money out of a story," the report said. "Questions that we are forced to face are graphically presented, the effect being that a certain class will try the experiences which the author has pictured."

The committe denounced the "tango," "bunny hug," "turkey trot" and other dances.

Drinking places are the fountain head of impurity, particularly in Europe, while the prohibition of segregated vice districts does not really suppress the social evil. These are the conclusions drawn by Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts of Washington, D.C., in an address before the congress last night.

SHIP TURNS OVER

Big Lake Freighter Goes Down With All Hands in Storm

ALL ON BOARD PERISHED?

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 11.—Thirty or more persons, crew of a 600-foot steel freighter found bottom side up yesterday only a few miles from the mouth of the St. Clair river, in Lake Huron, directly in the path of the passing steamers, are believed to have perished in the gale which swept the great lakes on Sunday. Captains of vessels which made port here yesterday assert that the finding of the freighter is clear evidence that one of the greatest calamities in the history of Canada's inland navigation has occurred.

All Sunday night the wind blew a 60-mile gale over Lake Huron, curling the waters into huge billows that climbed high above the decks of the boats that were without shelter. When the storm died out yesterday morning the watchman in the tower of the life-saving station on the shore of Lake Huron, above the mouth of the river, reported that he could make out a dark object about 100 feet long and quite broad, floating about three miles from the shore.

Word was sent to the Sarnia office of the Reid Wrecking Co., and within a few minutes the Canadian tug, Sarnia City, was heading under full steam for the open lake. When the mouth of the river was reached the boat had to battle her way through the huge billows. When about seven miles from the river lighthouse, the low, black object was discerned, and it was soon seen that the object was 100 feet of the forward part of a big freighter's keel.

The boat was under water, with the exception of about 100 feet forward. It was thought that the upper works of the bow were holding the heavier afterpart of the boat from sinking out of sight.

When the tug arrived within a few feet of the black hulk, orders were give to stand by. Nothing, however, could be done, and as it was known that no one could be alive inside the boat, the tug returned to this port. They know that the brave men that had died in that overturned mass of steel had gone to their death without even a fighting chance for their lives, being, in fact, caught like rats in a trap.

Upon arrival of the tug at Sarnia enquiries were made as to the posible identity of the freighter, but nothing can be ascertained until the many boats on the lakes have reported themselves safe.

The only mark of identification is the color of the bottom of the boat, which was black. At first it was thought to be the steamer Scott, but this was dispelled when the marine reporting station reported that the Scott's hull was painted a dark red.

Captain Lampoh, one of the best known captains on the lakes, explained how he thought the accident happened. He stated that the boat was evidently proceeding up the lake light, and under those conditions could have a large amount of water in her tanks to hold her down and prevent too much jumping around. He also remarked that it was likely that the boat had a large amount of water in her cargo hold to aid in steadying the boat in the big seas. He thinks that the water in the cargo hold started to roll about, with the result that the boat went completely over without any warning. Marine men are not stating what they think in regard to the name of the overturned craft, as there is a very large number of black-painted boats sailing the lakes. At the same time that the hull of the overturned boat was discovered, signals were given from the lightship on the Corsica Shoal that she was dragging her anchor and was in danger of going on the Canadian shore. The tug Sarnia City went to her assistance on orders of President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' Association. When the tug offered to tow the craft back to her proper station, the captain refused to take the help offered, stating that he lacked official orders from the Washington authorities. The grounding of one of the steamers on the Corsica Shoal is accounted for by her captain, who blames the changed position of the lightship, which gave him a wrong direction.

Seized and Liberated Again.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 11.—Customs Officer Burns, at the request of the Montreal customs, seized the steam barge Reliance lying at Mathen's wharf, on the ground that the boat had not undergone inspection this year. A. J. Lee, the contractor for raising the steam barge Keystrom, claimed that the boat had been specially inspected the day before it left for Brockville by a Quebec officer. Apparently there was some misunderstanding in Montreal or Ottawa, as the Reliance was released yesterday, after being under seizure two days.

Extending Time for Contests.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—The date of the vote on the Canada Temperance Act in Peel, Welland and Huron Counties has been postponed from Nov. 24 to Jan. 27, because it is desired to give more time for the preparation for the contests.

It was represented that two weeks did not afford sufficient opportunity to organize for the campaign.

OLIVE OIL AS FOOD

One of the most sensible things inaugurated of late is the taking of olive oil as food and medicine. Physicians have advised such uses of the oil, but it has only been of recent date that it has become a "fad." It has been proved in many cases to be not only a corrective of the liver, but a food for the system as well, and is of great benefit for weak stomach and bowels. The dose is usually a teaspoonful of oil to be taken half an hour before breakfast and half an hour after supper. The oil may be freely used with vegetables and on salads, as it is harmless and beneficial. Its use may be continued for years, and in assisting the liver to do its work (it is in most cases mildly cathartic), the complexion is cleared of the ugly brown spots and leathery yellow appearance due to torpidity of the liver. The taste is not unpleasant, although a liking for it has, in most instances, to be acquired. But very few effective medicines are really finely flavoured, although any unpleasant taste can be disguised. Many physicians strongly recommend its uses, both internal and external. It is excellent to use, after the bath, and many delicate persons —especially children — are greatly benefitted by being massaged with it. The best quality of oil can be procured at McDermid & Jury's Drug Store in 25 and 50c. bottles.

ALLIANCE IS SECURE.

Rumors of Abrogation of Anglo-Japanese Pact Said To Be Groundless.

TOKIO, Nov. 11.—The suggestion that Japan intends to abrogate the alliance with Great Britain is regarded here as groundless. No question of abrogation has been raised by Japan, it is stated here, and the only moot point discussed in connection with the alliance has been that of Great Britain's attitude towards its continuance.

Chozo Kotke, director of political affairs, in a speech yesterday, declared that while he resided in England as counsellor of the Japanese embassy, he had found no desire or disposition whatever to discontinue or minimize the value of the alliance. Englishmen, he said, were trying to solve the question of harmonizing the alliance with the American situation in the event of the Californian alien land ownership dispute straining relations between Japan and the United States, and also with the situation between Great Britain and colonies like Canada and Australasia, where Japanese immigrants were not welcomed.

WOMAN SICK FOURTEEN YEARS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. Sadie Williams, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

"That Affair Next Door"

By Anna Katharine Green

I now know he was right; my pretensions dating from the moment I found that this affair, at first glance so simple, and at the next so complicated, had aroused in me a fever of investigation which no reasoning could allay. Though I had other and more personal matters on my mind, my thoughts would rest nowhere but on the details of this tragedy; and having, as I thought, noticed some few facts in connection with it, from which conclusions might be drawn, I amused myself with jotting them down on the back of a disputed grocer's bill I happened to find in my pocket.

Valueless as explaining this tragedy, being founded upon insufficient evidence, they may be interesting as showing the workings of my mind even at this early stage of the matter. They were drawn up under three heads.

First, was the death of this young woman an accident?

Second, was it suicide?

Third, was it a murder?

Under the first head I wrote:

My reasons for not thinking it an accident.

1. If it had been an accident and she had pulled the cabinet over upon herself, she would have been found with her feet pointing towards the wall where the cabinet had stood.

(But her feet were towards the door and her head under the cabinet.)

2. The decent, even precise, arrangement of the clothing about her feet, which precludes any theory involving accident.

Under the second:

Reason for not thinking it suicide.

She could not have been found in the position observed without having lain down on the floor while living and then pulled the shelves down upon herself.

(A theory obviously too improbable to be considered.)

Under the third:

Reason for not thinking it murder.

She would need to have been held down on the floor while the cabinet was being pulled over on her; something which the quiet aspect of the hands and feet made appear impossible.

To this I added:—

Reasons for accepting the theory of murder.

1. The fact that she did not go into the house alone; that a man entered with her, remained ten minutes, and then came out again and disappeared up the street with every appearance of haste and an anxious desire to leave the spot.

2. The front door, which he had unlooked on entering, was not locked by him on his departure, the catch doing the locking. Yet, though he could have re-entered so easily, he had shown no disposition to return.

3. The arrangement of the skirts, which show the touch of a careful hand after death.

Nothing clear, you see. I was doubtful of all; and yet my suspicions tended most toward murder.

I had eaten my luncheon before interfering in this mater, which was fortunate for me, as it was three o'clock before I was summoned to meet the Coroner, of whose arrival I had been conscious some time before.

He was in the front parlour where the dead girl lay, and as I took my way thither I felt the same sensations of faintess which had so nearly overcome me on the previous occasion. But I mastered them, and was quite myself before I crossed the threshold.

There were several gentlemen present, but of them all I only noticed two, one of whom I took to be the Coroner, while the other was my late interlocutor, Mr. Gryce. From the animatoin observable in the latter, I gathered that the case was growing in interest from the detective standpoint.

"Ah, and is this the witness?" asked the Coroner, as I stepped into the room.

"I am Miss Butterworth," was my calm reply, "Amelia Butterworth. Living next door and present at the discovery of this poor murdered body."

"Murdered," he repeated. "Why do you say murdered?"

For reply I drew from my pocket the bill on which I had scribbled my conclusions in regard to the matter.

'Read this," said I.

Evidently astonished, he took the paper from my hand, and, after some curious glances in my direction, condescended to do as I requested. The result was an odd but grudging look of admiration directed towards myself and a quick pasing over of the paper to the detective.

The latter, who had exchanged his bit of broken china for a very much used and tooth-marked lead pencil, frowned with a whimsical air at the latter before he put it in his pocket. Then he read my hurried scrawl.

'Two Richmonds in the field!" commented the Coroner, with a sly chuckle "I am afraid I shall have to yield to their allied forces. Miss Butterworth, the cabinet is about to be raised; do you feel as if you could endure the sight?"

"I can stand anything where the cause of justice is involved," I replied.

"Very well, then, sit down, if you please. When the whole body is visible I will tell you."

And stepping forward he gave orders to have the clock and broken china removed from about the body.

As the former was laid away on one end of the mantel some one observed:

"What a valuable witness that clock might have been had it been running when the shelves fell!"

But the fact was so patent that it had not been in motion for months that no one even answered; and Mr. Gryce did not so much as look towards it. But then we had all seen that the hands stood at three minutes to five.

I had been asked to sit down, but I found this impossible. Side by side with the detective, I viewed the replacing of that heavy piece of furniture against the wall, and the slow disclosure of the upper part of the body which had so long lain hidden.

That I did not give way is a proof that my father's prophecy was not without some reasonable foundation; for the sight was one to try the stoutest nerves, as well as to awaken the compassion of the hardest heart.

The Coroner, meeting my eye, pointed at the poor creature inquiringly.

"Is that the woman you saw enter here last night?"

I glanced down at her dress, noted the short summer cape tied to the neck with an elaborate bow of ribbon, and nodded my head.

"I remember the cape," said I. 'But where is her hat? She wore one. Let me see if I can describe it." Closing my eyes I endeavoured to recall the dim silhouette of her figure as she stood passing up the change to the driver; and was so far successful that I was ready to announce at the next moment that her hat presented the effect of a soft felt with one feather or one bow of ribbon standing upright from the side of the crown.

"Then the identity of this woman with the one you saw enter here last night is established," remarked the detective, stooping down and drawing from under the poor girl's body a hat, sufficiently like the one I had just described, to satisfy everybody that it was the same.

"As if there could be any doubt," I began.

But the Coroner, explaining that it was a mere formality, motioned me to stand aside in favour of the doctor, who seemed anxious to approach nearer the spot where the dead woman lay. This I was about to do when a sudden thought struck me, and I reached out my hand for the hat.

"Let me look at it a moment," said I.

Mr. Gryce at once handed it over, and I took a good look at it inside and out.

"It is pretty badly crushed," I observed, "and does not present a very fresh appearance, but for all that it has been worn but once."

"How do you know?" questioned the Coroner.

"Let the other Richmond inform you," was my grimly uttered reply, as I gave it again into the detective's hand.

There was a murmur about me, whether of amusement or displeasure, I made no effort to decide. I was finding out something for myself, and I did not care what they thought of me.

"Neither has she worn this dress long," I continued, "but that is not true of the shoes. They are not old, but they have been acquainted with the pavement, and that is more than can be said of the hem of this gown. There are no gloves on her hands; a few minutes elapsed then before the assault; long enough for her to take them off."

"Smart woman!" whispered a voice in my ear; a half-admiring, half-sarcastic voice that I had no difficulty in ascribing to Mr. Gryce. "But are you sure she wore any? Did you notice that her hand was gloved when she came into the house?"

"No," I answered frankly; "but so well-dressed a woman would no enter a house like this, without gloves."

"It was a warm night," some one suggested.

"I don't care. You will find her gloves as you have her hat; and you will find them with the fingers turned inside out, just as she drew them from her hand. So much I will concede to the warmth of the weather."

"Like these, for instance," broke in a quiet voice.

Started, for a hand had appeared over my shoulder dangling a pair of gloves before my eyes, I cried out, somewhat too triumphantly I own:

"Yes, yes, just like those! Did you pick them up here? Are they hers?"

"You say that this is the way hers should look."

"And I repeat it."

"Then allow me to pay you my compliments. These were picked up here."

"But where?" I cried. "I thought I had looked this carpet well over."

He smiled, not at me but at the gloves, and the thought crossed me that he felt as if something more than the gloves was being turned inside out. I therefore pursed my mouth, and determined to stand more on my guard.

"It is of no consequence," I assured him: "all such matters will come out at the inquest."

Mr. Gryce nodded, and put the gloves back in his pocket. With them he seemed to pocket some of his geniality and patience.

"All these facts have been gone over before you came in," said he, which statement I beg to consider as open to doubt.

The doctor, who had hardly moved a muscle during all this colloquy, now rose from his kneeling position beside the girl's head.

"I shall have to ask the presence of another physican," said he. "Will you send for one from your office, Coroner Dahl?"

At which I stepped back and the Coroner stepped forward, saying, however, as he passed me:

"The inquest wil lbe held day after to-morrow in my office. Hold yourself in readiness to be present. I regard you as one of my chief witnesses."

I assured him I would be on hand and, obeying a gesture of his finger, retreated from the room; but I did not yet leave the house. A straight, slim man, with a very small head but a very bright eye, was leaning on the newel-post in the front hall, and when he saw me, started up so alertly I perceived that he had business with me, and so waited for him to speak.

"You are Miss Butterworth?" he inquired.

"I am, sir."

"And I am a reporter from the New York World. Will you allow me—"

Why did he stop? I had merely looked at him. But he did stop, and that is saying considerable for a reporter from the New York World.

"I certainly am willing to tell you what I have told every one else," I interposed, considering it better not to make an enemy of so judicious a young man; and seeing him brighten up at this, I thereupon related all I considered desirable for the general public to know.

I was about passing on, when, reflecting that one good turn deserves another, I paused and asked him if he thought they would leave the dead girl in that house all night.

He answered that he did not think they would. That a telegram had been sent some time before to young Mr. Van Burnam, and that they were only awaiting his arrival to remove her.

"Do you mean Howard?" I asked.

"Is he the elder one?"

"No."

"It is the elder one they have summoned; the one who has been staying at Long Branch."

"How can they expect him then so soon?"

"Because he is in the city. It seems the old gentleman is going to return on the New York, and as she is due here to-day, Franklin Van Burnam has come to New York to meet him."

"Humph!" thought I, "lively times are in prospect," and for the first time I remembered my dinner and the orders which had not been given about some curtains which were to have been hung that day, and all the other reasons I had for being at home.

I must have shown my feelings, much as I pride myself upon my impassibility upon all occasions, for he immediately held out his arm, with an offer to pilot me through the crowd to my own house; and I was about to accept it when the door-bell rang so sharply that we involuntarily stopped.

"A fresh witness or a telegram for the Coroner," whispered the reporter in my ear.

"I tried to look indifferent, and doubtless made out pretty well, for he added, after a aly look in my face:

"You do not care to stay any longer?"

I made no reply, but I think he was impressed by my dignity. Could he not see that it would be the height of ill-manners for me to rush out in the face of any one coming in?

An officer opened the door, and when we saw who stood there, I am sure that the reporter, as well as myself, was grateful that we listened to the dictates of politeness. It was young Mr. Van Burnam—Franklin; I mean the older and more respectable of the two sons.

He was flushed and agitated, and looked as if he would like to annihilate the crowd pushing him about on his own stoop. He gave an angry glance backward as he stepped in, and then I saw that a carriage covered with baggage stood on the other side of the street, and gathered that he had not returned to his father's house alone.

"What has happened? What does all this mean?" were the words he hurled at us as the door closed behind him and he found himself face to face with a half dozen strangers, among whom the reporter and myself stood conspicuous.

Mr. Gryce, coming suddenly from somewhere, was the one to answer him.

"A painful occurrence, sir. A young girl has been found here, dead, crushed under one of your parlour cabinets."

"A young girl," he repeated. (Oh, how glad I was that I had been brought up never to transgress the principles of politeness.' "Here! in this shut-up house What young girl? You mean old woman, do you not? the house-cleaner or some one——"

"No, Mr. Van Burnam, we mean what we say, though possibly I should call her a young lady. She is dressed quite fashionably."

"The ——" Really I cannot repeat in this public manner the word which Mr. Van Burnam used. I excused him at the time, but I will not perpetuate his forgetfulness in these pages.

"She is still lying as we found her," Mr. Gryce now proceeded in his quiet, almost fatherly way. "Will you not take a look at her? Perhaps you can tell us who she is?"

"I?" Mr. Van Burnam seemed quite shocked. "How could I know her! Some thief probably, killed while meddling with other people's property."

"Perhaps," quoth Mr. Gryce, laconically; at which I felt so angry, as tending to mislead my handsome young neighbour, that I irresistibly did what I had fully made up my mind not to do, that is, stepped into view and took a part in this conversation.

"How can you say that," I cried, "when her admittance here was due to a young man who let her in at midnight with a key, and then left her to eat out her heart in this great house all alone."

I have made sensations in my life, but never quite so marked a one as this. In an instant every eye was on me, with the exception of the detective's. His was on the figure crowning the newel-post, and bitterly severe his gaze was too, though it immediately grew wary as the young man started towards me and impetuously demanded:

"Who talks like that? Why, it 's Miss Butterworth. Madam, I fear I did not fully understand what you said."

Whereupon I repeated my words, this time very quietly but clearly, while Mr. Gryce continued to frown at the bronze figure he had taken into his confidence. When I had finished, Mr. Van Burnam's countenance had changed, so had his manner. He held himself as erect as before, but not with as much bravodo. He showed haste and impatience also, but not the same kind of haste and not quite the same kind of impatience. The corners of Mr. Gryce's mouth betrayed that he noted this change, but he did not turn away from the newel-post.

"This is a remarkable circumstance which you have just told me," observed Mr. Van Burnam, with the first bow I had ever received from him. "I don't know what to think of it. But I still hold that it 's some thief. Killed, did you say? Really dead? Well, I'd have given five hundred dollars not to have had it happen in this house."

He had been moving towards the parlour door, and he now entered it. Instantly Mr. Gryce was by his side.

"Are they going to close the door?" I whispered to the reporter, who was taking this all in equally with myself.

"I'm afraid so," he muttered.

HEART WAS SO BAD

Could Not Do Her Housework

Many women get run down and are unable to look after their household duties owing to the heart action becoming impaired or the nervous system unstrung.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Thomas Melville, Saltcoats, Sask., writes:—"I thought it my duty to write and tell you how much your Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. My heart was so bad I could not sleep, eat nor walk about the house. I could not do my housework at all, and what my husband could not do had to go undone. I had two small children depending on me besides three men to cook for, and it worried me to not be able to do anything. My husband had taken some of your pills some years ago, and insisted on me trying them, so I started, and before I had taken them two weeks I was considerably better, and before I had taken two boxes I was doing my own work again. Any one suffering from heart or nerve trouble should just give your pills a trial. If anyone cares to write me I will gladly give them all the information I know concerning your wonderful medicine."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Try This Home-made Cough Remedy

Costs Little, But Does the Work Quickly, or Money Refunded.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with 1 cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You will find that this simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else ever used. Usually ends a deep-seated cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, croup, chest pains, bronchitis, and other throat troubles. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This recipe makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $3.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasantly.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural pine elements, which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This plan of making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

PEPS in the CANADIAN SENATE.

Senator Derbyshire, of Brockville, Ont., writes:

To the Proprietors of Peps,
Toronto.

I am very pleased to express my high opinion of your preparation. Some time ago I contracted a very bad cold, which settled on my lungs and bronchial tubes. I almost lost my voice, was constantly coughing, and experienced considerable pain.

A friend offered me a box of Peps and I tried them. I was very much pleased with their almost instant action. They seemed to go direct to the sore places, stopped the coughing, and made my breathing easier. I continued their use for a short time, and they completely cured my cold. Since then, on one or two occasions, when I have contracted a bad cold, I have used them, and each time the result has been equally satisfactory.

My wife has had an experience somewhat similar, and although neither of us believes in very much medicine-taking, we regard Peps in a class by themselves, and such a handy effective remedy, that we always keep a supply in the house.

(Signed) D. DERBYSHIRE,
Senator,
Brockville, Ont.

Peps are small pastilles containing certain medicinal ingredients, which when placed upon the tongue immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the capillaries and tiny air sacs in the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, Peps fumes get there direct; and at once commence their work of healing.

All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. a box or post free from Peps Co., Dupont Street, Toronto for price. Send 1c. stamp for trial packet and booklet telling all about Peps.

A Successful Business Demands Quick Service

THE days of leisurely, go-as-you-please methods are past. To be successful in any line of business today demands quick service, prompt deliveries, foresight and economy of time and labor.

This is the age of EFFICIENCY—and the degree of prosperity enjoyed by the successful business man is proportionate to the efficiency of his plant and organization.

One of the most vital factors in the success of any manufacturing or merchandising business is a modern Freight Elevator.

The installation of an Otis-Fensom Freight Elevator makes available every square foot of floor-space on every floor of the building. It eliminates duplicated effort on the part of workmen, stops business leaks, saves time, conserves energy and increases profits.

OTIS FENSOM FREIGHT ELEVATORS

An Otis-Fensom Freight Elevator may be bought for as little as $70—less than the cost of a good office desk or a typewriter. It pays for itself in the saving effected in time and labor—in the reduction of wear and tear on goods—in the increased business from better satisfied customers—and in the ability to handle more business efficiently.

An Electric Elevator may be installed at a moderate price, and, in view of the abundance and low cost of electric power, will prove a sound investment. Write today for free booklet "Freight Elevators and Their Uses." It will tell you about an elevator suited to YOUR particular needs.

Don't put it off until another time—simply fill in this coupon and mail NOW, while the thought is fresh in your mind.

A GOWN FROM PARIS.

And How the German Empress Came to Wear and Praise It.

The question whether the German crown princess ought or ought not to have ordered a dress from Paris has been hotly argued in Germany recently, and apropos the following story has been told in a German paper. It happened some years ago at the Kiel regatta. This fashionable festival had united the emperor and the empress and their suit and some French people of the highest rank. Wilhelm II. was charmed by the elegance of the Parisian toilets and asked Princess Badolin, the wife of the then German ambassador in France, how it was that she was able to dress so well.

"Oh, your majesty," was the answer, "I say to my dressmaker, 'Make me a dress!'"

"I should like the empress to wear a dress as elegant as those you Parisians wear, but she will never consent to have her clothes made in Paris. How can I manage it without rousing her suspicions?"

"Your majesty," replied the princess, "it's very simple. If you would give me a dress which fits the empress perfectly and if the empress will open an account with X. I will see to it."

Accordingly some time after a large box came to Potsdam from the Rue de la Paix. The emperor had it opened and presented the dress to the empress, requesting that she would favor him by wearing this "Berlin made dress" at the next opera. The empress consented without enthusiasm.

A few days after when she entered the opera a murmur of admiration ran through the house. The ladies of the court admitted to the imperial box hastened to compliment the empress upon her superb toilet, to whom the empress replied:

"There, now! And there are people who pretend that one can only be well dressed in Paris!"

In 2017, according to a scientist, this will be a babyless world. We have several red apples to wager that this awful prediction will be falsified by the facts. Any takers?

London Tobacconist Tells of Weeds For Fair Sex.

"The average tradesman comes across more queer people in a month than the man who has never served behind a counter meets in a lifetime," said a tobacconist to a London reporter in the course of a recent conversation. "Of course, the majority of my customers are of the male persuasion but I daresay my shop is visited by a hundred women or so every seven days. As a rule they buy cigarettes, most likely for their own consumption, for the fair sex, as you know, has taken to tobacco during the last few years. Ladies smoke cigarettes on their way to the theatre, they smoke on the return home, they smoke after luncheon in restaurants, and some of the least modest can be seen puffing the 'fag' on top of motor-buses. The day is coming when women will smoke anywhere."

"In this neighborhood there is over a score of lady cigarette smokers who are numbered among my regular customers, and, curiously enough, half of them are married. This fact either points out that women are becoming masters of the household, so to speak, or that modern husbands see no harm in their wives puffing clouds of smoke as they busy themselves about the house.

"A month or two ago I was visited by a handsome lady of about forty-five summers whose complexion openly displayed the fact that she had spent many years abroad. She purchased from me a hundred small cigars, commonly known as "whiffs." Last week her husband came into the shop and asked for another hundred of the same kind, informing me that his wife had purchased a like number some time before. 'I am glad to know that they appealed to your taste, sir,' I said. His reply was a bit of a startler. 'I smoke nothing but a pipe,' he said quietly. 'The cigars are for her. She picked up the smoking habit in Spain.'

"Last spring an old man wearing a threadbare coat, and whose boots were badly in need of new heels and new soles, crept timidly into my shop and asked the price of the best cigar I had. 'Far more than you would care to pay,' I answered, taking my visitor to be as poor as the proverbial church mouse. 'I asked for the price of your best cigar, not for an insult,' gasped the old man angrily. With that I brought down from a top shelf a box and opened it under his nose. 'They're a shilling each, sir, but if you purchase them by the hundred I can do them at a little less.' 'Ah!' ejaculated the aged and ragged individual, as he carefully examined them, 'I'll take ten at present.' He paid and went away, and I fell to wondering who he could be. A few days later a man in livery came in and ordered a thousand of the cigars I had sold his master—the man in the threadbare coat. I learnt from the servant that the shabby old man was eccentric, especially where his personal appearance was concerned. It was his whim to pose occasionally as a man without a penny, when all the time he had a banking account that ran into six figures."

"I wish I had money enough to get married," he remarked.

She looked down and blushed. "And—what—would—you—do?" she asked, looking very hard at a little design on the carpet.

"I would spend it traveling," he replied. And the thermometer fell 10 degrees.—Lippincott's.

Next To Consumption.

There Are More Deaths From PNEUMONIA Than Any Other Lung Trouble.

Pneumonia is nothing more or less than what used to be called "Inflammation of the Lungs."

Consumption may be contracted from others, but as a rule pneumonia is caused by exposure to cold and wet, and there is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is to cure the cold on its first appearance.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this for you if you will only take it in time.

Mrs. Wm. M. Steeves, River Glade, N.B., writes:—"Please allow me to express my gratitude for the presence of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup in the house, for I believe it saved our little boy's life. Three years this fall we were in the lumber woods, and it was very hard to get a doctor to us, and our little boy got pneumonia, and was very ill. The only relief he could get was to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and with the combined use of the Syrup, and your British Troop Oil Liniment, he soon got better, and was around in a couple of weeks. It certainly is a great remedy."

Price, 25 and 50 cents.

OXEN AS POLICEMEN.

Curious Methods of Caring For Spanish Fighting Bulls.

Whatever one's views may be in regard to bull fighting there is one feature of the national sport of Spain which is particularly interesting to the visitor and sightseer. The bulls for the arena are usually kept in large paddocks, wild and unfettered, for, as Sir Albert Rollit, who has visited one of these paddocks near Seville, says, "The animals know nothing of ropes or chains during lifetime."

It is a dangerous business, however, entering these paddocks. Sir Albert stood some fifty paces from the bulls and in his interesting letter describing the scene, published in Country Life, says, "We entered with our lives in our hands."

The bulls, however, are kept in order by a cordon of tame oxen, which, if a bull attempts to escape, at once prevents it doing so, acting skilfully and effectively as a species of bovine police. "The night before the spectacle in the bull ring at Seville," to quote Sir Albert, "the bulls are driven, still quite at large, by picadors along the boulevards, intermixed with the oxen and restrained only by them. On my asking if there must not be danger to the public using the boulevard, the reply was that occasionally a bull might hide in the bushes of the central gardens and foul of a workman in the morning but such incidents did not seem to be regarded as matters of much importance compared with the popularity of the national amusement. At times many of the aristocracy and others of both sexes ride on horseback in advance of the bulls, which is regarded as fine, but rather dangerous sport.

"When at or near midnight the bulls thus enter the bull ring, the scene is one of great turmoil, noise and excitement. In rush the driven animals, bulls and oxen, helter skelter, a motley crowd of men and beasts, a veritable pandemonium. The last scene is most interesting of all. Stables with open doors encompass the arena, in front of each of which is a sliding door and at the back a lighted lantern. These lanterns the bull makes for one after another, smashing them and extinguishing the lights, and as each light is observed by an attendant to be put out, he slips down the door of the stable and the bull is thus encaged and ready for the Spanish holiday of the morrow. Successively the light disappear, and when all are out and the doors of the stables closed the police men are driven out of the bull ring to return to their more peaceful padlocks and to render similar service to other bulls and other devotees of the bull ring."

HUMILIATED WOMAN

Would Not Attend Social Functions Because of Her Hair

There are many women in this world, handsome in features, perfect in form, graceful of movement and brilliant of mind, who keep in the background just because they have thin, colourless and lustreless hair.

In Paris they understand things about the hair that we do not know in this country. It was a Parisian, Dr. Sangerbond, who discovered that thin hair and dandruff are caused by a microbe.

It is Parisian Sage that proves Dr. Sangerbond's theory to be correct, for it is rigidly guaranteed to kill the dandruff germ and cure dandruff, falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

Parisian Sage is a delightfully pleasant hair dressing and invigorator; it is not stick or greasy. It should be used freely in Spring and Summer as it keeps the scalp clean and cool and free from odours.

Parisian Sage comes in large 50-cent bottles and is for sale by the Warne Drug Co. and leading druggists everywhere on the money-back plan. "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every package. Made in Canada by The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont.

THE BUCCANEERS

By F. A. MITCHEL

Some 200 years ago piracy was much in vogue on the ocean. The buccaneers of that day arose in this way: The English and the Spaniards were at war, and the English fitted out privateers to prey on the Spanish ships bearing treasure from Spain's Mexico possessions. When the war closed the privateers continued their depredations illegally under the flag of the skull and bones instead of the cross of St. George. After awhile the attention of the British navy was directed to eradicating them, but it proved a slow process and had not been entirely achieved at the beginning of the last century.

One afternoon the English merchant ship Petrel, Captain Stoughton, sailing down the east coast of Mexico, passed a corvet also bearing the British flag and was asked if she had seen anything of a low cut, rakish vessel. Captain Stoughton replied that he had not and passed on. An hour later, coming to the mouth of the Rio Grande river and the waters not being as well charted in those days as now, he concluded to run in a short distance and lay at anchor till morning.

Now, when the Petrel entered the river the low cut, rakish vessel mentioned was lying a trifle farther up stream. Captain Stoughton brought his glass to bear on her and didn't like her looks. But it was nearly dark when he discovered her, and he did not dare attempt to regain the ocean in the darkness.

Nevertheless as soon as the anchor had been dropped he called his first officer into his cabin, told him that he suspected the craft he had seen to be a pirate and directed him to take a boat and six men, go northward, find the corvet and report the vessel's presence in the mouth of the river.

Meanwhile the captain of the pirate lay low during the night, intending as soon as daybreak to make a prize of the Petrel, put the crew and every one else on board to the sword and loot her. Captain Stoughton, knowing that if the vessel near him was what he suspected this would be the result, awaited the dawn with great anxiety, hoping his messenger would bring the corvet.

But when light came a heavy fog came with it. This brought disappointment to the pirate captain, as well as to Stoughton, though the latter was not certain whether it would be a disadvantage or an advantage to him. It certainly brought delay, and delay meant suspense. Before break of day he awoke all on board and, telling them of his suspicions, directed each and every one of them not to make the slightest noise, even to speak in whispers. There were women and children on board, and the dread was so great that the order was obeyed. The children were shut in the cabins, where they would not be heard.

Half an hour after daybreak the sound of oars was heard. They must be either from the pirate or the boat sent to the corvet. That they were from the pirate was soon evident from a volley of oaths spoken by the captain who was in command of the boat and in search of the Petrel. The women all went to the cabins to make sure that if a child made a sound it should be muffled, while the men stood in a group on deck armed with such weapons as the ship afforded, that they might sell their lives as dearly as possible.

The pirate commander had noted the direction of the Petrel and steered by compass. In his yawl were twenty men armed to the teeth. They passed the Petrel some 500 yards astern and reaching the shore, turned and this time passed under her stern 100 feet away. Every man on the Petrel's deck stood mute, listening to the orders in the boat, which they could hear as plainly as if spoken on the Petrel's deck. Every man thanked heaven for the density of the fog and prayed that it might not lighten. The women in the cabin heard almost as plainly as the men, and every child too young to understand the danger was covered with blankets.

The boat passed without detecting the ship, and it was fortunate that it missed by so narrow a margin, for when it turned again it went a hundred yards too far above. Captain Stoughton felt temporarily relieved, but every moment dreaded that the fog would lift and the ship's presence be detected. But as the sounds from the boat receded he felt that the evil was at least deferred.

When the fog passed it was blown out to sea, first exposing the pirate boat, next the Petrel. When the boat's crew saw the ship they gave a blood-curdling yell and pulled for her. But suddenly they ceased rowing. As the fog passed out it revealed the corvet nearer the Petrel than were the pirates.

That was the last of the latter. Being upstream, there was no escape from the man-of-war. Panic stricken, their captain was for a time unable to unite them in an effort to get away. Some insisted on pulling in one direction, some in another. The corvet quickly lowered three boats, each containing as many men as the pirate yawl. Before the pirate leader could get his men to obey him these boats were in the water and making for him. Then in his haste he ran aground.

One of the corvet's boats made for the pirate ship, which was captured with all on board. They, with the boat's crew, were taken ashore and every man hanged.

THE above is a view of Wellington Station on the P.E.I. Railway, and in the foreground is seen a little truck over which Mr. J. E. Arsenault, the station master, fell and sustained a bad cut on the front of his leg. He says: "I thought this would heal, but instead of doing so it developed into a bad ulcer and later into a form of eczema which spread very rapidly and also started on the other leg. Both legs became so swollen and sore that I could only go about my work by having them bandaged.

"I consulted a doctor, who treated the sores for a time, but they got no better, so he advised me to stop working. I did not want to do that, and consulted another doctor, having tried every remedy I could think of for six months without avail. The second doctor's treatment gave me no better results. The sores were very painful and continued to spread.

"I tried all the salves, liniments and lotions I heard of, but instead of getting better I got worse.

"This was my condition when I got my first box of Zam-Buk. Greatly to my delight that first box gave me relief. I continued to apply it to the sores, and day by day they got better.

"I could see that at last I had got hold of something which would cure me. I knew that a chronic case such as mine would take a good deal of time to cure, but it seemed to me that Zam-Buk was altogether different and superior to all the other preparations I had tried, and that perseverance with its use would have the right result. Well, I continued the Zam-Buk treatment, and in the end it cured me completely.

"It is now over a year since Zam-Buk worked a cure in my case, and there has been no return of the eczema or any trace of it. It would be impossible to find a case where the sores were worse than those on my limbs, and I think Zam-Buk is a marvellous healing balm or it could not have cured me as it did when all else failed."

Real Romances of Ellis Island

When Immigrant Girls Face Their Runaway Lovers

IN the steerage of the Mediterranean liner Perugia as she slowly steamed toward her New York pier on the afternoon of October 3, 1910, stood Michelina Zerra, bearing with her, in blended intensity, a hate, a hope and a death, that had been the constant monitors of her voyage. Dark haired, dark eyed, dark skinned and unusually tall for her type, she waited apart from the immigrant throng, a lithe, swarthy, midnight beauty of nineteen.

On the third finger of Michelina's right hand was a quaint signet ring, an innocent appearing circle of gold, seemingly fashioned some time in the long ago to please an antique fancier who wished to have his monogrammed initials convenient to the official sealing wax. This ring could be opened by a tiny catch hardly bigger than the head of a pin. Press the catch and out popped a metal point, hollow and sinister like the hypodermic needle. If this point scratched you ever so faintly it were just as well that you settled up your business affairs and left memoranda with your heirs as to who owed you money, for in a comparatively brief time it would be impossible for you to personally superintend these matters from a distant residence. The ring contained the concentrated essence of sure slow death, a poison that had eternally quieted half a hundred men and women in the past and was still strong enough to kill half a hundred more. Such was Michelina's ring, and Michelina was a Sicilian. This nativity generally means much that is deadly minus any sort of a ring.

Michelina's Sad Story.

Had your Uncle Sam known as much about Michelina Zerra as I know and as you soon will know he would have held her hard and fast at his sieving room on Ellis Island and bundled her back to Italy on the next returning ship. But no official X-ray has yet been invented to level at immigrants and make them reveal the secrets that would stamp them as unfit and undesirable citizens. They pour through our national gateway by the tens of thousands, smirched with every crime on the calendar. But you can't expect them to tell it of themselves. If they would, then Michelina Zerra would have told a story like this:—

When Police Lieutenant Joseph Petrosino was shot to death in Palermo, Sicily, on March 12, 1909, Michelina had stood within half a block of the little public square where the famous New York policeman had been murdered. She knew the deed was to be done. Was not Fernando Roldoni, her lover, one of those assigned to prevent interference with the murderers? What a brave, dashing, mighty man he was to her then, to mingle with those who shed blood! What a pride she felt in this man, who was husband to her in everything but name!

But the United States asked vengeance on Petrosino's murderers. The Italian government was irritated over the affair. It was necessary for the killers to separate and keep under cover until the hue and cry had diminished. Roldoni was ordered to go to America, right in the lion's mouth, it seemed. But with a changed name and many other details of disguise there was not so much danger as might be thought. The murderers were being looked for in Italy, not in the United States.

So Fernando Roldoni went to New York via Canada. That was in April, 1909. There was an affecting farewell with Michelina, the girl that had given everything a woman can for love. Roldoni swore on the cross hilt of his stiletto, as Michelina adjured him, that he would return before Christmas. She was content.

But New York offered too many lucrative openings in his brigandage line for Roldoni. One month's residence proved to him that Italy never was like this terrible land. Within three months he was a man of some little influence and his purse was fat. He came to see he thought a most businesslike and common sense decision. He would never return to Sicily, except perhaps on a visit in years to come. So he sent no line in writing Michelina. He did as coldbloodedly as he engaged in the Petrosino murder plot. Her importuning letters had begun to annoy him. So he told the girl an era was over, which was a matter of course. He wasn't the first man from Sicily so loathsomely inconsistent. Bravos run rife on that hot little island. A man often forget that the Sicilian code is in women as strong as in men.

Mother Urges Vengeance.

Michelina's ardent and intuitive quickness noted when the fatal letter came. Her blood boiled, for she knew what her daughter had been to this man. So she straightway took her daughter aside, saying:—

"Michelina, you have been wronged by Fernando Roldoni. He will never return to you, you for whom he should give his life. The Zerras have been wronged and gust them cry died. This foul calumny so has my own family. Were your father alive he would bid us goodby tonight and be on his way to America to kill this man. The men of my house are all dead, too. I am no longer young. The duty of killing Roldoni is yours. See this ring. It has been in my own family since the time of the Borgias. In it is a deadly poison. See—the spring point—the needle—note how it works. One scratch and he or she pricked by the point is a dead man or woman within—three—weeks. Now we shall begin to save that you may go to America. We must wait, hard as it is to wait, till we have enough money."

Now, wife Michelina waited. Antonio Ferrera came visiting Sicily from New York. He was a fast and wide man of this adopted country and worth, so he [illegible] as Michelina at first sight, as her mother and she, solemn and vengeance visaged, walked to mass. It was easy to gain an introduction. He paid great attention to Michelina. The townfolk were envious, because many of them had daughters with a less censurable past.

Starts on Her Mission.

It came time for Ferrera to return home. He asked Michelina for wife. He had been liberal in his entertainment of the mother and daughter and they would not deceive him. It was Michelina herself, after bidding her mother leave the room, who told the wine merchant of her abandonment by Roldoni and every detail of her story. But she did not tell of the oath of revenge nor of Roldoni's connection with Petrosino's murder. That was a private matter to be attended to later.

Ferrera listened to the tale with white face and sad heart, for he was infatuated with the handsome Sicilian girl. He vowed farewell and returned to America. He hoped that a week or a month of absence would cure him of his love. But he couldn't forget. He began making excuses for the girl's frailty. Then he wrote her a casual letter, just to be in touch with her. Soon there was a regular correspondence. At Christmas there came costly presents to Michelina and her mother, and on the new year a formal offer of marriage—regardless of the past.

"Wait until you have revenged yourself and then give him his answer," said Michelina's mother solemnly, and Michelina obeyed. Ferrera was refused, once, twice, thrice. But he still hoped. Refusals only seemed to fan the flame the more. By June of 1910 the mother and daughter had saved enough to pay the girl's way to America and back, with enough to spare to locate Roldoni. The steamship was picked and the date set. One evening while mother and daughter were at vespers thieves entered their little home and stole their hoard. They were in despair for a day or two, but then with resolutely set saving again. In August gust then cry died. This last calamity crushed them.

"Michelina," said the old woman, "it is decreed that you shall wed Antonio Ferrera before you kill Fernando Roldoni. There is no need struggling longer against it. Accept him. Say nothing to him of your purpose. Bide your time. It will come. He will make a good husband and he need never know of your vengeance.

The next ship brought Ferrera a acceptance. In great joy he mailed Michelina a letter bidding her prepare to board the Perugia October 1. This would give her ample time. He would send the passage money and a sum for new clothes.

It happened that Ferrera made very little mention about this [illegible] simple medley [illegible] of his adopted country and worth, so he [illegible] anticipating his coming happiness as he bustled hither and thither in the business of making more money. But the money order was never sent. It was too much of a temptation for the employe. He pocketed the money and planned to run away before the ship arrived from Sicily bringing news of the non-receipt of the remittance.

It drew near to October 1 and nothing had been received to purchase Michelina's ticket. The girl began to doubt. She had been deceived once. It might be so again. But the old mother never lost faith.

"This man Ferrera," said she, "is of the right sort. He is not a man to play at love and marriage. There has been a mistake or an accident of some kind. You shall go to America on the date he set. I swear it. I shall get the money somehow. You shall go in the steerage, if no other place, but go you shall."

So Michelina's mother borrowed here and borrowed there, mostly from the parish priest, who knew better than all others Michelina's story. When the Perugia steamed out of port Michelina was aboard. There were tears in her mother's eyes, but not for a minute. She dashed them aside and kissed Michelina's cheek with lips that were cold as ice.

"Remember the Zerra family and remember my family," she said grimly. "And when you meet Fernando Roldoni remember the ring you wear." In nine days Michelina stood in the steerage thinking of all these things as the Perugia steamed past the welcoming Statue of Liberty. It seemed to the girl that the calm eye of the great carven form took on an approving, determined look as the big steamship swung past.

Ferrera had been called to Chicago the day before the ship's arrival. It has to be a very important matter that can take a man away from meeting his prospective wife, but this was one of the exceptional times. There was a big fruit business to be auctioned. He had had his eye on it for a long time. He must get it and present it to Michelina for a wedding gift. Perhaps the Perugia would be late. But in case not he would arrange.

And so he did. He sent one of his countrymen a wire to meet the ship and escort Michelina ashore. Ferrera had many dealings with Ellis Island and he knew the investigation made regarding immigrants, especially young women who come unattended by male members of their family. So in his wire he said:—

"Assume my name and declare you are to marry her. Then they will let her go ashore in case they refuse to do so otherwise. Will be home to-morrow morning."

When the Perugia came to dock Ferrera's friend was there. He went aboard, but found there was no one among the cabin passengers of the name he sought. While he was still inquiring the steerage passengers were transferred to a barge and taken to Ellis Island, Michelina among them. Ferrera's friend was advised to inquire at Ellis Island.

"Yes, there's a Michelina Zerra in the steerage," said an official on the island. "What do you want with her?"

"I am Antonio Ferrera, a wine merchant. Michelina Zerra is to marry me."

"Wait until we examine her and see what she has to say about it. Does she speak English?"

Face to Face with Roldoni.

"No, but I will interpret for you," said Ferrera's friend, expecting to get first chance at the girl so as to warn her of the reason for Ferrera's absence and the arrangement that had been made.

"Never mind about that," said the official; "we'll attend to the interpreting." Then he had her called:—"Michelina Zerra!"

She came slowly forward. She was but ten feet away when she saw Ferrera's friend for the first time.

"Fernando Roldoni!" she exclaimed in a tense whisper, staring at him with eyes that dreamed hate with surprise.

"Michelina?" he stammered in startled voiced amazement. Then with a quick glance at the waiting official he took a chance of no one being near enough to understand Italian. "Listen, Antonio asked me to meet you. He is in Chicago. I did not think it could be you he was marrying, although I noticed the name was the same. Do not interfere in the arrangement or it will make trouble. Say that you know I am Antonio Ferrera and that you are to marry me."

But Michelina in a loud voice said:—"I wish to speak to some one who understands Italian. I must speak at once."

An interpreter hurried forward. Roldoni gazed fearfully at the girl. She advanced toward him with outstretched accusing hand.

"You are not Antonio Ferrera, the wine merchant. You are Fernando Roldoni. You are the man who betrayed me in Sicily. You are the man who helped to kill Petrosino. I will have you sent back to Italy if I can. I accuse you before these officials."

From this you will easily understand that Michelina was not allowed to go ashore. Roldoni was also held on the ground that if the charges made by Michelina were true he must be deported to Italy under the immigration laws. But he telephoned to a good lawyer and he was soon habeas corpused off the island and freed on bail pending negotiations with the Italian government for extradition.

Antonio Ferrera arrived from Chicago the next morning. In two minutes he heard the news and in half an hour was at Ellis Island. He had a hard time of it indeed with the officials. He had to swear to his identity all the way from boyhood by inches. An official went to his store and his bank to verify his statements. And another official witnessed his marriage to Michelina before Uncle Sam would finally let go his grip on the girl.

After the wedding feast that evening Michelina placed an arm around her husband's neck and said:—"Antonio, do you trust me implicitly?"

"Through heaven and hell and unto death," said Antonio, with a cupful wine glass still poised.

The Poisoned Ring.

"Then invite Fernando Roldoni to your store to-night and take me there. I want to meet him. Never mind why, now; never mind why. Trust me; all will be well and to your honor."

Roldoni marvelled much at the invitation. He took three companions with him, fearing Ferrera. But he found Michelina alone. She walked smilingly toward him as the four men entered the door.

"You need not have come guarded, Fernando," she said softly. "I am so happy now that, after a talk with Antonio, I have decided to take no part in sending you back to Italy. So you may tell your lawyer I will not appear. Antonio and I are going to Chicago for a month. Let bygones be bygones. Addio."

And the swarthy, stately Michelina held out her hand—the one with the ring on the third finger—in token of cheery good will and goodby. Roldoni beamed. He saw another triumph over the wine merchant's wife in view, a triumph in which the purse of Ferrera would cut a figure. He held out both arms as if to embrace Michelina, but, fearing his one-time friend might enter at any moment, changed his intention to a mere handshake.

His right hand reached into Michelina's palm. He pressed her fingers in his strong grip. The girl let her hand remain in his without demur while her thumb stole up toward her third finger. Roldoni's companions winked significantly. Then Michelina pulled her hand away suddenly.

"Your nail has scratched me," said Roldoni in mock alarm.

"Let it remain as a souvenir of forgiveness," laughed Michelina.

They did extradite Fernando despite the absence of the girl who had accused him. But it was scarcely worth all the trouble it took to get him back to Sicily. Just two weeks after they locked him up in Palermo he was found dead in his cell. And the doctors are still mystified over the case. Over at Ellis Island they say that when Uncle Sam filed away the records of the Zerra-Ferrera-Roldoni case he stroked his goatee slowly and said:—

"Those kind of rings might come in goldern handy when we get ready to look after the next census."

"Scientific" Agriculture Is Unknown in Amoy.

WHILE in some parts of China new industries and advanced agricultural methods have been established, the inhabitants of Amoy plant and reap their crops as they have done for centuries and manufacture products in the same way. The results are not bad, however, for about thirty miles from Amoy the finest rice in China is grown. Here also is the soil particularly adapted to the Chinese lily.

Chief among the Amoy fruits is the pomelo, a citrus fruit somewhat larger than the grape fruit, with a thick, yellow, bitter skin. There are oranges, too, and bananas, pineapples, mangoes and other fruits. The cultivation of tea in this district has almost ceased, but that of the opium poppy is again on the increase. Almost all of the cultivation of the soil is done by hand. The rice plants are transplanted by hand and the fields frequently weeded in the same way. If a farmer has some surplus plants he turns them in an unused corner near a well, and those who look enough for their planting may have them for the asking.

Such implements as are in use are extremely crude. The native plough does little more than scratch the surface, and the simple and inexpensive harrow is usually drawn by an Indian cow or bullock or sometimes by the water buffalo. Horses and donkeys are rarely used.

At Amoykong the junks come in from the sea and at high tide go well up on the beach. There is a rise and fall of eighteen feet here, and when the tide goes out the junks are beached and repaired. Most are built the three masted sailing junks with square sails familiar in Chinese pictures, made of bamboo woven into a pattern something like that of a cane seat in a chair, with a layer of "U" leaves between two such meshes of cane sewed together with other small strips of bamboo. In Amoykong also are made the fish nets used by the junks which bring into Amoy large quantities of fish, some of which are salted and dried.

The emigration from this district has been very heavy, and the male population of whole villages is largely limited to old men and boys. Women are to be found whose husbands left for the south seas after marriage and have hardly been heard of since. Occasionally they return after years of absence and purchase or adopt a son for their Chinese wife, so that their ancestors may be revered and they themselves have some one to look after their graves.

Weird Scenes in Chemical Land, Where Men Work in Armor

Widnes from the Canal.

A Group of Bleaching Powder Packers.

ALL the way from "Fairyland" to "Helltown" range the nicknames which have been given to the town of Widnes, in England, by eminent visitors to this strange, busy little world where chemistry is king.

The very atmosphere has a vivid, artificial quality that makes it different from other atmospheres. The factories send out great volumes of variegated smoke, which help to make the brilliant chemical sunsets for which the town is noted. The workmen, many of them, go to their toil attired in strange looking costumes to guard against [illegible] the fumes of the gases which they must inhale during their work. They look like beings from another sphere or like weird warriors arrayed for conflict with demons of the underworld.

"Widnes and the chemical trades stand for each other." All sorts of chemical compounds which are used to perfect the products of other factories are sent out from the town. More alkali is sent out from Widnes than from anywhere else in the world. Great quantities of soda compounds are manufactured to be used in paper works. The cotton mills send to Widnes for their bleaching materials from the town. Mining proves this tradition. There are dozens of engineers employed on Widnes for the cyanide process which extracts the gold from its ore. Hundreds of other substances, such as wall distempers, nitroglycerine and baking powder are made in Widnes, wholly or in part.

The name "Helltown" was conferred upon the place by a journalist who once visited it and was horribly impressed by the chemical factories. A scientist of equal eminence with the journalist took the opposite point of view and was so delighted with all the extraordinary processes which were to be seen in the shops that he called the place "Fairyland." The town is a flourishing one. The workmen make good wages, and in some of the worst trades have short hours, but even so their lives are shortened by the unnatural atmosphere which they inhale.

Among those who have the most hardships to endure in connection with their work are the bleaching powder packers, who breathe through twenty-four thicknesses of flannel, wear goggles and calico clothing around which brown paper is tightly wrapped. This is necessary because these men must enter the chambers in which chlorine gas is turned on lime. It used to be a tradition that nothing green could grow within three miles of Widnes, but the inhabitants, who are very loyal to their unique dwelling place, point proudly to their large and flourishing public park, whose verdant foliage disproves this tradition. There are about 20,000 persons in the town. The most work either in the chemical factories or in iron or copper works.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

IRA GILSON'S CHOICE

ALTHOUGH his farm had been so long the home of Ira Gilson and his wife, and although he loved it and knew it to be productive, healthy, and even beautiful, yet he had become much dissatisfied. For a long time there had been a good deal of talk in his neighborhood of the opportunities in a distant state where several of Ira's former neighbors had migrated and from whence there had come rumors about prodigious crops, apples as big as small squashes, amazing grapes, and pears like pumpkins; in fact, a kind of fairyland of farming. True, there were doubters who called attention to the fact that while in their vicinity few places were for sale yet from many advertisements it seemed as if all the wonderful farms in the distant Eldorado could be bought.

Ira's was certainly a good farm. Except for hedgerows of thorn-apple, wild cherry and striped maple, there was hardly a square foot that was not useful. Some of the land was rich black bottom land, while the most, sloping toward the south, gave excellent pasturage. Not far from a bustling little town, Ira had the advantage of a local market, and it can also be said there were pleasant neighbors and a church not a great way off.

The farmhouse itself had been built by Ira's father. Large and commodious, it had many conveniences not found in most farmhouses. Besides, it was nicely sheltered from storms, yet with no sacrifice of broad views. From the great kitchen at one end of the long building could be seen meadows stretching away, with a range of distant hills lifting against the horizon their blue silhouette.

"I'm really discontented," remarked Ira on a wonderful July evening as, after milking, his wife came to the door of the spring house. Below them the mists lay like shadowy lakes, where already the fireflies glinted their lanterns against the borders of the fields.

"Perhaps, Ira," said his wife, "you're thinking of me."

"Yes," replied Ira. "You've been a leetle cut off. Of course we've had a good living and put some money in th' bank. But there ain't a fortune in dairy farming, and with all this talk seems as if we, too, ought to jump in and make our pile same as others."

"'Pears to me it's takin' a big risk even to think of it," said Ira's wife. "But if you're gettin' discouraged—well—I dunno. There is times when we all want a change—though—well—as I said, it's taking a risk to let such thoughts into your head."

Discontent is more contagious than the measles. At first Ira's wife had refused to hear of any change. She had loved the farmhouse ever since as a bride she had been kissed by her husband at the door. But this evening she listened with a new interest to what her husband again told her of the distant fairyland. And after the chores were finished husband and wife looked over maps and discussed a possible change until far into the night.

Ira knew an agent who made it his business to trade in farms, and having been written to concerning a possible deal, the agent appeared a few days later.

"Do you wish to sell for cash or are you thinking of a trade" asked the agent.

"I ain't much on such things," confessed Ira. "What are your ideas? S'pose you owned this farm, what would you do?" Ira swung his hand around in a circle, the agent's shrewd eyes following the direction of the pointing finger.

"I can make it look well in print," remarked the agent.

"Can you?" asked Ira eagerly.

"Sure thing. Now, do you want to sell for cash or make a trade?"

"What do you advise?"

"Suppose we try a trade?" The agent knew his business; he would make a commission on the price of only one farm if sold for cash; he would make a double commission on a trade. "If I was you, I'd make a trade. I would trade for a farm out in that country where they're picking money off of apple trees and boxing it in grapes. That's the country for you; you'll grow rich over night."

"That sounds pretty big," remarked Ira.

"There's lots of money in fruit," said the agent. "Yes, make a trade and I'll do all I can to suit you."

Then followed long conferences with Ira's wife. All her complaints of the various drawbacks of her home were entered in the agent's book. Entered also were many things that could induce another to take Ira's farm.

"I'll send you exchange slips," agreed the agent, as after staying to dinner he was about to drive away. He had told such stories of irrigated lands as made both Ira and his wife gasp with amazement.

But when the slips began to arrive they seemed most unsatisfactory. There was an unfamiliar almost foreign look to the cuts of great checker board fruit farms, and the talk of ditches, flumes, and water rights seemed complicated and puzzling. The more Ira discussed irrigated lands with his wife the more it seemed that they were a little old to change the entire manner of their life.

"It's just this way," complained Ira, when the agent dropped in again. "All that pile of circulars is nothin' less than wasted on us. When we come to take this and that into account, Man and I have decided that we want another milk farm. There ain't no use changin' to raisin' apples as has to be handled like eggs, as them circulars say, and where you'll have ditches along the rows, and water gates at the end, same as if you was runnin' a saw mill mixed in with a fruit farm."

"But that's the sort of thing you had in mind in the beginning," remarked the agent. "There's money, good money, in that kind of farming, and you might as well have it as Tom, Dick and Harry."

"We've changed our minds," said Ira. "Send us some more exchange sheets; this time about some nice milk and stock farms."

"Now, here," said Ira a few days later, after the supper dishes had been washed up and the committee of two had gone into executive session. "This is just about the correct thing."

Ira fingered the slip in his hand; it was evident that he was greatly interested. As he read to himself, he chuckled again and again. Then he quoted aloud for the benefit of his wife:

"About one hundred and eighty acres. Every acre grows big crops, gives rich pasturage, or is excellent wood-lot. No waste grounds here, and not a foot of sour marsh lands. A No. I dairy farm, but just as good for berries and small fruits. Lowlands great for onions and cabbages; would produce biggest crops of alfalfa. Fifteen acres or so of magnificent celery lands. All fences in fine shape. Brook that could be dammed at little expense and make crackajack fish pond. Possibilities not excelled anywhere. Farm has been in family of present owner for two generations."

"Let me see it," broke in Ira's wife impatiently, and with reluctance her husband handed over the slip; he hated to part with even the printed description of such a farm.

"Fine old-fashioned Colonial house; big rooms, big windows, big closets, big everything. Sheltered from north winds. Purest of pure spring water led into kitchen; never dries up, never freezes. Wonderful kitchen, twenty-four feet by eighteen feet," Mrs. Gilson exclaimed.

"Sakes alive, that must be a sight bigger than this!"

"Just about the same size," remarked Ira. "As I remember it, exactly the same."

"And just listen," continued his wife's excited voice. "Good neighbors. Church about a mile away. No hermit life on this farm. Telephone company will put in 'phone if desired."

"The agent told us the last time he was here they'd give us a 'phone," remarked Ira. "Somehow we've never got round to it."

"Country town where the women folks can trade," continued Mrs. Gilson. "Stores as good as the best. Farm house and locality right in every way. Healthy country, beautiful scenery; temperate climate!"

"Where does it say that amazin' farm is located?" asked Ira.

"Doesn't say no more than the other slips," replied his wife. "Information as to the location of this splendid dairy farm together with further important particulars can be had by addressing P. T. Emory, specialist in farm lands, at the address given below."

As the specialist descended from his buggy the following Saturday evening, he was greeted by an excited couple.

"My goodness me, those biscuits smell good!" exclaimed the agent as Mrs. Gilson motioned him to a seat at the supper table in the corner of the big cool kitchen. "And I was telling my wife about that special strawberry jam of yours. She wants me to get the receipt. She says there isn't going to be peace in our house till she makes me some."

Mrs. Gilson's face beamed as she brought a steaming plate of biscuit and placed them before the guest. But a moment later her curiosity to know immediately the whereabouts of the wonderful farm made her forget the compliment.

"Pa, s'pose it's proper to get Mr. Emory to talk business while's he's eating his supper?"

"Sure thing, Mrs. Gilson!" exclaimed the agent, already busy with hot biscuits and strawberry jam. I am always ready when a deal's on hand."

"It's decided," announced Ira. "Those first slips didn't suit noways, but there's one in the last bunch that is as perfect as if it had been made to order. If the feller is really open to a trade that ends it so far as we are concerned."

While he had been speaking Ira had left the table. After a moment he returned, and selecting one of a package of printed slips he placed it at the side of the agent's plate.

In the intervals of enjoying his supper the agent hastily scanned the slip.

"Looks pretty good to me," he said. 'But of' course I handle so many places I can't be expected to keep track of where they all are. If you wait a moment I'll look up the number in my note book."

Presently the book was produced from the agent's pocket and he held the pages open with his right hand, while with his left he lifted to his mouth a piece of biscuit neatly coated with strawberry jam. The next moment his face became distorted and he fell to choking as if he would strangle.

"Get me some water!" he gasped, After being helped to his feet he had been slapped across the back.

"It must have been a bit of ginger!" exclaimed the anxious Mrs. Gilson. "I allays put a little in my jam. Take another swaller of water."

"It wasn't the strawberries!" exclaimed the agent when he could speak again, puckering up his face.

"It's funny and all that, but if I had my clerk here I'd give him a piece of my mind. When we print I have him send to the owners the description of their farms. He got things mixed; I've had my doubts about that young man. However, it's easy to fix things up; I'll send you some more slips.

"But we've set our hearts on this farm," remonstrated Ira, picking up the slip of the perfect farm from where the agent had dropped it on the floor.

"Forget it," said the agent. "You wouldn't be satisfied."

"Then we'll never be satisfied," said Mrs. Gilson. "Ira and me has dug through bushels of those slips, and the only one that suits is the last."

The agent screwed up his face; it was evident that he didn't like the turn things had taken.

"If you choose that farm I'll lose a commission," he finally blurted out.

"I don't understand how that can be," said Ira, and added stubbornly, "if it's going to be a leetle extra expense we'll stand for it. This is the farm we're going to have or we won't make a change. That's all decided, isn't it. Ma?"

The agent choked again, then he allowed his laugh full sway.

"I'm afraid the deal's off," he said. "If you'll pay for the advertising and printing together with something for my time, we'll call it square. That farm you folks have set your heart on is your own. As I said before that fool clerk of mine mixed things up."

"It's amazin', Ira, how foolish folks can be," said Mrs. Gilson that evening after the agent had gone. The expenses of the agent had been cheerfully met by Ira. Mrs. Gilson added, "Of course we'll stay, and I never was so pleased in all myl ife. My! Ira, there's one thing I want to say: There ain't any better way to know your blessings than to have somebody put 'em down in printin' and et you read 'em."

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effetvescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

Neighborly Amenities.

"No, we never stay at home Sunday. It's too disagreeable."

"Disagreeable?"

"Yes. Our next door neighbor goes away and leaves his dog locked up in the house and the poor brute barks and whines all day."

"It gets on your nerves, eh?"

"No, it isn't that. But the neighbors expect us to interfere."

"Well, why don't you? Tell your neighbor frankly about his howling dog."

"How can I when we've just got a new phonograph and my elder daughter is learning to sing?"

Horrible.

"Oh, Henry," she said when she had thrown off her wraps and flung herself into a chair, "I'm so mortified."

"What's the matter, dear?"

"I met Mrs. Biggles at the reception this afternoon and she seemed so nice that I stood there before the crowd for half an hour and talked to her. When we were leaving her chauffeur drove up in an old four cylinder car and after she had taken her seat in it she called out right before everybody that she would expect me to call on her soon."

What Surprised Him.

Dr. Thirdly was a mild, gentle and prosy clergyman. But at one evening service he grew a bit sarcastic.

"I see a great many of you sleeping," said the good doctor mildly "I do not wonder at this, for your work is hard, and many of you have come a long way. Therefore, I am not surprised to see many of you sleeping soundly, but what does surprise me a little is to see so many sleeping who had such a comfortable sleep at both our morning and our afternoon service."

ELECTION IS VOID.

Courts Annul Corrupt Macdonald, Man., Contest.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 11.—Chief Justice Howell and Mr. Justice Cameron yesterday morning made an order declaring that Alexander Morrison, Conservative candidate in Macdonald, who showed a majority of over seven hundred on Oct. 12 last year, had not been duly elected, and declaring further that Andrew W. Miles and John E. Woods, petitioners, were entitled to the general costs of the action. The court will make a report to the Speaker of the Commons within four days, as required by law.

The proceedings of the court were of a formal character, counsel for Morrison, having filed an admission that during the campaign his agents had been guilty of corrupt practices. The principal point under discussion was: Should the court assume from this admission in making its report that it had reason to believe that corrupt practices had extensively prevailed.

The election which was thus upset was fought principally on reciprocity issues, R. L. Richardson, running as an independent candidate. Whether he will again contest the seat could not be learned yesterday. Mr. Morrison is, of course, eligible as a candidate again.

Richelieu Case For Trial.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—The Richelieu election case must go to trial on its merits. The Supreme Court in a judgment handed down yesterday afternoon upholds the appeal of E. A. D. Morgan, the petitioner, from the judgment of Judge Bruneau, who dismissed the petition for lack of sufficient publication.

The sitting member is Arthur Cardin, Liberal, who was unseated before and re-elected.

ONE DOSE RELIEVES A COLD—NO QUININE

"Pape's Cold Compound" makes You Feel Fine at Once—Don't Stay Stuffed-up! Take it Now.

Relief comes instantly.

A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end grippe misery and break up a severe cold either in the head, chest, body or limbs.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharges or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Ease your throbbing head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine.

COWS' TAILS CUT OFF.

Did It In Interests of Cleanliness Says Accused Farmer.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—An extraordinary case of cruelty was heard before Judge Lafontaine, when Firmin Jasmin, a farmer, of Bois Franc road, St. Laurent, was charged with unnecessarily allowing twenty-four cows to be tortured by having their tails amputated.

An expert veterinary surgeon said that since the city of Montreal has made stricter bylaws regarding the cleanliness of milk this practice has become a habit with farmers. It was done out of sheer laziness, the farmers preferring to amputate the tail rather than keep the animals clean, the pain suffered by the cattle would be excruciating.

The accused in the box claimed that the tails were cut in the interests of cleanliness.

Judge Lafontaine ordered the accused to come forward on Monday next for sentence.

GIRLS! HAVE BEAUTIFUL, CHARMING HAIR AND NO DANDRUFF—25 CENT. DANDERINE

Try This! Doubles Beauty of Your Hair and Stops It Falling Out

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowltons Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Chino-French bank at Pekin yesterday signed a contract for a loan to the Chinese Government of $30,000,000.

Sir Richard Solomon, High Commissioner in London for the Union of South Africa, died yesterday, at the age of 63.

Frank Davison, lumber king, died at Bridgewater, N. S., after an illness of four days. He suffered a stroke of paralysis last week.

Horace Whitten and his wife had a thrilling escape from their blazing home at Beamsville when fire broke out from an overheated furnace yesterday morning.

Four hundred young men and women endeavoring to secure positions in the civil service are undergoing examination this week in the House of Commons at Ottawa.

Snow piled up in drifts from two to five feet deep in the outlying districts of Buffalo, completely tying up suburban street car lines as a result of the heavy storm there.

The first C.P.R. train from Eastern Canada to arrive since Saturday reached Winnipeg yesterday. Eight other passenger trains arrived during the course of the evening.

Between three and four thousand surgeons from all over the world registered yesterday at the opening of the fourth annual Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America in Chicago.

All wheat has been removed from the C.P.R. elevator at Transcona, which on Oct. 18 sank twenty feet into the ground and tipped at an angle of 45 degrees. Not a bushel has been lost or spoiled.

Mutinous Sailors Under Guard.

LEWES, Del., Nov. 11.—An armed guard from the U. S. revenue cutter Onondaga was yesterday placed aboard the American four-masted bark Mangareva, the crew of the latter having mutinied on the high seas. The Mangareva sailed from Philadelphia a month ago for San Francisco with a cargo of coal. When several hundred miles at sea the crew of 28 men mutinied, locked the captain and mate in their berths and took possession of the ship. Subsequently the officers were released to navigate the ship after a promise had been extracted that the mutineers would be returned to the Delaware Capes.

Dirty Roller Towels To Go.

TORONTO, Nov. 11—Dr. Hastings, M.H.O., has issued an order placing a ban on public towels. The new ordinance states that "Inasmuch as the common use of a towel or a roller towel is, or may be, prejudicial to public health. Therefore, no person, firm or corporation owning, in charge of, or in control of any public lavatory or public washroom, shall maintain in or about such wash room any towel for common use."

The new law, which goes into force immediately, is far reaching in its effect, and means practically that all concerns must supply individual towels to their employes.

Alliterative Tongue Twisters.

A novel competition was held at a very Bohemian West End club recently for the best alliterative gem that would tie knots in the tongue of the most careful speaker. The following are some of the best of the "tongue twisters" sent in:

A growing gleam growing green.
The bleak breeze blighted the bright blossoms.
Flash of freshly fried flying fish.
Strict strong Stephan Stringer snared sickly six sickly silly snakes.

Give Grimes Jim's great gilt gig whip.
—London Sketch.

Some Names.

Surnames are not what they seem. For instance, Lind is derived from a Teutonic word meaning a "snake." The apparently quiet and harmless surname Wren comes from a word which denotes "rapine." Fish, though such an innocent name in appearance, originally meant "impetuous."

Easy Problem.

A negro wished to deposit some money in the postal savings bank and the clerk asked his age. "Well, boss," he replied. "I don't know jus' how old I is, but I was born in March an' you kin count it up for yo'self."—Everybody's.

Notorious Land Agent Dead.

DUBLIN, Nov. 11.—The death occurred yesterday of Samuel Hussey, the notorious land agent who was a leading figure throughout the land agitation when Ireland was most turbulent in the eighties. Several attempts were then made on his life and Edinburn, his residence, near Tralee, County Kerry, was greatly damaged by a dynamite bomb on Nov. 26, 1884.

Independent Liberal Elected.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—In the Provincial bye-elections in St. Johns County and Huntingdon County, both returned Liberal candidates to the Legislature. In one case the convention Liberal was beaten and an independent Liberal candidate elected.

INCREASE GRANTED.

Trainmen of Eastern States Get Seven Per Cent. Raise.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The long-lived controversy between railroads of the east and their conductors and trainmen over the latter's demands for more pay, ended last night. The employes are granted an increase in wages averaging seven per cent. and totalling $6,000,000 annually—about half of what they wanted — from Oct. 1 last; effective for one year. One hundred thousand men will share in the increase. The award of the arbitration commission filed late yesterday afternoon in the Federal Court is binding and final.

Since 1909, when last an increase was granted, the arbitrators found that the cost of living had increased seven per cent.

Child Had Bronchitis

Once people get acquainted with the wonderful control which Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine exerts over bronchitis, whooping cough, croup and colds it is not easy to persuade them that anything else is "just as good." This is why the imitators never get very far.

In 1902 Mrs. Eugene Iler, King street, Truro, N.S., wrote as follows: "From an infant one of my children was troubled with bronchitis, and the least cold would aggravate the trouble. We could not get anything to help her, and were often greatly alarmed. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a treatment for bronchitis, we used it, and are glad to state that it effected a complete cure. If any of the children take a cold or cough I give this medicine, and have never known it to fail to bring relief."

Mrs. Iler now writes that she has since proved this medicine to be a cure for whooping cough, and would not be without it in the house.

$1,000,000 Wasted a Day on Rats.

It has recently been estimated by a statistician that $1,000,000 worth of food a day is wasted on rats in Great Britain alone.

In other countries the expense runs equally high, and even higher. Every rat in France costs a penny a day for his keep.

In England a rat costs from a farthing to 2 1-2d. a day to the person upon whose property it preys, and there are 40,000,000 rats in the isles.

In India, a country least able to bear the burden of supporting these pests, they are four times as numerous as the population, and each rat consumes on an average three-halfpenny worth of food a day.

The rat commits another sin besides impoverishing the country. He carries disease, and it is probable, because he is dangerous to health rather than because he is a thief, that he finally will be exterminated.

There is a race war going on between rats themselves which will help solve the problem. The black rat is being driven out by the grey rat. The black rat is a much greater nuisance than the grey. Perhaps if the war between the fair race and the dark be kept up they may exterminate each other.

New York has added 500 policemen to the rolls. Those New Yorkers are fiends for punishment.

"CASCARETS" ALWAYS STRAIGHTEN YOU UP

If Costive, Headachy, Bilious, Stomach Sour, Breath Bad—Clean Your Liver and Bowels

Get a 10-cent box now.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathcartic pills or castor oil.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never grip or sicken.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Assertions that hot winds had injured the Argentine crop as much as fifteen per cent carried the wheat market today to a higher level. The close, although easy, was ¼c to ⅝c above Saturday night's figures. Corn finished ⅛c to ⅜c up, and oats ⅛c to ¼c off. In provisions, the outcome was a net advance of 7½c to 12½c.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅛ to 1d higher; corn, ⅛ lower.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 197 cars, comprising 3838 cattle, 1513 hogs, 2201 sheep and lambs and 286 calves.

Experters.

A few very choice steers of export quality and weights, bought for local killing, sold at $7.50 to $8 per cwt., but only five steers at latter price.

Butchers.

Choice picked butchers sold at $7 to $7.50; good, $6.50 to $7; medium, $6 to $6.40; common, $5 to $5.75; inferior, light butchers' heifers, $4.50 to $5; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.50; good cows, $5.25 to $5.50; medium cows, $4.50 to $5; canners and cutters, $3.25 to $4.25; export bulls, $6 to $6.75; good butcher bulls, $5.25 to $5.75; bologna bulls, $4.25 to $4.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

Choice feeders were in demand at from $5.30 to $5.60; good feeders, $5 to $5.25; choice stockers, $5.10 to $5; common stockers, $5 to $5.25; canners, rough eastern stockers, $4.50 to $4.75.

Milkers and Springers.

The market for good to choice milkers and forward springers was unchanged, being fully as strong as last week's prices, ranging from $60 to $100 each. The bulk of sales were at between $65 and $80 each.

Veal Calves.

The calf market was firm at unchanged quotations. Choice veals sold at $9 to $10; good calves, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50; common calves, $5.50 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

There was a steady, active trade in sheep and lambs at firm prices. Ewes sold from $4.25 to $5.40; culls and rams, $2.50 to $4; lambs sold from $7.60 to $7.85, with bucks culled out at the year, hand less.

Hogs.

Hogs were fully 25c per cwt. lower. Selects, fed and watered, sold at $8.60.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—At the Montreal stock yards, west end market, receipts of live stock for the week ended Nov. 8 were 3700 cattle, 3500 sheep and lambs, 2100 hogs and 1000 calves. The supplies on the market this morning for sale consisted of 2000 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 550 hogs and 500 calves.

There was no actual change in the market for cattle today, but as offerings were 1500 below last week prices were slightly firmer. Demands from American buyers continue good. Stockers sold at $5.40 to $5.65; common bulls, $3.30 to $4.90, and canning cows at $2.15 to $3.60 per 100 lbs. Butchers' cattle were active and prices were firm. Really choice steers were in good demand at $7.40 to $7.60, and a few picked small lots brought $7.75 per 100 lbs. Demand was principally for good cattle, which brought $7 to $7.25, and a lot of fair stock changed hands at $6.15 to $6.35 per 100 lbs.

The stronger feeling which developed in the market for sheep and lambs a week ago was more pronounced today and prices scored a further advance of 25c per 100 lbs., owing to a better demand locally. Western lambs sold at $7.25 to $7.50, and some were delivered on country tracks made a week ago at $7 to $7.25, while ewe sheep brought $4.50 to $5 per 100 lbs. Grass fed calves brought 2¾c to 4¾c, while milk fed stock was fairly active at 5½c to 7½c per lb.

Altho the supply of hogs was less than half what it was a week ago the tone of the market was easier again, and prices scored another decline of 25c per 100 lbs. Demand was good, sales being made of selected lots at $8.50 and straight lots at $8.25 per 100 lbs. weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7.40 to $7.75; do., medium, $6 50 to $7.25; do., common, $5.60 to $6; canners $3.15 to $4.40 butchers' cattle, choice cows, $6 to $6.25; do., medium, $5 to $5.50; do., bulls, $4 to $6; milkers, choice, each, $85 to $90; do., common and medium, each, $75 to $80; springers, $65 to $70; sheep, ewes $4.75; bucks and culls, $4.25 to $4.50; lambs, $6.75 to $7.50; hogs, f.o.b., $8.25 to $8.50; calves, $5 to $10.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Cattle—Receipts 20,000. Market 10c up. Beeves, $6.75 to $9.80; Texas steers, $6.20 to $7.75; stockers and feeders, $5 to $7.75; cows and heifers, $3.25 to $8.25; calves, $7 to $11.

Hogs—Receipts 30,000. Market 10c to 15c up; light, $7.65 to $8.20; mixed, $7.65 to $8.25; heavy, $7.50 to $8.25; rough, $7.50 to $7.70; pigs, $5.50 to $7.75; bulk of sales, $7.90 to $8.15.

Sheep—Receipts 32,000. Market strong. Native, $4.25 to $5.50; western, $4.80 to $5.50; yearlings, $5.40 to $6.65; lambs, native, $6.10 to $7.95; western, $6.15 to $7.90.

Agonies of Gout.

An English nobleman in a London club one evening gave some of his fellow members a picturesque description of the gout.

"You lie in bed," he said, "with the gouty foot stretched out, and you feel as though the sole of it was pressed against the bars of a redhot fire. In the middle of the furnace is a fellow with a gun loaded to the muzzle with redhot needles. Presently he fires the gun at your foot, and you feel the redhot needles travel up your leg and come out at the knee, not all at once but like the animals that went into the ark, two by two. When the last couple of needles have finished the course you find yourself sweating with fear and wondering how long it will be before the fellow fires the gun again. Presently you find he is under contract to fire it every five minutes, and you get ready for the discharge, but you can never be said to get accustomed 5 it, because the blackguard loads it with a new kind of redhot needle every time and sometimes adds half a dozen redhot corkscrews. That's the gout."

Who would patronize gout after that?

The Spider and the Bee.

A correspondent of Countryside was sitting one day upon an English moor, watching a large heather spider as it crouched expectant in its web. Suddenly he saw the spider firmly grip the web with its feet and shake it with all its might. After awhile it repeated the operation, and soon the reason became apparent. Whenever a bee flew near the web the spider gave this warning signal. It did not want any such visitor. If a bee happened to get entangled in the web the spider at once cut out that part and so rid itself of its unwelcome guest. That any creature can weave a web more intricate than a fisherman's net and, moreover, that it should possess the instinct or reasoning power to put the web in the best place and there patiently await its prey suggests that the border line between instinct and reason is far from distinct.

The Word Lady.

Connected, no doubt, with the cheapening of the word "lady" has been the practical disappearance of the "gentlewoman." The distinction between the two was brought out in the seventeenth century rules of civility, which declared that "in visiting a lady it is not enough to salute her, but her gentlewoman also, if she be then present." At the beginning of the nineteenth century "one who has marked with attentive observation the late vicissitudes in kingdoms and governments and, with a precision almost prophetic, foretold what would happen" advertised in the Times his readiness to "give such advice to persons of fortune as may prove of the very utmost importance to them." "When a lady requires an interview," said the advertisement, "a gentlewoman will give her the meeting."—London Mail.

Joseph Didn't Get It.

It is related that Napoleon ordered from Breguet, the famous Paris watchmaker, a watch for his brother, Joseph, who was at the time king of Spain. The back was of blue enamel, decorated with the letter "J" in diamonds.

In 1813 Napoleon was present at a military parade when a messenger arrived bearing a brief dispatch, in which it was stated that the French army had been completely defeated at Vittoria. It was manifest that Spain was lost. Always severely practical, all that Napoleon did, after glancing at the dispatch, was to turn to his secretary and say, "Write to Breguet and tell him that I shall not want that watch."

It is believed that the watch was eventually bought by the Duke of Wellington.

Call Manuel's Wife Queen.

It is rumored that ex-King Manuel of Portugal and his bride, who will probably be known as Queen Augusta Victoria, although her legal right to be so styled is questionable, intends to settle in England, and that King Manuel may possibly buy a place in the country. His mother, Queen Amelie, is herself English-born, and lived here until the fall of the second empire re-opened France to the Orleans family. Curiously enough, it was the pomp and circumstance incidental to her marriage with the late King of Portugal that roused the susceptibilities of the Republican Government and caused the Comte de Paris to be again sent into exile.

HEAVY TOLL OF LIVES TAKEN DURING TERRIFIC STORMS ON THE GREAT LAKES

Full Extent of Sunday's Fatalities Will Not be Known for Days—United States Lightship Gone With Nine on Board—Unknown Freighter Sinks.

HURONIC IS AGROUND

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—Another was added to the list of tragedies in Sunday's storm to-day when the wreckage from the United States lightship Number Eighty-Two, stationed in Lake Erie, off Point Abino, Canada, just west of Buffalo, was picked up this morning. Messages from Point Abino say there is no sign of the vessel to-day. The lightship was 150 feet long and built of steel. Captain Williams was in command with eight men—all believed lost. Steamers arriving at Detroit this morning from the north report having made futile attempts to rescue the crew of an unknown vessel stranded on Gull Rock, Manitou Island, Lake Superior. They say the crew were lashed to the rigging and must be dead from exposure, as a fifty-mile gale was blowing for hours. Sarnia reports by long distance telephone that the gale is still raging, and nothing can be done to succour the crew or get further news of the huge freighter which turned turtle near there. The Northern Navigation steamer Huronic is still aground at Whitefish Point, Lake Superior, with smaller vessels standing by in case of a threatened break-up. The full extent of Sunday's fatalities will not be known for days.

AKRON CUT OFF.

AKRON, O., Nov. 11.—Except for one lone telephone wire to this town Cleveland has been cut off from communication with the rest of the world since Sunday. The wires are all down and trains moving only at a snail's pace, owing to damaged bridges and culverts. It is estimated that the City has suffered a million dollars' damage in property. The Street Railway service and all business is paralyzed.

NO TRACE OF FREIGHTER.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 11.—The tug "Sarnia" returned at 11 o'clock after all night guarding the spot where the huge grain freighter went down, leaving no trace of her identity and no survivors to tell the tale. The "Sarnia" found no wreckage or bodies.

Twenty Vessels Overdue.

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 11. — (Noon)—Twenty vessels are overdue here, some of them for several days. While hopes are held out that all may have taken shelter in obscure ports, there is grave apprehension that some have been lost with all on board. There is still no definite knowledge here of the identity of the vessel breaking to pieces on Manitou Island, as reported from Calumet yesterday. The gale has continued unabated since Saturday night, and no vessels have ventured out of the harbour.

PORT HURON, Mich., Nov. 11.—Early this afternoon it is thought that the big freighter sunk in Lake Huron north of here is the Amos Clark of the Livingstone fleet. She is a 465-foot vessel.

TWO FREIGHTERS GONE.

PORT HURON, Mich., Nov. 11.—That two big lake freighters are resting on the bottom of Lake Huron, one on top of the other, eight miles north of this port and that the members of both vessels have perished, possibly fifty souls in all, at this one point, was the belief expressed by Captain Reid of the tug Sarnia City which returned here this morning, after an all night vigilance at this stormy spot.

The Captain says that the peculiar position of the boat that is visible indicates this. The ship is resting bottom up with the stern entirely submerged, but with the bow protruding twenty feet above the water. It is the Captain's belief that the two vessels met in collision during Sunday's great storm.

IS IT THE E. A. S. CLARK.

PORT HURON, Mich., Nov. 11.—Other marine men say the wrecked freighter is the E. A. S. Clark of Cleveland, sailed by Captain John Low with twenty men in the crew.

ATHABASCA AGROUND.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—At the Canadian Pacific Offices here, it was reported that the big passenger steamer Athabasca of that line, was aground at Jackfish Point, Lake Superior, but not in great danger. There are a few passengers aboard.

COTTAGE MEETING.

POLICE CONSTABLE WAS APPOINTED

At Yesterday's Meeting of the Police Commissioners—Four Applications Received

P. C. McGINTY RETIRED

A quartette of applications for the position of police constable were received by the Board of Police Commissioners at a meeting which was held on Monday afternoon. There was a full quota of members present, comprising His Honour Judge Huycke, (chairman), His Worship Mayor Bradburn, Police Magistrate Dumble and Chief of Police Thompson.

The Board's choice fell upon G. F. Hayward, who resides at 452 1-2 Mark Street, East City. Hayward is a married man with four children. He possesses the necessary physical qualifications and will enter the service as probationer. Other applications were Donald Steven, 267 Wellington Street, Toronto, Frank Kempson, 278 John Street, Peterborough, and John Dundas, 309 1-2 McDonnel Street, Peterborough.

Hayward will succeed William Tucker, who resigned his position a few weeks ago to enter a more lucrative field.

Veteran Retires.

P. C. McGinty, who has thirty years' service on the local police force to his credit will be put on the tired list. At the suggestion of Magistrate Dumble, the veteran thief catcher wil receive half-pay until "further consideration." His Honour Judge Huycke concurred with Magistrate Dumble's suggestion.

P. C. McGinty has been incapacitated from duty for about four months, during which time he has received full pay.

Chief Thompson was authorized to purchase a raincoat for Detective Newhall. The cost to be provided in the appropriation for clothing for the police department.

ONLY ONE EGG GOOD OUT OF FOUR DOZEN

Local Man Says They Were Represented to Him as New Laid

Editor, Examiner:

Sir,—Through the medium of your paper permit me to call the attention of the Sanitary Inspector to the goods which are sold at the Market Place every week. On Saturday last I had occasion to purchase four dozen eggs, which were sold to me as new laid, and out of the entire four dozen only one was fit for human consumption. This certainly sounds incredible, but I can vouch for its truth, and I really think that steps should be taken at once, for the benefit of the general public, to stop this method of daylight robbery.

Thanking you for this insertion, I am, etc.,

J. P., City.

Note.—Our correspondent has certainly good grounds for complaint; but it hardly seems practicable for the Health Inspector to go through the market place and apply the candle or other test to every individual egg as would, it seems, have to be done to ascertain their quality. Housekeepers have what seems to be the only practical remedy in their own hands. They should, in cases where eggs are bought in such quantities, get the name and address of the seller so that in case goods of defective quality are sold as good—stale eggs as new laid eggs—the law could be applied and the punishment the law provides, be imposed as a deterrent to persons inclined to commit "daylight robbery." With new laid eggs at 35 or 40 cents per dozen, the housewife should get what she pays for.

TO HOLD "SHOWER"

The directors of the Peterborough Protestant Home intend holding a jam and linen shower at the Home on Wednesday afternoon, November 12, from 3 to 6 o'clock. The public is cordially invited, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance as the Home is greatly in need of house linen and also jams, fruits and pickles for the winter. Tea will be served.

SHELVED PROPOSED MARKET CHANGES

Regarding Cleaning of Poultry, Cleaning of Market Hall, et Cetera

HOW TO KNOW FARMERS

That poultry exhibited on the market should be cleaned and the livers and heart exposed was the fruitless recommendation of Sanitary Inspector Spence to the Board of Health this morning.

A woman purchased a turkey on the market last Saturday and on cutting it open found traces of what she thought was tuberculosis. Mr. Spence said it was blackhead which he said is rather widespread among turkeys. He did not know the effect of this on the meat, but it was not a sound article. The woman states that she would know the market woman again and is going to look for a return of the money she paid for the said turkey.

Suggests a Little System.

Dr. McPherson—Is there any way in which the names of the farmers could be known to buyers on the market. If you buy an article in a grocery store and it does not prove satisfactory you can return it. But on the market there is no recourse in a similar case.

Dr. McPherson—Is the market ever scrubbed out? It should be at least once a week.

Mayor Bradburn—It doesn't need to be scrubbed once a week.

Dr. McPherson—Yes it does. You can't sweep it so that it will be clean. There are so many persons gathered there on Saturday that they are bound to bring dirt from the streets, especially with weather like last Saturday. There should be receptacles for paper. The market would look tidier even though it might not be more sanitary.

Bring Up Later.

Alderman Duncan and Mayor Bradburn pointed out that these matters should be brought up previous to the sale of the market tolls on April 1st. Then a man tendering for them would know the conditions under which they would be obtained. But they did not consider it advisable to take them up now.

Mayor Bradburn—On the Port Hope market poultry is required to be cleaned.

The discussion upon ideal conditions continued at some length, but no action was taken. Inspector Spence was advised to make out a list of conditions under which certain articles should be sold and the matter could be presented to the Council before April 1.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Examiner Special:

The following is the official report of the Toronto Live Stock Market, Union Stock Yards, November 10th, 1913:

Receipts were moderately large.

Cattle — There were few good to choice well finished cattle in comparison with the many medium, common, and inferior classes on sale. The good to choice cattle sold from 15 to 25 cts. higher, while the commoner grades sold at steady to firm prices. Choice butchers' steers, $7.25 to $7.50; good butchers' steers, $7 to $7.25; medium to good butchers' steers, $6.25 to $6.75; common butchers' steers, $5.25 to $5.75; choice butchers' steers, $7 to $7.10; common butchers' steers, $6.25 to $6.30; choice cows, $5.25 to $6.25; good cows, $5 to $5.25; canners, $3 to $4.25.

Feeders and Stockers—Receipts were not as large, especially of the better class of feeders, and these were firm as follows: Choice steers, $6 to $6.50; medium steers, $5.75 to $6; stockers, 500 to 800 lbs., $5.25 to $5.75; rough stockers, $4.50 to $5.

Milkers and Springers—Receipts were light and prices firm at $60 to $100 each; bulk sold at $70 to $85 each.

Calves—Receipts were light and prices very firm. Choice veal, $9 to $10.50; good, $8 to $9; common and medium, $5 to $7.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Trade was strong at firm prices. Sheep—Ewes, $4.25 to $5.35; culls and rams, $3 to $4. Lambs—Choice ewes and wethers, $7.60 to $7.75; culls, $6.

Hogs—Market easier. Selected, fed and watered, $8.75 and $8.50 f.o.b. cars, and $9 weighed off cars.

The Professor: Boy, get me a fly. New Page: Yes, sir. Dead or alive, sir?

APPEAL WAS DISMISSED IN OSGOODE HALL

Action Which Was Tried in Peterborough Refers to Death of Miner Who Lost His Life in a "Glory Hole"

PRESSICK-CORDOVA MINES

The appeal by the Cordova Mines Company from the judgment of Mr. Justice Latchford in the case of Pressick vs. Cordova Mines Co., was dismissed in Osgoode Hall yesterday. The appeal was heard in the Appellate Division of the High Court before Chief Justice Mulock, Mr. Justice Riddell, Mr. Justice Sutherland and Mr. Justice Leitch. Messrs H. E. Rose, K.C., and J. W. Pickup, of Toronto, acted for the defendants, and Mr. F. D. Kerr, of Peterborough, for plaintiff.

The appeal concerned an action and subsequent judgment obtained on May 23rd, 1913, by Lilly Pressick, widow of John Arthur Pressick, to recover $10,000 damages for his death on May 31st, 1913, caused by falling down a winze or opening in defendant's mine, alleged to have been caused by negligence of defendants.

At the trial which took place in Peterborough at the Spring Assizes, judgment was awarded plaintiff for $1,750 and costs.

Court Equally Divided.

In the Appellate Court two of the judges were of the opinion that the appeal should be dismissed and two opined that it should be allowed and the action dismissed with costs if demanded. The appeal was dismissed with costs.

The case which was tried in Peterborough aroused considerable interest. The compressed air drill which the deceased was operating, when he met his death, was produced in court, together with a plethora of expert testimony supporting the legal contentions which were offered on both sides. Pressick was operating the drill on a ledge of rock in conjunction with a night shift, and while in the act of loosening a bolt on the machine, his foot slipped, precipitating Pressick into the 'glory hole." The latter definition is a mining term and usually refers to a winze opening in a mine.

JUSTICE MEREDITH IS THE CHAIRMAN

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, ONT., Nov. 11. — Chief Justice Richard Meredith of the Common Appeals Court of Ontario, has been named chairman of the Board appointed under the Industrial Dispute Act to deal with the dispute between the C.P.R. and its maintenance of way.

THE BODY OF JACK MUSKRAT IS RECOVERED

Was Found Near Curtis' Point on Sunday Night After a Three Days' Search by Indians

HAD TAKEN CRAMPS

Doubled into a knot and clasped by weeds the body of Jack Muskrat, the Hiawatha Indian, who was drowned in Rice Lake last week, was found just before dark on Sunday evening after a three days' search. It was located near Curtis' Point by Bert Anderson, of Hiawatha, and from the manner in which the body was drawn up, it was evident that the unfortunate man must have been seized with cramps. It is thought that when he upset, the canoe drifted out of his sight and he endeavoured to swim to shore. The cold water got in its deadly work and when cramps set in he sank down into the weeds.

Every Hiawatha resident who was physically able took part in the search for the body and they were assisted by a number of the Alderville Indians. All day Saturday the lake was dragged and the searchers were at work again early Sunday morning. It was not, however, until evening that Bert Anderson located the body. The water in that neighbourhood had been dragged several times before.

Muskrat was a member of the Hiawatha Gun Club and was a prime favourite with everybody in the neighbourhood. His family has been remarkably unfortunate recently, as his death is the fourth in the last five months(his father and two sisters having passed away.

COMMISSIONERS LAY A COMPLAINT

The Police Commissioners will meet at four o'clock on Saturday, November 22nd to hear a complaint that has been lodged against the Police Department by the License Commissioners. The complaint, which was embodied in a resolution adopted by the License Commissioners at a recent meeting, alleges that the Chief of Police has been negligent in the matter of tendering assistance to License Inspector Stewart, in respect to the enforcement of the law relating to the liquor traffic. The Police Commissioners have deferred action in order to give the License Commissioners an opportunity of presenting their complaint in a concrete form, on the date mentioned.

MEDAL FOR BRAVERY TO PUBLIC SCHOOL BOY

David Cumberland Presented With Royal Humane Society's Badge of Honour at Central School.

MAYOR MADE PRESENTATION

"Presented to David Cumberland, for courage in the rescue of Mary Traill from drowning at Chemong Lake, July, 1913."

Thus read the inscription on the Royal Humane Society's bronze medal presented to the little hero of the Central School on Monday afternoon at four o'clock. You could scarcely call it a ceremony, so simple and informal was the affair. But it was none the less impressive, and served as a splendid object lesson and example to the crowd of children who filled the corridor on the ground floor of the school.

And he was such a little chap to have gained the distinction of meriting the coveted badge of the Royal Humane Society. You would scarcely believe he could swim, not to mention the ability and courage to dive and bear to shallow water a young lady considerably older than himself.

There was no self-consciousness about David Cumberland as he stood at the end of the corridor with Rev. F. J. Sawers and Mayor Bradburn. Nor was there a trace of forwardness in his demeanour. He was just a boy, natural and unaffected.

Each room of scholars was marched out in a long file, down the wide hall, and their behaviour was excellent. Public School Inspector Mowat was present and directed the proceedings. Mr. R. F. Downey, principal, and Mr. F. E. Kerr, assitant, were in charge of the pupils, and the other teachers of the Central School were present, the day's work having been concluded.

Mr. Mowat introduced Rev. Mr. Sawers, who reported the rescue to the Royal Humane Society, and was indirectly responsible for the recognition of David Cumberland's heroism. He told the children that the object of the Society was to recognize deeds of bravery when they had to do with the saving of life when there was a risk of losing one's own life. He gave an illustration of the saving of a person from a burning building.

"You are proud to feel that one of your fellow-students has done such such as I have spoken of. A young lady was bathing in Chemong Lake, and David Cumberland was swimming nearby. She had gone down a second time when his attention was called to her condition. He lost no time, and without hesitation swam out, dived after her, I believe, and grasping her, brought her safely to shore. He took the risk of losing his own life in thus saving another's, and his act was one of really great bravery. We are all proud of him, and I know that you as his fellow-students are proud of him, too."

Mr. Sawers asked the children to express their feelings in the "good old Anglo-Saxon way,' 'and there followed a great outburst of handclapping and cheering.

In making the presentation of the beautiful bronze medal, Mayor Bradburn stepped on to a low table and lifted the little lad up beside him.

"The citizens and I myself are proud of you, David Cumberland, for your brave act. Your companions should feel proud of you, and I believe that they would perform a similar act. On behalf of the Royal Humane Society, I present you with this medal, and I trust that your bravery will be an inspiration to all other boys."

David accepted the badge of honour with a little bow and "Thank you," and the affair was concluded except for more cheering from the scholars.

The recipient of the medal is eleven years old, and in the Junior Fourth, under Mr. Kerr's tuition. Last year he was in Miss Cadwell's class, the Senior 3, and it is probable that her training and that of the teachers of the lower classes have influenced his character.

IS WANTED IN THE NORTH

Young Fellow Who Says He Escaped From the Vermont State Reformatory Is Arrested

RIFLES WERE STOLEN

In this morning's police court, a young man who, it was stated, has been on the prohibited list since November 29, 1912, was charged with being found drunk in a public place. He pleaded "guilty" and was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $13.75.

"Where did you get your liquor?" asked the Chief.

"Found it yesterday at noon," was the prisoner's response.

It looked for the moment as though the old story of the "hidden treasure," or the bottle found lying behind a stone, or under a fence, was about to be revived. Since the inception of the memory cure, and more especially since that effective measure has been presed into service by the Chief, the "mysterious strangers" have mysteriously disappeared from blacklisters lives, and no more bottles are found lying around the streets of the City. So the man's answer, created somewhat of a commotion in the court.

In the witness box prisoner said that yesterday he left off work at 11.30 and came to the C.P.R. station to meet a friend he expected to arive. There he found some Italians drinking in the waiting room. They went out for a moment and left half a bottle behind. Witness took it and got drunk on it, for which he was arrested.

His story was credited and he was fined and allowed to go.

Clayton Bartrow appeared in court charged with vagrancy. On Sunday Bartrow was taken in for the day by Adjutant McIlhinney of the Salvation Army, who gave him money to secure a bed at a hotel that night. The Adjutant also arranged for Bartrow to get a position at the Quaker Oats Company, but the young fellow neglected to take advantage of it.

When arrested, Bartrow had in his possession a lady's gold watch, a lady's gold bracelet and several gold rings. The Chief was anxious to ascertain just where they came from, so Bartrow was remanded for a week.

Bartrow registered at a local hotel as Norten. He is said to hail from Vermont State, and has been working near Bancroft with a friend for the past few weeks. The prisoner admitted that both of them escaped from the Vermont State Reformatory, and when Chief Thompson telegraphed Bartrow's former employer he found that he had stolen two guns from him. The young fellow disposed of a gun to a local second hand dealer, and it is supposed that it is one of those stolen from his Bancroft employer. Bartrow's pal was arrested in Bancroft.

Wednesday night about 10.30 o'clock Sam Long tried a little speeding stunt on George Street, between Simcoe and Hunter Streets, but P. C. Reid timed the sprint and this morning Mr. Long was fined $5 and costs, $6.70 in all, for passing over a certain stretch of pavement at a speed a little in excess of 30 miles an hour.

Wilfrid D. Eastland pleaded "not guilty" to a similar charge, but was convicted on the evidence of P. C. Sils and assessed $2.

"THE DREAM MAIDEN"

The Local Management of the Grand Has Been Successful in Arranging to Have Peterboro Included in the Itinerary.

"The Dream Maiden" is the biggest and most pretentious musical show of the present season and is playing a very limited road tour before it opens on Broadway in the last week of November. It carries 71 people in the Company, two sixty-foot baggage cars of scenery and ten extra musicians to augment our local orchestra. The costumes and scenic effects are said to be of the very highest class.

The book is by Allen Lowe, who wrote "The Isle of Spice," the ten-year success, and eighteen other big musical shows. Clever as the idea is said to be and the work of a practical and successful writer, the music is what is looked for to bring the success of a "Merry Widow," "Chocolate Soldier," or a Robin Hood" to the production.

The score is by the Hungarian Waltz King Bela Laszky. Charles Sinclair, who staged most of the Savage successes, made the production; and this booking is certainly a tribute to the energy and ability of the local management.

LIGHT AND POWER.

The proposal to be considered tonight at a conference of the Light and Power committee and the Water Commissioners, to place our Hydro-Electric system in the hands of the Water Commissioners, involves important considerations. It is an axiomatic truth that the success of municipal ownership depends upon effective administration. Judged by the manner in which our Waterworks have been dealt with under the Commission, it seems that it would be wise to entrust our lighting and power interests to the same body.

BY-ELECTIONS.

Winning by-elections does not seem to be the same thing in Canada as in England. Here the loss by the Government of a by-election is regarded as significant of weakening influence, and a forecast of greater condemnation in a general election. It is otherwise in England. At the last general election in Great Britain the Unionists lost a majority of ten seats they had won in the by-elections. The success of the Unionist in Reading election has been the cause of great rejoicing. It is regarded in Ulster as a condemnation of Home Rule. But it elicited as great rejoicing in Dublin where it is regarded as a condemnation of the Asquith Government's attitude towards Labour. The simultaneous rejoicing of Dublin and Ulster—two opposite political poles—over the same victory for themselves shows that the Irish capacity for perpetrating bulls exists even in politics.

AFRAID OF THE LIGHT.

The Borden ministry has been playing the game of government two years—it was formed 10th October, 1911—and has learned more of the fine points than of the great duties of the game. It has developed a great zeal for, and also a great dread of, investigation. It rushed in to establish a commission to investigate the departments of government so as to bring wrong doing home to the late Liberal Government. The most that was brought out was that one of the prominent members of the investigating commission was worthy of jail. The investigation into the building of the Transcontinental Railway was equally barren of results as against the late Liberal Government. The Borden Government has as great need of investigation into its own actions. The Government steamer Cereanse was wrecked in Hudson Bay and though the circumstances demand investigation, the captain of the steamer defies investigation and the Government respects his "defy," so that the fact that somebody blundered will not be brought out.

On October 12th, 1911, two days after the Borden Government was formed, there was held a by-election in Manitoba. The Conservative candidate was declared elected by a majority of 784—a great triumph for the newly-formed government. But there was abundant surface evidence to show the triumph was turned by the most corrupt methods. Not only were the usual sinister influences, as money and whiskey, applied, but the machinery of the law was prostituted to the arrest of Liberal workers. Liberal workers were arrested upon pretexts that afterwards proved to have no foundation—there was no prosecution. Conservative workers were arrested, charged with grave irregularities, and allowed to go with the infliction of nominal fines on pleading guilty. Naturally, if not, inevitably, a petition was entered against the election. This protest has been dragging along for more than a year. The Borden Government and its friends, with the dread of investigation, where its own acts are concerned, was afraid to have the truth come out. Every device, every legal technicality, every trick known to the political pettifogger was employed and when the point of a strict investigation approached, the government candidate confessed the guilt of what the petition charged and, to save investigation, to save uncovering the unsavoury methods employed, admitted that corrupt practices, sufficient to void the election, had prevailed. This, of course, staved off investigation and, furthermore, gave a certificate of character to the unseated government candidate's opponent, for the cross-petition against Mr. Richardson was withdrawn. This admission of corruption is extremely significant—enough corruption was practiced to void an election in which the candidate declared elected had a majority of 784. It would require quite a multitude of corrupt acts to wipe out a majority like that. Evidently the Borden Government dreads investigation into its election methods more than it dreads the loss of a supporter. In this election Hon. Robert Rogers, who was taken into the Borden Cabinet for his skill in gaining elections, won his spurs, which he sharpened and polished in Hochelaga and Chateauguay.

CONSERVATIVE VIEW OF SOUTH BRUCE.

Ottawa opened South Bruce, Ottawa selected the candidate, Ottawa conduced the campaign, and Ottawa lost the constituency. The Toronto News says the verdict "has no real significance." Of course, if we had won it would have been "most significant." Let us be fair in the matter. In Chateauguay and East Middlesex the members died, hence it was compulsory to hold an election, but in South Bruce it was not so. The Borden Administration sent the member to his "long home" in the Senate. In Conservative campaign literature at the preceding elections the Conservative Opposition roundly condemned the wholesale appointments of members of Parliament to office and gave a long list of those appointed by the Laurier Administration, and expected we laymen to mount the platform and condemn the Government for so doing. Now they do the same thing and expect us to defend it. Well, the other fellow can "swallow" himself, but the Advance cannot. We believe South Bruce resented the disturbing influences of an election being thrust upon them.—Wingham Advance, (Con.)

WANT POLES REMOVED

Lindsay Post: A special meeting of the town council was held on Saturday evening to deal with the report of Engineer Murphy of the Board of Railway Commissioners re the removal of the G. N. W. Telegraph Co.'s poles.

It appears that the Telegraph Co. had submitted a scheme for the removal of the poles off Lindsay and Kent Streets, and running their lines along Durham to Victoria Avenue and then east on Russell Street, connecting with their office from the rear. Then there is the alternative suggestion — which was favoured by the council—running the wires in rear of the business blocks on the south side of Kent Street. The first scheme would entail an expenditure of some $1200 and the second $500.

Secretary T. H. Stinson was present and read the Engineer's report, and after some discussion it was moved by Ald. Smale and Adams, "That the corporation of the town of Lindsay assist the G.N.W. Tel. Co. in obtaining the rights necessary to carry out the Board Engineer's alternative suggestion for the removal of poles from Kent Street. It is understood that the obtaining of such rights by the corporation to be the extent of the town's obligation in this matter."

It is understood that permission will have to be obtained from the Light, Heat and Power Co. for the use of their poles. As soon as the right of way is secured the Board of Railway Commissioners will make their ruling.

WAGE EARNERS AND RENTERS

No doubt many of you work hard and earn considerable money. That is creditable, but how much have you saved? Very little. Every man married or single who bought lots from me during the past seven years have saved and made money. All are pleased, no one sorry, many have nice home, others choice lots growing in value as the City spreads out South and West. I have sketched a plan of the balance of my land to Gravel Road overlooking C. G. E. Works etc. Every lot buyer should see my plans, get my prices and terms then decide. It will mean money for you as I am closing lots wholesale or retail. Your last chance to buy from me. ROSEDALE LOTS MUST GO, as well as South End Lots.

OLD COUNTRY NEWS

ENGLAND.

It was stated, during the hearing of a case at North Shields, that a miner at a local colliery had earned £6 12s 6d for five days' work.

Canon A. V. Thornton died suddenly in the vestry of St. Edward's Church, Cambridge, during a recent Sunday evening service, from heart trouble.

In consequence of the death of Alderman Brown, Mayor of Thetford, the Town Council have elected Councillor Robert Tilley to be Mayor until this week.

On the sixth aninversary of the death of his wife the body of Mr. E. Monster, who lived at Elmhurst, Poplar Road, Hayes, Kent, was found at the rear of the house with a wound in the throat.

Mrs. Plante won the championship trophy at the Herne Bay Angling Festival with a total catch of 108 pounds. She was run very close by Mrs. G. W. Phillips with 93 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse King, of Stroud Green, Stonehouse, Gloucestershire, celebrated their golden wedding on a recent Sunday. Mr. King's father is ninety-eight and his mother ninety-seven, and both were present at the celebration. They are all natives of Wiltshire.

A forthcoming gift of £1,000 is announced by the Rochester Diocesan Society from Mr. G. K. Anderson, in memory of his father, Mr. J. A. Anderson, of Faversham. In the administration of the gift the claims of the deaneries of Cliffe, Cobham, and Rochester will have the first consideration.

Mr. George Watson, of Barkston Ash, picked the second crop for this season of Victoria plums and greengages.

The following advertisement appeared in a London daily: "Peer's son desires employment; private secretarial experience, including to ex-Cabinet Minister; fair knowledge of French; can drive motor."

A bullock brought by train to Angmering Station, Sussex, bolted along the line and charged a Brighton-Portsmouth express. The animal was cut to pieces.

While working in a market garden at Glenfield, Leicestershire, a man named Frank Moore was savagely attacked by a boar, which knocked him down and bit him so severely that he had to be treated at hospital.

A site has been secured at Godalming for a memorial designed in the form of a cloister by Miss Gertrude Jekyll and Mr. Thackeray Turner to Mr. Jack Phillips, the brave wireless operator who perished in the Titanic, and who was a native of the town.

Erronza Onega Cornwall, while cleaning his motor car with petrol at Prittlewell Park, Scotland, was severely burned through the spirit becoming ignited, and was removed to the Victoria Hospital, where he lies in a critical condition.

Whilst working in the Redhill stone quarry, George Spencer, thirty-one, lost his foot in singular fashion. A piece of rock fell, and though he tried to get out of the way, the stone pinned his foot, and cut it off above the ankle. He was removed to hospital.

The engagement is announced of Miss Dorothy Roylance Court, the younger daughter of Mr. W. Roylance Court, joint master of the Cheshire Hunt, of Manor House, Middlewich, and Captain Douglas H. Talbot, 17th Lancers, elder son of Mr. Henry Talbot, of Aston, Cheshire.

There has just died at Warwickshire, an ex-Coventry canal employee, Thomas Alcock, whose term of office extended to more than fifty years. His father and greatgrandfather were also in the service of the company, the latter commencing in 1768, so that the aggregate service of the three generations extended to 145 years.

The Bishop of Chichester dedicated a new lych gate, which has been erected at the entrance to the churchyard at Ardingly, Sussex. The Bishop conducted the service from under an umbrella, held to protect him from the heavy rain, which "christened" the new gate and made things unpleasant for the choir and congregation.

Victoria, Louise, and Arthur, it has been decided, are to be the royal names of triplets born to Margaret Peterson, wife of Edward Peterson, a fisherman, living at Clement's Avenue, Rugby Street, Hull. The father is at present on the sea, and will not hear the news of the additions to his family for a month.

Owing to the destruction of fish in the Wash by a colony of seals, the Eastern Sea Fisheries Committee has been offering a reward of 10s for the noses of any of the animals killed by the fishermen. As a result the fishery inspector has received ninety noses during the present season, but the seals are reported to be as numerous as ever.

Verney Edward Astin, Hebden Bridge, was fined 20s, and costs, by the Blackpool magistrates for driving a motor cycle in a dangerous manner. It was stated that the axle of the side-car attached struck the leg of a cab horse. Defendant's brother was asked what was the language the driver used. Witness hesitated about repeating it, and said, "You know what language cabdrivers usually use."

A matter of considerable importance to residents and visitors in the Peak District Council of Chapel-en-le-Frith, in whose district the Derwent Valley Water Board have constructed extensive works. The private railway belonging to the Board is to be acquired by the Council, and at a cost of £400 converted into a public highway. Thus the Council will have a fine road right in the heart of the district.

The recent railway disasters caused the Grimsby county magistrates to take a serious view of the offence of leaving a railway gate open. The defendant, a farm labourer, Arthur Hudson, had left the gate open on the Great Northern Railway at Holton-le-Clay, which protected the line across a country lane. It was pointed out that had cattle strayed upon the metals serious consequences might have ensued. A fine of 20s, and 19s 6d costs, was imposed.

SCOTLAND.

Much interest was evinced at Buckie by the arival of a new kind of fishing vessel, which is designed to replace the steam drifter. The vessel closely resembles a steam drifter, and is about half the size, with half the ordinary fleet of nets, and has accommodation for eighty crans of herrings. She is driven by a motor.

The other afternoon, while a section of the constables at Lodge Walk police establishment, Aberdeen, were engaged practising in the gymnasium, some person invaded their dressing-room and rifled the pockets of their civilian attire. Sums of money, amounting in all to £8 10s, were commandeered, and the thief succeeded in making his escape unnoticed.

A strange story comes from Alloa of a young man living on an uninhabited island in the Firth. When a fisherman visited a hut which he uses as a store during the fishing season on Alloa Island, he found an entrance had been effected and the interior was crammed with a miscellaneous assortment of goods ranging from pots and pans to clothes and clocks. The police set a watch. Suspicion was aroused by the movements of a man in a small boat, and the police gave chase, finally discovering the suspect hiding in a large ferry-boat. The man arrested is a native of Alloa and is alleged to be "wanted" on several charges of theft.

Not often is salmon caught out in the open sea, but one of the Aberdeen trawlers, while engaged in trawling for herring in the neighbourhood of the Dogger Bank, took in the net a fine specimen of salmon, measuring 37 inches in length. It is surprising the distance from the shore the salmon had gone, the nearest part of the coast—at Whitby, Yorkshire—being about 104 miles from the place where the fish was captured.

Two small boys who had stolen a little boat from Leith were rescued by coastguards and the lighthouse-keeper on Inchkeith Island. They had been taken out by the current and found themselves unable to manage the boat. For a day and a night they had drifted about the Firth of Forth, and when rescued were in a terribly exhausted state, while their boat was waterlogged.

At a meeting of domestic servants held in Glasgow a number of demands for improved conditions were formulated. These included a claim for a weekly half holiday, for two hours off duty each day, for the abolition of registries, for a graded scale of wages, and for an annual holiday of fourteen days. A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of making an immediate demand for an advance in the rate of wages.

In her annual report, Dr. Pirret, medical inspector for Wigtownshire, states that the scissors were often requisitioned in order that children who were "sewn up" might be extricated from their clothing. The number of children who were insufficiently clad was very small, and in a large percentage of cases they were very much overclad. One child had ten layers of clothing under the dress, and eight and nine layers were not uncommon.

Sheriff MacLeod gave his decision in a case in which Andrew McKay, a Slamannan miner, sued William White, Royal Hotel, Northgate, for £30 damages. The miner was thrown out of a trap alleged to have been driven recklessly by defendant's servant, and sustained such severe injuries that he had been unable to work. The sheriff absolved the defendant. He held that the horse was being driven by an experienced man on a familiar road, and travellers must take the risk of a horse stumbling.

At Newtonless, East Lothian, there was lifted a new variety of potato, with which Mr. Peter Fyfe has been experimenting for several years. The experiments have proved remarkably successful. The potato is of beautiful shape, of excellent quality, and the yield has been simply enormous. One and one-half acres were planted, and they have given a yield more than double other varieties planted alongside.

A conference representative of public national and patriotic ladies of Scotland was held in Stirling to consider what steps should be taken to commemorate in June of next year the 600th aniversary of the Battle of Bannockburn. A large committee was given full powers to make arrangements.

In Hamilton Sheriff Court, William Smith, a Polish miner, pleaded guilty to having, in Viewpark Colliery, had in his possession a box and twenty-six matches, contrary to the Mines Act. Sheriff Shennan said the accused might have blown up the whole mine. He imposed a fine of 20s, or ten days' imprisonment.

The body of Mr. Thomas Kilpatrick Mein, who had been missing from his home at Pollokshaws Road, Glasgow, since 5th September, was found by a shepherd on the hills at New Cumnock, Ayrshire. Mr. Mein, who had been employed as a clerk for several years with Messrs. J. & P. Coats, Paisley, had been ill and suffering from lapse of memory.

Leith police are refusing to undertake voluntary duty, such as attendance at football matches and theatres, unless they are paid 1s an hour, with a minimum of 3s. Such duty has hitherto been paid for at the rate of 8d an hour, with a minimum of 2s. When the men paraded an intimation was made to them that a score of police were required for a football match the following day. Volunteers were asked for in the usual way, but no one responded, and on Saturday, in order to police the football field, men had to be withdrawn from the town, and also from the detective staff.

Most people would be benefited by the occasional use of

Na-Dru-Co Laxatives

Nervous Energy Is Limited

There is only so much energy in the human body. A few people have an abundance, but more have not enough. Hence the necessity of conserving vitality.

If wasted by mode of living, disease or worry there must be a reckoning, and trouble is sure to come. It may be headaches and weak, aching eyes; it may be nervous indigestion, or it may be merely lack of energy and ambition, and feelings of fatigue or helplessness. Of course, sooner or later exhaustion of the nerves leads to prostration, paralysis or locomotor ataxia, but there is no need to let the trouble develop that far.

By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can restore to the feeble, wasted nerve cells the energy they have lost. It will take some effort on your part to give up worry and anxiety, but you should realize your serious condition. Rest and use this great food cure and you are bound to improve in health and vigour.

KING AND QUEEN OF COSTERS

MONTREAL, Nov. 11—With a score of white plumes on her big hat London's Queen of the Costers, accompanied by her husband, James Rathborne, the king, who was dressed in the traditional style of a grey suit with bell bottom trousers, decorated with hundreds of pearl buttons of all sizes from the minute shirt to the big overcoat button, arrived in town the other morning on board the C. P. R. liner Lake Manitoba en route for Lethbridge, South Alberta.

They intend to start a farm up near there and with this in view brought a dozen prize bred chickens and their faithful donkey.

"Yus," said the king of the costers, "we have come to the land of plenty It seems all right but it is blasted cold for this toime of the year, don't you think so? Eh, old man."

The donkey, who looks about a century old, evidently was not as much impressed with Canada as his master, for he refused, indignantly for nearly an hour to walk the gang plank leading to the new country. At last, by a lot of persuasion and hand pats from his master, he consented to land here.

"I am sorry to leave England," said Mary Ann Rathborne to a Herald reporter, while waiting for the stubborn donkey to land, "and all my dear old friends, but things is mighty bad in London, you can bet, when the king and queen of the costers for two years are forced to leave."

SELL THE FINISHED BEAST.

We already feel the effects of the removal of the duties on cattle. Stockers and feeders are about the only lines of cattle dealt with to any extent here at the present time. These could be bought early at around five and one-half cents; now they bring six to six and one-quarter cents, and I believe are harder to buy than before.

The general opinion seems to be that the finished beast will bring a corresponding high price, and that the market will be open the year round. The bulk of the fattened cattle around here were sold from April to June. Now we can dispose of them at any time.

The farmers are going to benefit by higher prices, but they will be the wisest who keep their own stock and fatten it. There seems a tendency on the part of many to sell the stockers when they are high. But it is going to raise the cost of living consumers to some extent, so that new conditions will not all be roses.

THE BIGNESS OF LITTLE THINGS

By RUTH CAMERON

DID you ever realize how big an influence little things often have in our feelings toward other people?

Once upon a time I heard a woman whom I had always greatly admired lose her temper. She was a woman of charming presence and great ability. She had a very cordial manner and a most winning way, and never before or after that particular occasion have I known her her to be anything but gracious and charming. And yet I have never been able to feel the same toward her since. I do not consciously blame her for the fit of temper,—most of us give way to them occasionally. I know it was only a little thing, and yet it has completely changed my subconscious feeling toward her.

Again, I was once in a position to be of considerable service to a neighbour of mine. Of course I was delighted with the privilege and did my best to live up to it. On her part, she frequently expressed her great gratitude and I thoroughly believed she felt it. She is a woman to whose sweetness and loveableness I used to like to pay tribute. "There," I would say, "is a woman who is good right to the core. She is kind and sweet to everybody, both inside and outside of her family circle." Then one day there came to her an opportunity to prove her gratitude to me, and she did not take it. As I look back I am sure there must have been some very good reason, and I try so hard to feel just as I used to toward that woman. But I cannot. Please believe me when I say that it was not because I cared for what she could have given me. That was not it at all. It was simply that I could not bear to have her fail in gratitude. It was a very little thing but it has somehow changed and chilled the tender feeling I had for her. I admire her still, but she is not the same.

Sometimes a single tactless remark, a single sneer, one little unkind act, will change your point of view on some friend. Perhaps in time the viewpoint may change back, but it is apt to be a very long time.

On the other hand, some little thoughtful act or tactful speech may colour your whole opinion of a person. Once when I lay lonely and sick in a boarding-house (if there is anything more miserable than to be sick in a strange boardinghouse I don't know what it is) a corridor acquaintance brought me up a dainty breakfast tray. That, too, was a little thing, but it made that whole woman's character seem rose-colour to me.

The little things, the little things, how very big they are to us illogical, emotional, unreasonable human creatures! I suppose it is quite wrong that it should be so but since it is, it certainly behoves us all to watch out for the little things of life as well as the big.

TWO BODIES FOUND

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 11th.—The bodies of James F. Bly, a medical student 18 years old and his bride, formerly Rose Herring, of this city, were discovered the other day lying fifty feet from a path in Northfield woods, near here, by a man named Harry Pierce.

It was nearly two months since the couple disappeared and every possible search was made by the parents and relatives who, with private detectives, exhausted all their efforts in trying to locate the young pair. When found the youth's head was resting in the girl's arm and both bodies were almost covered with leaves, among which was found a revolver and a sheet of stained paper. The message on the paper was scarcely readable but the following was made out: "Death is the easiest way out. Rose will kill herself and I will follow." The young man was in very delicate health and feared removal to a sanitorium. This is said to be the only reason for the rash act.

Women Watch the Grocery Ads

The grocer who does not advertise is not living up to his privileges. There are too many good things to tell about a well-kept grocery store to keep silent about little things and big things that all people don't demand, but which, if given out, will add several per cent. to the store's standing.

A "Pure Food" store like Porter S. White's, for instance, that keeps the public well posted about its specialties, is constantly adding new patrons, who call to enquire about the articles advertised. This firm's grocery advertising is always seasonable, which is a very important feature, and is well worth watching every week.

Boiled Dressing for Cabbage.

Beat the yolks of three eggs, one-half teaspoon of mustard, two tablespoons of sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt. Add three tablespoons of butter and five tablespoons of vinegar. Stir all together and cook in double boiler until it is thick and creamy. Cool before putting it on the cabbage. Have the cabbage shredded very fine, with an onion and a red or green pepper.

Walnut Wafers.

Walnut wafers and peanut jumbles are two more easily handled nut cakes. To make the wafers sift two tablespoonfuls of flour, a third of a tablespoonful of salt and a quarter of a spoonful of baking powder together. Cream half a pound of brown sugar and two eggs together and add the sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Then stir in half a pound of broken walnut meats. Drop from a spoon on buttered pans and bake quickly.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Cyril Maude's Adventures

Famous English Comedian Has Funny Experience in a Hurried Trip to New York

AUTOMOBILE STALLED

Cyril Maude, the distinguished English actor, who recently appeared at the Grand Opera House here, had an experience in getting from Ottawa to New York last Sunday which outdoes even the wildest dream of the energetic press agent.

Mr. Maude had accepted earlier in the week an invitation to attend a dinner to be given in his honour by the Lotos Club in New York that Sunday evening at six o'clock. But Mr. Maude had not figured on comparative distances in this country. Nor had railroad schedules been made for the amiable purpose of enabling emergency guests to keep their social obligations.

His management came to his rescue, and Mr. John F. Harley, for the Liebler Company, arranged for an automobile from Ottawa to Prescott, a special ferry to Ogdensburg, a carriage to meet him and warm rooms at the Seymour House there, and a special Pulman, Ogdensburg to Utica, at 6:10 a.m. to connect with the Lake Shore Limited for New York, leaving Utica at 12:00 noon, with drawing-room on the latter. This would have brought Mr. Maude debonair and smiling into the Grand Central Depot at 5:35 p.m., and a waiting taxi would have whiled him in ten minutes to the Lotos Club on 57th street.

It sounded easy, but Mr. Maude was destined to have a ride as momentous as that of John Gilpin. A touring car from the Chateau Laurier bore Mr. Maude, his manager, and his man away from the stage door of the Russell Theatre, Ottawa, at 11:15 p.m. to the second.

"We'll do Prescott by 3 a.m. easily," the chauffeur assured him. At midnight happened the first episode. The machine fairly ran into the midst of a herd of sleeping cattle on the lonely and little-travelled Ottawa-Prescott short line. Shouting was of no avail, and finally, while the chauffeur stayed at his wheel, the actor, his manager, and his man cleared with their sticks, shoulders, umbrellas, and enthusiasm sufficient passageway for the car to proceed.

The incident must have messed up the driver's sense of direction, or perhaps he wanted to see where the cattle came from. For half an hour later he pulled up abruptly in a corner of a farm yard and in attempting to turn backed his machine with a resounding crash against the farmer's door. A frightened yell from within the house further confused him and a hind wheel stuck fast. It seemed scarce a second when half a dozen heads popped from windows and as many voices demanded to know what was wanted.

"Just want to get away," meekly said Mr. Maude, as the machine ricocheted off a fence post into the roadway. The mud was deep and heavy, and where there was no mud it would seem as though every particular piece of sharp nine-cornered granite in the Province of Ontario had been thoughtfully gathered together and there dumped by discerning county commissioners.

At one o'clock a tire blew out. But the accident was hailed with positive relief by the unfortunates, who had been almost bumped into insensibility. The lunch basket was opened up and sandwiches and a brandy and soda restored everyone to good humour. Off again they went over the bumps and the corduroy hurdles. Two o'clock and an extra heavy bump, jar, and jolt and Maude lurched over on top of Harley as the car slid off into the ditch! An hour's work with the jack and chains and all the available fence rails in the neighbourhood got it back upon the road. And still Prescott was twenty miles away!

Stuck in the Mud.

"In England," said Maude, "it's so different. Here"—a thud, a whizz of wet wheels, and the rest of Mr. Maude's ruminations of rural England died a-borning.

Actor and manager were thrown violently forward as the car plunged, bucked, snorted, and then apathetically skidded into a second ditch with mud, muck, and hedge reaching its very hubs. Maude stepped out into a pool of water. It was just 3 a.m. For two full hours the party strove with all their skill, main force, effort, and ingenuity to extricate the car from its slimy berth. At 5 o'clock they desisted, utterly worn out.

The car was robbed of its lanterns. The chauffeur went in one direction for help. Maude's man went in the opposite. It was pitch dark, bitterly cold, and not a sign nor a sound that would betoken human habitation within miles. At 6:30 a.m. Maude's man returned dispirited. He couldn't find a farm house anywhere. At 7:00 a.m. the chauffeur hove in sight with a grinning farmer and a limping horse and a couple of awestruck children. Maude was almost speechless from cold and fatigue. The horse was hitched to the machine. Crack went the whiffletree on the first pull. Much delay, tieing, linking and twisting of chains and a second start! Never a budge!

It was now 7 a.m. and almost hopelessly the journey was continued. Prescott was reached without further mishap at 9 o'clock. Steam was still up on the wheezing ferry and the party were hurried across the St. Lawrence to Ogdensburg. But the hack still waited in Ogdensburg and the rooms in the hotel were ready. Maude went to sleep and Harley went out and called up his New York office by long distance phone. He got them at 12:00 o'clock noon, and at 2 p.m. there steamed from out the Ogdensburg depot a special engine, baggage car and Pullman, which on its run to Utica smashed all existing speed records on the R.W. and O. Railroad, and which at times raced as high as 70 miles an hour between Utica and New York. Maude landed at the Grand Central Depot at 10:00 p.m. and at 10:16 p.m. was listening to the pleasant things the Right Hon. Robert Laird Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, was saying of him at the banquet table in the Lotos Club.

W. A. BAILEY EMERGES FROM THE SHADES OF OBSCURITY

Addresses a Communication to the Police Commissioners in Which He Alleges "Inventive Mendacity" on the Part of the Press —Those Mysterious Newspaper Clippings.

LETTER WAS RECEIVED

William Bailey has again ventured forth from the shades of oblivion A communication bearing a thumbprint and the baptismal name of that gentleman whom Peterborough claims as a citizen, was received by the Board of Police Commissioners, at a meeting which was held on Monday afternoon.

William Bailey, who hails from England, was consistently overlooked by the world until he skated into fame through the medium of the post card column of the local press. He rose rapidly after that and became known to the public as "Bill" Bailey. He spends a portion of his time enlightening the administration and the police department and calling its attention to something which it has overlooked. The press also comes in for a fair share of attention.

Newspaper Clippings.

Both of these institutions were referred to in Mr. Bailey's letter to the Police Commissioners. It will be remmebered that at a previous meeting, the Commissioners were the recipients of a sheaf of newspaper clippings dealing with Juvenile Police Court proceedings as conducted in various parts of the American Continent. The identity of the sender was unknown at the time and the clippings passed into the possession of Police Magistrate Dumble, who signified his intention of perusing them.

The letter which is given below in part is self-explanatory:

The Letter in Print.

The newspaper clippings were probably those sent by me in reference to the charge of assault against me on May 31st. I considered a silent protest would be understood. The attack on me being only an incident in the continuous persecution. I was driven out of the Y.M.C.A. and when bathing stone throwing was quite common.

Such incidents are not unknown to the authorities, and have been to some extent participated in by civic employees—for instance annoyance by the sidewalk gang, when doing George street near my house. However, one service the clippings were, was to show the inventive mendacity of one of the papers, whose influence in the Police Court is entirely bad.

"Inventive Mendacity."

Attached to the letter was the following clipping taken from The Examiner of September 18th, 1913. It is evidently the article referred to as being indicative of "inventive mendacity."

AN ANONYMOUS COMMUNICATION.

A consignment of newspaper clippings relating to juvenile court proceedings, and gathered from various newspapers throughout British North America, was received by the Board of Police Commissioners at a meeting which was held on Wednesday afternoon. They were enclosed in an envelope addressed to the Police Commissioners. The origin of the clippings, or the identity of the sender, is only a matter of conjecture, as no communication accompanied them. The implication being that they were in some way connected with the recent controversy that existed between a morning contemporary and the police officials. Police Magistrate Dumble deposited the mysterious envelope in an inner coat pocket, with the evident intention of perusing their contents. The contemporary in question objected to the Juvenile Court proceedings being conducted in camera, and, needless to say, the exception found little favour with Police Magistrate Dumble.—Examiner, Sept. 13, 1913.

The Discussion.

"Who, or what is he?" enquired His Honour Judge Huycke, chairman of the Board.

"He is evidently a remittance man," said Police Magistrate Dumble, who also suggested that the person in question was suffering from general lassitude of the cerebral cavity.

Chief of Police Thompson stated that he had received a communication from the Immigration Department at Ottawa, regarding the man.

"There is no reason in him," asserted Magistrate Dumble. With that the communication was shelved, and William Bailey's conflict with the Police Commissioners was declared a draw.

Quick Way To Make Ugly Hairs Vanish

(The Modern Beauty)

Here is a quick and very effective treatment for banishing objectionable hairs or fuzz: Mix a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water and apply to the hairy surface for about 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off and with it will come every trace of hair. Washing the skin to remove the remaining paste leaves it firm and free from blemish. Rarely is more than one application required, but results are more positive who the delatone is purchased in an original package.

The Bargain Annex Is 8 Years Old To-day

Wednesday, November 12th, 1913

Fancy Work, Art Needlework, Stamped Linen, etc., etc. on Main Floor

We first opened the Bargain Annex 8 years ago in 1905, and to-day we celebrate the Anniversary of its Inauguration. From a small department it has grown to such proportions that now one hears about it all over the province. We started it with mingled feelings of doubt and hope, but its steady progress has more than fulfilled our highest expectations.

It has now its own manager, buyer and sales force, each week hundreds of customers being served, and up to the present time has never known a failure. Every Wednesday it is opened for business and on this, the four hundred and sixteenth event, we offer the greatest array of Annex Birthday Bargains ever placed before the Peterboro Public.

Exceptional Value in Flannelette Blankets

$1.29 Lines, Size 60 by 72 for $1.09

THESE ARE ENGLISH MADE BLANKETS and are finished singly. The larger size is in pure white throughout, while the smaller ones are bordered with either Pink or Blue. Both are of that soft woolly texture so desirable in blankets of this kind, their substantial make up rendering splendid service year after year. Moreover the Birthday Annex price is cheap—remarkably so, as you may prove for yourself if you visit this department on Wednesday

Men's $10 and $12 Ulster Coats for $5.90.

JUST ABOUT TEN OF THEM. Heavy Winter Overcoats made in Ulster style with convertible collar. The colours are Black and Dark Checked Grey, the sizes being 36 to 42. This is one of those opportunities characteristic of the Annex, where sterling lines have received a remarkable reduction in price. If your size is here, and you need a coat of this description, visit the department at an early hour and satisfy yourself that here are truly $10 and $12 Coats for..... 5.90

Two O'clock Sale Wash Blouses 25c

THESE BLOUSES WILL SEEM ALMOST LIKE A BIRTHDAY PRESENT to the purchaser, for they are really worth 59c and 75c in the usual way. They are made of light and dark prints and chambrays, some having a neat turned Dutch collar, others being fitted with a high detachable collar. Owing to the extremely low figure a customer will not be served with more than two Blouses. Birthday Annex Price 25c

Women's Winter Coats

THERE ARE 14 COATS IN ALL, some being black some in colours. And while they have been carried over from last year, they are good serviceable coats that will bring warmth and satisfaction, and are quite up-to-date in style. Formerly they were priced $10.00—some even more and to dispose of them quickly we have made them a particularly attractive bargain for the Birthday Annex. The ridiculously low price is 2.98

99c Per Yard Will Buy These $2.00 and $2.50 Winter Coatings

COULD ONE REALLY EXPECT more for 99c than a yard of these splendid Coatings that are all this season's productions? There are Chinchillas, Diagonals, Nigger Heads, etc., in fact every cloth that is new and suitable for winter coats. We bought them as a mill clearance, and as this adv. goes to press they are being delivered, but by To-night there will be a display of them in the show window. One only needs to examine their woolly texture, their soft thickness and weight, to realise that seldom indeed can such value be obtained for so modest a sum. Your choice may rest upon a smart plaid design or a reversible material, a pretty brown, or a natty black and white mixture, but whatever it may, you can depend upon serviceability and satisfaction. Moreover, this is certain—that only on such occasions as a Birthday Anniversary can we think of placing before you such an opportunity. Wednesday, per yd.. 99c

Ladies' Home Journal Patterns, are a valuable guide in making coats. They are 15c on the main floor.

The Reliable Annex Laundry Soap 9 Bars 25c

IS THERE A HOUSEWIFE WITHIN THE BOUNDS OF PETERBOROUGH who does not know of the splendid cleansing properties of the Annex Laundry Soap? Hundreds of homes use it every wash day, and find it to be most satisfactory in every way. The Bars are full 5c size, it is made from a special formula expressly for us, and our name is stamped upon it as evidence of the faith we repose in it. The Birthday Annex offer is certainly mighty cheap. 9 BARS..... 25c

Women's Nightgowns of White Flannelette 87c

THE YOKES OF THESE PRETTY GOWNS are daintily trimmed with silk embroidery and tucks, while the material is a soft white "Saxony" Flannelette. Pawned His Mother's Coat To Get Money

Clarence Randall, Whose Mother Died Here, Was Extravagant

Toronto Star—The action of Miss Rose Clark, her nephew, Clarence Randall, and W. S. Anderson, of the Surrogate Court, Osgoode Hall, against the Trusts and Guarantee Company for an accounting and damages of alleged extravagance in the administration of the estate of Mrs. Lilly Randall, who died November, 1907, leaving her son Clarence sole heir, was resumed before Judge Winchester in the Surrogate Court today.

After his mother's death Randall was sent to St. Andrew's College by the trust company.

"Where did you spend your weekends?" asked his counsel, W. E. Raney, K.C.

"At one of the uptown hotels. I paid the expenses myself."

"When did your drinking habits begin?"

Randall was 18 years old when his mother died.

He had asked for $100 with which to buy clothes to attend his mother's funeral at Peterborough. The proceeds from the sale of his mother's furniture was given to him.

When he returned from a visit to Calgary, in 1909, he had pawned his mother's fur coat, as he needed the money.

In 1911 he had drawn $1,500 and made a visit to Vermont, where the rest of his money was forwarded.

"I had more clothes than I really needed," continued the witness. They were expensive—over $30 a suit.

"After you left college where did you board?"

"At down-town hotels and on Wellesley street."

The case was adjourned a week.

SERGT. ADAMS IS ON THE SICK LIST

Veteran Officer May Be Off Duty For Some Time

Sergeant Adams, of the Peterborough Police Department, is on the sick list, and may be off duty for some time. At yesterday's meeting of the Police Commissioners, G. F. Hayward, of East City, was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of P. C. Tucker; so that the force is practically up to full strength. Sergeant Adams has been attached to the local police department for over a quarter of a century, and during that time has figured in a number of important arrests.

BRANCH OF ST. JOHN'S AMBULANCE ASSOCIATION TO BE FORMED HERE

Enthusiastic Beginning Made After Address of Captain Collins in the Labour Hall Last Night.

MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT

As a result of a very instructive address by Captain George R. N. Collins, who is the District Chief Superintendent of the St. John's Amoulance Brigade, given in the Labour Hall last night, it is expected that a branch of the brigade will be formed in the city.

In his address Captain Collins explained the steps necessary to form a brigade in Peterborough. A class in First Aid and bandaging must be started and at the conclusion of the work of this organization, a regular division of the brigade could be formed in this city. They would have their own local officers, and though working in affiliation with the parent association, with headquarters in Toronto, would be in charge of the work of their own branch. He advised the establishing of the First Aid class at once. The text-book and bandages would be supplied to each man for 50 cents, and the other appliances—such as stretchers, splints, etc., could be borrowed from other local institutions. He had no doubt that they could secure the services of one or more of the medical practitioners to give lectures

The speaker was introduced to the audience by Mayor Bradburn. Mr. Bradburn said that he sincerely regretted that the inclement weather had interfered with the attendance at the meeting. But there was first class material to found a brigade here, and he was ready to aid in establishing a branch in any way he could Alderman G. N. Gordon, in a short speech, said that he was very much in sympathy with the aims of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade, and he thought it would be a great thing for the city when its work was started here.

Captain Collins, in opening his address, said that when the rder was first founded at Amalfi on St. John's Day, A.D., 1018, its object was to render aid to the many thousands of pilgrims to the Holy Land, who were constantly arriving at that port, in a state of destitution and suffering, due to their arduous journey across the Continent, often beset by wild beasts and robbers, apart from the hardship occasioned by the meagre means of transportation afforded in those times. So great did the demand for such service become that eventually branches or leagues were formed all over Europe. Later the Order was granted Military Status by Baldwin II., after which they became a strong and formidable body, taking part in the many battles of the Early Crusades, and finally established a Sovereignty over the Mediterranean, which they held over three hundred years. At various times the headquarters of the Order were at Cyprus, Aden, Crete, and finally at Malta. Several times the Order was suppressed, and again revived, but the modern Order obtained its final recognition in the time of the late Queen Victoria, who issued a Royal Charter in 1884, providing, however, that the Reigning Sovereign should be the head of the Order, while the Prince of Wales should be the Grand Prior and President, this latter title being held at this time, however, by H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught.

The modern Order was divided into three branches, having for their objects, the alleviation of distress amongst the general public, and the instruction of the masses in First Aid(Nursing, Hygiene and Sanitation. The first branch was the British Opthalmic Hospital at Perusalem, for the treatment of cases of opthalmia amongst the natives, where from 20,000 to 80,000 patients receive free treatment in each year. The second was the St. John Ambulance Association, which has charge of the instructional work of the Order, and the third was the St. John Ambulance Brigade. This was the part that has most interest to Canadians, since it was possible to organize divisions for men and women in every town or city. A number of divisions have already been formed in Canada, and the number is growing daily. The members of the brigade attended at all public functions where a crowd was gathered in order that they may treat any case of accident or sudden sickness. The women were organized into Nursing Divisions, and whilst they support the men in their duties, more especially as regards the treatment of female cases, they also give their services to the sick and suffering poor by nursing them privately in their own homes.

The object of the lecture here, was to arouse interest, and to inaugurate classes in First Aid and Nursing, and later to establish a division in ambulance nursing-work. In addition there was a cadet corps which follows similar lines for those who are too young to join the senior corps.

His Majesty the King is very enthusiastic over this work, said the lecturer, and in 1913 commanded the attendance of a contingent from every on of the British colonies to attend at Windsor for review, 22 members leaving Canada for that purpose Pictures of this great review in which 18,000 ambulance men and 8,000 nurses took part were shown at the lecture.

The lecturer showed about fifty lantern slides most of them dealing with the different modes of bandaging, etc., that those entering the Order had to learn. Captain Collins had arranged for lantern slides of the Balkan War which he had hoped to receive for the lecture, but owing to some unexpected delay he did not get them last night.

A good deal of enthusiasm was shown at last night's meeting. A meeting of those who are going to father the local branch will be held on Friday evening next.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., Nov. 11.— United States Ambassador Walter H. Page Called at the British foreign office today and had a conference with Sir Edward Grey on the Mexican situation. Neither diplomat would discuss the details. The Paris papers discussing the situation to-day, intimate that the United States would be ill-advised in armed intervention at the present time and intimate it would be best to let Mexico work out her own destiny.

Twenty Years In The City's Service

Mr. S. R. Armstrong, City Clerk, enters to-day upon his twenty-first year of useful service to the Municipality of Peterborough. During his tenure of office the City has developed from a small sized town to a flourishing city with over twenty-two thousand inhabitants. Peterborough's transition from the Rip Van Winkle era has been rapid during the past ten or fifteen years, so much so that the work connected with the municipal government has more than doubled. The weather vane of a city's progress is her industries. That Peterborough has grown industrially by leaps and bounds is due in no small measure to Mr. Armstrong's administration as Industrial Commissioner. He is a patient, tireless worker with an endless capacity for detail, and above all, essentially undemonstrative.

DEMONSTRATED INCOMPETENCE AT PORT NELSON

Immense Waste of Money and Work at Canada's Hudson Bay Port

The first really big piece of work undertaken by the present government was the carying on of the Hudson Bay Railway and Steamship route which was started by the late Liberal government. It was for a long time the fashion amongst Tories to criticize the Liberals for proceeding slowly and carefully with this vast scheme, which will involve the expenditure of many millions of dollars on a route over land and sea of which little is definitely known. Apparently now the government is being forced to realize that "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread." The stories of mismanagement and worse coming in from Port Nelson are astounding in their revelations of criminal folly.

The Borden government first selected Port Nelson for the port of the Hudson Bay terminal. The chief point in its favour apeared to be that it is on low lying ground at the mouth of the Nelson River, with shoal water extending so far that at present it is stated vessels drawing more than 14 feet of water cannot get within seven miles of the harbour," while the silt from the river is so great that no matter how the harbour may be dredged it will constantly fill up again. Fort Churchill having deep anchorage close to shore was naturally neglected.

The government sent some 150 men to prepare this port, and then sent a number of vessels with supplies. To prove that he was a business minister, Hon. Mr. Cochrane neglected to send any means of unloading these vessels, which, although small ships could not get anywhere near the port. One vessel loaded, at a cost of $60,000, was compelled to bring its cargo of lumber back to North Sydney, after pitching a lot of it into Hudson's Bay while four other vessels sent up at enormous cost had to bring their cargoes back again.

A costly dredge sent up to help clean the harbour was to have been beached on the sand for the winter. Accordingly at high tide it was run on to jaged rocks, and broke to pieces with the loss of its valuable machinery when the tide went out. So little preparation was made for taking care of the men during the Arctic winter that most of them broke their contracts and sacrificed their pay rather than face the rigours imposed upon them by the government.

The whole history of the thing is marked by waste and incompetence and every indication of this having been perpetrated for "political purposes."

The Ottawa Citizen (Cons.) discussing this says an engineer is making super-human efforts to establish order out of chaos at Port Nelson and continues,—"Beach-combers, recruited in political machine fashion are sent up as labourers, only to return by the next boat. Skilled help is appointed through political pressure. Contracts for material pass through the political machine. Over all the lack of information and system, no one is responsible for anything."

This last is not correct. The government, and especially Hon. Mr. Cochrane, must be held responsible by the people. Instead of spending between $50,000 and $100,000 on a partisan investigation of the N. T. R., with the hope of injuring the Liberal party, it would pay the government better to do what the N. T. R.—subtract politics and apply proper business methods. The captain of the "Cercanse," wrecked at Port Nelson, is practically defying the government to investigate the wreck, and expose the real conditions at Port Nelson. Some day the whole matter will be investigated and then the people will realise the cynicism of Mr. Borden's promise of clean and honest administration.

TWO TAKE BICHLORIDE OF MERCURY ON DARE

NEWBURG, N.Y., Nov. 11. — Edward Grant and William Delehanty, aged about 27 years, while intoxicated, dared each other to try bichloride of mercury tablets and as a result of the test are at St. Luke's hospital, presumably dying from the effects.

They claim to have taken four tablets of 7.25 grain each, and the attending physicians say death will follow within 72 hours owing to their weakened physical condition.

Grant was found yesterday in the retiring room of the ferry house and within 20 minutes Delehanty was found in a hay mow at one of the city stables. Both were conscious but practically paralyzed in their lower limbs.

CARELESS BUTCHERS WILL BE PREVENTED FROM SELLING MEAT

Ald. Duncan presided at the regular meeting of the Board of Health this morning, with Mayor Bradburn, Dr. McPherson, Mr. Jas. Murty and Sanitary Inspector Spence present.

Dr. McPherson announced the results of tests made of water from wells on McDonnel Street, between Park Street and the creek. A number of casese of typhoid have been reported from that section and the Doctor's examination showed the presence of foreign matter associated with typhoid. The creek passes behind these houses and in the vicinity there are closets. It is possible that the well water was affected by their proximity, and the creek close by.

City Water Good.

A few odd cases of typhoid have been reported throughout the City during the past four or five months, but Dr. McPherson did not consider the City water responsible for them. It had shown no traces of colon bacilli and the most recent tests showed that it was absolutely free from these bacilli.

Ald. Duncan stated that the residents of McDonnel Street west of Park had asked that the City water be piped along the street, but it had not been granted because of an insufficiency of revenue.

The members felt that these citizens should be given the City water, and on motion of Dr. McPherson, seconded by Mr. Murty, it was recommended to the Council that the water main be laid on that section of McDonnel Street.

Anson Street Sewer.

On motion of Mr. Murty, seconded by Mayor Bradburn, a sewer 184 feet long was recommended for Anson Street. Mr. Mitchell asked for it, and the City Engineer examined the location and reported in favour of it.

The statement of receipts and expenses of the Queen Mary Nospital showed that there is a balance of $619.40 for the remaining two months of the year. Dr. McPerson stated that this was more than sufficient for the requirements of these months.

After Slaughter Houses.

Sanitary Inspector Spence reported that there were several butchers who had not complied with his suggestions in regard to the conditions of their slaughter houses. Most of the butchers had done so, and Mr. Spence referred to Mr. Wheeler, who had done practically everything as advised, and his slaughter house was in fine condition. Several, however, would be much improved with a few changes. But there was no way of forcing them to carry out the suggestions as they are outside the City, but the City can prevent these butchers from selling their meat in the City.

Mr. Spence stated that a case had been reported to him of meat that was apparently good, but when it was cooked it emitted a stench. The beef might have ben diseased, but he was of the opinion that the carcass had been allowed to stand in the slaughter house where odours from the boiling room and hog pens had probably affected it.

Mayor Bradburn—Did these butchers refuse to carry out your suggestions?

Mr. Spence— They did not refuse, but they have not done anything.

Mayor Bradburn—We have power to prevent the sale in the City of meat from such places.

Mr. Spence did not like the idea of some butchers making their slaughter houses sanitary and others making no improvements, and yet nothing was said of either parties. He believed the former should receive credit for what they did.

Moved by Doctor McPherson, seconded by Mayr Bradburn, that the Sanitary Inspector be instructed to prohibit the sale of meat from slaughter houses not in accordance with the Provincial Health Act.

MEN AND WOMEN CAN SAVE THEIR HAIR WITH HERPICIDE

No woman should have poor, thin, scraggy hair, and no man need become bald. Poor hair and final baldness are due to the dandruff germ.

Newbro's Herpicide will destroy dandruff and stop the hair from falling. Further evidence of this is found in a letter from Mrs. F. Nelson of Tomah, Wis. She says: "I fought the worst kind of dandruff for nine years. I have been using Herpicide now one week, and my scalp is healthy, the dandruff has gone and the itching has stopped. It is the best remedy for scalp diseases I ever saw, and I have seen many."

Don't subject yourself to disappointment and expense by accepting some thing claimed to be "just as good" as Newbro's Herpicide. These off brands may possibly be good, but why take chances? The genuine and original dandruff germ destroyer can always be obtained. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Newbros Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Send 10c in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. E., Detroit, Mich.

MR. G. A. GILLESPIE REPLIES TO RECENT MILK INTERVIEW

In regard to an article in Saturday's issue concerning the price of milk, Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie stated to an Examiner reporter that the milk vendor who gave the interview was apparently endeavouring to "knock" the Peterborough Pure Milk Company's method of pasteurizing, sterilizing and bottling of the milk sold to its customers. The article predicts an increase in the price of milk, and the reason ascribed is the public's demand for a sanitary article.

"The Peterborough Pure Milk Company has given the consumer the benefit of advanced methods of handling milk at an increased cost of only one cent a quart. The milk sold by the company is pasteurized, the bottles sterilized and a customer is assured not only of sanitary handling, but of the absence of any injurious bacteria.

"At the present time," Mr. Gillespie continued, "there are from 40 to 50 milk peddlers in Peterborough. The vendor who was interviewed expressed the opinion that the consolidation of milk delivery in Peterborough would mean higher prices to the consumer. In the first place it is generally known that the milk vendors have to follow in each other's tracks for the reason that there is no system to their delivery. It is nothing unusual to see a number of milkmen calling at different houses on the same street. The result is that the delivery now necessitating from 40 to 50 men could be handled easily by 10 under the system referred to in the Saturday article. Consolidation would make a big out in the cost of delivery.

I do not claim that all the milk delivered in the City is of poor quality. There are a number of men in the business who are selling milk that is as good as can be obtained in the raw state. But I do claim that all milk can be improved by clarifying and pasteurizing it. Surely the average consumer would prefer to pay a little extra price to have the milk thus treated and guaranteed against disease germs. This is no imaginary idea, for it is thus treated in all cities and becoming more so every sason.

Th present season has been one of the hardest in the history of dairying to produce cheap milk, and owing to its scarcity the dealer is very often forced to buy it wherever he can get it, and frequently he has had no other alternative but to accept milk that was not produced under the best conditions. It is only fair to the dealer to say that he was not acquainted with the conditions under which it was handled before he received it, but that only makes the argument in favour of clarification, pasteurization and sterilization all the stronger. The consumer expects pure milk, pays for it, and his rights in this respect should be protected all along the line of handling the article.

I think I am safe in saying that the real reason why the price of milk was not raised recently by dealers was the fact that the Peterborough Pure Milk Company maintained its price at eight cents, and the company will maintain its price at eight cents, although the average milk dealer knows there is very little profit at that figure. By consolidating the milk business so that one waggon would deliver to all the customers in one section is, to my mind, the only way in which the price of milk to the consumer can be kept at a reasonable price. The cost of production is becoming greater each year and I do not see any likelihood of lower prices to the producer. The Peterborough Pure Milk Company is giving its customers all the advantages of economical delivery methods and modern ideas in the sanitary handling of milk. It has set a standard for the City and the citizens who are not yet its customers are reaping a benefit from this fact.

Thus the consolidation of the milk [illegible] as it has been developed to [illegible]sent stage has been a distinct [illegible]ge to the citizens of Peterborough from the standpoint of price and quality, and the Peterborough Pure Milk Company wil always endeavour to hold this position even in the face of underhand rumours that are absolutely without foundation, and simply calculated to injure the growing business which was inevitably bound to come to the company."

WHAT WILL SHE SAY?

An editor man whom we knows says he is going to write to Cynthia Grey, and ask her opinion of his hand-writing. If Miss Greys opinion of his chirography is the same as ours, we feel certain she will be too polite to express what she thinks of it, on paper.

DR. INGRAM, BISHOP OF LONDON REBUTS SHAW'S VIEWS IN SERMON

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Bishop of London has proclaimed himself the champion of all Christian people of the metropolis to lead a campaign for purer moral standards in music halls and theatres. This is the outcome of the hostility of the clergy headed by the Bishop of Kensington to the performance of Gaby Deslys at the Palace Theatre.

Bernard Shaw wrote a characteristic letter to the Times the other day scoring the Bishop of Kensington, begging the question as to what is fit or unfit for the theatre and constituting himself the judge of that question.

"The suggestion is made," said Mr. Shaw, "that gratification of emotion is one of the main uses to which the theatre is put, if the taste for voluptuous entertainment is sometimes morbid the taste for religious edification is open to precisely the same objection. If I had a neurotic daughter I would much rather risk taking her to the Palace Theatre than to a revival meeting. Nobody has yet counted the number of homes and characters wrecked by intemperance in religious emotions." The gist of Shaw's plea is that what is moral to one person may be immoral to another and if you don't like the programme at the Palace you don't have to go there.

Dr. Ingram, the Church of England Bishop of London, referred to Shaw's letter in his sermon this morning. He said: "This man of the world contends that no absolute standard of purity exists, and that there is no such thing as positive morality. If that is so we are going back to a standard not only below that of Plato and Aristotle, but below that of many savage tribes.

"If the church sat down under such a standard it would be disowning all its traditions. It would be better for it to abandon the title of church of Christ.

"Thank God, the Christian folk of London are in a majority and the question we have made up our minds to ask is, are we going to be masters in our own house?"

Dr. Ingram disclaimed narrow-mindedness in theatrical affairs, painting and dancing, but he said he had determined that the standard of the theatre be such as to ennoble the minds of the frequenters of the theatres. He said he willingly took up the gauntlet and summoned the Christians of London to his banner, and he would lead them in the battle.

The Bishop of Kensington, speaking in his church, complained that whenever he tried to fight impurity he found he was up against the dead wall of men's apathy, as there is a double standard of morality in England, a very high one for women and a low one for men. Parodying Longfellow's "Psalm of Life," he asked if it was always going to be true that:

"In the world's great field of battle
In the bivouacs of life,
You will find the Christian soldier,
Represented by his wife."

SENIOR BANQUET AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Plans are well under way for the Senior Banquet, which will be held in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday evening, Nov. 18th, at 6 o'clock.

The men who are looking after this occasion are doing all in their power to make the banquet a brilliant success. The hall will be decorated in an artistic manner and the tables will contain "good things" to satisfy the cravings of the inner man. No efforts will be spared by the Ladies' Auxiliary, who have full charge of the banquet.

An interesting programme has been arranged and details regarding this will be published later. Every member of the Senior Department of the Young Men's Christian Association ought to avail themselves of the privilege of attending this enjoyable evening.

Magical Effect of New Face Peeler

(Woman's National Journal)

To maintain a clear, rosy, youthful complexion, there's nothing so simple to use and yet so effective as ordinary mercolized wax, which you can get at any druggstore. Just apply the wax at night as you would cold cream; in the morning wash it off with warm water. If you've never tried it you can't imagine the magical effect of this harmless home treatment. The wax causes the worn-out scarf skin to come off in minute particles a little at a time, and soon you have entirely shed the offensive cuticle. The fresh young underskin now in evidence is so healthy and girlish looking, so free from any appearance of artificiality, you wish you had heard of this marvellous complexion-renewing secret long ago.

To get rid of your wrinkles, here's a formula that is wonderfully effective: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathe the face in this and you will be simply astonished at the results, even after the first trial.

A BENEFIT CONCERT FOR THE HOCKEY CLUB

The Peterborough Hockey Club have made arrangements with Mr. A. J. Bentley, manager of the Royal Concert Company, by which that well-known collection of talent will give a benefit concert for the Hockey Club in the Grand Opera House on Tuesday, Nov. 18, a week from to-night. The company comprises J. Alfred Hubbard, concert tenor; Mabel Farrance, unique entertainer; Eddie Pigott, comic singer and impersonator; Henrietta Walmsley, contralto, and Margaret Campbell, violin virtuoso-pianist. No doubt the friends of the hockey club will turn out in large numbers and give the game a good start by a crowded house on Tuesday night.

Blackburn Rovers' Player Is To Take Second Benefit

Has Done Brilliant Service for the Club---Norwich City Has Signed a New Half Back---Steve Bloomer's Debut in First-class Football--Hull City's New Forward.

William Bradshaw, the popular Blackburn Rovers' International half-back, is to take a second benefit, the directors having set apart for that purpose the league match with Sheffield United on 24th January next and given him a guarantee of £500.

—x—

Bradshaw, who was born at Padiham in April, 1884, was playing with Accrington Stanley, when the Rovers secured him. He commenced with Rovers in the season 1903-4, and he owed his first appearance in the league team to an accident to John Birchall. This was against the Wanderers at Wolverhampton, on 12th October, 1903, and so well did Bradshaw acquit himself that he was permanently given the position of left half-back. He has done brilliant service for his club, and he has secured four international caps—two against Wales (1910-13) and two against Ireland (1910-12).

—x—

R. J. Bateman, the outside right of Crystal Palace, is training in London for the scholastic profession. This of course, claims his most serious attention, but, to use his own words, "I am so fond of the game that I put no time limit on my association with so fine a sport as football. I shall be at college for another two years, and as long as my leisure and my physical powers permit I shall always continue to play."

—x—

Norwich City have signed a new centre half-back from the Chopping-ton Club (Northern Alliance) named Lance Candlish.

—x—

Cardiff expect to have improved their forward line by securing Leonard Hopkins, a centre forward from Brierley Hill, who is said to have scored 59 goals for Bacup last season.

—x—

G. Wilcock, of Goole Town, and formerly with Barnsley, has been signed by Brighton as a reserve goalkeeper, after a satisfactory trial.

—x—

William Brewer, a nineteen year old centre forward from Chippenham, in the Wilts League, has signed for Swindon, and will play as an amateur.

—x—

J. Penifer, who has given Queen's Park Rangers valuable assistance as an amateur centre forward, has been engaged as a professional, and Tottenham Hotspur have similarly engaged A. Macdonald, a centre forward from Inverness. He is eighteen years of age, and played a trial game a week ago.

—x—

Steve Bloomer made his debut in first-class football in September, 1892, at Stoke.

—x—

Burnley's mission to Scotland was not successful. The club's representatives approached the Hamilton Academicals, but they could not persuade them to part with McNeil, though it is stated that the Hamilton authorities so appreciated Burnley's open methods that they promised that if in the future they are desirous of parting with the player they will give Burnley the first chance.

—x—

W. Loney of Celtic has been transferred to Motherwell. The old Denny half-back will strengthen a weak spot in the Fir Parkers' team.

—x—

If Newcastle United had cared to "spring" another $250 the chances are that Ferguson, now of Third Lanark, would have gone from St. Bernard to Tyneside. Frank Watt, however, stoped at $2,000, and Third Lanark, with the Glasgow Cup money hot, came along with the extra two fifty.

Liverpool are prepared to part with Gracie, their centre-forward. The fee, meantime, is $2,500. It is stated Clyde offered more than that for the player last season. With a dearth of centre-forwards, prices are certain to rule high.

Brighton and Hove Albion are very anxious to sign Willie Walker, the young Lanemark centre-forward, who was with Bradford City last season.

In the presence of many thousands of spectators the mayor of Nottingham presented M'Knight, the Irish international, and now of the Notts Forest Club, with the Royal Humane Society's certificate for saving the life of a boy at Ardglass Harbour, County Down, in June. The boy fell fifteen feet from the cliffs into deep water, M'Knight making a heroic rescue after two attempts.

Bobby Walker is now a full-fledged entertainer. 'Scotland's idol" is part proprietor of a picture house.

It is rumoured that Motherwell are negotiating with Sheffield Wednesday for the transfer of Robertson and McLean. What a catch that would be!

Hull City have tried four centre forwards since Halligan, the Irish International was injured. None have made good except a seventeen year old youngster named Lyons. Have they found another Tom Browell?

RITCHIE WINS FROM CROSS

NEW YORK, Nov. 10. — Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion of the world, defeated Leach Cross of this city in a ten-round bout, which went the limit, at Madison Square Garden to-night.

The men weighed at 9 o'clock, both under the stipulated weight of 135 pounds. The ringside weights were announced as: Ritchie 137 pounds and Cross 136 1-4 pounds. With the exception of the first round, which was even, and the eighth, in which Cross had a decided advantage, Ritchie had the honours.

In the second round, after a mix-up, Ritchie fell backwards on his shoulders over Cross, who was in a stooping position Though the fall was a heavy one, Ritchie did not seem to be much the worse for it. In the third round Ritchie knocked Cross down twice, each time for the count of nine seconds. The first fall was from a right smash on the jaw, followed by a light half-uppercut. After Cross regained his feet Ritchie rushed him across the ring and put him down again with another right, which was more of a shove than a blow. When Cross got up he caught Ritchie with a hard left hook to the jaw. It almost lifted the champion off his feet. Cross, rushing again forced Ritchie to the ropes. It looked in this round as if Ritchie would win easily, but Cross was full of fight and his powers of recuperation surprised the western boy, as well as the spectators.

From the fourth round to the end of the seventh Cross received most of the punishment, but he kept Ritchie busy, and the fighting all through was hard and fast. Cross apparently did not mind the stiff jabs he was receiving, contending himself with waiting to use his deadly right swing. A chance to do so, however, never came.

The eighth round was where Cross showed to the best advantage. He landed lefts and rights to head and body, and also had the better of the infighting. He shook Ritchie from his heels to his head with a left hook to the jaw in this round.

Ritchie's showing was not quite up to the standard of former lightweight champions who have been seen here. But Cross at all times is a puzzling fighter, no matter how good his opponent may be, and to-night he fought with desperation at all stages in endeavouring to win Ritchie's title, which the westerner had placer at take in this match.

A FUNNY RULING IN LONDON GAME

Either Referee Art Anglin or the scribe who wrote the following paragraph in the London Advertiser must have been asleep:

Early in the second half, in the first five minutes of play, to be exact, London practically put the game on ice when Ireland went over for a touchdown. Culham, Petrolea back, tried a kick on Petrolea's third down near the visitor's 15 yard line. The kick was low and the ball bounced off one of the Petrolea players and bounced clear back over the Petorlea line. A bunch of London players, Ireland foremost, were on it in a flash. Ireland picked it up and ran it around back of the goal and scored a touchdown.

The play referred to in this paragraph won the game for London and put Petrolea out of the running. As described here, the play was impossible under the rules. When the Petrolea half kicked into his own line, he committed a breach of the rules, and the play was dead from that moment. The referee should have awarded the ball to London where the offence occurred, and not allowed them to score a touchdown on an illegal play. The incident is referred to here because it seemed such a glaring disregard of the rules.

Tricked.

For four consecutive nights the hotel proprietor watched his fair, timid guest, fill her pitcher at the water-tap.

"Madam," he said on the fifth night, "if you would ring, this would be done for you."

"But where is my bell?" asked the lady.

"That the bell! she exclaimed. "Why the boy told me that was the fire alarm and that I wasn't to touch it on any account."

Stratford Man Is New President

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—Nominations for office in the Ontario Hockey Association have closed and Mr. Charles Farquharson, of Stratford, has been elected president by acclamation. Mr. Kenneth Casselman, of London, has advanced to the first vice-presidency, and on the same principle of promotion Mr. James T. Sutherland, of Kingston, has been advanced from the Executive to the office of second vice-presidency. Mr. Francis Nelson, who represents the O. H. A. on the A. A. U. of C. Board of Governors, has been re-elected, as has also the secretary, Mr. W. A. Hewitt, of Toronto.

Mr. Dwight J. Turner, a past president of the O. H. A., and for years a valued member of the sub-committee, of which Mr. John Ross Robertson, the only life member of the association, is chairman, has been appointed treasurer of the association.

There will be keen competition for positions on the Executive, six having been nominated with four to be elected. Mr. A. E. Wettlaufer, the retiring president, will retain his seat on the Executive, which will be composed as follows:

Past President—H. E. Wettlaufer, Berlin.

President — Chas. Farquharson, Stratford.

Life member—J. Ross Robertson, Toronto.

A. A. U. of C. Governor — Francis Nelson, Toronto.

First Vice-President — Kenneth Casselman, London.

Second Vice-President — Jas. T. Sutherland, Kingston.

Secretary—W. A. Hewitt, Toronto.

Treasurer—Dwight J. Turner, Toronto.

Executive Committee (four to be elected)—A. E. Copeland, Midland; R. M. Glover, Peterborough; J. R. Beaton, Chatham; Sheriff J. T. Panton, Whitby; Frank Hyde, Woodstock; Allan T. Kinder, Preston.

The election of the Executive will take place at the annual meeting of the association to be held in Toronto on Saturday, December 6th.

A meeting of the retiring Executive Committee will be held at The Toronto Telegram office on Saturday, Nov. 15, at 11 a.m. to prepare reports for the coming convention.

CLANCY OUT WITH ARGOS

Toronto Globe: Prospects for a strong Argonaut O. H. A. team were never brighter if the well attended meeting of the hockey section of that club last night is an indication. Among those in attendance were several players who competed on various local senior teams last season and a number of out-of-town players.

Argonauts are confident that they will have the strongest team which has ever represented the club. The committee is composed of hustlers who will leave nothing undone in the interests of the team. Among the players who have expressed their intention of playing with the Scullers are: Cooke, who has played goal for the Orillia junior O. H. A. team for several seasons; Slatter, with Regina last season; Baker, a brother of "Hammy" Baker of the Winnipeg Victorias; Clancy, a member of the Dominion Bank team last season; Sanderson and Trebilcock, who were with the champion Beach Canoe Club team last season, and several other promising juniors. Some senior players who played with other local teams last season will try for places.

HOCKEY

Toronto Mail — T.R. and A.A.'s champion team will be more formidable this year than ever, and the strengthening process has started on the defence, where Gorden Bricker, the ex-Eaton and St. Michael's goalkeeper, will replace Addison in the nets. The Pellatt and J. Ross Robertson cup-holders concede Addison to be good, but they have in Bricker one of the best net defenders in the game. His acquisition is a surprise to the fans. The officers of the club state that a couple of last year's team played very poor hockey and that it was only the good work of the others that enabled the team to gather in its honours. Their places will be filled by better men. There is a chance of McLean being used on the defence this winter, as his brilliant work at point in Winnipeg and Cleveland was almost as good as that of Heffernan, but as there are two other defence stars who were with different local teams last season available it is uncertain who will be used in front of Bricker. However, it is quite possible that Frank Heffernan may be used as rover, as he is an even more sensational forward than he is a cover-point. Gordon Meeking, Jack Brown and "Bud" McLean will again be candidates for the forward line, as will "Mawk" Mackenzie, if he returns from Hamilton, and several stellar forwards last year with other clubs. In fact, there is a superabundance of high-class material for the senior O. H. A. and Eastern Canada champions to select their line-up from.

The trip in December will include Boston, New York, Cleveland and Winnipeg. The Westerners asked for and were promised a return trip this winter at the time the team were playing the Vics. All arrangements were made at that time.

It is not at all unlikely that the champions will have a junior seven.

TO FIGHT FOR ROMANCE FUND

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—A salad of wild onions gathered by a Mexican cow puncher 80 years ago is indirectly responsible for a lawsuit soon to be tried in the courts of California, by which 38 New Englanders seek to share an $8,000,000 estate.

In between the onion salad and the hopes of the New England claimants stretch 3,000 miles of continent and a train of adventure, romance, revolution, and conquest.

Opposing the 38 New Englanders when the case comes to trial, five weeks hence, will be found 37 Californians, who insist that the great fortune shall remain on the Pacific Coast and shall be distributed among them.

During the first quarter of the last century the son of a poor farmer of Lunenburg, Mass., migrated from New England to California.

A More Village.

Los Angeles at that time was a mission station of about 25 families. From then until 1841 the Massachusetts man stuck at his business.

Then enters the onion salad, and the long trail to the $8,000,000 estate begins.

Among the riders for the Piru Rancho was Francisco Lopez, and Lopez makes the first entry into the record of romance. Riding one day in the fall of 1841, he felt a craving for onions, and pulled a handful from the ground. Clinging to the roots were tiny yellow particles. Such was the first discovery of gold in California.

Gold began to flow into Los Angeles, and the Massachusetts pioneer, in the role of trader, began to accumulate his pile.

After a time he sent a shipment of gold to Philadelphia to the mint, and that shipment, bearing the name of Abel Stearns, was the first gold from the Coast, and started the great rush of '49.

At his death his money went to his widow, who died intestate. Her heirs think they should have the estate, hence the legal battle.

Inspector Makes A Seizure

TRENTON, Nov. 11.—The fishery inspector's launch was very busy in Neller's Bay, near the Bay of Quinte, during the last few days of October, and more than one fisherman is regretting the seizure of nets which he had the temerity to set out in violation of the statute.

At other times of the year the men who earn a living by taking the herring, pike, pickerel and white-fish, which frequent the bay in shoals, have a right to set their snares. But during October, netting within the confines of the bay is illegal.

Thousands of wild duck throng the waters during that month and diving, to feed on the wild celery which grows far beneath the surface, numbers of the birds get their heads tangled in the meshes and drown.

It was no secret that certain market hunters deliberately employed this device for taking wild-fowl, selecting favourite feeding spots for their pretended fishing.

STUDY OF BEAUTY HELD PRACTICAL ACCOMPLISHMENT.

"There is something of more importance than fashion and that is beauty," said Mrs. Ruth Butts Carson in her talk on "Fashion in the Light of Art," given at the first literary meeting, which was also "President's Day" of the New England Woman's Press Association at the Hotel Somerset yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Carson illustrated her point very clearly by the use of dolls, dressed in harmonious colours.

"In the Public Schools,' she said, "the study of art is placed at the end of the curriculum when it should be placed at the beginning. Beauty is practical. We want it, not only in dress, but in our homes and in the painting of the outside of our homes.'

She spoke especially of rainy-day costumes, saying that one should choose bright colours for stormy days rather than sober black, or the dull brown and gray usually worn. No definite rules were laid down by Mrs. Carson in the problem of colour, but she advised every woman to study herself, and by trying different colours find out that one most becoming to her.—Boston Monitor.

BRIDGENORTH

Examiner Special:

BRIDGENORTH, Nov. 10. — This part of the country has been blessed with a fine rain. It was badly needed, as half the wells in the country had gone dry.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McDougal are about to take their departure from the village and move to the City. They will be missed, both in social life and in the Church and Sunday school. What is Bridgenorth's loss will be Peterborough's gain.

Mr. Smith Kelly and William Kelly are at Trout Creek looking after their interests up there.

Three deer have been shot by the Bridgenorth Hunting Club. This is the latest report.

Mr. George Bell is busy with his cement mixer, putting in a cement wall for Mr. James Stothart of Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jobe and Miss Laidley attended 'The Land of Golden Dreams" on Friday night.

Mr. Percy Udy has purchased a fine team of bay horses from north of Bobcaygeon. A good price was paid for them. They are well mated.

Mr. G. Jopling has sold to Mr. Campbell one of his matched team of blacks. A good sum was realized for them.

A good many of the residents of the Chemong road would like to know who had the revolver in the shooting affair of Hallowe'en night on the Chemong road, as they don't want the impression left that it was any of them.

Mr. Eugene Touchburn of Ida, Cavan township, is on a visit to his brother, Robert Touchburn.

Quite a number of our residents are on tip-toe in anticipation of a couple of weddings expected to take place before long.

NOMADS! ATTENTION!

During the coming winter, to keep the "Nomads" footballers together, I would like to suggest they all join the Y.M.C.A., which will keep them all in "form" for the next football season. Being a member myself I can promise them all the sport they could wish for. I would like to see them call a meeting at the "Y," and then they would have a chance to look around the building and see what is in store for them. Now then "Smith" and "Moffat" what do you say? — Yours truly, "Suggestor."
